In the care free days of the pre-emergency period we were inclined to overlook the fact that our very lives depended on the work of the farmer who provides us with the bread of life

The past few years have taught us that if we hope to exist as a we must be self-reliant and rely on our own resources Our farmers have worthily performed their part and saved the nation from hunger, if not actual starvation

In the future we must all become more self reliant in our own lives too, and not be content to benefit from the labours of others
