This New Woman Of Today

(Specially written for The "Dungarvan Leader," by The Herbal Doctor, PCMH,MD, PhC)

Every true man when he nonders on the mystery of life asks been put off the field such questions as Where came I from? Where go I? What ought I to do? The first two of ought I to do? The first two of these questions however much we try to answer them always leaves us in doubt "We have but faith we cannot know, for but faith we cannot know, for knowledge is of things we see that when a referee is abused ne taken this year to change that when a referee is abused ne taken this year to change that when a power to put the offending was all wrong. The Secretary said that the existing Selection Committee of five had been appointed by the selection. Just like the new woman of to-

Yes I worship and adore her in spite of all her tyranny And day by day I spend money in buying all her finery What her whim by any chance is she need only give it

See how everybody dances round to gratify the same

No she hasn't any manners regret to have to say And she flaunts her gaudy banners in a most amazing way And her temper's autocratic for she knows of no compromise Yet is she a thing ecstatic, viewed in admiring eyes

Shes as noisy as the 'divil more especially all at night And her ways are most uncivil most positively impolite I have seen her thump a fellow with her fist upon the head And set up a fearful bellow fairly fit to raise the dead

In my mind a memory lingers how this woman new and D Good

Once entwined her lily fingers in my slender stock of hair And just pulled it till I hollered to express my inner woes Whereupon the pull she follored with a punch upon my nose None the less am I her loyal and devoted slave for aye will hail her always royal till the last eternal day

She has beauty superhuman
