Obituary—Ballyduff and district mourns the loss of a great old worker and sportsman in the person of Mr Thomas Beecher who went to his eternal reward on the 11th July Tom had reached a ripe old age and was well known and loved throughout the whole district and the adjoining parishes His prowess adjoining parishes His prowess as a worker earned high praise and he was always in the van-guard where sport was concerned He was specially fond of mans friend—the dog and was always accompanied by his faithful terrier He liked to tramp the country on Sundays whilst open coursing was in vogue and when a smashing hare got up and beat the dogs, his shout of good hare could be heard echoing over the fields. Only last season, though over 80 years of age he could be met on the banks of the Blackwater trout rod in hand and as well able to throw a fly as the best of us The remains were removed to St Michaels Church Ballyduff borne on the shoulders of his friends and were met at the Church gates by Rev. M. Dowley P.P. Ballyduff and Rev. Fr. Condon, C.C. Tallow. The interment took place in the additional contents. joining cemetery on Saturday morning after Requiem Mass which was celebrated by Rev. Fr McCarthy CC Ballyduff

CEΔROΔCAS δΔΕΙΔΟ IRISH CRAFTSMANSHIP

Diring the Bronze Age, 900 B C to 350 B C, Ireland was the source of supply to Europe of finelywrought horn-shaped trumpets. In no country in Europe is the antiquity of the harp thrown so far back in the regions of history as in Ireland It is recorded that among the retinue of Conaire Mor who was killed in the year 33 B C were "nine pipe-players and nine harpers ' Of the two most ancient European pictures of harpers both of the 9th century one occurs in an Irish work of art the Shrine of St Moedoc Two specimens of harps are noteworthy, the O'Neill Harp made in the 15th century, and popularly known as the "Brian Boru" harp It is preserved in Trinity College, Dublin, and served as the model for our coinage The other is the Dalway Harp in 1621. by Donnchadh FitzTeige

The Bagpipe is also of great antiquity in Ireland, being referred to in the Brehoft Laws of the 5th century On the crosses of Monasterboice and Clonmacnoise pipers are sculptured. Bagpipes were of two kinds, one inflated with the mouth, the other with a bellows. The term 'Uilleann' did not come into use before 1584 The present day Uilleann or "Union" pipes were developed early in the 18th century During this century also violins, spinets, and pianofortes were made in Dubi
