THAT CHRISTMAS FEELING—
Is now almost gone and we can once again relax and return to the normal tenor of our ways Peculiarly enough it is with a Rovers Martin Curran, Brickey eling of ease we do this even Rangers though we look forward with such anticipation to Christmas The nut brown turkey sizzling out of the oven which was the center-piece of every table on Christmas day is now just like Yorick's skull when found by the gravediggers, while the neatly trimmed and crimbed ham is just a ghost of its former self A good time was had anyway but thank God it's over for another 12 months VISITORS-

There was a large influx of visitors returning home to spend Xmas with their families but these are returning daily to the scenes of their labour SALES-

Catholic Scout Notes 4th WATERFORD TROOP CBSI (St. Joseph's Abbeyside)

Troop-Meeting—The meeting consisted chiefly of an Investiture ceremony The attendance was bad, but most of the absentees had good excuses was bad, but most of the absentees had good excuses Patrol Corners was a lengthy business as Micilin was busy getting ropes for a Knot Competition and Donal Whelan (not Duck) was all alone in the Wolf Partol When Micilin eventually arrived with the ropes, the Investiture Ceremony was held Nicholas Shanahan and Donal Whelan were presented by their respective Patrol Leaders and were "received into the ranks of the Catholic Boy Scouts of Ireland" They were duly presented with the insignia of the C.B.S.I Merit Badges were presented hext and Mike and Paddy were delighted with the "ornaments" as one chap described thems.

Yank then turned up from Dublin and then Oweno crash-landed into the Village The lads seem thrilled by Oweno's yarns I wonder if any of them could dive-bomb Oweno some night as he strolls I won t say where, but you may be sure he doesn't go around in the cold all night Garrett was the last to arrive from Limerick was Tom Crotty from Rockwell fair green was in a central posi-tion Now where could you find from Limerick

Looking Back—This is usually the time for saying something about the Troop's activities during the year I'll just pick out I wonder would I be far out ing the year I'll just pick out the outstanding events in each month and jot them down

January—The band practiced frequently and gradually became better We learn a few new tunes

January—The band practiced frequently and gradually became why? Because if the farmers are down at the Marsh then tunes teams for the Diocesan Cup of life scattered about the Competition were picked and Marsh and when a farmer comes The main topic of conversation at the moment is the Christmas period and the various minor adventures that usually accompany the festive time

It was dark and the Tans were on patrol duty around the for an outing on St Patrick's Day A parade to first Mass was well attended. The band went the call to the shops he is used to especially for his drink to 10 30 am Mass and after wards played around the Village approached. August—We left Rathdrum on Cattle were standing everywhere down again

September—The band attended a hurling match in the Gaelic Field Scouting activities were rather slack this month Donal Whelan turned out in Croke Park and you may bet he had a crowd of lads watching him.

October—Ropes were purchased and the lads began to get good at knotting The band held a few practices away and dashing all over the place Sheep occupied the footpaths while creeis containing pigs were parked all along the roadside—the cattle taking up the centre of the road including the Square In a nutshell the fair in Dungarvan is as far as the man in the street is concerned just one horrible tightly packed mess and a great danger to motorists cyclists and pedestrians

a few practices

November—Scouts began to wake up again and to pass a few the holding of the fair on the streets is most unhygienic but I to Sunday nights to give the Friary boys (or should I say boyos) a chance to attend This gave a very much improved attendance

The loss got hells are the control of the co

And last but not least I wondays again and didn't seem to do much as regards Scouting An Investiture Ceremony was held on 23rd As yet, the Troop hasn't recovered from an attack of stuffing on Christmas Day They fair green it is essential and must have forgotten their hygiene!

General—We did not see much of Garrêtt this time we we are certainly seeing enough of Yank and Oweno! Tis a pity Yank had to go away so soon, for more reasons than Oweno being lonely after him

And last but not least I wonder is it right that such a large progressive town like Dungary Ceadaoin.
