> Almost all County Homes are well sited and have sufficiently large grounds for their needs In many Homes, however there are walls and derelict outhouses which serve no useful purpose and which apart from being unsightly obstruct the outlook. The effect in many instances is to create an atmosphere of oppressive seclusion and it is sug-gested that this could be re-medied with very little expenditure It is desirable that all unnecessary walls should be remov necessary walls should be removed, as should all derelict portions of building, and that very high boundary walls should be lowered, being replaced, when necessary, by a form of fencing which would not obstruct the view (This latter course has been adouted with good results been adopted with good results in a number of County Homes)
