CORK AND WATERFORD SENIOR HURLERS PROVIDE THRILLING GAME.

Cork, 4-4, Waterford, 3-6
It has been an accepted fact hat a game between Cork and Waterford in senior hurling is usually a game well worth seeing but when the old rivals met on Sunday last at the Gaelic Field Dungarvan in the Feis na nDeise match they provided one of the finest games witnessed in Dungaryan in the Feis na Dungaryan in the Feis na nDeise match they provided one of the finest games witnessed. ed in Dungarvan's famed pitch for a good many years

Cork won the day by one point in a second half of thrills and excitement as Waterford provided a display reminiscent of an All-Ireland semi-final Cork who fielded four of their All-Ireland line-out opened up in the first half with a determined effort and safely built up a substantial lead on the scores

In the second half Waterford went all out and completely turned the table when they sent through two goals in rapid succession and took the lead by two points which they managed to hold for some time providing a thrilling episode in a game seldom witnessed in Munster hurling Dowling for Cork saved the situation when he registered a major following one of the most concentrated attacks staged by the Leesiders

Mick Hayes in the Waterford defence line was at his best and on more than a few occasions brilliantly saved the day for his side E. Power, a newcomer in goal did not do so well for Waterford and with a change in this position and in the forward line, where several golden opportunities were thrown away Waterford could well rely on a chance of another All-Ireland

Mr Jim Barry Corks famed trainer paid a high tribute to the Waterford players following Sunday's game when he told our reporter in Dungarvan that it was a team, at least 75 per cent better in every way than that fleided by the county against Tipperary at Limerick in the Munster Championship He said that Waterford had in this team an excellent combination with the provision of a few changes and he suggested that the fact be borne in mind and acted upon by the Co Board Mr Barry also paid tribute to the standard of play stating that it
