Did you know that the number of Irish-born people in Britain is now 722 000? It's a surprising figure isn't it? A staggering one, even a shocking one More shocking still is the fact that about half of the Catholic population in England does not go to weekly Mass Is there a friend a relative someone dear friend, a relative, someone dear to you in this ghastly total <sup>2</sup> It's worthy of thought isn't 1t <sup>2</sup> Is it worth doing something

Is it worth doing something about?

Now the Jesuit Fathers have been conducting a series of Missions for the Irish in and thank God the results after the been extremely gratifying 165 000 Irish-born people attended these Missions and attain a final rally of the Irish Mission in Westminster Cathedral there was present a congregation of 5 000 people But the harvest still remains great On Sunday May 30th the Jesuit Fathers will resume their good work when they open a mission in St Chads Cathedral Birmingham In Birming the mission?
