cally wrong with the team They fumbled consistently mis-struck the ball and were getting no length into their drives It would appear that over-train-ing was the fault, and this coupled with the fact that Tourin were quick to grasp their advantage, saw Abbeyside almost completely blotted out during the entire first half There

Abbeyside team saved his side time and again during this moiety. He was centre-back Jerry Flynn who was here there and everywhere and his sound defensive play must have been a heart-break to the Tourin men who were supreme in almost all the nobody left the pitch before other sectors. He was ably helped by Abbeyside's star full-back, Austin Flynn, and between them

ent Abbeyside team It was southerners with the slender The time has come for a hardly believable that they were margin of one point—four points greater individual effort by all the same side The game had to three hardly been resumed when they took control and the forwards came to life and began to register scores that the followers had looked for the two conveniences our selves or our fifteen snatched victory with the friends a bit. looked for in vain so eagerly in least possible margin There the first half It was one way were but two points between traffic from then on with Tourin them when they changed over, making an odd raid, but never again effectively coming into the

IRISH TREASURE

Sugar Bowl, Decanter and Perfume Container — National Museum There has been a tradition of glass making in Ireland for centuries in Dublin Belfast. Waterford, Cork and other cities glass of a high quality was produced and enjoyed an enviable reputation abroad Several times the imposition of heavy taxes crippled the industry but each time it again revived until, in 1850, the last glass factory was forced to close. After a lapse of more than 100 years glass was again made in Ireland In 1951, out of the ashes of the past, there arose a flourishing glass industry in Waterford which has regained the worldwide fame associated with the name of Waterford glass through the ages The National Museum, Dublin, possesses a fine collection of old Waterford Glass.
