CO-OPERATIVE BUTTER
FACTORY 76 YEARS AGO
A clipping which should prove of interest to my farmer readers, came into my hands during the week It comes from a recent issue of the "Wexford People" and in a column called "Jotings From The Past' contains the story that the first real butter factory in Ireland was commenced on a co-operative basis from these applications the first menced on a co-operative basis that if they are serious about in Dungarvan 75 years ago the matter as I am sure they here is the story as the column must be, they should register in Dungarvan 75 years ago Here is the story as the column gives it.

If The People "files of 1880, we find the interesting item that the "first real butter factory in Ireland or the United Kingdom was opened in Dungarvan in 1880, and the building was erected by Messrs W Carson and Co, Ludgate Hill, London, and of Bachelor's Walk, London, and of Bachelor's Walk, Dublin Originally, the churning power, was confined to six Halstein churns capable of turning out 4,000 lbs of butter daily These, with two butter kneads were worked by a four horse-power horizontal engine"

According to the report, the hand, in the various operations never touched the butter, suitable utensils being provided for everything The working of the society was purely co-operative Thirty of the neighbouring farmers and landiords of the surrounding districts—which was essentially a dairying one-agreed to send their cream daily The cream, it was stated must not be older than 24 hours, as sweet butter was the main the collection and that they have already to say that they have already they have already They have already They must be, they ishould register their literation and that their mames are on record They must say that they have already They must be, they should register their literation and that their mames are on record They must say that they have already They must be, they should register their special to and that they have already They must be, they should register their daily and that they have already They must be, they should register their daily and that their mames are on record They must say that they have already Thus use and splication and that their mames are on record They must be dargaty on one of the special forms which can be obtained application and that their mames are on record They must say that their special apply on one of the special forms which can be obtained application and that their mames are on record They must say on one of the special apply on one of the special their special apply on one of the special their

DO YOU WANT A COUNCIL

Now don't jump to conclusions on reading this heading all you people who have been looking for Council houses in Dungarvan during the past five years The problem is not solved yet and you will probably have to wait some time yet But the Urban Council in an effort to see that houses, as they become vacant, are let to the most deserving cases, have decided that a priority list is to be drawn

Notice of the Council's inten tion to do this appeared in the advertising columns of this paper on the 8th of October, but I understand that to date only 20 applications have been sent in Now the position is this all applications must be returned be fore the 8th of November and
