Thanks to the many readers of this column who in past months have either called or months have either called or written to tell me how much they appreciated my scribblings. No matter how modest one can be, it is heartening and rather nice to be appreciated and to get a little pat on the back. But while some like my stuff there are others who hate my guts for the things I write Let me say that I never write without reason and seldom criticise except when the public good demands it If at times there is a bite in some of the articles I write it is only because I feel a moral obligation to be acidly written to tell me how much they appreciated my scribblings

NEW LIGHTS ACROSS THE HARBOUR

Since the advent of early darkness many have been puzzled at the group of bright lights that mightly fileker across the waters of Dungarvan Bay at the other side of the harbour for a while I too wondered about these new lights until I found out that they were the new illuminations in that old world Gaeltacht village of Ballinagoul It is a case of modern progress bringing the spotlight to bear on surroundings pregnant with memories

The advent of the lights had a reject on the Board's activities This is the first number of the news-

The advent of the lights had a mixed reception—some there are who would prefer to have seen things left as they were, to allow a stroll to the butt of the hill in the gloaming without the presence of these searching and all seeing lights while others!

College, Dungarvan had a delightful win over St Colman's, Fermoy, when they met at Lismore last Thursday in this year's Munster Colleges Senior Football Competition It was wonderful football played on a muddy sticky pitch The Friary boys made light of the adverse conditions though and won well Hare's wishing them success all morning conditions though and won well Here's wishing them success all the way this year

An expert who has already seen the groups in action elsewhere writes me to say that in his opinion this is the best Concert Party he has ever seen—in Ireland anyway I have every reason to believe what he says. I understand that at Kanturk on last Wednesday night where the party gave their recitals, the audience went absolutely wild with enthusiasm following a soul-stirring grand finale in which Band, Chorus and soloists participated

Mr Moloney said that the de lay was fantastic

I'd be afraid of it

Mr Lannen said that he wanted to see those people going into for the work to be completed in those houses safeguarded He of some cases already he the required 10 years to apply that the penalty clause be infor reconstruction grants He said, where people were trapply the required 10 years to apply the required 10 years to apply added that he was not referring to any particular firms but he wanted to see no one breaking

Mr Moloney said that he was all for trades union labour but pay his costs as well he thought Mr Lannen's motion was one which should not be enforced Why should not a father and son be allowed to build houses provided they complied with the specifications he asked and why should they not be entitled to get grants Another member supporting

Mr Lannen said that he had seen handymen building houses in the town Mr Lannen-I want to ensure

Dungarvan out of business Mr Lannen said that he had no objection to a father and son building a house for their own could make no further payments want to deprive such people of until they heard from the Degrants and if the Council wished partment they could alter his motion to Chairma

The Chairman said that Mr have asked for the figures of the Moloney's amendment more or Borough Surveyor but have not less covered that point Mr Lannen said that/he would not agree with the amendment what these are as it left the position wide open. He suggested that the matter might be referred to the Solicitor to draft the resolution in order to make it watertight The Chairman said that the motion and amendment had been submitted to the Trade Union Authorities in Dungarvan and they had agreed to the amendment, and had directed him to vote for it. He thought it covered what was in the Counell's mind

Mr Lannen-Get the resolution drafted by the Solicitor and also have the bye-laws where necessary amended. Chairman's suggestion which was approved
