Fes na nDeise held last week in Dungarvan was but a ghost of its former glory Lack of financial backing and a loss of interest by the majority of the Committee were cited to me as being the main causes for the anaemia suffered by this great Gaelic function of former years To give credit where it is due I must congratulate Mr Liam Comerford who acted as Fear A Tighe at the various compe;

It was a pity to see the In the interests of economy sparse audiences that turned up also I think that one fire in at the Town Hall each night each room would be sufficient At no competition was the hall and this would serve all ineven half full. This was very terests best in the long run disappointing for the promoters of the Feis for it meant that the function was not getting the moral support it deserved from the public and this in turn also meant that the necessary financial backing was not forthcoming. There is no doubt but there was value given for the nominal admission charge every night.

**EVIN BARRY*

As promised last week I now give, by special request, the words of the well-known ballad which immortalises the martyry dom of the young Kevin Barry in Mountjoy Jail, Dublin on the 1st November 1920 have invoked the power under Section 3 of the Act Mr Halley further added that the Council had no power to require the Manager to do what was con-tained in the last sentence of the motion

Mr Lannen said he framed the motion in accordance with the advice of Senior Counsel as rread at the last meeting which stated that it should be brought under Section 4 Replying to this and other questions by Mr N Walsh the Solicitor said that the Council could pass the motion in its present form but the Co Manager could then take up the stand that the requisition was bad and that he need not obey it and that would leave the matter unfinished He pointed this out so that the motion could be rectified if desired and that it could be fully Mr Lannen said that he would alter the motion as advised for

MORE POINTS FOR WATERFORD

Waterford 2-8, Dublin 1-8

Frequently Des Ferguson sent

In the second half Dublin got more of the play thanks to a slight edge at mid-field where Paddy Heron beat John Kiely who was knocked off his best form by a forehead injury Yet these forwards couldn't master Mr Casey asked whose job it was to supervise the work carried out by the caretaker in the hall The Town Engineer Mr P Walsh stated that it would be unliacke (cousins) form by a forehead injury Yet these forwards couldn't master or even match such uncom- should pass a vote of censure on gourney promising defenders as John Barron Austin Flynn Phil Grimes or Mick O'Connor And what breaks they did get were thrown away with eight second half wides

From this Waterford team, there wasn't the same sparkle we saw against Wexford two weeks ago Perhaps the weeks ago Perhaps the achievement of drawing with the All-Ireland champions left them a little too confident Johnny Quarry playing his second game in goal brought off some wonder saves and proved himself a coal avertage. off some wonder saves and Mr Keane stated that clubs proved himself a cool custodian running the dances had to pay A six-footer if not well over it this man a further 25 - for a he even reached up on one occasion to stop the ball going over for a point. The defence was reliable but elsewhere there. If was stated that it was undidn't seem to be the same drive

Object Lesson

But whatever about the man-ner of Waterford's victory the gress should serve as an object lesson to any lagging hurling Engineer should submit monthly counties who adopt an in-different attitude to the League Let them take notice of Wa terford's satisfying march and This team trained for the game be warranted as there wou against Wexford and did the a great deal of repetition same for last Sunday's match Frank Walsh and John Kiely surely are examples of the new

Waterford spirit Young Walsh injured his hand at work during the week yet refused to cry off the team And when he pounced on the chance he turned into his team's second goal all Waterford supporters were grateful for his Impressive Debut

Midfielder Kiely's forehead was covered with blood as he game, but he turned back and continued to play on Noel Drumgoole the Dublin full-back was always watchful and allowed Mick Quirke little Steve Kelly was unspectacular but sound and Christy Hayes was prominent

But Bernard Boothman failed to hit the form he has shown in previous games Paddy Heron moved to midfield to deputise for Norman Allen who had to cry-off with a score hand made an impressive senior debut Vinny Bell, who replaced Heron in the attack enjoyed less freedom after Mickie O'Con nor switched over on him Tony Young back after a long absence took his goal quickly and cleverly

Poems of Heather Bell-30th in the series ---TO A NOVEMBER DAISY I wonder what you can be thinking of daisy?

Why summer has left us with all its glad train, Long since thy companions have sunk into slumber Then why is it daisy that thou didst remain? Dost thou not hear the wild winter wind wailing Amid the tall trees now withered and bare Or oer thy head sweeping with rage, pretty dreamer And bending thy petals so fragrant and fair!

Thou bring'st to my memory bright dreams of the thy sweet summertime when mid vine-wreathed arbours I called the wild flowerets of which thou'rt the last The last to depart—yet the No sluggard art thou sweetest daisy I know For scarce dreary winter's chill tempests are over When thou peepest forth from thy hiding place low

Oh, thickly the clouds oer the mantle of snow Then away to thy short sleep and haste to awaken Thy tidings of gladness again

That it seem to bring Thou knowest the ever awaiting The dear little sweet little herald of spring
