Through the weary winter the hours Down in silence fall the snowflakes From the sky no longer blue Shrouding all the haunts of summer, Hiding ev'ry path from view Drear and lonely seems the prospect, Everything speaks of decay. Through the solemn trees' bare branches Comes the wind with dreadful sway Down the wildwood where in summer

Springtime Bringing gladness in its train. Then shall valley hill and woodland Wake to bloom and joy again

TWO TOPICAL SUGGESTIONS

HOW TO MAKE ENDS MEE

A SAVING RECIPE

Life isn't all sweet rice pudding It can be savoury rice too. The teeming millions of the Eastern world live on it Rice with the husk on is best. Buy it unpolished This low-priced food will help your budget by giving you the foundation for savoury, fish and meat dishes Here is a standard recipe Make stock from meat bones, fowl broth or the remains of a roasting fowl Fry a chopped onion, some bacon, mushrooms, clove of garlic and skinned tomatoes. Only onion is essential Add a quarterpound uncooked rice, fry for a few minutes till grains come clear Put in left over meat if liked Pour on pint of boiling stock, cover and cook till rice is soft and liquid absorbed. This Risotto will help with a fowl, replace vegetables or as a meal on its own. No stock? Well, boil up a chicken soup square and cook the rice in it for a grand addition to a
