CIVIL DEFENCE
Well I'm in again, as a matter of fact I can boast that I was first in so I suppose that gives me some right to refer in this column to it. When the last war came to its miserable end I withdrew from the Local Defence Force and for the past eleven years I have been more or less "on the shelf". But I'm off it again as I have volunteered for the Civil Defence Service, and will soon be back in the ranks once more with the butcher, the baker the candlestick maker and all the other civic minded inhabitants who know that Civil Defence is their business.

The drive for recruits in the County was launched at a public meeting (as exclusively reported elsewhere in this issue of the Leader) held in Dungarvan last week. It was a remarkably well attended affair and both sexes were well represented. Particularly strong was the professional element but I would have liked to have seen more workers—the back-bone of any organisation—present. However, there is still plenty of time for them to go along and enrol to the Civil Defence drive for next week. Civil Defence volunteers do not necessarily mean that war is around the corner. As a matter of fact though it could be as it is impossible for even the keenest observers to see much of the future. There is a big build up going on between the Forces of the East and West and without doubt a clash is bound to come in the long run. When that war is almost impossible to say, and at most the notice that we can expect of an outbreak of hostilities is a bare seven days. On this footing then we must accept the wisdom of the proverb that there is no use in trying to thatch the roof when the storm is upon us. We must prepare now, and by our preparation be ready in some way to save ourselves and our property from the devastation of nuclear warfare.

A myriad of problems will have to be solved before we can boast of an efficient service for Civil Defence. There is much to be learned about the nature and effects of the various weapons of war and how to safeguard life and property. There is much training to be carried out—one trained volunteer is worth a dozen untrained people and there is much organisation to be done to ensure that every trained worker will be part of a team which will do the right thing at the right time.

Our country has never lacked volunteers in times of war and emergency but the volunteers needed for Civil Defence are the men and women prepared to fit themselves into the area of work. There is no use in waiting until the sabres rattle and the clouds of war are heavy on the horizon. To help them, you must enrol now.

NEW FISHING GEAR FORECASTS GREATER PROSPERITY
An innovation in the fishing gear of Irish trawlers operating in the Atlantic and on the east coast may mean new prosperity for the industry in the future. The new gear already extensively used in Scandinavia, Holland and Germany has not yet been introduced in any of the Irish or British fishing fleets. It is known as the "bottom herring trawl" and will shortly be introduced into the waters of the Grifflin and Schull trawler operating along the south coast the 70-ton Resolution.

The new trawl is different from anything yet used by our own fishermen. It is capable of bringing in catches of herrings and mackerel of unusual size. It can operate at a depth of eighty fathoms and its durability is said to be double that of the ordinary nets because wire is substituted for rope in its make-up. It is towed and pulled in by wires as well.

Mr Griffin recently visited several fishing centres in northern Europe and saw the Danish, Dutch and German fishermen working the trawl in the Baltic Sea and the North Sea and he has now been commissioned to use the trawl for the first time in Ireland.

In the course of an interview Mr Griffin had no hesitation in predicting the success of the new gear along the southern coast. The only snag would seem to be a new powered boat is needed and certain superstructure alterations are also required.

"We will start from Dunmore East," he said, "and follow the coast to a new powered boat is needed and certain superstructure alterations are also required."

Mr Griffin stated that fishing in the Scandinavian countries was organised on an impressive

"91st SWEEP BIGGEST WE'VE HAD"

"THIS IS THE DRAW WHICH HAS BROKEN ALL RECORDS"

Over Two And A Half Million Pounds In Prize Fund

This is the draw which has broken all records. This is the biggest Sweepstake we had since the 191st one on the November Handicap of 1930," said Mr Jack O'Sheehan, director of the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes draw on the Cambridge Road at Ballsbridge on Thursday 24th October.

The total proceeds of the sweep were £4,551,768, he announced and the prize fund was over £2,721 million. A total of £82,627 will go to the hospitals.

This was the 91st Irish Hospitals Sweepstake and Mr O'Sheehan on behalf of Lord Powercourt, Chairman of the Hospitals Committee, Mr Joseph McGrath and his fellow directors of Irish Hospitals Trust thanked all those who had supported the Irish Hospitals Sweepstake through the years.

The present Sweepstake, he said exceeded in gross amount the last greatest Sweep that year of £1,213,392.

The prize fund was greater by £1,515,376 than the Grand National 1957 Sweep and the amount which will go to hospitals was £25,628 greater.

Mr O'Sheehan said that this was the first time that the hospitals fund had reached more than £1 million.

The following are the figures for the Sweep—

THE PRIZES
Prize fund £2,561,500
31 first prizes each £50,000
21 second prizes each £20,000
21 third prizes each £10,000

50 residual prizes each £821
1,470 cash prizes each £100
3,180 consolation prizes, each £10

Payable to Revenue Commissioners £277,555

The following are the totals for the last 91 Sweepstakes:
Total prize fund, £99,764,372
Combined Hospitals and Red Cross fund, £40,680,289
Grand total, £140,454,661. Number of prizes drawn 261,753. Number of sellers prizes 56,667

SWORN INQUIRY WOULD BE BEST
A matter of major interest to the people of Dungarvan at present is the loss of an estimated £200 a year subsidy from the Department of Local Government in connection with the Caseville houses due to the failure of the Housing Authority to demolish 17 condemned houses from which tenants were re-housed. Since the bombshell first burst a few weeks ago it has been the source of much conjecture. At the meeting of the Urban Council at which the position was first disclosed it was decided to ask the County Manager to clarify the case.

This was done by means of the idea of finding out where the blame for the blunder, which will cost the ratepayers so dearly, should lie.

The matter was again discussed by the Council when they met last Friday night but the public will be able to evaluate the true worth of this discussion and differentiate it in the amount of sincerity and trust shown by the people's interests, if any, and political capital.

The ratepayers want to know the truth of this whole matter and as it is they who will be paying the piper, I think that they are entitled to a full and frank explanation and I mean explanation—not just a vague feathery statement aimed at getting over the problem for the time being. In the absence

DRIVE FOR CIVIL DEFENCE RECRUITS LAUNCHED

Successful Public Meeting In Dungarvan

The drive for recruits for the Civil Defence Service in County Waterford was launched at a public meeting organised by Waterford County Council held in Dungarvan on Wednesday night of last week.

Mr Michael Morrissey, Town Council Chairman of the County Council presided and also present were Ven Archdeacon Inver, P.P. Dungarvan, Very Rev. Fr. Brown, O.S.A. Prior St Augustine's, Mr J. G. Dowling, Secretary County Council and Mr P. J. Breen, Secretary Dungarvan Branch A.T. & G.W.U.

A large and representative attendance which included a number of the fair sex was present.

Letters of apology for non-attendance were received from the County T.D.s and County Manager.

Active Organisation

The County Manager, Mr S. J. Mowlhan in the course of a letter read to the meeting by the Chairman fully recommended the establishment and training of a Civil Defence Organisation to the meeting.

"The issue of Civil Defence," it went on "facing the public at the present time is infinitely more important than the issue of the last war. Our neutrality then preserved us from the effects of the air bombardment suffered by belligerent countries but if there are neutrals nobody can escape the effects of the magnitude of nuclear war with its residual radiation known as 'fall-out' which can be blown by the winds to fall over a wide area. This is the greatest danger in a country like ours which could still suffer even if not directly attacked from bombs dropped in England and shows that the danger is no longer a matter for big cities and towns, as radio-activity will penetrate into the most remote parts of the country carrying its deadly danger wherever it goes."

Urging people to join Civil Defence the letter concluded "Every citizen should be instructed in the dangers of the fall-out and the steps to be taken to minimize its risks. An active Civil Defence Organisation is the best means of bringing before the people the most effective methods of dealing with this and other hazards of modern warfare."

To Protect Life And Property

Introducing the principal speakers of the evening, Mr Dowling Civil Defence Officer for Waterford County and City the Chairman stressed the fact that preparing for Civil Defence was not a business at all expected but it was only proper that the people should know what to do in case there was war.

Mr Dowling explained that the object of the meeting was to urge people to join Civil Defence and to form a Civil Defence Scheme in Dungarvan so that people could learn how to help to protect life and property after an attack had been made.

Nuclear weapons, he said had been developed considerably since the end of the last war when the twin cities of Nagasaki and Hiroshima were atom bombed with devastating effects. The bomb could now be exploded which could cause utter devastation for a radius of 4 miles.

Even if Ireland could maintain her neutrality for Civil Defence other war broke out said Mr Dowling we would still not be free from the effects of an Atom or Hydrogen bomb as the fall-out of activated dust could be carried by the wind for 500 miles.

It means he added that a bomb was dropped on one of the cities in England we could suffer the effects of fall-out here. As a member of the Civil Defence Service a person could advise people how they could protect themselves against this.

Be Prepared
Stating that it was estimated by the Authorities that we would get only about one week's notice of an outbreak of war Mr Dowling said that the Government had wisely determined to ask the wind for 500 miles.

Defence and the Local Authorities had been charged with organising the scheme. The course would be covered by an attendance of one night each week for a period of 14 or 15 weeks.

The service was purely voluntary one he said and it was up to every individual to learn now how to protect his life and property in time of war.

Mr Dowling concluded by saying that it was one of the greatest charities for a person to give his spare time in peace time to give himself to help save his neighbour's life and property in the event of an outbreak of war.

LOSS OF HOUSING SUBSIDY AGAIN DISCUSSED BY URBAN COUNCIL

Councillor Denies Charges That He was At Fault

There was further reference to the loss of £200 a year housing subsidy in respect of 17 houses at Caseville when Dungarvan Urban Council met on last Friday night.

The matter arose when Mr J. McCarthy asked if there had been any developments since the last meeting.

Mr T. Keane who presided in the absence of the Chairman, Mr T. Kyne T.D. said that there had been a deal of controversy going on since the last meeting when the matter was first disclosed and certain rumours were going around. He wished to make a statement as to his position.

"Any house which I have been asked to demolish I have first disclosed and certain rumours were going around. He wished to make a statement as to his position."

"I only sold these houses to be used as stores," said Mr Keane and not to be lived in but what people do with them after they have bought them is no concern of the Council.

The member from Congress Villas then charged the Chairman "These houses were condemned before you bought them and you had no right to sell them as they were condemned and were to be demolished when the people who were in them left to go into the new houses."

Mr Keane replied "I had every right to sell them. Can't a man do what he likes with his own property? I carried out whatever regulations the Housing Authority requested and only became full owner of these houses a short time ago. I'm only interested in the sites and not the houses and I will be only too delighted to get the sites if they are demolished if I can."

Mr Keane added that he had in fact already demolished three or four of the houses.

RECENT WEDDINGS

O'Regan-Rigney—St Mary's Church Athlone was recently the scene of a very pretty wedding when Mr. Tom O'Regan Athlone was married to Miss Frances Rigney daughter of the late Patrick Rigney and of Mrs Catherine Rigney, Newbridge Athlone.

The ceremony with Nuptial Mass and Papal Blessing was performed in Irish by Rev. P. Lane C.C. Athlone assisted by Rev. Fr. McGowan.

Best man was Mr Jimmy Regan (brother of the groom) and the bridesmaid was Miss Nuala Hyland.

The groom was well-known in the Dungarvan and Ring districts where he acted as postman for many years before going to Athlone a couple of years ago. He is brother of Rev. Fr. J. O'Regan O.M.I.

Thurles Co-Operative Creamery Ltd. manufacturers of Suir Valley Ice Cream (distributed locally by O'Donnell's Model Dairy, Dungarvan) were awarded a diploma of merit in the recent National Ice Cream Competition held at Hastings Sussex and sponsored by the Ice Cream Alliance of Great Britain and Ireland.

This is the firm's third successive win of a coveted distinction.

"Mamma" said a little girl, "I never saw a picture of an angel with a beard or moustache do men ever go to heaven?"

"Oh yes" replied her mother "but it's always close shave for a man to get in."

Merit Diploma For Suir Valley Ices

Harbour Dues
A report from the Harbour Master, Mr. J. Curran, stated that harbour dues collected of the month of September amounted to £20 5s 6d "a big improvement on previous months."

Mr Curran said that the Government would want to be approached if small Irish harbours like Dungarvan Youghal and Kinsale were to be kept alive. In view of the lack of coal cargoes some form of subsidisation would have to be got.
