BEHIND THE SPOTLIGHT

THE COMMON MARKET
I made a few comments last week on Ireland's application for entry to the Common Market. This issue goes to Press on a Irish delegation led by the late Mr. Sean Lemass. Ireland's case is a familiar one to the common market. Ireland's industrial and agricultural policies will be affected.

VICTIMS OF CHOLERA
The terrible cholera epidemic of 1832 claimed many victims in the area around Dungarvan and they were buried in a common grave at the outskirts of the town. The resting place of these plague victims is well known, but this, like so many of our other curiosities, it is in a very bad state.

CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS
During the week my attention was drawn to a motor car parked on Dunbarrow Square. A great deal of money was thrown out of the car and was unaccounted for. It was unaccounted for. It was unaccounted for.

A SOLUTION—PERHAPS
The never-ending housing scheme in Dungarvan has been going on for many years. People want to know what the Urban Council are not getting on with the job and what the reason for the delay is.

PITCH AND PUTT
What about pitch and putt course in Dungarvan. This is the suggestion which comes from a native of the Old Borough who now resides elsewhere but who recently visited the town. Personally I think it is a charming idea and one which would attract and support and favour if it ever came to pass.

Each of the three performances there were the houses, with the finest production on Sunday night seeing every seat in the hall occupied.

The Common Market in Ireland. A free movement of labour could and would mean that we would have an influx of Continental workers into the country. With the materialistic philosophy practised by most of these it was necessary, he said, that everything should be done to meet this influx and to see that the Irish way of life would survive. The best way to do this he thought was through Macra Na Feirme which he said was the best thing to happen in Ireland for a long time. He referred to the great work done by the organisation during its eighteen years and stressed the point that the manner in which it had survived for almost two decades created a record in this regard for such a body.

Mr. Cullinan then paid tribute to Mr. Billy Walsh, Waterford, the energetic member of the Ballinacorney Club who had led the function and all present endorsed this remark by giving Mr. Walsh a great ovation which he richly deserved. A dance followed the dinner in the hotel ballroom.

Following a very excellent dinner, Mr. T. Maher, B.Sc., proposed the toast to "Ireland" and then came the toast to "Our Guests" which was proposed in a fitting manner by Mr. Pierce Casey, Secretary of the Kilmacoth Branch. Mr. Casey paid tribute to the work done for Macra in the County by the advisory services of the County Vocational Education Committee and the Press. Included among the guests were Mr. D. Cullinan, M.P., a past president of the Organisation, Mr. D. J. Coghlan, Chairman Co. Executive N.F.A., Mr. Brian Fearey, Hon. Secretary, Mr. John Barry, Hon. Secretary, Mr. John Barry, Hon. Secretary, Mr. John Barry, Hon. Secretary.

At the conclusion of the dinner, Mr. Denis Cullinan presented a number of trophies won by clubs for debating and public speaking. The County Executive Chairman, Mr. John Barry, presented a trophy to the club presented by Messrs. John Swift, Waterford, was accepted by Mr. John Barry on behalf of the club. Mr. John Barry, Hon. Secretary, Mr. John Barry, Hon. Secretary, Mr. John Barry, Hon. Secretary.

At the final curtain on Sunday night, Mr. Michael Cullinan, on behalf of the club and the club, thanked the audiences who had come to see them, for their very appreciative reception of the play. In numerous votes he traced the history of the club and caused many laughs when he recalled their early days and the productions they put out at the Town Hall, at one of which the hall nearly went up in flames. He finally thanked the Augustinians for all they had done for the club.

The club intends to start rehearsals at once for their next play which will be staged on the Thursday, Friday and Sunday after Easter.

NEED FOR MORE ADEQUATE AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS

N.F.A. Role In Common Market

In the concluding portion of his address to the N.F.A. National Convention in Dublin last week (first section was published in our last issue) Dr. John Creed said:

Recognition must be given for the measures that are already implemented, such as lower cost manures, etc. but these are not enough. It must also be remembered that there are instances where lower cost manures may be reflected in lower prices for farm products and where these exist there is no direct benefit to the farmer. In determining agricultural income, our official statistics only make allowance for seed, feed and manure prices and fail to make any recognition whatsoever of the tremendous wide range of input costs—machinery, fuel, chemicals, twine and other materials of all kind. The seed, feed and manure are in fact only one-third of the farm costs recognised in the National Income Accounts which we can measure trends in agriculture more accurately than is possible at present. Since our estimate of 533 million deficit since 1953, we have had discussions with the Taoiseach and the Department of Agriculture, and we are still working to get an agreement on the relative position of agriculture today by comparison with earlier years.

COSTS HAVE BEEN INFLATED

It is our view that input costs to agriculture have been inflated by billions of pounds over recent years and these millions have to be taken off the farmers' backs now, because tomorrow is too late. I believe we are now justified in using what measures are necessary to this end. I suggest that a start be made by relieving those burdens that are unjustly imposed on an impoverished agriculture by our own legislators. It is within our Government's control to rectify these impositions even if they cannot control export prices.

Rapid solutions along these lines will either result in our own indifference, or because of political failure to act—then the only honest advice to our young people might be to get out of farming as fast as they can.

You are the people who will determine the course of events. Your Council is there to do your bidding for you when the moral and financial backing to the job. Sitting on the fence might make some sense as a crime against agriculture.

In this short review I should perhaps make some mention of our Association's role in the international sphere. It is our belief that our contribution at this level can be as important to our individual farmers as it is to the world as a whole. We have extended our financial resources to the limit to negotiate as a full partner with other national farm organisations in determining the measure of the much needed agricultural resources. Through our membership of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers we have been able to present our views presented and pressed at a high level in this very wide range of international negotiations. Within the past year or so, the United Nations and F.A.O. are jointly sponsoring a World Food Programme, which meets in some limited way the aspirations of the world's hungry. It is not sufficient that their initial programme is anything like adequate to the task. It is our hope, then, that we will be a stimulus in their thinking to extend the programme to an adequate level.

All these matters are of very definite importance to every farmer throughout the country, although I appreciate that they find difficulty in recognising it.

COMMON MARKET

With the advent of our becoming partners in the European Common Market, your Association in Brussels as we now are in Dublin. With the advent of a common agricultural policy for Europe, Brussels will then be the nerve-centre. This will require from all Irish farmers moral and financial support to a high degree if we are to meet adequately the clear obligation that we have in this sphere. At the moment, I do not regard us as being adequately organised to meet the challenge that immediately faces us, e.g. the Dutch farmers devote as much finance to their activities in Brussels as our total income, and yet Holland is a mere stone's throw away from Brussels.

It must surely be peculiar that N.F.A. should have a better working arrangement with the Dutch Farmers' Union than that which exists with some of our own farm organisations here in the South. The determination of the new measures in preventing farmers from co-ordinating and uniting their limited resources is something that has constantly baffled me. This is due in some part to attributes of defects in my mind at least now that obstacle will be removed. Certainly, we are not short of common objectives where all of us could strive together towards their achievement. As I have suggested earlier, all of us could join in the common objective of relieving the undue pressures of local taxation on agriculture. Here, and in other spheres there is much to be gained from unity of purpose.

HAS SEEN N.F.A. GROW

For myself, it has been a great honour and privilege to lead your organisation through its early years. It has been a wonderful experience and always cherished. I hope now as a New Year resolution that we can all join together and endeavour to resolve and strength to back and support my successor, who will have to realise a magnificent programme of which we hope will be a short adieu to me and a great encouragement to the young, virile, aggressive adult.

I am appreciative and thankful for all the support and friendship that has been extended to me. I do not claim more than my fair share of the credit for the fact that in accepting the Presidency of the National Income Accounts I have not been hard and unyielding as associated with that honour.

I believe that I have seen N.F.A. growing and creating a vital impact on Irish life. This has been the measuring of our effort and our reward. I am proud of the narrow scope of our vital impact on Irish life. This has been the measuring of our effort and our reward. I am proud of the narrow scope of our vital impact on Irish life.

DEDICATED MEN

It is fitting that I should for my last formal act as President pay tribute to the great dedication and enthusiasm of a new President to implement them. I believe that a start be made by relieving those burdens that are unjustly imposed on an impoverished agriculture by our own legislators. It is within our Government's control to rectify these impositions even if they cannot control export prices.

Rapid solutions along these lines will either result in our own indifference, or because of political failure to act—then the only honest advice to our young people might be to get out of farming as fast as they can.

Game

We met Kilbucknet in the second round. This time the opposition was a stiffer one and we tasted defeat. It was a very good game. Here I would like to remark that we should take more interest in the big ball code. We have some good footballers and with proper attention to training we should get places in football.

Things were different after this

Discounting some tentative earlier experiments, photography may be said to have started in the early years of the 19th century. It was a hard technical knowledge on the part of the operator. According to Daguerre, a monument in sunlight required an exposure of some three hours, a landscape to seven hours. Somehow, in spite of the technical difficulties of the early days, the artistic standard was often extremely high. The impact of photography was felt in many spheres, notably in those of engraving and printing.
