A WAY OUT
During a brief discussion on the Report of the Commission on Literacy and the circular letter from the Minister for Local Government requesting that some effort be made to rehabilitate literates in the country at last Monday's meeting of Waterford County Council, it was stated that an expedition to allow the Council to take steps on the issue had been found. This entailed the posting of advertisements in the county for land where services could be set up for use by the itinerant classes, to which apparently no answer would be expected. The Council's decision was also described as a "way out" because as one councillor remarked "who is going to give land for such camps and who is going to give the land to other people beside them? The answer of course is no one."

In his report on the subject, the Assistant Chief Medical Officer of the County, Dr. J. Walsh, stated that the Commission had made an effort to live in houses that could be described as "sub-standard" but it may be difficult to achieve this without some form of compensation. He considered the prime need was to provide a desirable environment for the people who would be housed there. It is felt that there is a need of camping sites in West Waterford and it is hoped to pass through and not remain in camps.

AN OVERDRAFT AND A HALF
During the discussion on the Report of the Commission on Literacy and the circular letter from the Minister for Local Government requesting that some effort be made to rehabilitate literates in the country at last Monday's meeting of Waterford County Council, Mr. J. THEY SEEK RELATIVES
Two Irish-Americans have written recently to the Clerk, Dungarvan, in an effort to trace family relatives in the town. The first letter came from 13-year-old Marjorie Neal of 21, Pine Street, Port Byron, New York. She is seeking information about her great-grandfather, William Nugent, married to Margaret, who was born in Dungarvan about 1844 and died there in 1928. She is anxious to know whether there are any relatives of his and hers still living in Dungarvan.

THEY ARRIVED LATE
Last week I referred in the Leader to the Garda Síochána's failure to send copies of the new Traffic By-laws to the press. I am glad to say that the Garda Síochána has now sent them to the press. I am glad to say that the Garda Síochána has now sent them to the press. I am glad to say that the Garda Síochána has now sent them to the press.

Motions Before Co. Council Approved

Waterford County Council at its meeting in Dungarvan last Monday, approved of the following resolutions: Drumna Bridge: Proposed by Mr. J. Walsh and seconded by Mr. J. Walsh. That the County Engineer be asked to negotiate with Bord Fáilte with a view to having Drumna Bridge restored to its original condition. Ballyherring Road: Proposed by Mr. J. Walsh and seconded by Mr. J. Walsh. That the road from Ballyherring to Drogheda be taken over by the Council.

Dungarvan Man To Show Coursing Techniques In Portugal

Following a request from a Portuguese group of coursing fans who are anxious to get a number of dogs from the Lisboa area, Mr. Michael Fives, Dungarvan, left Cork Airport last Saturday for Lisbon to show the natives how to handle hares for the enclosed game. Some time ago the Portuguese wrote to farmer T. C. Secretary, Mr. Arthur Morris asking him to recommend someone well versed in handling hares in captivity to travel at their expense for a couple of weeks and give them hints on training, feeding and generally how to handle the game as they were anxious to get park coursing going in the country.

New Proposals for Development of Tramore

In the course of a discussion on new proposals submitted by Bord Fáilte for the development of Tramore as a sea-side town which took place at a special meeting of Waterford County Council on Monday last...

It will be recalled that following suggestions by Bord Fáilte the Council decided by a vote of 10 to 7 to accept an assignment from them of the development of the town...

Mr. Barry then went on to say that under the proposed Scheme of £1 million was available for the development of the town...

Mr. Barry then proceeded to question the proposed person to be appointed as Chairman of the Board of Development...
