THOSE REGIONAL SCHEMES despite all opposition voiced by the public, Waterford County Council will appear to be still toying with the idea of installing regional water schemes in Modeligo and Rathgorman. It is difficult to understand how members can vacillate so quickly from an apparent firm decision to one of doubt and uncertainty.

A couple of months ago the Council decided to scrap the Modeligo scheme and at the same time to agree to the same lines for the Rathgorman scheme. There was no doubt in the Council's mind at that stage, they were dead certain that the people did not want such schemes and that they were so outrageously costly that they could not under any circumstances be justified.

At the last meeting, according to the published report, I could gather that Deputy Fahey and some others were preparing the ground for a change of heart. They were not as certain about matters then as they had been. They were not sure that they had the true picture. They were hearing about the Modeligo scheme for the first time. Such an attitude on the part of reasonable County Councillors is absolutely ridiculous and I cannot see who they are kidding. It is certainly not the public.

We all agree that everyone and when I say everyone I mean just that, farmers (big and small), cottiers and all others should have an adequate supply of water. But we want it to be supplied at a realistic price. There does not seem to be a whole lot of justice in going galloping all over the countryside with miles and miles of pipes to supply odd farms here and there with a cluster of cottiers in between.

Now the N.P.A. has come out to claim that it is the only regional scheme. They have called on the Government to get more emphasis on solving the rural supply problem through the schemes of grants to groups and individuals. This view was put forward at a recent meeting between N.P.A. representatives and the Ministers for Finance and Agriculture when it was pointed out that for many reasons such a course of action would be preferable to the provisions of elaborate and costly regional schemes by County Councils.

In a Press release last Monday N.P.A. Headquarters stated: "Considerable emphasis is at present being placed on the need for channelling capital expenditure into the most productive schemes. Some of the regional water schemes which have been proposed for this country are about the most wasteful form of public capital expenditure that one could think of. The average cost of providing a private water supply through individual instalments or group schemes is approximately £120 per house. This compares with a freely permitted level of expenditure of £350 per house in regional schemes and £120 per house in the regional schemes which would work out at approximately £1,000 per house when reached. At an advanced stage of planning and would have gone even further were it not for the intervention of N.P.A. County Executive."

This refers directly to the London in 1959 sent to me by County Waterford schemes. Surely the Engineers at central and local levels are conscious of the fact that we are struck in the middle of an economic crisis. The big squeeze is on where the general public is concerned. Where do the Engineers, the Consultants and these multi-thousand water schemes fit in? Is it not time for everyone to show a little realism and remember that this is a small poor country and not an empire with endless means.

THE THRESHOLD. Apropos my paragraph about Michael Stapleton in last week's issue, I reproduce herewith without comment a letter on the subject from a London reader.

"Dear Penman: In your column last week you seek information about a London author, Patrick Stapleton. The name is Michael, I think, not Patrick. His first novel 'The Threshold' was published by Hutchinson, New Authors Limited, 178-202, Great Portland Street, London, W.1. In 1958 I read the novel with great interest particularly the parts dealing with Ireland. Apparently the family lived in the Whitechapel-Bellmarket area and came there on holidays from England. I have the pleasure as to the author shown on the dust cover of the novel.

Michael Stapleton was born in Dungarvan County Waterford in 1923. When he was four years old the family came to England and settled in Clapton, where he attended a Catholic Parochial School. He left school at the age of fifteen and worked as a butcher's boy until the war when he joined the Merchant Marine. After the war he worked in bookshops for two years, and then decided to try his luck on his own. However, although he enjoyed a certain success he says, "I was not a very good writer. I was usually not tired of being hungry." So he returned to the world of books and is now a lecturer with Oxford University Press. He has been writing since the war and says that his first full-length book has been accepted. He feels he would like, some time in the future, to make use of his stage experience and tackle a play.

He lives in Hampstead and his wide interests include music, especially the opera, history, and the theatre. I should imagine that this novel 'The Threshold' is largely autobiographical. He mentions grandparents living in Dungarvan and on holidays they stayed with Aunt Maggie at Cappagh who was married to a man named Mick Ryan. Old Residents in the Cappagh area should remember the family.

I hope the foregoing will be of interest to your reader who enquired about this author. Yours sincerely, STELLA NOONAN, 24, Canby House, White City, LONDON, W.12.

THIRTY YEARS AGO. With reference to the Honorary Programme of the St. Patrick's Day Festival Ball and Cabaret at the Albert Hall, London in 1939 sent to me by Mr. Joe Downey of Newhaven, Sussex, and which marked the debut of Frank Ryan's English debut, there was a photograph showing Frank as a young man.

In delicate health as you know, I met him one day in my travels. And he asked me which road would be the best. He said it was fresh air that I'm seeking. As my spirit is truly run down, I said, 'Well, King Eddie said it is fresh air you want. I'll take you to Kildorrery Town.' Chorus: Said the Pope 'I was once in Kildorrery. Shows you may think that is queer. But I went down the road to Kildorrery. And on by the Cross of Redehale. So now I will give you my blessing. So please on your knees all kneel down. May prosperity smile on Erin's green Isle. And on famous Kildorrery Town.' Chorus:

Mr. J. Drohan said that the late Dan Whelan was a very fine type of man. He knew the late Mr. Whelan personally since the time that both were employed by the Cambrian Insurance Company. I found him to be a very fine type of man. Mr. J. Drohan said that the late Dan Whelan was a very fine type of man. He knew the late Mr. Whelan personally since the time that both were employed by the Cambrian Insurance Company. I found him to be a very fine type of man.

CO. COUNCILLOR BEREAVED. Quarterly Meeting Adjourned As Mark Of Respect. As a mark of respect to their colleague, Mr. Sean Whelan on the death of his father, Mr. James Whelan, Kildorrery, Dungarvan, the County Council adjourned their quarterly meeting in Dungarvan last Monday without transacting any business.

Proposals for the adjournment and a vote of sympathy to their bereaved colleague, Mr. C. Curran, Chairman, said that this was the second time in a short period the Council had met to pass a resolution of sympathy to a member on the death of a parent. Paying tribute to the late Mr. Whelan, the Chairman said that he had been one of nature's gentlemen, a very kind and decent man and a great Irishman who had played a prominent part in the fight for freedom.

Reference to the printers' strike which has put the Dublin papers out of action was made by several members who stated that they knew nothing of Mr. Whelan's bereavement until they arrived in Dungarvan that day. Had they known it they would have attended the funeral.

Mr. J. Drohan said that the late Dan Whelan was a very fine type of man. He knew the late Mr. Whelan personally since the time that both were employed by the Cambrian Insurance Company. I found him to be a very fine type of man. Mr. J. Drohan said that the late Dan Whelan was a very fine type of man. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Russians in Cork. Dear Mr. Editor: At the annual meeting of the Waterford Committee of Agriculture recently, I found it indeed a good invitation given to the Russian Representatives to attend the Congress of Trade Unions in Cork city. How stupid can some people be? Doesn't Mr. Walsh know anything about Christian Tolerance? Ireland is indeed a good 'Christian Country', but let's show some of our Christian tolerance towards those who are, as Christ would put it, 'The Lost Sheep'. It is up to us Christians to show some Christian Charity towards the Russians and rescue them from their Pagan Idols. We will never do it by shutting the door in their faces and trying for their conversion. What we want is to show them we can all live in peace. We can show tolerance for each other's beliefs. As about time our Church or our Government did something about it too. We should have some representatives in Russia right now and they should have some in Ireland. I don't hold with their Pagan Doctrine and I never will, but I'm pretty certain 'God in Heaven' doesn't like it very much the way we keep treating His lost sheep. I would like to see more Russian Trade with Ireland and I'd certainly like to see the Russians building their factories in the Shannon area. Until we give them a chance, we shall never know how they might help us. God knows we need all the help we can get right now and I don't see the Americans or anyone else doing anything for us.

Birmingham Wedding Of Local Interest

SHERIDAN-O'BRIEN. The Catholic Church of the Holy Souls, Acocks Green, Birmingham was the scene of a very pretty wedding on June 28th between Michael John Sheridan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sheridan, Athboy, Co. Meath, and Margaret O'Brien, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denis O'Brien, Acocks Green, Birmingham, (and formerly of Dungarvan).

radiant in a full length white brocade dress, with shoulder length veil which was held in place by a diamante and crystal crown. The bride's bouquet was of pink roses, white carnations and maidenhair fern. She also carried a white missal sent to her by Sister M. Carthage of the Presentation Convent, Dungarvan.

Mr. James Sheridan, brother of the groom, was best-man. The ceremony, with Nuptial Mass, was performed by Rev. Fr. Poyres P.P. and the organ was played by Mrs. Lennox. The reception, which was attended by over sixty guests, was held at the Sydenham Hotel. Many telegrams and messages of congratulations were received by the young couple from relatives in Ireland and London.

Going away the bride wore a turquoise three piece with matching accessories. The honeymoon was spent touring Ireland.

Tallow and Round About Notes

The Late Miss Mary Tobin. We regret to record the death of Miss Mary Tobin, nee Treloar, Tallow, which sad event occurred at her residence on Tuesday August 3rd at the early age of 83 years and after a illness of short duration. The late Miss Tobin was a member of a widely respected family and was held in high regard by all who had the pleasure of knowing her. An exemplary Catholic she was possessed of a mild and gentle nature and her death will leave a void in the families which she served so hard to fill. She was a member of the Kilmartimo Drama Group. To her bereaved brother, nephews, nieces and other relatives we extend our deepest sympathy in their sorrow and loss.

arriga, Tallow, and now residing in Dublin, are spending a holiday at Mr. John Leahy's, Common, Youlgall, Mr. James Norman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Norman, is spending a holiday at his parents home. Inspector Patrick Dooling, London, Police Force, has concluded a holiday at his mother's home, Kilmore, Tallow. Big Day For Ballycut Sunday next will be a big day for the village of Ballycut when the All-Ireland Tag-O-War Championship will be staged there. The championship should attract considerable attention and a large crowd of spectators is expected to be present by Beamish & Carling.

On Holidays in His Native West Cork Mr. John O'Connor, who is employed at a Lismore Bank is at present on holidays in his native West Cork. Mr. O'Connor is an ex-Sergeant Major of the Irish Army, having joined the ranks in 1916. He served in the close of the Emergency during the latter years of his military career. He is a member of the 13th (Connaught) Infantry Battalion and was stationed in Clontarf, Caher, Killybegs, etc. He also served with the 3rd West Cork Brigade during the War of Independence. His wife is a Lismore lady. We wish Mr. O'Connor a very pleasant holiday amidst the scenes of his youth.

Salmon Season At An End.—The salmon season in the Tallow and Roundabout area is now over. The fish were very good, but taken all round the salmon season from February onwards was not as good as last year. The present parish of Kilmartimo, which was formerly part of the parish of Kilmartimo and Kilmartin. The present parish of Kilmartimo was known as Templemore under a separate Parish Priest. It is interesting to note that after the Reformation the name of Tallow, Kilmartimo and Kilmartin was changed to Tallow, Kilmartimo and Kilmartin. The name of the parish was changed to Tallow, Kilmartimo and Kilmartin.

Wedding: Hogan—Stevens.—The marriage took place at St. Michael's Church, Glendine, on Sunday August 8th. The bride was Miss Angela Reilly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hogan, North Main Street, Youlgall, and formerly of Ballycut. The groom was Mr. John Stevens, formerly of Ballycut. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Sean Nugent, C.C., Glendine. The bride was accompanied by her father, Mr. George Hogan, brother of the groom. After the reception the happy couple left for their honeymoon. Both bride and groom are both very popular and they were the recipients of many wedding gifts and congratulatory messages. We join with their friends in wishing them every happiness in their married life.

Death of Mr. John J. O'Connor.—The death took place at his residence, Ballycut, on Sunday August 8th. Mr. O'Connor, deceased who was in his seventies was a member of an old and highly respected agricultural family and was most popular. An ardent supporter of the G.A.A. he was a noted footballer in his day and played with the local team in many a hard fought game. The remains were removed to the Church of the Sacred Heart, Knockmore, on Monday evening accompanied by a large and sympathetic cortege which bore ample testimony to the esteem and respect in which he was held by his family and friends. The interment took place in the adjoining cemetery on Tuesday morning following Requiem Mass. To his widow, sons, daughters and relatives we extend our deepest sympathy.
