PENSMAN takes you Behind the Spotlight

RED LIGHT

Despite the welcome upsurge in the tourist trade during the past few weeks there can be no doubt that the red lights have been flashing rather constantly since the season began. Despite the contradictory statements made in the Dail and by tourist chiefs I think that it can be commonly accepted that there has been a big falling off in the number of visitors during the months of June and July. That there has been a noticeable pick-up in business this month is due, in great part, to the fact that the bulk of the visitors are our own Irish and that they are on their annual holidays. While the trouble in the north must undoubtedly be recognised as one of the causes for the drop-off, the main reason I believe is the manner in which our cost of living has zoomed within the past six months. This, of course, affects the tourist, too, because it means that he will have to pay more if he chooses to holiday in Ireland.

THE PRIMARY OBJECTIVE

During the recent government crisis on the northern situation statements were made from all sides of the Dail which seemed to indicate a change of policy in regard to republican ideals and the development of Ireland as a sovereign nation. This change has not come suddenly; it has crept in with the new affluence which places L.S.D. far in front of principles or ideals. People no longer care much about these things and are too busy looking after what they call "mumbo jumbo." They are no longer greatly concerned about the sovereignty of the State. ## Helvick Fishermen Threaten To Take Law Into Their Own Hands

FOREIGN TRAWLERS TAKING LIVELIHOODS FROM THEM

If the Government was not going to provide adequate protection to prevent foreign trawlers from poaching inside the legal fishery limits they would take the law into their own hands to prevent their livelihoods being taken away from them. This was stated by a group of angry fishermen from Helvick on Tuesday evening when they complained that the rich fishing grounds a few miles off Helvick Head were being invaded continually during the previous week by trawlers from continental countries. Mr. O'Connell, one of the most experienced of the Helvick trawlermen and former co-owner of the Helvick Lifeboat, said that he was withdrawn from service a couple of years ago because of the frequent inter-ference of the trawlers. He said that the trawlers had come well inside the limit to fish without restriction. During the previous week the position had become really serious, he said, and on Sunday night three of these trawlers could be clearly observed fishing about three miles south-east of the Head. "They had no doubts but that these trawlers were foreigners," he said, as no Irish owned vessels fished on Sunday night.

DIRTY OLD TOWN

Melodically this may not sound so bad but any Saturday or Sunday morning that you are in Dungarvan you will see what I mean. Normally things are not too bad during the week from Monday to Friday but then the scavenging service goes off duty for the week-end and the streets simply become a litter-bug's dream. I was in Dungarvan last Saturday morning and thought I never had seen any place so dirty and that applies to practically every street in the town. I expressed the hope that whenever the Tidy Town Competition, judges came that it was neither on a Saturday or Sunday morning! Surely it should not be beyond the realms of possibility for the Urban Council to stagger the time off of the men on the band-cart so as to ensure that one is available to at least clean the Square and principal streets on Saturdays. And while on this matter of refuse collection I wonder would it

REFLECTIONS

If you give a fish to a man you feed him for the day. If you teach him fishing you feed him for life. If men would believe that they will one day become Gods, then they will surely become worms. Push rightness to the extreme and it becomes wrong; press all the juice from an orange and it becomes bitter. Author Ladislav Borog gives us the way to happiness: "silent service and help creating joy in the world. We experience joy in the measure we give it."

DAILY DISCUSSION

The following gives the latest position of the government moves in regard to providing fishery protection vessels. It is an extract from the Dail Debates of July 29, the last occasion on which the matter was raised before the Dail adjourned for the summer recess. Mr. O'Donovan asked the Minister for Defence when he expects the fishery protection vessels to be delivered. Sir Anthony Edmond asked the Minister for Defence when he will take steps to lease two boats for the purpose of fishery protection in the Naval Service, and if replacements are to be made when will they be made effective.

CONCERN AT DAIRY FARMERS' INCOME POSITION

Concern was expressed by Mr. T. J. Maher, President of the N.F.A. at the income position of the country's 110,000 dairy farmers at a meeting in N.F.A. House. "Irish dairy farmers," he said "have been faced with very steep increases in costs at primary production level this season and in addition costs at the processing end have risen very sharply and have been seriously hit by the effects of the differential system of payment for milk. This crazy multi-tier or differential system of payment for milk is proving not alone disastrous to the income position of many dairy farmers but is seriously undermining the efficiency of the entire industry."

"It is vital now," said Mr. Maher, "on the eve of EEC membership that we have an efficient dairy industry that will meet the challenges facing us in an expanded European Market. A far greater incentive must be given for the production of top quality milk. This is imperative either within EEC or outside it if we are to compete favourably on a very competitive world market for dairy products."

Mr. Maher stressed that milk output for 1970 will be considerably less than the projection made earlier in the season. Projections were for an increase of 5% and to date we are 2.4% down on 1969 milk output. This trend said Mr. Maher must be reviewed in a most serious light in view of the long-term prospects for the marketing of dairying products and the natural advantages we enjoy in milk production costs over our competitors. He said already we had run into difficulties in relation to supplies on hard won export markets and that it would be very serious if continuity of supply was not maintained on export markets which had taken a great deal of effort to break into.

He emphasised that Ireland had a considerable advantage over all European countries in the production of milk. Our natural advantages of soil and climate offered us the possibility of being very competitive in Europe in the field of milk production. We should not lose the possibilities offered to us by EEC membership where milk prices were more than 1/- per gallon higher than here. There should be a real effort to establish an efficient dairying industry now which would give very worthwhile returns to the Irish economy and Irish milk producers when we join the EEC.

"Creamery milk producers," Mr. Maher continued "have been faced with very steep increases in costs at primary production and processing levels in 1970. The net result of this is that milk which is costing more to produce is realising a lesser price than in 1969. As a result the income of dairy farmers is hit seriously this season.

"Dairy farmers cannot be expected to accept Government inaction on milk prices at a time when many other sections of the community were demanding and receiving substantial increases in their wages and salaries."

Mr. Maher concluded that a series of meetings are being held throughout the country to consider the serious decline in the income of dairy farmers this season.

ONE-THIRD OF IRISH FARMS NON-VIABLE SAYS REPORT

Less than half the farms in the country can be regarded as viable. Almost a quarter can be said to be potentially viable. More than one third have "had their chips" in an economic sense. This is one of the statements contained in the recent Report on State Expenditure in relation to Agriculture.

One may argue about the exactitude of the figures quoted. The fact still remains that—no matter what measure is used to determine viability—a very sizeable proportion of our farms do not come into that category.

There are farms which, even if fully and efficiently worked cannot provide a satisfactory income for their owners. Then too there are farm owners, who because of age or other factors, are in need of, and deserve, State support. The point made in the Report is that support should be clearly identified as a social payment and not as an aid to agriculture as such.

The majority of people in Ireland seem to close their eyes to the non-viable farm problem i.e. the farm which cannot provide full time remunerative employment. Yet, the State (the community) and especially farmer organisations have a responsibility here. The present system of aids to small farms contains nothing to prevent the existing problems from being carried on from one generation to the next. Obviously, this is bad for the national economy. It is particularly bad for other farmers, because a false picture is presented of agriculture, properly speaking, and State aids are not being used to the best advantage.

Few will question the statement that "social welfare payments are absolutely necessary for many small farmers." Nevertheless the payment of social welfare payments enable them to carry on, on holdings that become gradually more neglected and yield less as the owners become more elderly or infirm.

Those acquainted with rural Ireland will also agree that if radical changes are not made shortly the problem will only be aggravated in the long run.

The N.F.A. has consistently tried to draw the attention of the Government and the public to this poor section of the agricultural community. Over the years it has made recommendations to various Departments on their behalf. The Association has emphasised on many occasions the importance of introducing attractive schemes to encourage elderly or ailing farmers to retire from farming. Within the next decade there will be substantial changes in land distribution due to the death rate among elderly farmers with no successors. These changes should be exploited to the full in a planned effort to bring about better farm structures in the industry.

Unless the owners of non-viable farms are generously treated, in other words, unless the Government Schemes to acquire land become more attractive than they have been in the past, we will continue (a) to remain in the unenviable position where rural problems will get progressively worse and (b) to spoil the chances of many young progressive farmers who, through not being able to get more land, will opt out of the industry altogether. It will be their loss; it will also be ours.

NATIONAL SHEEP COMMITTEE DISCUSS LICE PROBLEM

Some members of the N.F.A. National Sheep Committee pointed out at a meeting of the committee in N.F.A. House that in a particular part of the country lice in sheep is proving resistant to the B.H.C. dips which are available.

The Association has contacted the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries and the Department has taken up the matter with Cooper's who are the recognised specialists in this field. Cooper's have taken the strain of lice from this area and have planted them on sheep as part of their experiment to study this problem.

The N.F.A. pointed out, however, that sheep owners should not take undue notice of the fact that there is a resistance in a particular area to a particular dip because this does not apply in other parts of the country where ordinary dressing for lice still applies.

The Association said that other areas may have problems of lice resistance to B.H.C. dips as has been established in Great Britain but added that the organo phosphorus dips are effective against lice, including those resistant to B.H.C.

Concern was also expressed by some members at the meeting at the increasing incidence of scab in sheep. One of the big factors here is "employing a method of marking sheep which has been dipped."

It was learned that the Department of Agriculture has tagged several thousand sheep in the South of Ireland as an experiment.

N.F.A. SHEEP COMMITTEE MEET THE DEPARTMENT

Representatives of the N.F.A. National Sheep Committee met senior officials of the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries at Government Buildings and had a two hour discussion on the future of the sheep industry in general.

In a statement issued after the meeting the Chairman of the N.F.A. Sheep Committee, Mr. Peter Killian said the talks covered a wide field, including measures considered necessary to gear the industry in preparation for entry to the European Economic Community and the more immediate problems of halting the decline of the national sheep flock.

To assist flock owners in carrying sheep over the winter period and helping to create a situation whereby greater numbers of hoggets would be presented for slaughter from January to May a headage payment was requested by the N.F.A. delegation on all animals presented at this time of the year for slaughter. The headage payment would vary from month to month and could, if conceded, go a long way towards providing the encouragement needed for sheep producers to hold and feed surplus stocks for sale during this period.

Other points discussed were: fencing grants to all sheep farmers; improved grants for housing and handling facilities; disease problems; the breeding programme of the Department; the control of dogs; and the reclamation problem on the Curragh.

The Department officials promised to give serious consideration to the points raised by the N.F.A. in the discussions, which were frank and cordial.

ECUMENICAL SERVICE IN STRADBALLY'S OLD CHURCH

Move By Muintir Na Tire

The ancient church at Stradbally, built 700 years ago but now disused for hundreds of years will be the venue of a short community act of worship to be held on Sunday next at 3 p.m. and to which everyone will be welcome.

The ecumenical service has been organised by the Waterford Muintir na Tire organisation who have chosen the venue because the old walls of the church at Stradbally still stand as a memorial to the united community of long ago and a hopeful symbol of a unity to be regained.

They feel that a fully representative gathering within these walls for such a common act of worship, however brief, will be not only a tribute to the faithful of other ages but an expression of Catholic commitment to the growing unity of all Christian people.

Rev. Dean Gray-Stack will speak at the service at which many priests and other religious are also expected to attend.

WATERFORD HOUSING POSITION RAISED IN DAIL

Replying to a question by Mr. E. Collins (F.G.) in the Dail, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Local Government, Mr. Liam Conboy, stated that Waterford County Council completed five houses in 1957 and 38 houses in 1969. At the end of last month (June) the County Council he said, had work in progress on 76 dwellings and had 320 more houses at tender and planning stages.

LITTLE DISEASED FISH IN SOUTH-EASTERN RIVERS

In a report issued by the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries on the incidence of U.D.N. (salmon and trout disease) in Irish rivers during the months of June and July it was stated that generally this was very low in all areas. This has been the pattern for a number of years past as with the increase in water temperature, disease in salmon virtually disappears.

The report stated that U.D.N. was not present in the rivers Suir, Nore and Barrow while in the Blackwater only twelve diseased fish were observed during the period.

LEAMYBRIEN MAN WITH UNFORTUNATE BACKGROUND GOES BACK TO JAIL Richard Glavin (23) of Briston, Leamybrien, Kiltrossary, who was released from Portlaoise Jail on August 12 after serving a sentence of 12 months went back to prison on a charge of stealing £220 from the dwellinghouse of John Crutty, Leamybrien on the night he was released from prison. Sentencing Glavin to a further period of 12 months, District Justice McCav stated: "You are not out of prison 24 hours after a 12 months sentence when you are in trouble again. TOWN ENGINEER OR FOREMAN NO GOOD TO US SAYS DEPUTATION SPOKESMAN

Housing repairs were costing more than they should and the people responsible should be hauled over the coals, this was stated by Mr. E. Fitzgerald, Congress Villas, when he led a deputation from the Council tenants of the area at a meeting of Dungarvan Urban Council last Wednesday night. Mr. Fitzgerald said that he was speaking as a tradesman with forty years experience and that he had been employed doing labourers' jobs and that there was something very wrong when a tradesman was employed to hack down walls.

GALES AND RAIN—

The storm which blew up last Saturday has been described as the worst summer storm in memory here. It could equally be described as the worst either of summer or winter for a long time. Accompanied by torrential rain it caused a great deal of damage. However, grain crops did not suffer as much as was at first suspected and harvesting proceeded apace all during the week with only light losses being reported.
