OPENING DANCE OF SEASON

The Units THIS FRIDAY JUNE 11th Waterford's Top Group

PESSMAN takes you Behind the Spotlight

A DANGEROUS ATTITUDE
The action of Waterford City Mayor, Mr. M. Downey, in having a meeting of the Press excluded from a recent meeting of the South Eastern Regional Development Organisation held in Dungarvan is encouraged by his colleagues in the general public. I believe that the Mayor's action could well have been greeted by the Press men present as it is not quite so simple as exclude press representatives from a public meeting as the Mayor's action would make it appear.

COULD THESE THINGS BE DONE NOW
Now that C.I.E. has removed the dangerous railway tracks which crossed the road at the Causeway between Dungarvan and Abbeyside I wonder would they finish off the job by removing the ugly created barriers which they have used at many points to seal off entry to the old disused line.

EXAMINATION TIME
For thousands of boys and girls all over the country this is exam time and since yesterday (Wednesday) they have been hard at it. I was amazed to learn from figures released from the Department of Education just how many thousands were involved in this year's examinations.

ORDINATION CEREMONY IN WATERFORD CATHEDRAL
A vocation to the priesthood was a gift from God not only from the religious aspect but in service to the community generally. The Bishop of Waterford and Lismore, Most Rev. Michael Russell, D.D., said when he ordained nine students of St. John's College, Waterford, to the priesthood in the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity, Waterford, last Sunday.

HOW THOSE HEALTH CHARGES JUMPED
The extent to which health charges have increased in a period of seventeen years can be seen from the reply given by the Minister for Health in 'The Da' last week to a question seeking this information.

IRISH MANAGEMENT INSTITUTE SOUTH-EAST REGIONAL COMMITTEE
The following Committee was elected at the A.G.M. of the Irish Management Institute (South-East Region): Chairman—W. Cobbe, Managing Director, Alcock's Ltd., Waterford; Hon. Secretary and P.R.O.—M. P. Gavin, Area Sales Manager, C.I.E., Waterford; Committee—T. Daly (Outgoing Chairman), M. Walsh, A. K. Killeen, C. Forde, M. Flannery, G. Wallis, T. N. Richards.

NATIONAL PILGRIMAGE
I have been asked to pass along the information that there will be a national pilgrimage to the Shrine of Blessed Oliver Plunket, at Drogheda on Sunday, July 11. Pilgrims from the Waterford diocese will travel by train from the city.

WEDDING
TROY-KEOHAN
The wedding took place at Ballinacorney Church on Saturday, June 12th, between Mr. John J. Troy, Friary Street, Dungarvan, and Miss Elizabeth Keohan, Friary Street, Dungarvan. The ceremony was officiated by Very Rev. D. McGrath, P.P., Ballinacorney. The best man was Mr. J. B. Nagle, Abbeyside, and the matron of honour was Mrs. Tony Grey, Mullinbeg, Co. Carlow. The bridesmaids were Misses Mary and Maureen Keohan. The groomsmen were Messrs. John and Michael Troy. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Troy, Friary Street, Dungarvan.

GOVERNMENT FAVOUR
RETURN TO GMT IN WINTERTIME
The following statement has been issued by the Government Information Bureau on behalf of the Minister for Justice: Having regard to the British decision to revert to Greenwich Mean Time during part of the year, the Minister for Justice some time ago asked representative organisations and State-sponsored bodies for their views as to whether a corresponding change should be made in the law here. The general public were also invited, by advertisements in the newspapers, to make their own views.

WEST WATERFORD IS INDUSTRIALLY RUN DOWN
That the West Waterford area of Cappoquin, Lismore and Talbot was industrially 'run down' was stated by Senator William Ryan (South Tipperary) at the monthly meeting of the South Eastern Regional Development Organisation held in Dungarvan. During a brief discussion on matters arising out of the Regional Report, Senator Ryan said this particular area of West Waterford was being neglected industrially and they should endeavour to do something about it.

NEAR UNANIMITY
The Government have considered the matter in the light particularly of the near-unanimity of views expressed by representative organisations and they have accepted these views. They have therefore authorised the Minister for Justice to prepare and introduce legislation to make Greenwich Mean Time during the winter a permanent time.

GLENBEG I.C.A.
The monthly meeting was held on Tuesday night last June 8th. A large attendance was present and the meeting was chaired by the President Mrs. Tobin. The annual outing was discussed and this year it was decided to visit New Ross, Ennis-cortney, Avoca, on July 18th. Anyone interested in travelling should contact any of the members or committee. Arrangements were made for a raffle to be held on September 6th. Prizes are as follows: 1st, Area Jacket; 2nd, Club's Poncho; and cap; 3rd, boys tweed jacket.

CLASHMORE AND DISTRICT
The Local Beaches—The local beaches stretching from Whiting Bay to Fortypoint will be crowded places every week-end for the next few months. An appeal is made to all visitors to keep the beaches safe and clean by refraining from leaving behind bottles, tins, cartons, papers and other rubbish. Clashmore G.A.A.—This is a very well organised club and has some outstanding footballers. Undoubtedly the best is Liam O'Rourke, who is one of the finest and most dedicated players in the county. In the successful N.L. campaign he was a very consistent forward and his relegation to the subs for the championship came as a surprise. Aghish Club—Despite a recent setback Gera's men are expected to be a strong force in the S.F. losers' group. All the players will be fit at this stage. Ardmore And Grange F.F.—We are asked to draw attention to the fact that the A.G.M. of Ardmore and Grange F.F. Committee will take place in Ardmore Hall on 9th night (Friday), 11th June. T.D.'s and other public representatives will attend and members of the general public are invited to be present. Local Projects—Work on the Aghish Sewerage Scheme is well advanced. The construction of the new bridge at Donmore is proceeding satisfactorily. Both projects are welcomed by the people of the area. Tidy Towns—An all out effort is being made in Villierstown this year and a big improvement is expected. Clashmore did exceptionally well last year and is expected to do even better this summer. The people of both centres are asked to keep the streets free of litter and to brighten their premises. Judging will take place in the near future.

JUSTICE'S WARNING TO BOYS AND YOUTHS ON LARGENY AND RECEIVING CHARGES
 He would inform the charges against them until next October to see how they would behave in the meantime and if they were guilty of any misbehaviour during that time or if compensation was not paid to the injured parties he would send them away.
 This was stated by District Justice J. J. O'Reilly at Dungarvan Court on Wednesday when two 14 year old boys and two youths aged 17 years and 18 years, all with addresses at Cahal Braha Place appeared before him on a charge of larceny.
 "One of the boys was charged with stealing a transistor radio value £15 and two screwdrivers the property of Thomas Walsh, Kilmoghran, from a car parked at 77th Street on January 15th. The boys were charged with receiving one of the stolen watches.
 Det. M. English stated that during the football match at the Priory Field, the two boys got into the dressing shed and stole the articles valued at £10 and subsequently recovered but £4 worth of damage had been done to the transistor and the screwdrivers had not been recovered.
 Thomas Walsh in evidence said that on January 15 he left his car parked in O'Connell Street, while he went to the pictures. When he returned he found that the transistor and the screwdrivers had been stolen. The driver had not been recovered.
 Det. Garda T. McDermott gave evidence of investigating the cases and said that he had recovered the watch in a local jeweller's shop. Repairs costing £4 had been carried out to it. The other property had not been recovered.
 The Justice dismissed the receiving charge against one of the youths but ordered that the parents of the two boys should each pay back £10 compensation while in addition the father of the boy who stole the transistor was ordered to pay an additional £15. He then adjourned the charges as stated.

RESTRICTED PROGRAMME ON SUNDAY
NEXT SUNDAY
 Because of the annual Corpus Christi Procession in all areas on Sunday next, the club championship programme is restricted and in all only three games will be played in the West.
 Most attractive among these will be the clash between Geraldines and Portlawn in senior football (Igers group) at Dungarvan at 7.30 p.m. The Aglish team, well beaten by Athane in the first round, will have a much better proposition now, with many of their injured players having recovered and available to play again.
 The fixture was a disappointment to Geraldines, who were due to play against Eborahilly in hurling on Sunday and they had been concentrating on this since their performance against challenge games during the past few weeks. Nevertheless, on last Sunday's performance against Eborahilly, I doubt if Geraldines will need to be at their best for this test.
 At the last meeting of the County Board, Paddy Kenneally said that they had their best hurling team in the county, but should be more than enough. They must win this one even though they will be opposed by experienced men like the Williams and the Kirwans.

AFTERNOON GAME
 Glen Abbey, the new Mellary side, who fought and lost the battle to get into the lower grade at the fixtures meeting last week, will be playing their first official hurling game here next Sunday when they oppose Fourmulewater, who are currently leading the county. This is not having seen the Mellary side in action, I cannot offer an opinion on their standard, but I will be surprised if they are on a par with that of their opponents who have such good hurlers as Mick Connolly, Jim Walsh, Kieran O'Riyan, Paddy Joe Ryan, Morgan, Connolly and Fitzpatrick. The side of Fourmulewater, who are currently leading the county, is so waterford football is going places.
 On Saturday night on Sunday there was but one championship game and this was a thriller between the second round in senior football Ballyduff Portlawn and the first round in senior football Ballyduff Portlawn. The score of 4-6 to 2-2, expressed the superiority of the winners in a game that proved a real test for the operators at Walsh Park.
 Patrons at the Friar had a very good night, and the tale to tell, and the big crowd for every reason to be glad of the football world that night. The expected meeting between Killyrossa and Ballyduff Portlawn will not materialise, as Killyrossa are claiming the right to wait until Ballyduff have played their intermediate team.

UNDER 21 AFFAIRS
 In preparation for their first championship meeting with Tipperary, Waterford's under 21 hurling team, including Eborahilly, Killyrossa in a challenge game at Walsh Park on Saturday night. The score was 2-9 to 2-9 in our favour, shows how superior Waterford were.
 Killyrossa requested this game for the hour and half, while we were minus several who will be automatic choices for the county.
 While on the subject of the selection, I wonder why players like Jimmy Friar, Mick Pines, Michael Brody, and one of two others in the age group, who "shone" in the tournament game between Eborahilly and Abbotside on Sunday night, were not considered for the county.
 Questions are also being asked about the under 21 football selection in which were also some very strange omissions.

MEETING
 The Western Board will meet at Cappoquin on Saturday night to complete their list of under-21 fixtures and to make third and final fixtures for the Junior championships.
 The Senior Board will meet at Dungarvan on Monday night to hear a report of the special Congress and to approve of the fixtures list, which is now completed up to and including the county level. I have seen this excellent championship plan and if it works out the way it is intended the championship will be run far more efficiently than ever.
JUVENILE MATTERS
 As far as is known, the 2nd round in hurling and football of the under 14 championships will begin next week at Ballyduff Portlawn and all that rounds must be finished by next Sunday. Since our last notes we have had a couple of months have been Killyrossa (H) Eborahilly defeated Fourmulewater in hurling and Ballymacart defeated the decision was very close, but in both Killyrossa received a W.O. from Clonahara in hurling.
 On Saturday night last Abbotside defeated Dungarvan in

RING BEATEN
 Ring, although giving a very good account of himself in the second round of the special Gaelic championship played at Walsh Park last night, the Abbotside side which beat them won out the championship.
 Dungarvan minor hurlers had a useful challenge at the O'Connell grounds on Sunday night when they put up a very good display against Paddy West of Cork. The game was a free for all, but the minor champions robbed Dungarvan of a medal by forcing a close finish from the Abbotside side.
 The prospects for this year are bright, and they were best served by goalkeeper Paddy Hackett and the defence of Paddy O'Riyan, Michael Pines and Michael Hackett and John O'Riyan in attack.
 Referee—J. Moran.

BALLINACOURTY V. DE LA SALLE
 A second game in the latest group on Sunday will take place at the city venue where they play De La Salle which should be a very good game when they meet at Dungarvan two years ago. Ballymacart now the city secretary has improved as we saw in their game against Clonahara and they look much better than Ballymacart seem to be.
 Both sides play a grand brand of football and with little difference in their standards, this could be a close affair. Some home ground advantage will reverse the result and Ballymacart will be the victors.
FIXTURES
 Dungarvan: I.H.C. Championship — Fourmulewater v Glen Abbey.
 Lismore: J.H.C. — Eborahilly v Walsh Park S.F.C. — Ballymacart v De La Salle.

TOPP. BEAT HARD BATTLING FOURTEEN MAN WATERFORD SIDE

LOSS OF DEFENDER PROVED TOO MUCH Tipperary 1-14; Waterford 1-9.

Tipperary scored their third victory over Waterford in the current season when they beat them by five points, 1-14 to 1-9, in their first round Munster Championship clash at Dungarvan, on Sunday last. Tipperary thus qualify for a tilt against All-Ireland champions Kerry, at Killarney, on Sunday next.

Their passage through to the improvement in the second half was made rugged by a after a shaky start and their attack on a particular produced some fine football. In this area Vincent O'Donnell, Michael "Babs" Myles all worked hard. John O'Donoghue was soundness personified in goal. Jimmy Harney, Mick McCormack, Dick O'Gorman, Eddie Webster and Pat O'Donoghue all showed up well in defence.

Tipperary tried a number of pairings at midfield the most successful of which was Dinny Burke and Dick Strang. It was a disappointing evening for Waterford and the loss of their strong right half back proved, in the final analysis to be catastrophic. They were best served in defence by goalkeeper John Collier, Jim Wall and Wally Conners.

Even utilising their extra man to good effect after Lannon's dismissal and despite the fact that they took Tipperary all in all under thirty minutes to draw level with a gallant Waterford side.

Waterford came increasingly under pressure as the hour progressed and when Tipperary did draw level in the second half the loss of their defender put tremendous pressure on the Waterford midfield area where Dick Strang and Mick Burke had gained control.

Consequently the Waterford defence came under constant pressure and when they reached Tipperary's goal through for the vital scores.

Tipperary showed tremendous improvement in the final of the played just about to retain the cup when the game was here, showing improvement over efforts they gave in this regard.

There is probably nothing more melancholy than the sight of a man crying in his beer over his lost or mis-spent youth. Smoking wastes of beer, in any case.

The weeping and keening of womenfolk is an accepted social phenomenon. Doesn't seem to carry any stigma; neither expected, as a matter of fact. Probably helps keep them sane, or comforts them, or something.

We sometimes forget our very early struggles to understand and cope with a frightening, 'grown-up world. It probably doesn't do our balance of sanity much good to reminisce on childhood days; but, there can be little harm in remembering that we at least had a childhood. It might even dampen the flashes of temper we exhibit when dealing with very young ones who are doing their damndest to understand it.

Occasionally that long, up-hill struggle of growing up is brought home to us, a passing incident may twitch the deep recesses of our memory and produce a shock that can be somewhat disturbing.

This mental wandering is given that strange word—nostalgia—to return home, or harken back, if you like. Very few of us are immune from its effect.

Such an incident might occur something like the following: The little lad with red-shock hair glowered up with a frightful stare, hands in pockets of knee-torn breaks—that stubby nose and freckled cheeks.

BYRNE CUP FINAL Abbeyside - But Only Just

EXPERIENCE OF ENRIGHT DECIDING FACTOR

Abbeyside 1-12; Eire Oge 2-7.

There was electrifying tension in the dying seconds of last Sunday night's Byrne Cup senior hurling final when Eire Oge, Dungarvan, challenged the might of neighbours, Abbeyside, in a game which produced a thriller, which was packed from beginning to end with non-stop excitement.

Those who missed this full issue in Abbeyside's favour with his last gasp brace of points. It was a pity there was a loser. Most people who saw the game would welcome a repetition. But the experience of Abbeyside's Pat Enright in particular was beyond doubt the deciding factor.

Donal Whelan kept a good goal for Abbeyside. Sean Murphy, Greg Fives, John McGrath and Jimmy Frater were their best defenders. Pat Enright got most assistance from Joe Power and Felix Shields in attack.

Eire Oge had a more than sound custodian in Lar Harce. Pat Walsh, John Moylan, Michael Woods and Montie Coward were all seen to good effect in defence. The performances of Joe Whelan and Martin Sandford at mid-field presented for some time, argued the press and cons, the possibilities and the might have been. But most of all it will be remembered as a game which missed considerably the long suffering prestige of hurling in the area.

Abbeyside emerged victors, but only just. Two points (1-12 to 2-7) separated the sides after this memorable battle. But it was Abbeyside's experience and Pat Enright's accuracy which helped Abbeyside to retain this trophy presented for some time, argued the press and cons, the possibilities and the might have been.

Enright it was who crushed Eire Oge's hopes with a point from a free to level the scores when Eire Oge, after a great second half looked poised to emerge winners. Enright it was who sent Abbeyside into the lead with a great point seconds later and it was Enright again who sealed the game when his last point almost coincided with the referee's whistle for full time.

It was Abbeyside's experience which allowed them remain cool under pressure, pull back a four point deficit and exert the pressure which eventually brought Enright's match saving points.

Make no mistake about it, it was experience which won this rattle, otherwise there was nothing between the sides.

We had a preview of what to expect in the second half when Eire Oge held Abbeyside to an 0-6 to 0-3 interval lead. Considering that Abbeyside were under heavy pressure for long periods in this first half period when the Eire Oge forward division threw away great scoreable chances in a fatal quest for goals it was obvious that things were going to "hot up" in the second moiety.

It was the lethal shooting of Pat Enright which kept the Villagers ahead in this first 30 minutes and kept them out of trouble. He scored five of their first half points, but got little assistance from the remainder of the forwards who like Eire Oge, had failed to capitalise on a liberal number of chances.

Five minutes after the restart the game suddenly exploded as Eire Oge's Peter Ferncombe, who had moved from full-forward to the corner shot Eire Oge's first goal to leave Abbeyside holding a precarious point lead (0-7 to 1-3).

The exchanges became fiery as Eire Oge took control with Martin Sandford and Joe Whelan completely outbarring Liam Enright and Pat McGovern in the centre of the field.

Attack after Eire Oge attack followed as the men from Dungarvan relentlessly battered the Abbeyside defence. Mick Brett, Michael Donnelly and Christy Whelan in the Eire Oge half forward line were absolutely flying in this period, but it was during this spell that Eire Oge's greatest drawback, their inability to pick off points from any distance became more apparent.

They won plenty of the ball but most of their best efforts finished in futile shots at the Abbeyside net. Then in the 13th minute Peter Ferncombe again found the Abbeyside net to leave Eire Oge two points clear. Within minutes Martin Sandford tacked on a point. Pat McGovern pointed for Abbeyside but John Moylan retaliated with an Eire Oge point and when Francis Woods put his Dungarvan side four points clear going into the last ten minutes it looked all over.

SWITCHES made wholesale switches, Joe Power and Pat Enright were operating at mid-field. Liam Enright, Felix Shields and Pat McGovern were in the half forward line and suddenly they clicked.

Felix Shields goal and Enright pointed a free. Six minutes left and the sides were level. Moylan pointed a free for Eire Oge, but within minutes Pat Enright had the sides level again with an Abbeyside point from a free. It was in these last few seconds that Enright, quietly subdued for most of the second half really left his mark on the game as he swung the

FOOD FOR THOUGHT A Special Correspondent

The Food and Agricultural Organisations, one of the principal agencies of the United Nations is now 25 years old. It has been a shining example of what dedication and effort can do for world peace which can come through such co-operation and service to all humanity. Today, from its headquarters in Rome, to where it moved in 1951, the FAO sends its aid to every part of the world. In this article a Special Correspondent takes a look at the history of the organisation and gives some indication of its work which is often unmentioned in the media.

By AD 2000 the world, at its present rate of population growth, will have 7,000 million, double the present figure and 4,000 million more than in the mid-nineteenth century. It has been claimed that the world will be unable to sustain a population of these dimensions but on the other hand scientists have theorised on the earth supporting a population of 45,000 million. One thing is clear; according to the best assessments of international agencies, the present world food production will have to be boosted by about 200 per cent if the new century is to be fed.

Today, the organisation which is looking to the future and which is planning for the achievement of food production targets is the FAO—the initials in everyday use to describe the Food and Agricultural Organisation, of the United Nations, of which Ireland is a member. The idea of FAO was conceived during the turmoil of the second world war and a quarter of a century ago it began functioning in Quebec with a membership of 42 nations.

Within months membership had swelled to 110 countries and the aim of the organisation was to improve world agriculture, forestry and fisheries. It has played a constant part in the fight against hunger. Year by year it has sent its teams of technical experts to the far corners of the earth showing the administrators and farmers of the world how more and better food can be produced and how the hungry mouths can be fed.

ON THE BREADLINES

The experts come from virtually every country — up to 1,300 of them are currently working in about 100 countries and their function is to guide the national teams working in these lands. When the local bodies have acquired the skills and experience which equip them to work unaided the FAO team goes its way.

The enormity of the task facing FAO can be readily appreciated when it is realised that two-thirds of the world are on the breadline. The job of raising the subsistence level in the underdeveloped and third world lands is being achieved by a variety of methods each attuned to the local circumstances.

A random sample of methods reveals how FAO experts work within the local pattern and endeavour to eliminate irrationality by education and example. For instance, in Ceylon, fishermen who had been accustomed to ear and sail had been taught the basics of mechanical fishing. Since their catches have quadrupled, FAO's guidance and help has boosted Egyptian rice production with the result that some years ago Egypt was able to export the commodity. Fruit has become a commodity of great importance in the Sudan and Afghanistan. The success story is the same. In one control of a fish-drying operation, hilly areas were re-settled in a canal irrigated valley.

IRELAND'S ROLE

In Africa, FAO is constantly working and controlling locust outbreaks. It traces and forecasts swarms and tries to deal with spring breeding. In the Near East where water is so important in the fight against reversion to desert, FAO seeks to obtain the better use of land and water. Indeed, the search for water and its more effective use has been one of the great tasks of the FAO technicians in the last decade.

Good progress has been made with the Near East water projects and in east Jordan some time ago, enough water was found in the southern desert to support Bedouin farm settlement projects. Ireland contributes yearly to FAO and it has sponsored particular schemes. Perhaps the most spectacular effort was at Malindi in Tanzania where 250 families were trained as farmers in up to date methods by Irish expertise and effort.

"GIVE THE PEOPLE CHANCE OF VOTING YES OR NO"

"So there is going to be a referendum or other series of them — on E.E.C. The Taoiseach said recently in the Dail the matter would be put to the people as simple as possible. The simplest way possible in the Labour view is to give the people the chance of voting 'yes' or 'no' on the Common Market."

This was stated by Mr. Brendan Corish, T.D., Leader of the Labour Party at the Annual Dinner of the Abbeyside Branch of the Labour Party on Friday night last at Lawlor's Hotel, Dungarvan.

Mr. Corish, who was replying to the Toast to the Labour Party, said that what the Taoiseach had said was that there should be three or four referenda on amendments to the Constitution and that the results of these referenda would be taken as a vote for or against Irish membership of the E.E.C.

This said Mr. Corish, would be a vote for or against existing procedure and deliberately so in his opinion. When the results of the amendments were accepted and half of them rejected? Would we then, he asked, be half in and half out of the E.E.C.?

Mr. Corish suggested that instead of forcing the people to vote on the E.E.C. in the one day they should simply matters by having one simple vote on the E.E.C. which they were having in Norway and Denmark? The Norwegian and Danish Parliaments had, he said, rightly decided that the matter was too important for them to decide on their own. People must have the final voice on the vote.

When Mr. Corish said, would be real democracy. That is what Labour demanded in its policy statement on the E.E.C. in Galway last February. The Taoiseach might reply that this requirement was impossible by pointing to the fact that the Taoiseach required him to have a referendum on every constitutional amendment which would arise from E.E.C. membership.

"I said Mr. Corish," have a simple vote for him. When the Government concludes negotiations for entry, let him put the Treaty of accession to the E.E.C. in the form of a Bill and let the Dail and Senate vote on it. Presumably the Bill will be passed if they have a majority in both houses and they appear to be in favour of E.E.C. membership on any terms.

But then let the entire Constitution be put to a referendum. Under this Article, he continued, the members of the Oireachtas can petition the President on the grounds that the Bill is of such national importance that the will of the people should be ascertained before he signs the Bill and makes it law.

"TIGIN" AS AID IN NATIONAL PROBLEM

Have you seen a "tigin" yet? No, a "tigin" is not a chieftain provided for the old folk. And it is not a curran. These are common enough and everyone is familiar with them. The best place to look for a "tigin" is on one of the streets provided by the local authorities for itinerant settlement. What! There's no such settlement in your area? That may well be as some local bodies have not been as active as others in establishing such sites, and in some cases when they went about establishing them they met with opposition. But if you have no itinerant settlement sites in your county, the chances are that you will find one in the next.

It's there you'll see the "tigin," a dwelling specially designed by the National Building Agency for such sites. So planned that it can be built in different stages—one roomed, two-roomed or three-roomed as required—there are high hopes that it will play an important part in solving the problem of housing the itinerant "fixed abode."

In reply to Mr. Begley, Mr. Fahey said he sincerely hoped that their negotiating team would succeed in securing a 12-mile limit. He was hopeful that the expansion of the industry would continue and he had every confidence in their negotiating team.

NOSTALGIA - AND ALL THAT

by ASDAL

There is probably nothing more melancholy than the sight of a man crying in his beer over his lost or mis-spent youth. Smoking wastes of beer, in any case.

The weeping and keening of womenfolk is an accepted social phenomenon. Doesn't seem to carry any stigma; neither expected, as a matter of fact. Probably helps keep them sane, or comforts them, or something.

We sometimes forget our very early struggles to understand and cope with a frightening, 'grown-up world. It probably doesn't do our balance of sanity much good to reminisce on childhood days; but, there can be little harm in remembering that we at least had a childhood. It might even dampen the flashes of temper we exhibit when dealing with very young ones who are doing their damndest to understand it.

Occasionally that long, up-hill struggle of growing up is brought home to us, a passing incident may twitch the deep recesses of our memory and produce a shock that can be somewhat disturbing.

This mental wandering is given that strange word—nostalgia—to return home, or harken back, if you like. Very few of us are immune from its effect.

Such an incident might occur something like the following: The little lad with red-shock hair glowered up with a frightful stare, hands in pockets of knee-torn breaks—that stubby nose and freckled cheeks.

Maybe four, but more like three, the fierce we tyke just stared at me. I'd never seen such gloom before; and couldn't think of whose face he wore.

A sign of football games hard played, was mud in bits where his jumper frayed, and gum-boots bashed and split a little, were medals of valour won at scrum-middle.

His brow was furrowed with a steady frown—a comb wouldn't have hurt that red-gold crown! But he just looked hard, and he hadn't moved; of me, it was certain he disapproved.

Why I stopped, I'll never know; interest in kids I seldom show. Like squirrels, kittens and other small kind, I know they're there—but pay no mind.

Here was a challenge I couldn't pass—this little lad standing on the grass, with his back against the chapel wall—rammed stiff to make him tall.

I stared down with what I hoped was a smile; his stout neck crumpled, and 'twas but awhile that his lower lip quivered—then came the tears, and I was looking at myself—minus forty years!

BRUCELLOSIS ERADICATION

CONTROLS ON MOVEMENT OF CATTLE

As from 8th June, 1971

FEMALE ANIMALS OF 12 MONTHS UPWARDS AND BULLS OF 9 MONTHS UPWARDS MAY NOT BE MOVED INTO COUNTY MAYO UNLESS THEY ARE

- (a) moving under permit direct from a Brucellosis (Certified) Herd, a similar herd in Northern Ireland or a clear herd in the Disease Free Area (Counties Donegal, Sligo, Leitrim, Cavan and Monaghan)
- OR
- (b) moving from another part of the Brucellosis Clearance Area (viz. Counties Longford, Louth, Meath, Roscommon, Westmeath and the portion of Co. Offaly lying north and west of the River Brosna) accompanied by the relevant brucellosis yellow cards.
- OR
- (c) accompanied by an official certificate that each has passed a brucellosis test within the previous 14 days
- OR
- (d) moving under permit direct to a registered slaughtering premises or to a destination outside the county.

The necessary permits and certificates are issued by the District Veterinary Officers of the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries or in appropriate cases by the Ministry of Agriculture in Belfast.

Anyone who infringes the controls is liable to prosecution and a heavy fine.

N.F.A. WEEKLY BULLETIN

VETERINARY COMPANY WITHDRAWN FROM SPONSORING SHOW

An international veterinary pharmaceutical company which has withdrawn supplies of its products from Irish co-operatives is to be barred from sponsoring agricultural shows. Following an emergency meeting of the N.F.A. on Wednesday, June 10, the Executive Committee, Mr. Derek Rathwell, Chairman, announced that it was unanimously decided to advise the American, London-based firm, Merck, Sharpe and Dohme, that their offer to sponsor three classes at the show was not now acceptable to the committee.

DEPUTATION FROM POULTRY COMMITTEE TO MEET MINISTER

A deputation from the N.F.A. Poultry Committee representing the poultry industry will meet the Minister of Agriculture on Friday next, June 11. The deputation will discuss the important aspects of the implementation of E.E.C. membership for our poultry industry.

FARMERS GORTA WEEK

Farmers Gorta Week will run from June 13 to June 19 and all farmer organisations, including the N.F.A., are giving their project their full support.

REDUCTION IN BORD BAINNE LEVY WELCOMED

The reduction in the levy payable to Bord Bainne from the new penny per gallon to 0.75 new pence has been welcomed by the National Farmer's Association.

The statement said that in recent months the N.F.A. had been receiving a number of enquiries from farmers regarding the levy on milk products. The N.F.A. complimented the Bord Bainne who succeeded in getting the levy to milk producers reduced.

In addition to the saving to creamery milk suppliers by virtue of the reduced levy there is a considerable saving to the Exchequer in price supports for dairy exports.

The Association now calls for the Government to utilise the Exchequer savings by increasing direct price supports for dairy products.

Changes in feed prices and margins of profit for our producers. Conditions of access to markets which also are important to our producers.

The continuous flow of enquiries reaching N.F.A. Headquarters all ask the same question: what are the overall prospects for poultry in an expanded and commonly embracing ten countries?

Changes in feed prices and margins of profit for our producers. Conditions of access to markets which also are important to our producers.

The poultry population in this country enjoys a unique health position and the N.F.A. suggested that its present disease free status be preserved.

1970 was an extremely difficult year for E.E.C. egg producers. Total output rose by some 5 per cent; this resulted in supplies greatly exceeding demand.

While we fully appreciate that the alternatives to E.E.C. membership offer little prospect for Irish agriculture as a whole, our poultry producers must be assured of favourable terms of trading in order to maintain a reasonable profit margin.

Very few worries seem to have been required to show their redoubt.

Even if you are on the right track, you'll get there over if you just stand there.

While you laugh, you have no time to hate.

SLIGHTED PUBLIC REPRESENTATIVES WANTED END TO NATIONAL FISH COOKERY COMPETITION

A cup of tea and a bun threatened the continuation of the largest schoolgirl competition in Ireland last week — the annual fish cookery competition organised by B.I.M. and vocational educational committees throughout the country.

CHANGED FORMAT

Roscommon felt slighted that members of their committee were not invited to the presentation of prizes, which consists of a cup of tea and a few dainties.

Last year B.I.M. changed the format of the reception after the presentation of prizes. In former years all members of local V.E. Committees were invited to the presentation after the finals in their area.

Mr. Seamus Scott, Roscommon B.I.M. should not forget the co-operation they had received from vocational committees down through the years, particularly at the beginning of the competitions.

"We should have got a slight more recognition from the Bord as we are the ones who have provided the cookers and the equipment for the charge to B.I.M.," he said.

B.I.M.'S LETTER

The president, Very Rev. W. Preen, P.P., said he had received a letter of explanation from the Bord. It stated that the reason for the cut-down in personnel at the presentation was to save costs.

The resolution was not put before congress when the president said they would write to B.I.M. explaining the Roscommon point of view and asking them to have more communications in the future.

FOR THE PROSPEROUS FARMING FAMILY Learning To Think

Today a young farmer enters an occupation where change and development are rapid. The machinery is widely used; where new inventions and ideas are completing the old. The husbandry, where the ways of "big business" are applied to agriculture; where competition is keen and where a market over-supply of one's product can come about rapidly.

To succeed the Irish farmer must move with the times. He must be ready to try out what is useful and he must know how to turn it to good advantage.

A generation ago a young man learned to farm by copying what his father did. Agricultural progress was slow and farming practice changed little.

In short he needs education for his occupation—the training of the mind, the hand, and the eye. The acquiring of the information which in large part determines success in modern farming.

GENERAL OUTLINE

The system of agricultural education is organized by the Department of Agriculture. It is intended for training young men to be intelligent and efficient farmers and managers of farm life such as agriculture, dairying and rural domestic economy.

At the end of these courses the Department conducts uniform examinations of the students and awards certificates to those who pass.

WATERFORD IS THE GATEWAY TO EUROPE

Opening of "Waterford Exports '71" Exhibition

Mr. T. J. Garvey, General Manager, Coras Trachtála/Irish Export Board speaking at the opening of "Waterford Exports '71" Exhibition in Waterford last Tuesday said that an exhibition devoted to trade was appropriate in the case of Waterford.

Most Irish goods claim an origin far back in time but few can match Waterford in this respect. One of the medieval scribes claimed that the first town set up here was founded by Noah's grand-daughter!

It is interesting to note that in the development of Ireland's foreign commerce.

Mr. Garvey went on to say: "The present name of Waterford is associated with Sicily. The name is derived from the Danish 'Vadrefjord' which has been since corrupted to 'Waterford'. It is interesting to read 18th century accounts of Waterford as a city which had the finest quays in Europe, with the exception of those at Messina and Sicily. A city which traded with Spain, exporting butter and fish and bringing back fruit and wines; a city exporting butter to Holland and a city where the Newfoundland clippers came in to take port, linen and other provisions. Wollen yarns, hides and tallow were exported to England."

KEY TO PROSPERITY

With such a tradition of trade, it is natural to see Waterford figuring nowadays in the national development plan. The location of an important industrial estate in Waterford, allied to the growing prosperity of the hinterland served by the Port of Waterford, is a good omen for the future of the whole region.

The development of new industry and the successful marketing of its products in overseas markets are the keys nowadays to prosperity. It is not generally known that four out of every 10 jobs in industry today are dependent on our export trade. This ratio is likely to increase as years go by. We are forecasting a record level of £520,000,000 for total exports in the present year.

IRELAND AND THE BEC

All this is significant nationally and for Waterford in particular. Waterford is the third most important port in Ireland and is appropriately referred to as our gateway to Europe. The European Economic Community as at present constituted has a population of about 100 million. The admission of Britain, Ireland, Norway and Denmark would bring it to roughly 260 million, making the enlarged Community the most important single market in the world.

Access to such a large and prosperous trading bloc would clearly bring substantial benefits to Irish exporters, but access is not the same as success and it would be naive to expect that the opportunities opened up by admission to the Community could be realised without a considerable investment of toil, sweat and cerebration.

Among the first fruits of membership would be duty-free access to the different national markets. This, of course, would be an advantage, but one that would not be so valuable as is sometimes suggested. Indeed its importance has been exaggerated, to the exclusion or at least the obscuring of other matters that should be receiving our urgent attention.

The average level of the Common External Tariff is one of the lowest in the world; we face much higher tariff barriers in, for example, the U.S.A. A tariff is only one factor—affecting an important one—in determining consumer acceptance. Others (and they are likely to weigh particularly heavily in a wealthy market like the E.E.C.) include suitability (in other words, the extent to which the product conforms to market requirements) style, reliability and, in general, quality—and the quality of service as well as that of the product.

ADAPTATION AND INNOVATION

Unless Irish products meet the specific requirements of the E.E.C. market, the removal of the tariff barrier will, of itself, change nothing. For the vast majority of manufacturing firms, the challenge of the E.E.C. demands adaptation and innovation—the development of new products. For those who can make the adjustment the potential rewards are very great.

However, in the noisy corridors of commerce throughout the world, the name Waterford is well-known and this is a name which connotes efficiency, quality and distinction. Waterford Glass Ltd. have set a headline for others to follow here in Waterford, in the rest of Irish industry. In addition, and more important, the image of excellence and quality, which they have earned in world markets, spills over on all Irish products.

AGE-OLD "YOUTH PROBLEM"

The frequency with which we hear and read nowadays about the existence of a "youth problem" in Ireland has led many to believe that it is a problem particularly characteristic of modern times.

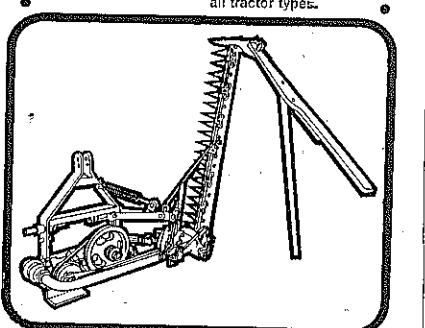

This fact is not so simple as it seems. In Athens, 2,000 years ago, the youth problem was a real one. The youth of that time was a problem because there has always been a "youth problem" since the dawn of time. The youth problem is a problem inherent in the nature of youth.

Patrick Mulcahy — An Appreciation

One of the great teachers of the Classics, a philosopher-educationalist of profundity, and one of "nature's gentlemen," passed on with the death of Patrick Mulcahy, B.A., late of Main Street, Cappagh, at Shanakill Hospital, Cork.

Almost 82, and having enjoyed 17 years of retirement from his life of teaching, one of his remarkable qualities was the way in which people of generations differed from him. It was easy even for those who knew him only in his later years to realise his stimulating influence on youth in his lifetime of teaching Latin and Greek in Mount Malruy College, a school which gained lustre from his presence on the staff.

His virtues were the Kennet ones: no parade or ostentation. All his spare money went to charity; all his interest and human love to his family; and all his personal commitment to his religion. Tragedy and loneliness found the depths in his being; when early death took his wife, formerly Eileen Burke of Kilmacoe, Co. Limerick; and when his gifted son Noel was killed in the Aer Lingus crash off the Westford coast.

He was laid to rest in the presence of all his surviving family, Mrs. Betty Gaffney, Cork; Mrs. Mary Lovelady, Manchester (daughters); Dr. Michael Mulcahy, Ph.D., B.Sc., Boston, U.S. (son); Dr. Maura Mulcahy, Ph.D., B.Sc. (daughter-in-law). Of his own family of brothers and sisters, Jack still lives in California and Tom in Australia.

It was one of those fatalities which mark the passing of those who have reached the fullness of years and left nothing but grateful memories. It made one feel good to have known him.

Bench Comments On Tarr's Bridge Signs: A VERY DANGEROUS JUNCTION. Comments about the traffic signs at Tarr's Bridge junction of the Dungarvan-Waterford road about two miles outside Dungarvan were made by District Justice Carroll and one of the witnesses in cases which came before Dungarvan District Court last Wednesday.

Neither of the vehicles was travelling very fast. Witness went on to say that the van went ahead to get on to its own line but the lorry had its horn and the collision then occurred.
