This survey was publicly write to him to compare notes stated, in a letter published in this paper in our issue of December 29, to be concerned Rua Diogo Da Fonseca 16/20; assured that their identities to exchange letters with Irish would not be recorded and boys or girls whom he hopes the replies they gave to the questions asked would be medium of this paper

It was only when the actual letter adds industrial enterprise in Dungarvon The questionnaire was and completely biased and could, in no way, be said to be even in the least way fair Consequently any replies, if any were given, could not in any circumstonces give any results which could be taken as indicating Mocal attitudes to pollution in the Dungaryan area" would have been far better for he man who mounted this survey, using the banner of UCD and St - Patrick's Maynooth to have come out and stated hus correct reason for his exercise in the first

How far and to what extent University College, Dublin and Movnooth are prepared to stand behind this so-called survey I do not at this moment know contact with the Registrar's Office at Maynooth last week in on effort) to ascertain this but because of Christmas holidays the necessary informotion was not available li was given to promise however that the matter would be looked into and that the College would supply me with

THE WRECK OF THE MARECHAL DE NOAILLES

Sixty-one years ago on next Monday, the 3-masted French barque 'Marechal de Noailles' was wrecked off Minehead in a hurricane It happened on January 14, 1913 (it fell on a fuesday that year) but thanks to the heroism of Rev Fr John O'Shea, the then beloved curate in Ardmore and to his brave crew and helpers who worked the rocket apparatus, all 24 members of the crew of the ill fated vessel, including the Captains dog, were rescued in a most gallant fashion.
