BALLYDUFF NOTES

New School — Latest reports regarding the new primary school is that it should be ready for use within a matter of weeks At this stage both pupils the Garryowen Cup In a game which demonstrated Dungarvan dominance for most of the game Nenagh snapped a try in the 38th min-this should take place in about omittee—Last week we gave

> Engagement—Congratulations to Mr Pat Mun hy, Ballinaitig Kildinan, Co. Cork and Miss Maureen Feeney Barnavalla Ballyduff, on the occasion of their recent engagement

The first half was a bitter struggle with neither side gaining advantage Dungarvan consistently pressurised the Nenagh line, but failed to penetrate their defence Both Nenagh and Dungarvan failed with penalty kicks and thus neither side registered a score in the first half

In the second half after 5

Mearer Home—We are glad to see Pat and Kathleen O'Brien (nee Hickey Tournageeha Ballyduff), are being transferred from Monasterevan to Ballynoe, Co Cork, thus moving a step closer home Pat a forester had spent a couple of years in the Ballyduff area some years ago

The OBrien family will now reside in Ballynoe Village

DEISE GUN CLUB NOTES

At our annual general meeting held recently the members were informed that the club had spent £13282 on Game development over the past 12 months. Large numbers of Grey Crows were destroyed during the year also foxes and magpies One wonders why someone has not set up a pigeon collection centre in the town as birds are fetching around £1 each in France where they are regarded as a delicacy In England one boy shot 80 pigeons where they fetch around 40p each and made a handy £32 for his trouble

With so much poaching going on at present the club has had to get legal advice and anyone caught on our preserves will be

NOT PLAYING FAIR

Up to tastweek the Department of Posts and Telegraphs had detected nearly 20,000 lire unlicensed television sets to since the current television hance compoign began on ec October 25 The compoign which has been intensified go continued during the post in week and the Department is aware that many people who have not so far been visited nove unlicensed sets

Even though a big majority a may be openly critical of the programmes which RTE puts on, the position is that once a person becomes the holder of a set the is obliged to u licence it and if he shirks this duty for whatever reason he is not playing fair with the thousands who do meet their responsibilities and pay their Icence fees regularly each

Undoubtedly there are people who may find it difficult, because of economic circumstances, to meet such a demand, but provided there is no intention of deliberate defoulting the Department inspectors should show a little leniency and allow some time ! to such people to meet their

But there are people who can lafford to pay and who just will not do so in the hope that they will get away with it There are many of these in all walks of life and you find them, where they own cars, failing to pay their road tox or insurance and their attitude towards off such things is similar It does not bother them that as members of the community they have a moral obligation to contribute their share to the general cost of the upkeep and maintenance of whatever service as as far as they are concerned is getting caught when they have done wrong But again, surely, this is not playing fair. As far as the TV licence compoign is concerned, I understand that the Department Inspectors will now concentrate their inspections on homes where it is known that unlicensed sets are still being held Holders of such sets would therefore be well advised to buy a licence immodiately as the risk could otherwise involve a court fine of up to £50
