The season this year has been rather desappointing in most cases with the poor catches compared with other years. About ten years ago it was not unusual for 10 anglers to go to sea and weigh in from 1600 to 2000 los of fish and there was no scarcity of different species as on one outing 17 species were accounted for Greater numbers now go to sea but smaller datches are checked in When possible especially when only one boat is used fish could be weighed immediately when caught and then released It seems ridecul-ous to hook the fish remove the hook and then kill the fish and afterwards throw it into the sea His Majesty advocated tagging and this would help to practice conservation Think it over lads.
