Late Night Dances

Excessive drinking under age drinking and late night dances were among the targets at which Mrs. Rita Childers widow of the former President of Ireland struck when she addressed a one day Pioneer seminar at St Augustine's College Abbeyside last Sunday Delegates from 36 Pioneer centres throughout the diocese of Waterford and from centres in South Tipperary East Cork and Cork City attended

Mrs Childers said that excessive drinking was the most dreadful curse that assailed the Irish nation in recent years We spend £1 million a day on alcohol, enough to finance the whole of our social welfare that in alcohol the country had campaign being mounted on general to promote treatment of alcoholism Mrs Childers said that under age drinking was also becoming an increasing problem and she expressed dissatisfaction at the low rate of prosecutions for serving drink to those under M1 Kyne said that it was out test against this as it was too women from Abbeyside should the legal age. Advocating the have to walk all the way out to introduction of identity cards she said that while this might not provide the full answer to the problem it must inevitably bring about a much needed

At late night dancing she also hit out strongly stating that these dances started too late and in many cases young people who frequented them did so only after spending some hours m licensed premises She urged parents to press to have licences revoked in the case of dance halls that did not start and address by saying that it was the women who suffered most Roseville Tallow farmer died through excessive drinking and on October 15 last leaving estate she said it was the women who in England Wales and the Re should now give the lead in an all-out effort to curb this

Other speakers to address the seminar were Rev Fr native of Clashmore he was aged 77 He received his secondary education at Mount Melof Roseville

DUNGARVAN ROWING CLUB

REGATTA

The weather was wet and foggy the tides were late and in fact the second race was practically one hour behind schedule but the Regatta organisation triumphed and by the end of the racing we were only ten minutes behind the original schedule Not alone did the organisation triumph but Dungarvan Rowing Club served a median served and served and came second in three events by less than a length in all cases

The most popular win of the day was Clare Morrisseys win in the open ladies sculls in beat ing international carswoman Nuala Lupton of Skibbereen by four lengths also two scullers from Carlow, Clare who served Dungarvan very successfully in fours in the past, took up scull-ing when she went to take up its twas Tonys and Declan's ick again in Rilgobinet later in sections according to this continuous later in this continuous generosity is indeed very deeply and singles plus the over 40 doubles and singles plus thesoner in this continuous later in this continuous later in this continuous later in this continuous later in the section of the second vear vision and singles plus the over 40 doubles and singles plus the over 40 doubles and single plus thesoner in this continuous later in this continuous later in this continuous later in ing when she went to take up 4 length
