The sad news which swept through fourin and even far be was affectionately known to his team mates and friends was always very proud of the part he played as a young boy in the early years of the GAA club be oved so dearly He was very much a part of the successful teams of the '50 s-but 1963 was has greatest year — playing a major part in the hurling cham pionship and league of that year I was very happy to be a team mate of his during that period—and proud to be among his many friends as well

Neil was much more than is: a hurler—he loved hurling and the men who played it. His family name is something very special to all—who attended Tourin school—and the many who have played hurling and football with that club since neighbour — steadlast ing father and a good husband he will be missed by all who had the pleasure of knowing him His loving wife Peg and lovely young family and his brother and sisters will miss him most of all, and will find it very difficult to adjust to the stif led voice and empty chair The sun was shining bright Ua Faolain D Frainnseach sarthe day we laid him to rest impression of the day we laid him to rest beneath his native soil As the cortege made its way from Pil-

town Church — along by the Blackwater and over the River Bride and finally along the road that he toddled as a boy and and through the place he loved team mates to welcome back home one of Tourin's most loyal and faithful sons There is a magic about hurl ing and about hurlers They always attract the crowds - even in death Neil drew around him hose who played with him and many of those who were his greatest opponents and each with tears in their eyes They considered it a great honour to walk with him and to shoulder his mortal remains to their final resting place Lord Thou made us for Thy

And we can find no rest 'Tall we rest in Thee __st Aug After life's dreary road you have at last found rest—Eternal

Your name is synonymous with hurling in your native Tourin—you won the greatest honour of all by bestowing your loyalty to that same club and to our games
