With their league game with Carrick postponed Dungarvan's first XV played Waterford in a friendly and once again proved too strong for the city side Played in very heavy conditions Dungarvan were first on the attack and had a try after ten minutes when centre Noel O'Connor was well up to gather a kick ahead and go over for a very well taken try Michael Shallce added the points to rave the home side 6-0 ahead Shortly afterwards, with the Dungaryan pack rampant, out-half Kieran O'Connor made a break and linked up with Bill Cashman who fed Ivor Gordon who crashed over for a great cry and Michael Shaloe convertwith a very fine kick. However in the second half Dungarvan seemed to lose their momentum and left Park back after 15 minutes to leave the score 12-6 but Dungarvan picked themselves up in the last quarter and were deserving winners in the end

I.F.A. WEEKLY BULLETIN

IMPORTANT THAT FARMERS, KNOW WHAT THE SCORE IS REGARDING DISCUSSIONS WITH THE GOVERNMENT

Are we to regard the week-end statement by the Minister for Agriculture, Mr Ray McSharry as pre-empting the outcome of ongoing discussions with the farming organisations on the farm income crisis?

This question was posed by IFA Deputy President Mr Hugh Ryan last week when he called on the Minister to make it clear if his vigorous defence of the limited measures taken so far by the Government to help farmers was meant to indicate that there is nothing more comprehensive in the pipeline It may be, said Mr Ryan that the Minister's speech in Mul-rany should be interpreted in the context of the West of Ireland situation where the measures listed by are particularly relevant to the as yet, underdeveloped state of agriculture in that part of the country, but I would hope that the Minister is not suggesting that enough has been done for farmers who have borrowed heavily to develop their farm enterprise and now find themselves caught in a vicious price cost squeeze which is exacerbat-ed by heavy inflation and by interest rates which are still excessive despite some recent

Farmers will not be impressed by the Minister's reference to limited resources" as a factor in the Government's response to the farming crisis against the background of the £220 mullion which apparently can be found quite readily to meet the cost of the National Understanding in public sector employment

improvement

It is important concluded Mr Ryan that the farm organisations should know precisely what is the score in relation to the present discussions with the Government

PROBLEMS IN THE DAIRY The Chairman of the IFA Na tional Dairy Committee Mr Des Kehoe in a statement last week spelled out the problems in the industry as arising from three A -No real increase in the producer price of milk over the B —The continuing steady inrease in the cost of inputs C-The present high level of nterest rates Mr Kehoe said For the coming year a price increase of 32 per cent will be required if dairy farmers are to receive the same income in real terms as they did in 1978 While the recent drop in interest rates was a move in the right direction. Mr Kehoe emphasised that a reduction to a level of 10 per cent was required to relieve many hard pressed dairy farmers who had invested heavily in stock buildings par-ticularly in the second half of the 1970s Rates and resource tax were discussed by Mr. Kehde as an unjust form of tax, which should be removed immediately to bring us into equal competition with the other members of cognising the importance of disease eradication the LFA National Dairy Committee is concerned that the recent extension of the compulsory brucellosis eradication measures in the Munster and South Leinster areas should operate in a manner which would not put some dairy farmers out of business His committee was particularly and the committee was particularly ited financial resources avail-His committee was particularly ited financial resources availconcerned about the effects of able at present the restrictions on sale of heifer calves in positive herds statement last week commitment they had to com-concerned participants at the care for them meeting decided. The usage of health food has proliferated in recent years they said but this proliferation has not been based on the scientific value of these foods in themselves

As dictated by our modern Western tastes over the last number of years more and more of the natural goodness has been refined out of our natural foodstuffs Now what has been refined out of our food is being sold back to the consumer in the guise of health food at exorbitantly high prices In their natural state our home foodstuffs provide the body with all the mecessary requirements to keep it healthy Thus rather than buy more health food products consumers should lobby to increase the percentage of food products being sold in their natural state What consumers are buying as health foods is nothing more than the offals of natural foods that have been treated

Grow your own vegetables and fruit, was the second piece of advice to be given to the con-sumers by those attending the meeting The precentage space in our supermarkets given over to imported prepacakaged and frozen vegetables they said had grown rapidly in the last number of years and often at prices many find difficult to afford Many consumers now, however, have the usage of freezers and fridges | Households with backgardens could then reduce were they to grow freeze and preserve products from their gardens Not only, they add, should the consumer consider this as a means of greatly reducing their food expenditure but for the health conscious urban dweller growing your own is also a useful and healthy form of exercise

NO SERIOUS ATTENTION BEING GIVEN TO THE VERY SMALL FARMER In the current dialogue on the crisis an agriculture little or no serious attention is being given to one large section of farmers. and that is the small farmer and especially the very small farmer This was stated by Mr Terry Sexton IFA Vice-President in a statement issued last week He said: The margin profit in most limes of production in farming has shrunk and in some cases disappeared altogether This is due to the declin-ing prices in real terms ob-tained by farmers for their products while their input costs for energy fertilisers feedstuffs machinery and other requirements continue to mount daily

Development farmers who did what was thought right some years ago and who investnow being choked by capital re payments and high interest

It should not be forgotten however that even before the current depression there were many thousands of Irish farmers trying to live on very small holdings with incomes that were scandalously low by any stan-dards. These people benefitted very little from the Common Market because of the smallness of their enterprises

Brussels policy was and is to get these people off the land so that farm structures might be improved for those who remain. In Ireland however the incentrees to bring about this were not sufficiently attractive or in keeping with human dignity As a result this large body of farmers has been left in a lay-by and nobody seems particularly worned about them"
