WEST WATERFORD DARTS

The League somi-finals were played last week-end at the Tavern. Compounts and Mahoney's Aragien. At the Tavern on Friday night, Irwins, Agitsh and Mahoney's. Aragien were on the "mat" and with the house packed to capacity it was Mahoney's who finally won their way through to the final in a close and tension, packed match.

On Saturday night in Araally wone their, way through to the final in a close and tension packed match.

On Settudes night in Aragien, the Tawern and Muttles. Tallow wer in opposition and here again there was nothing between the sides in a high-secring encounter. But the superior finishing power of the Tavern won it for them by 4 games to 2. Here again there was a packed house, tostfrying once more that darks are still a steat crowd puller.

The first is, fixed for Dec Walshe's Modeling on this Friday night, 4th rebranzy. Both teath are reminded that the some years now since the Tavern and Mahoney's classied as thuy have been playing in different sections but darks followers still remember the titulie, struggles between these two learns and I feel that Friday night's meeting will be no exception. Mahoney's have a great record in finals and must surely criter the fray as favourles, and the Tavern team has a nice bleng of youth and experience, and will be formadially opposition.

Recently, when Spain and Greece devalued, the media were quick to point out the advantages which would apply to Irish holidaymakers. Maybe there is a message in this for the Irish tourism industry."

became extinct and the Common Agricultural Policy of the European Community will cease to function effectively if it does not change with the times. This was the burden of the message given to Irish farmers by Mr. Poul Dalsager, the European Commissioner for Agriculture, at the recent conference of the Irish Farmers' Association in Dublim.

Pointing out that all change is not for the worse, Mr. Dalsage is not the Island have never been so well maintained as in 1882. Irish farmers have rights to a full voice in the development of the policy but also obligations to consider the overall good of the Community.

Two factors which will influence the Cap' in the next five to the years are two-fold, as counting to the policy but also obligations to consider the overall good of the Community.

External markets will also have their problems. The world population explosion is continuing, but without economic growth the expanding populations cannot pray for food. The developing countries and the bastern bloc, where Community agricultural exports have ownered most in recent years have now a proposed to continue the continuing from other agricultural exporters. The market situation might encourage a price freeze for farm produce, out the Commission wants to maintain farm incomes which had made some recovery in 1982, and that is why a 5.b per cent price increase for the majority of products is being proposed.

There is also the question of guarantee thresholds within the OAP. This means that when broduction of certain quantities of essential supported commodities has been reached, the farmers must contribute to the cost of disposing of the surplus, as is being done with the coresponsibility levy on milk, or in the sugar regime. This, said Mr. Daisager is the alternative to lower prices all round in present market chroumstances.

The third step is to set rid of Monetary Compensatory Amounts. The McAs were imposed on the CAP to overcome problems of fluctuating exclusive and the compensatory amounts. The McAs were imposed on the CAP to overcome reaching entering a surplus of fluctuating exclusive and the compensatory and the compensatory and the compensatory are supposed on the CAP. Mr. Daisager pointed out that in the fluyears between 1970 and 1980, the volume of agricultural price intends by 400 per cent. In 1970, the price of a gailou of milk increased by 70 per cent and the number of a suppliers decreased by 30 per cent. While not suggesting that Irish farmers are now in paradise, he said that these figures show that the: Common Market has lifted Irish agriculture from a very low level to a position where it is better placed to survive.

CALL FOR MORE GARDAI TO CURB NEW TYPE CRIMINALS

Ohr. K. O'Ryan told members of Wateriord County Council at their January monthly meeting in Dungaryan that he was cox-tremely concerned by the new type of criminal that had now emerged into society and who were operating in games in open daylight.

emergee into society and who were operating in gangs in open davlight.

He said that people were being terrorised by those thugs and he knew where houses had been broken into, people braten up and money taken by them.

He asked that the Council bring this matter urgenity to the notice of the Minister for Justice with a request that Carda pairol cars be used more regularly in rural areas and that'excra gardat be appointed especially along the northern areas and that'excra gardat be appointed especially along the northern areas that eventy from Barty with the present was mostly unprotected.

Cilr. M. Quealy supported the request stating that the amount excuss stating that the amount East. Waterford recently was alarming. He said that a bigger garda presence was needed in those areas too.

It was unanimously agreed to request the Minister for Justice to appoint more gardal to the areas mentioned and to arrange for the wider use of patrol cars in all rural areas.
