DEATH OF WILLIE DOWER The death of Willie Dower, Creggs, Clashmore has been a great loss to both his family and the community at large.

The scoreline does not, how-ever, do us justice as we were creating chances throughout the game, but when we got to the area "shot shyness" seem-ed to grip us. Our forwards who scored seven last week against the Shamrocks found the Ardmore defence a totally different back four, a defence which has only conceded 1 goal in 5 matches.

Great Start For Waterford

A fisted goal from Pierrie White just seconds before the end gave Waterford two vital points when they clashed with Tipperary in their opening game of the National Football League, Div. 3 South, at the Fraher Field, Dungarvan on Sunday last petition for a good few years. It's been quite some time since Waterford beat Tipperary in football. Last Sunday's result however was no fluke and was fully deserving and the overall display of the side augurs well for the future.

Tipperary played with the strong breeze in the first half but failed to glean any benefit from this advantage as their eight wides in the first twenty minutes indicated a lack of accuracy.

with just seconds remaining on the clock. While Dipperary missed chan-ces in the first half, the same was the case for Waterford in the second period. Despite a good supply of the ball when they were on top the Waterford forwards never really clicked and in fact missed several good opportunities of putting the game beyond Tipperary's reach.

of the scene is deceptive. It conceals the tremendous amount of planning and organisation and sheer hard work that went into the great work of bringing electricity to the homes and farms of Ire-land. Just as the harnessing of the Shannon in the late twen-ties was an act of faith in the future of the new Ireland so the act of bringing electricity to the remote highways and byways of Ireland was an in-spired piece of work in the difficult years as the world re-covered from the effects of the second world war. The local hall was to become the scene of the triumphant "switch on" - an event that is still a watershed in country tered nature of the households. Even that was not the end of the story of rural con-nections as more and more houses were built in an era of folklore. The whole story is a complex and fascinating one, and has already been told in great detail and with sympathy great detail and with sympathy by Michael Sheil in his book "The Quiet Revolution - The Electrification of Rural Ire-land". And there are many nostalgic photographs which recall life as it was then in rural Ireland, when radios were rare and television a matter for speculation. In the event, of course, the task of rural electrification was even bigger than anticipated as demore prosperity and easier communications. Electricity has been of untold benefit to the dramatic developments of Irish agriculture in recent de-cades and will continue to en-able dwellers in the most remote areas to share in the advances of modern living and working.

A FUND OF STORIES

Within the staff of the ESB itself there is a living folklore about the early days of "rural" and a special camaraderie among those who shared in the work and adventure (and fun)

Most of them have a fund of stories to tell, many of which are in Michael Sheil's book. The "switch on" was an event of some significance, not only for the expectant people of the lucky parish, but for all the staff and crews who had made it possible. As one recal-ied in the final edition of the Rural Electrification Organsation News:

"Not all will perhaps admit it, but there were very few Rural Area Engineers who did not feel a glow of pride and satisfaction as they surveyed their first group of consumers after they had been switched on

"This pride was also evident in the faces of the crew as they gathered, as was general. in those early days, at the local church hall or school and watched a local celebrity press a switch and listened to the gasps of delight as night was mode into day; or as they strolled down a village street under the light of the new street lamps: or listened to the purr of a newly-installed motor carrying out the task of re-licving some of the toil and drudgery of the countryside.

"Then, the difficulties and squabbles receded into the background as the worthwhile nature of their work came to the fore. Theirs was the satis-faction of knowing that in their own way they were leaving this part of the world a better place than they had found

The party was held with both cubs and scouts on Thursday last at 7.00 p.m.

A lot of the lads especially the cubs came down in fancy dress and a lot of them were very convincing especially Dixie Deegan dressed up as "Rambo" or should I say undressed like Rambo. We started the party with a few games. One of these was "Musical Chairs," with our top D.J. Anita doing the honours. Another game which we played was a water bomb relay. The lads were given water bombs and they had to balance them on badminton racquets. A lot of them dropped the bombs by accident (even though it was a coincidence that they landed on some of the leaders). tion. Several of their players in-cluding Jimmy Maher, Pierrie White, Pat Behan, Pat Quinn, Pat Hayes, Pat Keating, Mich-ael 'Hauleen' Walsh and Ger Walsh have been in strict training with the county panel over the past six weeks and will be much fitter and better pre-pered than they have been for previous Munster club games and these will spearhead the challenge that might well re-sult in a win which would add further prestige to county foot-ball at the moment. As well as the above players, our county champions will have Pa Walsh, John Foley, Jimmy Fraher, Nicky Hayes, Ger Fitzgerald, Ray Hahessy, Tom Pender and Tom Keating of their title win-ning team and if this group can match the fitness of the county men, they should be capable of taking the Tipp. champions. ## RATS-Good Control Is The Only Solution

With tillage operations now complete and with the onset of first frost, farmers around the country are steeling themselves to do battle with an unpleasant visitor. For it is in Autumn that rats close in from the interfective. Their immediate, that rats close in from the fields to be near buildings where there is a good food sup-ply for the Winter. Livestock violent and unpleasant symptoms caused rats to become bait shy. Modern anticoagulant poisons units stocked with feed stuffs do not cause bait shyness. #### SQUASH NOTES

A.I.B. League - Entries close this Friday night for the A.I.B. League. The entry is very good indeed. The draw will be made on Friday night. Entry fee for the tournament is £1 per player. The competition will be run on a league basis in two sections, with the winners in each section meeting in the final. The first matches will be played next Friday 14th Scture

The first matches will be played next Friday, 14th, Satur-day 15th and Sunday 16th. All first round games must be played by Sunday 16th. If players find it difficult to play their matches on the given date, they can play before the set date, but not after but not after.

The second round matches will be played the following weekend, Friday 21st, Saturday 22nd and Sunday 23rd. So check your playing times this weekend

Country League - The final meeting of all the clubs taking part in the Country League will again be held in Tallow this Wednesday night at 8.30. But I have heard that the draw is already made for the ten teams competing. I believe that Tal-low A team have been drawn against Dungarvan Crystal in Tallow on Wednesday, 12th Nov. and Tallow B team are away the same night. I hope to have full details of the draw next

First Friendly - The club played their first friendly match of the year when seven members played Dungarvan Crystal in Dungarvan last weekend and a very enjoyable night it was. I was told that the Glass have a smashing sports complex, and our lads enjoyed themselves immensely. The team were — Nial Twomey, Liam Rvan, Martin Allan Pilin Liam Ryan, Martin Allen, Billy Smith, Paul Geary, Aidan Ryan and Kieran Murphy and for the record, Tallow won 5 games to 2.

Reminders — Closing date for A.I.B. League this Friday. Courts closed on Wednesday night next for Country League games between 7.40 and 10 o'clock. Courts closed for Nov-ember League next Friday 14th, Saturday 15th and Sunday 16th again from 7.20 to 10.20.
