Policeman Leclerq, who directs the traffic on the Paris boulevards at the Porte Saint Denis, was knecked down by a motor car and taken to hospital.

All the Paris newspapers mention the accident because Leclerq is famous as possessing the longest moustache in France. He had directed street traffic at the same point for 10 years, and with his tawny moustacher, which measure a foot and a fif on each side, he is the best-known figure on the aris boulevards.

His injuries are said to be slight, and he will probably be back at his post in a fortnight's time.

All the Paris newspapers mention the large and the highest feelings and regard for one another.

The Town Clerk said he was very grateful for all the kind things said of him by the Chairman. He had only tried to do his duty. He also wished to thank those absent from that meeting for their invarying kindness, and he hoped to see a lot of the old faces back again.
