Kirwan, J. O'Donnell, W. J. O'Donnell, M. Walsh, J. Sheehan, D. Hallinan, B. P. Dalany, M. Brennan, P. O'Connell, J. Butler, W. Stack, D. Casey, D. Ward, J. Halloran, B. Tobin, P. O'Connell, T. No Rate for Tourist Development.

The Irish Tourist Association asked the council to strike a rate in view of the value of the tourist industry to the county. A number of council members gave their opinion, including Dublin City, South Tipperary, Cork City, Clonsilla, Galway, Mayo, Wick, and Donegal. The rate of 1d. in the £ was brought in £10,000, and as a result their tourist revenue should increase to £100,000. The development of the tourist traffic would bring millions of pounds annually to the county.

Mr. O'Brien, Secretary of the Tourist Association, gave the council the details of the scheme.

Where the Money Goes.

A resolution was read from the annual meeting of the Farmers' Union asking the council to spend no more on main roads than they should be a national charge.

Mr. Bowen—The main roads, including Dungarvan urban, are responsible for 10.2 per cent. of your expenditure, and your county main roads, excluding Dungarvan urban, 9.7 per cent. of your expenditure. Some people imagine that 9.7 per cent. is nearer the cost of the main roads. The total cost of roads, excluding urban main roads, is 24.8 per cent. of your expenditure.

Chairman—To have it spread over 5 or 10 years.

Mr. Goulding said at the sworn Inquiry into the affairs of the council the Inspector questioned the Secretary very fully about the credit balances and justified the action of the council in wiping them out.

The resolution was passed, and Sir John Keane and Mr. Butler, E.D., were deputed to interview the Minister L.G. on the subject of the loan.

Mr. Bowen—It is very doubtful even if you save money on that. It is a point on which you should move slowly. If the main roads are to be a national charge the cost to the council will be less.

What is wanted is to get money from some other source. If a national charge, the same ratepayers would be paying a bigger sum than to-day.

DISPUTE OVER BUILDING CONTRACT.

Youghal Cases at Cork.

Sitting in the City Court at Cork Court-house, Circuit Court Judge Kenny reviewed the hearing of business from the Youghal district.

A transferred action in which Edward Green, builder and contractor, Youghal, was plaintiff, and Joseph V. Mallissey, motor engineer, Youghal, was defendant, was heard.

It was a claim by plaintiff against defendant for £27, balance due for work performed in the building of a motor garage. There was a counter-claim for £120.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy (instructed by Messrs. Hodnett and Sons, solicitors) appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. J. J. Kavanaugh (instructed by Messrs. Bass and Sons, solicitors) represented defendant.

The case for the plaintiff was that in the month of June, 1925, defendant, who was accompanied by a man known as Stanley, called on him and asked him to build a motor garage for him at Strand street, Youghal. There was no contract, but plaintiff told defendant he could build a garage for approximately £200, and it was agreed that he should carry on the work. It was understood that the work would be charged, time and material. Defendant frequently visited the work as his instructions in connection with building were altered on several occasions.

Plaintiff pointed out to defendant that he was requesting unnecessary work to be done, but defendant told him to go ahead. Plaintiff then pointed out to the work would run to nearly £200. Defendant said he did not expect that, and plaintiff told him that that was owing to the extra and elaborate nature of the work he was instructed to perform. Plaintiff never thought it would become such a big concern. If he thought it would he would not have touched it. He, however, finished the work, and his total cost was £237. Payments amounting to £150 were made for the work by defendant. When he paid defendant for final payment defendant promised that by Christmas the whole thing would be squared, but the balance of £87 was still due. On the 10th of the present month defendant informed him that one of the reasons why he was defending the action was because people in Youghal were saying he paid plaintiff no money, and he wanted to prove that he did pay money.

First-class material was put into the building, and the work was done in a very good way. The case for the defence was that the garage should have been finished in the ordinary way in about six or eight weeks from the time the work was started on the 18th July. In consequence of it not having been completed defendant was unable to start his motor business in it. The garage was still unfinished. Plaintiff was only able to do work on the garage according to the amount of money from defendant, and defendant paid him £150. After defendant's possession of the garage he found that the work was being done in a very good way, and he had no objection to it. He had no objection to it. He had no objection to it.

The court dismissed the application and made a special order for two days' costs against the Minister for Finance. The decree of the Circuit Court Judge was affirmed.

In delivering judgment, Mr. Justice Hanna said that there had been no fraudulent conduct on the part of Mr. Fuge. It was surprising that the application should have been made after the State Solicitor had approved himself as satisfied with the fairness of Mr. Fuge's claim.

For the Minister of Defence, Mr. Lavery (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. J. J. McEneaney (instructed by Mr. J. W. Kéane) appeared for defendant.

RECENT INSULT TO CLERGY.

DISCUSSION AT COUNTY COUNCIL.

RESIGNATIONS NOT ACCEPTED.

At the County Council meeting on Tuesday, Mr. Kiersey, chairman, presiding, the Secretary said he had received letters from Rev. L. Egan, C.C.; Rev. M. P. Kearney, C.C.; Very Rev. T. Conlon, O.S.A.; and Rev. H. Walsh, O.S.A., resigning their seats on the Technical Committee.

Rev. L. Egan wrote—"Dear Mr. O'Sullivan—It is evident from the report of the last meeting of the County Council as given in the 'Observer' that at least a big majority of the members present at the meeting share the expressed view of Mr. Conlon and are opposed to clergy members acting on the committee, each being in the position, I hereby resign my membership of the Technical and Old Age Pension Committee and would ask you to kindly convey same to the members of your council."

Rev. M. P. Kearney wrote in a similar strain. Mr. D. Conlon, who had been appointed on the Technical Committee on the occasion when Very Rev. Canon Furlong, P.P., was turned down, also sent in his resignation, "as under the circumstances I cannot see my way to act on the committee."

A resolution of protest from the Technical Committee (published elsewhere) was also read.

Mr. Conlon said he regretted Mr. Galley had to leave to catch his train before this came on. He himself had not the slightest idea Canon Furlong was going on. At the finance meeting he was asked to go on, but he said he had sufficient work to do. The members put him on as he represented the same district as that from which the resigned member (Mr. Walsh) was.

He consented to go on, but he was sure the vast majority of the members present had not the slightest intention of offering any insult to the clergy, but the language used was unparliamentary and was certainly an insult, and it was up to the County Council to repudiate it and to refuse to accept the resignations of these respected clergymen.

Mr. J. O'Donnell said he proposed Mr. Conlon, and he had not the least notion that Canon Furlong was going forward. On the Technical Committee there are 15 members, 10 being from Dungarvan and from the county. One of the 5 resigned and he asked Mr. Conlon to go on, but he demurred at first. It was right that the county should get more representation on that committee where so much money is spent.

Mr. Brennan said it was not a matter of representation at all. It is the offensive language used towards the clergy that is the objection to it.

The Chairman said they all regretted the expression used on the occasion, and in the absence of Mr. Galley he would say no more. He said that the consent needed. He would speak for the vast majority of the council that they would say nothing disrespectful to the clergy. At the last meeting something was said on the subject of the resignation of Mr. Galley, and he would tender his regret, but under the circumstances if we ask the clergy to withdraw their resignations, and if Mr. Conlon has handed in his resignation also, he would ask that a member for Dungarvan resign and give another seat on that particular committee to a county man.

Mr. Brennan—I will resign in favour of Canon Furlong.

Mr. Deane—Leave it all in Dungarvan as it is there all the benefits of the Technical Committee go. As for the rest of the county we get nothing but loss. If the Technical Committee is appointed to do the work they should do it impartially for the whole county, and if they did it would be a different report from the Technical Committee would issue to that effect.

Chairman—If there was a vacancy in Dungarvan I would vote for Canon Furlong, but while disassociating myself from the regrettable remark made, I think we were perfectly justified in appointing Mr. Conlon in the position Mr. Walsh had resigned.

Mr. Butler—Nothing was done wrong in connection with the resignation of Mr. Conlon, but we as a council disassociate ourselves from the remarks passed by a member.

Mr. Conroy agreed and said they regretted what happened, but they could not be held accountable for the remarks of an individual member.

Mr. Brennan said Dungarvan had only the representation on the Technical Committee allowed by law. The clergy were put on by the County Council and they were very glad to get someone to take up the position.

Mr. Stack said he proposed Canon Furlong. While he was a member of the Technical Committee from its start and for years at that he had often had to wait two hours for someone to come and form a quorum.

Mr. Butler proposed, Mr. Conroy seconded, and it was resolved—"That the County Council disassociate themselves from the remarks made by Mr. Galley regarding clergy members acting on the Joint Technical Instruction Committee, and that they be asked to continue as members of the committee; also that Mr. Conlon be asked to continue."

Printing Contract.—The County Council on Tuesday accepted the tender of A. Thom and Co., Ltd., Dublin, for the county printing at £297 per annum. The other tenders were—"Glenn National," £310; "Clonmel Chronicle," £381; "The Athlone," £288; "Corker and Co., Waterford," £425; Harvey's, Waterford, £495. The tender of Messrs. Thom was accepted also for public bodies forms, etc.

Co. Council and Irish

PROPOSAL TO ABOLISH LANGUAGE RATE.

LIVELY DEBATE.

At the meeting of the County Council on Tuesday, Mr. J. Kiersey, chairman, presided. The Finance Committee recommended—To increase the rate for the County Committee of Agriculture from 1d. to 1d. in the 2 and to reduce the rate for teaching the Irish language from 1d. to 3d. in the 2.

Mr. Delaney—I don't think those two things—agriculture and the Irish language should be joined together. They should be separate items.

Mr. Galvey—Can't we knock off the Irish rate altogether and leave the amount for agriculture stand? Cut this rate for Irish out. They are teaching nothing but Irish in the schools now and that should be enough.

Mr. Mulcahy—While not disapproving of the action of the Agricultural Committee in taking 1d. in the 2, I move that the Irish language be restored to the position it always held, and that is to give it 1d. in the 2. We as a body of Irishmen should be ashamed of our language.

Mr. Stack—How long are you using the foreign language? You never spoke anything but English all your life and you make a good living out of it while you were at it.

Mr. O'Gorman—All these things were left to the Finance Committee and will you refuse to do what they recommend? We always ratified what they did.

Secretary—The Finance Committee in considering their estimate made this recommendation.

Mr. Galvey—And it is our duty to go into it.

Mr. Conway—This should go to the committee appointed to go into the estimates, and I suggest it be left to them and their recommendation will come before you. Mr. J. O'Donnell seconded.

Mr. O'Shea—I propose that 1d. in the 2 be given for the Irish language. Mr. O'Halloran seconded.

In reply to Sir John Keene, the Secretary said this rate was always included for agricultural and technical education.

Sir John Keene—This is not a question on which I like to speak, as it may be said I do not stand for the Irish language. I hold this is a question for the Department of Education. They are spending a great deal of money and it should be put on the taxes and not on the rates. You have all got an independent vote, but I say it is not a charge that should be put on the ratepayers considering the burden put upon them already.

Mr. Mulcahy said he was sorry to hear Sir John Keene say it was a burden that should not be put on the people, but he was certain that the ratepayers were prepared to pay that 1d. in the 2. They were paying for purposes they were not entitled to pay, and arrangements should be made at the top and not on the Irish language. There was plenty room for retrenchment in the Free State Parliament of which Sir John Keene was a member.

Mr. O'Shea—It is a question of taking 1d. in the 2 of the Irish language and giving it to agriculture. It is raising the charge that all I propose that 1d. for the teaching of the Irish language be added to the 1d. that is matter for the committee you appointed while ago.

Mr. O'Shea—There would be no economy in this.

Mr. Galvey—We can make economy by cutting the rate for the Irish language. Mr. Brennan said he did not think as a body of Irishmen they would justify themselves by decreasing the rate of the language of their country.

Mr. Delaney—These two things—agriculture and the Irish language—should not be taxed together. About 25 years ago I was a member of the Irish Language Class and we kept the class going at our own expense. Some of these words about the language really were laughing at them then. He was speaking of his own district. After a time their teacher was taken away. In the National School he found that the Irish was taught 3 hours a week in the school, but I shall have to be devoted to religious instruction, leaving 1 1/2 hours for all other subjects to object to me to live. He would not object if any school was done at the evening classes in Irish. He had a fair knowledge of them, and no school was done. He saw on the papers recently of the successful classes of Irish in various parts of the country, yet the week before he notices sent out asking people to attend his God's sake of the classes would go down. Yet on the paper that class was described as wonderful. Agriculture was their most important industry and should not be neglected. He proposed that 1d. in the 2 be devoted to agriculture and strike the rate for Irish.

Mr. Galvey seconded and said the County Council members were all there they should not split it here and there and not leave it to any committee.

Mr. O'Shea—I propose that the 1d. in the 2 be restored to the Irish. Mr. Mulcahy seconded.

Mr. Goulding said he was very sorry he could not speak in favour of Mr. O'Shea's amendment. On the other hand he was equally sorry listening to a body of Irishmen say that money spent on the Irish language is waste. He did not agree to it.

Mr. Stack—You voted against it one time and you.

Mr. Goulding said his experience of Irish classes was similar to Mr. Delaney's, and his only objection to the rate was that the people had not availed of the opportunities given them at the classes supported by the rates. He was afraid it was not very well spent. It advantage were taken of these classes he would very strongly oppose the reduction of this rate, but he really believed the people were not availing of it, and the money was not economically spent.

He should not be taken as agreeing to the principle that money spent on the Irish language was not well spent. For the very same reasons he moved before that that money be not given. Of course any people claiming to be a nation should speak their own language, but this country has merely become a British province, and a considerable number, but not the majority, are agreeable to think so. To a great extent it is due to want of national sentiment and the real truth of what national sentiment is. In this country sufficient advantage has not been taken of the rate for Irish and the money has not been spent to advantage.

Mr. O'Halloran—What is the report of the Inspector on last year's inspection? Mr. O'Gorman—Irish is the language of the Dail and the Senate and so it is a burden on the ratepayers, who have enough to do as it is. Look at the straits we are in at present. Everyone was groaning under the heavy rate, and a committee had been appointed to try and reduce by any possible means. Education was a matter for the Ministry and the Government. Irish was now taught in all the schools, and so it should be a charge on the State and not on the ratepayers. To put such a charge on the rates was not right, as they had enough to do to pay the expenses of a county.

Mr. O'Halloran said why not attack the other teachers as well as the teachers of Irish? Why not round the country and take the teacher of the "Pancake Puzzle" and the person who makes "hens lay duck eggs"? They should go all round.

Mr. Brennan said the numbers attending the Irish Classes in the county was the best argument that the money was not wasted. In several districts the classes were well attended, and if not attended well the Inspector would close them down, and they had been closed in a few areas. It became that County Council in the heart of a Gaelic-speaking district denying the right of the people to spend 1d. in the 2 in aid of Irish. The Irish language had survived the machinations of all the enemies of the country for a thousand years, and it will survive the activities of the Waterford County Council.

Mr. O'Halloran made an observation, and Mr. Stack said—He is a professor of Irish.

Continuing, Mr. Stack said—You are spending over £10,000 a year and they are teaching the children Irish in the schools. The biggest curse that was ever introduced into the country was the Irish language because it was the easiest way to go round with the hat. These are the grand Irishmen we have nowadays! Remember what those Irish teachers are doing. They are doing simply nothing but fooling the people as they have been fooled since the days of Cromwell. They have been fooled with this Irish since it started.

Mr. O'Halloran—And we will be fooled for ever.

Mr. Stack—That very man, the P.R. Mr. Butler voted against it here.

Mr. Butler—That is wrong.

Mr. Stack—I was present and you voted against it. Did you ever know the like of it? They are all making speeches and not one of them could speak a word of Irish.

Mr. Butler—I will not say Mr. Chairman, to see that Mr. Stack will withdraw that statement.

Mr. Stack—Sure you told me yourself you were the only man to vote against it. It was yourself told me and I won't withdraw it.

Mr. Goulding (speaking in Irish) asked Mr. Stack if he could speak Irish, and Mr. Stack eloquently replied in the vernacular. I know more about it than you.

Chairman (to Mr. Stack)—You have made a statement concerning Mr. Butler and Mr. Butler said it was a fact. You say Mr. Butler told you himself.

Mr. Stack—Sure he did not hear Mr. Butler make the statement. I took you to withdraw it.

Mr. Stack—Indeed I won't. He told me himself. He told only two words against it and he said I was one and Goulding was the other. I said I would draw it.

Mr. Butler—I will take no notice of him.

The incident then ended.

As to the committee appointed to deal with the reduction of the estimate, Mr. O'Shea said none of the five were interested in the Irish language.

Mr. Conway said he should withdraw that remark.

Eventually the question was referred to the committee for consideration and will come before the Council.

EXPENDITURE. The expenditure for the week was—General account, £18 0s. 4d.; waterworks account, £20 8s. 1d.

Mr. O'Donnell—I was always a man. I never ran away. Mr. Curran—Mr. O'Donnell not me next morning and asked me what we did, and I said Mr. Stokes got it and he said that was right.

Mr. O'Donnell—Yes, that is correct. Mr. Curran—At the meeting I voted for plan B as the tender for plan A was £310. I was not going to beggar the town, and I cannot see why Mr. O'Donnell should be bringing up these things against him.

Mr. O'Donnell—There is a bond to be prepared. Why not get it ready? Clerk—Can you do that until you have sanction? Mr. McCarthy—I hope you will keep to my suggestion about employing local labour when available.

Mr. O'Donnell—That is a very good suggestion. It would be better to have it go to the Department from this committee. Mr. J. Curran—Don't mind Mr. O'Keefe. He can mind himself (laughter).

Mr. O'Keefe said that he had to arrange during the forthcoming month for most of the experimental and demonstration work to be carried out during the year. The clergy and Farmers' Union were giving great help.

DUNGARVAN URBAN COUNCIL AGAINST DANIEL

At the Circuit Court, before Mr. Justice Sealy, the Dungarvan Urban Council sued Joseph Daniel, Kilrush, and applied for an injunction to restrain him from closing a gully on his lands which caused flooding on the road.

Mr. Conolly, B.L. (instructed by Mr. J. F. Williams, solicitor) for plaintiffs, and Mr. Carroll, solicitor, defended.

Mr. McGrath, borough surveyor, said he produced a map showing where flooding occurred. The upper part of the road is 61 feet above low water mark and below where the flooding occurs is 50.1. The depression on the road is 4 feet 10 inches.

Mr. Carroll—There was no gully in Daniel's side, but there was a flag on the outside like the shape of a gully.

Mr. Conolly—He sent in a man to clean gully and they could not find any gully there. There was a hollow in the field along by the fence.

Mr. Carroll—The cost of laying a concrete drain to prevent the damage would be about £250.

Mr. Carroll—I hold the council are not entitled to do an act calculated to create a nuisance. In point of law a nuisance is discomfort or injury. Daniel was injured. His house was injured.

Mr. Carroll—The road outside Daniel's residence was raised some time ago. He often saw Daniel's yard flooded. The water rushes down the foundation of Daniel's house and is often six inches high.

DUNGARVAN URBAN COUNCIL AGAINST DANIEL

At the Circuit Court, before Mr. Justice Sealy, the Dungarvan Urban Council sued Joseph Daniel, Kilrush, and applied for an injunction to restrain him from closing a gully on his lands which caused flooding on the road.

Mr. Conolly, B.L. (instructed by Mr. J. F. Williams, solicitor) for plaintiffs, and Mr. Carroll, solicitor, defended.

Mr. McGrath, borough surveyor, said he produced a map showing where flooding occurred. The upper part of the road is 61 feet above low water mark and below where the flooding occurs is 50.1. The depression on the road is 4 feet 10 inches.

Mr. Carroll—There was no gully in Daniel's side, but there was a flag on the outside like the shape of a gully.

Mr. Conolly—He sent in a man to clean gully and they could not find any gully there. There was a hollow in the field along by the fence.

Mr. Carroll—The cost of laying a concrete drain to prevent the damage would be about £250.

Mr. Carroll—I hold the council are not entitled to do an act calculated to create a nuisance. In point of law a nuisance is discomfort or injury. Daniel was injured. His house was injured.
