Youghal District Court.

Before Mr. R. Walsh, B.L.

Mr. Wm. R. Hodnett, solr., applied on behalf of Mr. Joseph Power, South Main street, for an ad interim transfer of two licences—a 6-day licence in a house in South Main street and an ad interim 7-day licence in respect of a house in Talbot street. The licence hitherto was Mr. John Kennedy, who had transferred his interest to the applicant.

Formal evidence having been given, the applications were granted, the Guards not objecting.

Ed. Cooke, McCurtainstown, was charged on remand under the Vagrancy Act, with indecency on the Strand on the 28th and 31st August and 1st September.

Supt. Dineen, Middleton, prosecuted, and Mr. Wm. F. O'Connor, solr., Cork, defended.

Guard Downes said a number of other witnesses having given evidence and been cross-examined by Mr. O'Connor.

The Town Clerk deposed that the Urban Council had purchased the forebore, the scene of the alleged offence.

Mr. O'Connor insisted on formal evidence of ownership, but would waive the point if the prosecution agreed to bring the charges under the bathing bye-laws.

The bathing question at Youghal had been a matter of controversy for a long time. A well-known writer, "Bita," had piloted the local authorities in one of her novels for their neglect in providing proper facilities. Several prominent Cork citizens had contended their claims and their by-laws, and the matter was still the subject of lively debate in the shape of mixed bathing, as was evidenced at recent meetings of the Urban Council. The forebore at Clarycastle was reserved for men's bathing place, but consistent complaints were made regarding ladies' bathing. On the occasion in question his client merely vented bathing and he completely denied having been guilty of any offence against modesty.

The defendant, sworn, corroborated. The Superintendent said he could not alter the form of prosecution. There had been frequent complaints regarding conduct of the kind and it should be put a stop to.

Mr. O'Connor still insisting on formal evidence of the ownership of the forebore, the cases were adjourned for three weeks.

Guard Kenny charged Richard Murphy, Drinan street, Cork, with driving a motor car without a driver's licence.

He was fined 10s. and 7s. 6d. special costs.

PETROL CAUSES BLAZE.

Four persons were burnt alive and one is lying in a critical condition as the result of a fire which destroyed a wooden cottage at Montenapain, near Laggan. The outbreak was caused through a woman throwing out petrol in front of a lighted stove.

An explosion occurred, setting the woman's clothes alight, and the flames speedily gained a hold on the furniture and walls of the cottage, which were consumed.

The woman's husband was burnt to death, as well as their two-year-old son, and two little girls, aged eight and six, who were staying with them on a holiday.

BADGER HUNTING.

The members of the Clonmel and District Hunters' Club met at Shanbally on Sunday last and enjoyed some capital sport along by the margin of the river Dullaghan. The club's terriers acted creditably in all their engagements with the badgers located during the afternoon, and the visitors and local spectators were keenly delighted with the doggie displays.

LISMORE TOWN COMMISSIONERS AND THE COURTHOUSE.

At the monthly meeting of the above body held in the Carnegie Library, Mr. Thomas Crotty, chairman, presiding. It having been mentioned that the District Justice, Mr. Farrell, B.L., was interested in the reconstruction, if possible, of Lismore Courthouse, The Chairman said that no doubt a courthouse was wanted. Mr. Goolding—That matter came up at the County Council meeting some time ago and the members looked at it in this way—that there was a vacant building up there—the workshop and the dining hall and chapel of which could be reconstructed and made suitable for the requirements of a court at small expense. It looked ridiculous that money should be spent repairing a ruin when you had another building vacant. It was not good finance. The average ratepayer would say—You have a fine unites buildings up there going to ruin, and why spend money on the old courthouse. He (Mr. Goolding) would be naturally glad if a grant were got to reconstruct the courthouse, as he was aware what an asset it was to the town, but it's the average outside ratepayer that he considered and anticipated what he would say. This was already grumbling and this workshop was going to rack and ruin. The dining hall was a big weather-proof place and need only internal fitting and was suitable near the railway station and was good enough for Board of Guardians for fifty years or so, and should be suitable for a court now. Again, there was an alternative site there if the little room was let into the backroom. Mr. Hickey—The backroom was not half big enough for a court. I happened to be up there at the last court and the place was for ever too small. Mr. Goolding—Well, the dining hall contained 500 the night of the Christian Brothers' Concert, and from the point of economy he would suggest that. The reconstruction of the old courthouse would probably cost a couple of thousand pounds, and I am sure you would never carry that at a County Council meeting presently (laughter). Mr. Murphy—Would the County Council reconstruct the workshop to make it suitable for a courthouse? Mr. Goolding was understood to answer in the affirmative. Mr. Hickey—Mr. Farrell is anxious that something should be done. Mr. Goolding—Mind you, I am not against it at all, but simply point out the way I think that the average ratepayer would look at it. Mr. Murphy pointed out that Lismore was a Quarter Sessions district and all that business now was transacted at Dungarvan Circuit Court, which was a loss to the town. Chairman—It would be no harm to pass a resolution anyway. Mr. Murphy—Am not the County Council bound to provide a courthouse? Mr. Goolding—Yes, suitable accommodation and this resolution will be sent to the County Council for their views. After further discussion, and on the proposition of the Chairman, a resolution was passed unanimously to the effect that it was the opinion of the Lismore Town Commissioners that the necessity existed for proper courthouse accommodation in the district, and they also held the view that a grant from the Government to defray portion of the cost should also be forthcoming. Copy of the resolution was ordered to be sent to the Minister for Justice.

G.A.A.—YOUGHAL v. BALLYMACODA.

Ballymacoda were opposed to Youghal in the first round of the East Cork Hurling League, Youghal area, in the Sports Field, Cappelly, on Sunday. The weather was fine and warm, with a pleasant breeze, but the attendance was on the small side, the event being anything but adequately advertised. Play was timed for 3 o'clock, but it was 4.10 before the teams lined up. The North Abbey Band played to and on the field. Although the visitors included some promising players, the local team appeared lighter and faster and the effective display was largely on their side. The change about had little effect on the spirit of the game, the visitors breaking no ice at all. Ballymacoda won the toss and played with a slanting breeze and slope. After several overs at both goals, Youghal scored a major. Some twenty minutes' nice play ensued, but they repeated this against a strong defence. Soon after Ballymacoda scored a minor to be followed quickly with a major for the locals. On the change of sides, Youghal again pressed and placed a goal to their credit in quick fashion. Some delay was caused by a Ballymacoda man getting hurt, having to be replaced. This they followed up by two minors. For the rest Youghal had the best of the play, the final goal being:— YOUGHAL—4 goals 4 points. BALLYMACODA—1 point. Rev. Father Cotter, C.C., Ballymacoda, acted as referee.

School Holidays—Announcing the reopening of the local schools at the first Mass on Sunday in Youghal, the V. Rev. Canon O'Donoghue, P.P., condemned the summer vacation as too long and anything but beneficial to the children. It was not so bad as last year, but still it was altogether too long. He was of opinion that the holidays that formerly prevailed were quite long enough for all good and practical purposes.

Ardmore District Court.

Before Mr. Redmond Naish, B.L. MOTOR CASES.

Sergeant Acton, Clashmore, charged Mr. James Dwyer, Cork, with driving a motor car at an excessive speed. Mr. Stanton, solicitor, Cork, defended. Complainant having given evidence, was cross-examined by Mr. Stanton.

Justice.—Did you calculate the speed with the stop-watch? Yes, sir. Where is this road? About a mile this side of Youghal Bridge.

Defendant was also fined 4s. and costs. Similar charges were listed against Mrs. Elizabeth Downing, Fair View, Waterford, and John Brennan, Creggs Cross, Cork.

EXAMINATION ORDER. In the case of the G'embest Co-operative Co. against Kelly.

Mr. Keane, solicitor, said it was an application to bring him up for examination. He wished to inform the court that the original judgment which had been granted at the Assize Court had been mislaid, but the solicitor engaged had made an affidavit stating the facts.

FISHERY CASE. Mr. Thomas Drohan, Inspector of Fisheries, Mallow, charged John Morrison, Ballinacash, Co. Waterford, with a breach of the Fishery Laws.

Mr. J. L. Keane prosecuted and defendant answered the summons.

Mr. Keane said that was a prosecution for using a fixed net for fishing—one of the most serious offences under Fishery Code. The penalty was £50 with £20 a day additional of the option of the court.

For a breach of the weekly close season there was a minimum of £10 and a maximum of £50, but no lesser sum than £20 was specified for the using of a fixed net.

At a previous court Mr. Hodnett was engaged in the case, and he would be glad to hear he was in it still.

Mr. Hodnett said he had applied for an adjournment on a former occasion, but he was no longer in the case.

Serpt. Acton, Clashmore, deposed that the Blackwater ran through his district. He was on duty at Ballinacash Quay on the date of the offence and he saw the defendant in a boat about 45 yards off.

He was engaged firing one end of the net—known locally as a "cribble." Witness shouted to him: "I thought you had stopped using this 'cribble,' John?" Defendant made no answer, but sculled the boat away towards the Knockanore direction at the opposite side of the river up along the bank and finally came across to his home. The tide was full at the time, and witness waited till it had fallen when he went to examine the net. It was about 45 yards long and fixed to a rock at the near side. Witness tried to haul it in, but something heavy held it at the other end.

Another Guard came to his assistance and they finally got it in by burning the rope. He had the net now in the court.

He had the net now in the court. Defendant deposed that no that "eventful" evening he was after coming in from salmon fishing and he took a punt from the quay at Ballinacash to go hand-line fishing.

While sculling out with one oar a strong westerly breeze blew him on that net, which foiled in some mauls in the boat's heel. He had to cut the net to clear it. He then proceeded on his journey.

—Cross-examined by Mr. Keane—You admit there was such a net—a cribble—there? Yes, there was such a net there all right. Did you see the sergeant? No, I didn't. Ballinacash is a very open part of the river? Yes, at the quay. When did you hear he was there? When I got home my brother told me. What did you do then? I did nothing. You were an innocent man and you know that the net was being illegally fished—why didn't you go and tell the sergeant what happened? I didn't know the sergeant was there until I was summoned. That boat wasn't used for fishing at all? No, but she would be a nice boat to fix a cribble 45 yards out the river? I don't know. I could not say. You admit you were 10 minutes there clearing your boat? Yes.

Justice.—He said he didn't see the sergeant at all. I would like to have the sergeant called again on that point.

The sergeant, re-called, was re-examined by Mr. Keane.

Where were you when you saw this young man? I was standing on Ballinacash Quay. Did you see the defendant? Yes. Did you say anything to him? I said, "John, I thought you had stopped using this cribble," and he stopped his head and sculled out into the river. Have you any doubt that he could see and hear you? I am certain he could have heard me; he was only 14 yards off.

Justice.—You say it is an open place? Yes, sir, at that point.

Mr. Drohan having given evidence. The Justice said he had no objection but could not say. You admit you were 10 minutes there clearing your boat? Yes.

On the application of Mr. Keane, 3 guineas costs were granted.

FAMILY DISPUTE. There were a series of rather serious assault and cross-cases between Maurice Conway and his brother John.

Mr. Wm. R. Hodnett, solr., who appeared for John, said he had expected to see Mr. E. A. Ryan, solr., Dungarvan, appear for the other side. However, he was glad to say the court would not be troubled with the cases, which arose out of a family dispute. The father was present and he (Mr. Hodnett) believed they had come to terms. It was a question as to which of the brothers would get the place.

The cases were adjourned for one month with a view to a settlement.

FALSE PRETENCES. Three young fellows named O'Brien, Foley and Ryan were charged on remand with obtaining money under false pretences.

Supt. O'Sullivan, Dungarvan, prosecuted and Mr. Wm. R. Hodnett, solr., defended. Mr. Hodnett said he was entering a plea of "guilty" and making an admission of guilt and making an admission of guilt and making an admission of guilt.

The defendants were taken part in various sports as competitors and otherwise. At the time there were sports at Torranean and the defendants hadn't the funds to go. They therefore very foolishly called on some local gentlemen for subscriptions for the Ardmore Sports. It was their first offence; they were very sorry, and he therefore appealed to the court to deal with them under the Probation of Offenders Act.

The depositions made by Sgt. Keane, Ardmore in the case, having been handed in.

Supt. O'Sullivan said it was a very small case and of a nature not prevalent in that district. The amount involved was 10s. and two sums of 5s. each, 20s. in all. If that were handed back he would not press the case.

Mr. Hodnett said that would be done. The defendants were then let out under the Probation of Offenders Act in bail of £20 and two sureties of £10 each.

Three Husbands—All Died From Falls. —At a Dudley inquest on a Birmingham boatman, who died from a fall into the bottom of his barge, his widow said she had had three husbands who had died from falls. The first fell dead in the street, and the second fell downstairs. She had had 14 children, and she was only now middle-aged. The Coroner said it was a very remarkable series of incidents.

Rescued from Drowning.—When a boy named Keyes fell into the water at Mall Dock, Youghal, John McHugh, Garston, one of the crew of the s.s. Brynawel, jumped in to his rescue and caught the boy, but got his feet fouled in mooring ropes. Thos. Conroy, Youghal, seeing the position, jumped in and took the boy ashore. McHugh, relieved of his burden, cleared himself from the ropes, and swam

President Cosgrave Visits Waterford

INTERESTING ADDRESS.

Last Thursday President Cosgrave visited Waterford and paid a round of visits to the industrial concerns.

The President, addressing the gathering, said that in less than twelve months from now the electors of this State would be faced with the task of choosing new representatives in the Sovereign Parliament of the nation.

All they asked was that the people's judgment should be broad, based upon the facts, and that they should not allow themselves to be misled by those who had an axe to grind, whether they sought to conceal their objective by appeals to prejudice or by royal promises.

The President continued—"I do not propose to-day to praise the glory and glow of the things we have succeeded in accomplishing. They represent, for the most part, an honest effort to deal with the complex problems which vitally affect the welfare of the people—housing, roads, butter, eggs, land, and such material things. We are not sought after for the spectacular. By reason of prolonged neglect, as long as our affairs were managed from outside, there was neither the time, nor, in many instances, the inclination, to tackle the problems peculiar to this country. Consequently there was a policy of drift. We had to face the results of that policy and to stop the rot which it occasioned. Our industries were almost defunct. We were being our position in the agricultural markets. We introduced a tariff system to protect such of our industries as could benefit by it."

To-day, he said, although the results were far from complete, they had recovered much that was lost. Their tariffs were still frankly in an experimental stage. Whether the existing list would be extended or not depended upon close, impartial investigation into the merits of each case, taking into account not a particular industry alone, but all effects and reactions, such as a tariff on such industry might have upon employment, cost of living, and analogous problems.

Amid these many activities they had found time for bigger things. They had introduced the best sugar industry into the country and had undertaken the Shannon electrification scheme. Their coal resources are admittedly poor and undeveloped, perhaps impossible in present circumstances of great economical stress. They had been relying upon places outside their shores for this great source of heat, light and power. Every year had seen millions of pounds paid out for it. By utilizing their national wealth of water power they had taken steps to lessen that drain. Even the leader of one of the irregular fragments had admitted the wisdom of seeking a native source of power, but the magnitude of the scheme appeared to have frightened him.

It was interesting to see the man who had shrunk from no destructive effort, however great, however disastrous, tinorous, before their first big attempt to build. No Government could govern for four years without making enemies. The man with the scrub hat did not appear to be a scheme for improving their dairy stock. The careless dairy farmer felt aggrieved when he was presented for selling dirty milk. The disappointed place-hunter bewailed the destruction of patronage; the lawless element objected to the administration of law, the spendthrift to being compelled to meet his obligations. All these people were hostile to the Government, as indeed they would be hostile to any Government.

There were two great crises of unity and economy. "Unity," he observed, "is a most desirable thing, economy a necessary virtue. But it is rather amusing to observe that the spotless of unity are all people who have at least one disunion to their credit, who have already severed themselves from some body in which unity existed, were it not for them. I need not single out any of these gentlemen for special mention. You have only to look up the names of the promoters of the new mushroom parties to see for yourselves."

Their new-found economies wanted everything for nothing. They wanted improved postal services, but a drastic reduction in the number of postmen. They wanted better housing, drainage and roads, but they did not want to contribute to the cost. They could not have it both ways. If they wanted improved services they should pay for them, no matter what Government was in power.

The President continued—"These proposals for economy which commend themselves most to some of these financiers included the abolition of the army, and of the Department of External Affairs. Their hatred of these services was not difficult of explanation. These services are symbolic of the freedom which the Treaty has conferred, and which in their heart of hearts they do not wish to relinquish. Mr. De Valera on the one hand, Mr. O'Gorman, of Fermoy, on the other, impelled by different motives, are clearly out of sympathy with the majority of the people of Ireland. They mean of extravagance and decay. Every man of confidence in the people, they have no confidence in the people. It returns they deserve no confidence from the people.

50 Lives Lost in Cinema Fire.

APPALLING TRAGEDY.

PICTURE HOUSE TURNS INTO FURNACE.

Drumcollogher, Co. Limerick, was, on Sunday night, the scene of a tragedy, which resulted in a death toll almost unparalleled in the history of Irish disasters. It occurred when a fire took place in a building mainly composed of wood, in which a cinema performance was being given, and involved the deaths of 50 persons.

When the fire broke out the audience made a wild rush for the only exit which the place afforded, and in the struggle to get through many were trampled upon, including women and children. Others were trapped in the building, which almost instantaneously became a raging inferno, and amidst terrible scenes were compelled to await painful and agonising deaths.

Heartrending cries were heard from within the burning building as the victims one by one succumbed to the attack of the awful element, and those outside were rendered powerless to give any assistance. Some who were fortunate to escape endeavoured to return to the rescue, and some at least who made this brave endeavour died in the attempt.

The bodies of 48 missing persons have been recovered from the ruins of the building, which was completely demolished. Some others are still missing, and a number who suffered in the panic are being treated in the local hospitals. All who suffered were local people, and included six members of one family, that of Mr. J. J. Buckley, N.T. There were heart-rending scenes when friends and relatives viewed the bodies for identification purposes.

An entire absence of even the most elementary precautions against fire was disclosed at the inquest in the evidence of the proprietor of the entertainment and the cinema operator. There was no fire extinguishing apparatus, and no exit but the entrance door. The films were unprotected, and the operator, who had only arrived there, did not consider the place suitable.

The owner of the cinema and the operator have been detained by the Civic Guard. The awful tragedy took place in a newly-opened cinema, which was a structure of wood except for the side walls. The entertainment was given on the upper story, which was reached by a sort of staircase from the street. This was the only entrance, and at the back of the hall were two windows.

In front of the building was a large carrying engine and dynamo, which generated light and power for the machine. The projection machine was in the centre of the hall, about 15 feet from the entrance door, and it was totally unprotected, while the reels of film, eight in number, were on a table at the side, and these, too, were completely naked and had no protection.

There were about 150 to 200 people roughly in the hall, and they filled its seating capacity. The show had only been on about 30 or 40 minutes when the fire began.

According to several accounts of people who were near the table on which the naked films were, someone carelessly threw a cigarette end on to the films, which ignited.

It should also be mentioned that there was a candle burning on this table, and it is doubtful how the fire exactly originated. When the film which caught fire burst into flames, Sgt. Long, Civic Guard; Mr. Benson, Mr. P. J. O'Connell, the owner of the cinema, and Mr. Downing, the operator attempted to put them out. The sergeant caught one reel, and was about to rush out with it when someone hit it with a cap, and sparks flew to the other reels of films, which then caught blaze, and the whole mass of film were afire.

The operator at first shouted to the people: "Keep cool," and there was a momentary calm, but when all the films caught fire a panic-stricken rush was made for the entrance. Men, women and children flung themselves down the staircase. It was a frightful sight. Women screamed, and became hysterical, and all fought madly to get clear.

The people who were in the front of the hall huddled into one corner. Some men and women tried to get out through the windows but in their mad panic only a few succeeded.

The scene that ensued was graphically described by Guard John Davis, who made a brave and determined effort to lead out the unfortunate people to safety, but failed. "About 50 to 60 people," he said, "were huddled in a corner. I called on them to follow me. I caught two girls and I started to rush them to the entrance door, but had only gone a few yards when they stopped, and pulled me back. 'I heard someone shout, 'come back,' and the girls ran back, and tore away from me."

"One of them ran towards a little dressing room, and tried to get out by the window. I followed her back, and I started to run with her again towards the entrance door. Four or five fellows rushed across the hall and knocked us down. 'I then tried to force the side partition, but failed. I looked up the hall and saw the front place near the entrance all ablaze. 'It was clear, save for the people at my end, the people were huddled on the ground, clinging together in death-like grips with horror and fright on their faces. 'I tried once more to rouse them and shouted at them to follow me. I started to run, and dashed through the flames

Inspector Quinn, Garda Síochána, Lady Lane, deposed he arrested the accused at Groganavagh, Rathgorman, on the previous evening, in the house of a man named Patrick Power. When charged the accused said: "I was of opinion one time that a warrant would be issued, and I was told afterwards by my people that the warrant would not be issued, as my father would settle the matter, and they (Local Government Department) would withhold his application until the debt was paid."

An application by Mr. R. J. Farrell, solicitor, for bail was refused, and the accused was removed in custody to next District Court.

Preliminary Announcement OF A NEW TYPE HIGH SPEED LIGHT CAR, "The Overland Whippet,"

So named for its qualities of speed, agility, power and endurance, after the famous racing thoroughbred—
"THE WHIPPET"

THE OVERLAND WHIPPET is a revolutionary low-slung modern car, radically different from the old-fashioned, high-in-the-air carriage type of car that it is designed to supplement or replace.

It is a complete new car, designed and built as a unit, not an old-fashioned chassis reconstructed. For over three years Willys-Overland engineers in Europe and America have been developing it. Its high torque, 31 horse-power engine of small bore and long stroke, embodies the same engineering principles used in the fastest racing cars of America and Europe, and 600,000 of road tests have proved its practical advantages beyond all doubt.

The 15 rated horse-power engine will actually develop more than 30 horse-power in use.

In wonderful activity, its flashing bursts of speed and quick acceleration have never been available in any car of equal power. Stop watch tests show that it accelerates up to 40 miles an hour, 19 per cent. faster than other high cars. It runs like a six, pulls with irresistible power, no average bill can stall it.

In distinctive body lines, the WHIPPET frankly resembles the smartest-built cars, complete symmetry of design has been achieved with compact external dimensions, height and length are in time artistic proportions, and it is beautifully finished in a pleasing shade of rich Appennine blue, with durable triple-coated lacquer that will retain its lustrous beauty for many years.

From the standpoint of engineering, performance, comfort, economy, appearance and quality, the OVERLAND WHIPPET has established an entirely new criterion by which all other light cars must be judged.

See for yourself.

Demonstration cars will shortly be available, and a three-minute study of the many superlatives of the WHIPPET may save you from buying some obsolete car.
