Confirmation in Cappoquin.

On Friday week, 8th inst, Most Rev. Dr. Hackett, Bishop of Waterford and Lismore, paid his biennial visitation to Cappoquin for the purpose of administering the Sacrament of Confirmation to the children of the various schools in that extensive parish. On the previous day (Corpus Christi) the children were examined by his lordship when they all answered in brilliant fashion and displayed such a sound knowledge of Christian doctrine as reflected the greatest credit on all the various teachers concerned.

Pupils from no less than six schools were presented for examination as follows—Cappoquin Male National School—25, who were in charge of Mr. F. X. O'Leary, Principal Teacher, and Mr. B. Collender, N.T.; Convent of Mercy Schools, Cappoquin—20, in charge of Miss Gallagher, N.T.; Camphire School—10, Mrs. W. Baldwin, N.T.; Mount Mellery National School—9, Mrs. M. Scanlan, N.T.; Tourin—6, Mrs. M. Sweeney, N.T.; while 8 boys from Mount Mellery Seminary were also put forward.

Several others were presented in the servants class, but so carefully and thoroughly had everyone been prepared for the great event that there was not a single case of failure at the examination, so that close on 100 boys and girls all told, had qualified for Confirmation on the following day.

The interesting proceedings started at 10 o'clock (old time) on Friday morning, when Mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. Crotty, C.C., before a very large congregation.

Under the personal direction of the Very Rev. D. Canon Whelan, D.D., P.P., the church choir had been vastly improved for a considerable time previously with the result that the music of the Mass was rendered most tunefully and effectively under the capable conductorship of Miss Kathleen Mansfield, the accomplished organist. After the elevation a beautiful and eloquent sermon was preached by Fr. Crotty, in the course of which he clearly explained the nature of the great Sacrament of Confirmation and very complimentary references to the quality of this sermon were afterwards made by the Bishop, who quoted some passages from it in the course of his own address subsequently.

Addressing the congregation after Fr. Crotty's sermon, his Lordship said he was very proud and gratified to be able to state that he had received a splendid report from their worthy pastor, Canon Whelan, on the healthy and satisfactory state of the parish from a spiritual point of view, as he was informed that the people were most regular in attending their religious duties, and were also good and faithful members of the Confraternities and Societies in their midst, which was bound to bring God's blessing on the parish and its people.

From the report which he had received he should say that the devotion of the parishioners here was splendid and should be a source of great joy and pride to their zealous pastor, and also to Father Crotty.

His Lordship then dealt with the sin of perjury, and said it was a matter of great concern to the Bishops and priests of Ireland to hear so many complaints being made from time to time by Judges and District Justices in the various parts of the country about the great amount of perjury indulged in in the public Courts, sometimes even in the most trifling cases.

He instanced some cases in which people thought little or nothing about calling on God to witness a false oath taken to get them out of some little difficulty, and repeated the definition of perjury given him by a little boy last year who said that the person who committed perjury was simply making a liar of God.

In the course of further remarks, he deplored the evils of emigration, and said it always made his heart heavy and sad when he saw or heard of our young Irishmen and Irish women having to leave the shores of holy Ireland and emigrate to some foreign country where religion was thought little of. He trusted that sufficient industries would soon be started in this country to provide employment that would keep our young people at home, and said it was only those who were able to travel through some foreign countries who could fully realise the great dangers that beset the path of those who had to leave Ireland and seek a livelihood in some of the Godless countries abroad. He was glad to hear that their local industry in Cappoquin (the Bacon Factory) was going on very well, and he hoped it would continue to do so and help to bring prosperity to the people of the town and parish. The devotion of the people here was splendid, and he hoped that God would reward them all, both here and hereafter, for this happy state of affairs.

He next paid a tribute to the teachers and children for the sound knowledge of religious teaching displayed, and concluded by congratulating the people on the happy and exemplary state of the parish at present.

Immediately after Mass his Lordship proceeded to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation, being assisted by the following priests:—Very Rev. Canon Whelan, P.P.; Very Rev. J. Gleeson, P.P., Aghish; Rev. James Walsh, C.C., Lismore; Rev. T. O'Gorman, C.C., do.; Rev. J. Dwan, C.C., Modeligo, and Rev. J. Crotty, C.C., Cappoquin.

Unlicensed Dogs.

Guard Griffen charged Thos. Hurley, Ballycough, with having two unlicensed dogs in his possession.

Complainant deposed that he visited Hurley's house on the 8th June and found four dogs lying in the yard. Mrs. Hurley, who was there, could not account for two of them. The other two had been licensed. Defendant's son came along and said that three of the dogs were theirs, one of them being two young to license. The other was a beagle hound.

Defendant's son said that the beagle was belonging to Capt. O'Shea and strayed into them. The captain said they could keep her and that she had been licensed with the pack last January.

Justice—Have you got the license for the beagle? No, sir.

Justice—You must have it as you or your father is owner. What do you say, Guard?

The Guard said that Mrs. Hurley said she didn't know anything about the beagle.

Hurley said he had taken out a license for the third dog since.

The Justice said he would let the defendant off that time.

Guard Walsh charged John Curley, West street, with being drunk and disorderly. He was disorderly by raising his voice.

Justice—What is he? A "knacker," sir.

The Guard said there was nothing previously against defendant.

Justice—You seem inclined to treat it as simple drunkenness.

Guard—There was not much disorder—only raising his voice.

He was fined 2/6.

Mr. Wm. E. Hodnett, solicitor, applied for an ad interim transfer of the license lately held by Wm. O'Callaghan, West-street.

Mr. Hodnett said the deceased died intestate on the 24th April leaving a widow and several children. The application was made on behalf of the widow who was about taking out administration.

Mr. A. O'Callaghan, son of deceased, having given evidence.

Mr. Hodnett said there was a rule which enabled the court to grant the ad interim transfer in the absence of Probate.

There being no objection, the application was granted.

Mr. T. K. Keane, solicitor, made a similar application on behalf of Mrs. Mary Collins, Knockanore, widow of the late Daniel Collins.

The will being produced and there being no objection by the Guards, the application was granted, subject to the production of the license.

Larceny of Timber.

Thomas and William Curtin, Currahaha, brothers, were charged with the larceny of a tree, the property of Mr. Braddell, Theriac.

Supt. Fleming, Fermoy, presided. The defendants were not legally represented.

Serjt. Mullany, Comna, deposed that in consequence of a complaint he visited and examined the wood and found four trees cut down, including 20 oak, one of the oak trees had been removed. He saw car tracks leading from the wood towards Curtin's, but lost the track near the house. That was on the 29th May. On the 30th he searched the house under a warrant and found 7 parts of an oak tree lying outside the haggard. Mrs. Curtin, the owner of the farm, denied all knowledge of the matter. William then came along. Witness told him he was making investigation into the larceny of the tree. Having been cautioned, defendant made a statement to the effect that the place was marked out, but he was not sure if it was his. Mr. Braddell never stopped them from taking timber. He thought he had authority to take a stick. Witness said the other brother also admitted taking the timber.

The Superintendent said the Curtin's were formerly tenants of Mr. Braddell. When the Curtin's raised the question of title or right he decided to bring Mr. Braddell to the court.

To the Court, witness said that Curtin's land adjoined that part of his wood. Nearly all the timber had been cut down. There was a small boundary ditch, 3 ft. high with gap broken down between. The tree was growing near the ditch. The fences were in bad repair.

Justice—It is neglected?

Witness—It appears to be neglected.

Michael Capliss, ranger, deposed that on the 20th May he found four trees cut down and lying there. He kept the place under observation for a week. Then he went to Fermoy and on his return he found that one of the trees had been removed. He accompanied the sergeant to Curtin's and saw a tree very like the one cut down. It was value for about 10s. The other trees were there still. He had given nobody permission to cut the trees down. He was in charge of the wood for 37 or 38 years. Mr. Braddell intended to replant the place when it was fit.

Justice—Is there any truth in the statement that they were allowed to take timber? Oh, no, not that I am aware of.

Mr. Braddell deposed that he had a good deal of property there some years ago, but he sold to the tenants under the 1923 Act, reserving the growing timber. Curtin's land surrounds the wood. He recollected seeing two crops of trees cut off it and he intended to plant again when the ground was fit. He gave nobody permission to take that timber. If any of his tenants asked for timber he would give it, but he would not like it to be taken without his permission.

To the Justice—They could not be under the delusion that they had a right except they invented it. There was a patch called the "Decoy," which he had given them the use of, but that was a different matter altogether.

The defendants, on being questioned, said they thought they had a right to take the timber, but they promised not to interfere again.

The Justice said he intended investigating all cases where people genuinely believed that they had some kind of right or claim, but the story in the present case was a kind of lame excuse. The defendants got their place under the 1923 Act, and also got the use of a part of the wood called the "Decoy." Not satisfied with that they spread to the rest of the wood. That was an indefensible position, but as they had given up that attitude he would give them a chance.

The Superintendent said that Mr. Braddell's only object was to put a stop to the stealing of the timber.

The Justice said in the circumstances he would let them off with a warning, which others would do well to take a note of.

The Superintendent applied for expenses. Mr. Braddell had to come from Thurles.

The Justice said he would give no expenses. He was afraid that class of case would have to be brought at the public expense.

IRISH HIERARCHY.

THE PERSECUTION OF CATHOLICS IN MEXICO.

At a meeting of the Irish Hierarchy held at Maynooth College the following statements were subsequently issued:

"In a general meeting assembled, we, the Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland, a nation which, having in its own day, passed through an ordeal of persecution, has learned how to sympathize with the unfortunate—desire to convey to our Episcopal brethren and their flocks in unhappy Mexico the expression of our profound sympathy in sufferings which should shock the world's sense of justice, and, in order, through the intercession of the Queen of Heaven, to secure for them the grace of fortitude in their hour of trial and of speedy release from hated oppression, we direct that the Litany of the Blessed Virgin be recited after the principal public Masses on Sundays and Holydays until the approaching festival of the Assumption of Our Lady—August 15th.

CATHOLIC PUBLICATIONS.

The Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland, impressed with the necessity of the widespread circulation of Catholic publications, but particularly publications catering for popular needs, urge upon the faithful to support Catholic magazines, periodicals and newspapers, by taking one or more of them into their homes weekly. The regular reading of these Catholic publications cannot but have a wholesome effect on family life and eventually on the life of the entire nation."
