WEST WATERFORD HURLING FINALS.

The Junior and Senior Hurling Championships of West Waterford were decided on Sunday last at the Gaelic Field before a fair crowd of spectators. Owing to the weather conditions the play in both matches was poor as the field was very greasy and slips and falls were frequent. Mr. W. Walsh, Waterford, had charge of the whistle for both matches, and gave general satisfaction.

FOUR-MILE-WATER v. TALLOW.

The above teams met for the junior final. It will be remembered that at Ballymacabry some weeks ago the teams met when Tallow won by a small margin. Owing to some irregularities in the Tallow side the match was ordered to be replayed by the Co. Board. For the first half the match was evenly contested, but Four-Mile-Water who were a much heavier combination forced ahead, and towards the close had matters well in hand. The Tallow Juniors fought on gamely, but their forward division could not get through the defence. The final score was: Four-Mile-Water—4 goals 2 points. Tallow—4 points.

SENIOR HURLING.

Dungarvan played towards the road goal and had the best of the opening exchanges, and bringing play down to their opponents' territory, kept up a strong offensive to which the Tallow backs replied with a strong defence and cleared, the ball being transferred to the other end, where another clearance was effected. Both sides were visited in quick succession for some time when Dungarvan opened the scoring with a good goal. At this stage rain began to fall in torrents, which sent the spectators rushing to both stands for shelter. Play, however, was continued, but any attempt at good hurling was out of the question, as the players were not able to either hold on their feet or hold their hurleys. Dungarvan before the half-time whistle scored another goal and a point, leaving the scores at half-time: Dungarvan—2 goal 1 point. Tallow—Nil.

In the second half Tallow played with more determination, while Dungarvan fell away badly. Excitement ran high as Tallow gradually reduced the Dungarvan lead, and at ten minutes to go the score stood at 2 goals 1 point each. Before the final whistle sounded Tallow had added another goal and point, which left them comfortable winners on the score: Tallow—3 goals 2 points. Dungarvan—2 goals 1 point.

Kilmacthomas News.

DEATH OF MISS BRIGID O'DONNELL, NEWTOWN. We very much regret to record the death, which took place on Monday last at Newtown, Kilmacthomas, of Miss Brigid O'Donnell, after a protracted illness. The passing of this good lady, who was sister to Very Rev. John O'Donnell, P.P., and Mr. Ed. O'Donnell, Boherawilling, Cappoquin, is acutely mourned by a large circle of friends, to whom her estimable traits of character had warmly endeared her. The funeral to Modeligo Parish Church on Tuesday afternoon was of immense proportions, and afforded striking testimony of the widespread respect and esteem entertained for this worthy member of one of the oldest-established and best-connected families in the Diocese. Solemn Requiem Office and High Mass was offered up for the repose of her soul on Wednesday morning, after which the interment took place in the family burial ground adjoining the church. We respectfully offer our deepest sympathy to Fr. O'Donnell in his bereavement. R.I.P.

KILL DANCE. The great annual dance, under the auspices of the Kill Social Club, will come off in Mr. Pat Cummins' fine hall—positioned in the centre of the picturesque village—on to-morrow (Sunday) night, and promises to eclipse all like functions previously held there. Music will be supplied by the now famous Vaudette Dance Band, Waterford (directed by Mr. Liam Walsh, whose name is a household word in Irish musical circles). The gentlemen of the promoting committee are—Messrs. N. Fitzgerald, Co.C., president; T. Walsh, P.C.; Jas. Power, John Power, T. Hayes, P. Cummins, P. Hayes, P. Mullins, D. O'Sullivan, J. J. Cooney, Joe Kennedy, J. J. Walsh, A. Kirwan, J. Farrell, J. Ryan and E. Drew.

COURSING.

We are reliably informed that the Dunhill Annual Coursing meeting will be held on December 18th next, and that the grounds are being specially prepared for the important feature. It will be run under the I.N.C.G. Rules. Full details of the programme will be inserted in our advertisement columns in due course.

KILMACTHOMAS DEAD AND LIVE WEIGHT PIG MARKET.

The weekly pig market held here on Wednesday was largely supplied. Previous values were maintained for bacon pigs, but sows were slightly cheaper. The buyers in attendance included Mr. Edward Hill (buying for Messrs. H. Denny and Sons); Mr. Pk. Coffey (agent for Waterford Dressed Meat Factory), and Messrs. Cunningham and Grant. As usual brisk business was the order of the market, and full values were fetched by all vendors. Patrons from outlying districts—Rathgormack, Kilbrien, Garrahanba, Fenor, Ballyduff, Portlaw, etc.—will kindly note that the market generally closes at 1 o'clock p.m.

G.A.A.

At Waterford Sportsfield on Sunday the Junior Football XV. of Fenor and Gaultier met in the pen-ultimate of the current year's county championship. Rain fell heavily during the progress of the game, and as a consequence the sodden sward and greasy ball effected an ill impression on the standard of the exhibition from end to end. A stubbornly-staged set-terminated in Fenor's favour by a substantial score. The attendance was small. The winners will next meet Dungarvan in the final. An Eastern win out is confidently anticipated in the Fenorian camp.

LISMORE NOTES.

LISMORE BRANCH OF CATHOLIC TRUTH SOCIETY.

At the annual meeting of the above branch held the following officers and committee were elected for the coming year—President, Rev. Jas. Walsh, C.C.; Miss E. O'Donnell, hon. treasurer; Mr. E. A. Murphy, P.C., hon. sec. Committee—Mrs. E. O'Connor, Mrs. M. O'Donnell, Miss J. O'Donnell and Miss Harding; Messrs. T. O'Donoghue, John Crotty and Neal Deargha. A general discussion regarding the working of the branch during the year took place, and each member appeared most enthusiastic in the laudable work about to be performed. The objects of the Society are already well known, and the Lismore public will, we are sure, conform to the rules of the Society and set an example worthy of imitation by other parishes in the diocese.

PIG MARKET.

Fat pigs were 48s. per cwt. at Lismore live weight market this week, which was 2s. per cwt. less than last week's price.

DEATH OF MISS JOHANNA JOHNSON, CAPPOQUIN.

A splendid type of a patriotic Irishwoman passed away on Sunday last at the Cottage Hospital, Dungarvan, in the person of Miss Johanna Johnson, Cappoquin. She was prominently identified with every phase of the fight for Irish freedom for the past half century. When quite young she went to Australia 50 years ago and joined the Gaelic Society of Melbourne, then led by Sir Chas. Gavan Duffy. There she made the acquaintance of the sons of the men transported to Botany Bay through their love of country, and she became imbued with strong ideas of Irish nationality. Returning to her native Cappoquin over 30 years ago, she was in touch with Arthur Griffith, Wm. Rooney and the other leaders. She was elected a member of the first National Council of Sinn Fein in 1905. A generous subscriber to the National movement, she was a loyal admirer of P. H. Pearse and the other patriots who led the rising in 1916. She was also closely associated with Cathal Brugha and General Mulcahy and all the chiefs in the fight that led to the Treaty. After she was a loyal, staunch supporter of the Free State Government, but she always cherished the hope of seeing a free and independent Ireland, and co-operated in every movement to combat Imperialism in this country.

In private life she was a most endearing lady, respected by all, and entertained no animosity towards anyone. Upright, honourable and sincere, her loss is deeply deplored. R.I.P.

On Monday evening the remains were removed to Cappoquin, the cortege being a very imposing one. The tricolour was wrapped round the coffin. Four Civic Guards acted as pall-bearers, while other members of the Force formed a Guard of Honour.

On Tuesday there was Requiem Office and High Mass for the repose of her soul. The celebrant was Rev. J. Crotty, C.C. The other clergy present were—Very Rev. Canon Whelan, P.P.; Very Rev. Canon Burke, P.P., Lismore; Rev. J. Walsh, C.C., do.; Rev. T. O'Gorman, C.C., do.; Rev. P. Meskill, C.C., Clonmel; Rev. L. Egan, C.C., Dungarvan.

Immediately after the funeral took place to Dromtoe. There was a huge assembly present, drawn from all parts of the county. The coffin was again draped in the tricolour, while over 30 Guards under Supt. O'Connor, marched behind the bier. The chief mourners were—Mrs. Mulcahy, Monalour; Joe Mulcahy, do.; Miss T. Cady, P. Cady, P. Mulcahy, Cappoquin; Mr. L. Hackett, do.; T. Scanlan, Salterbridge; Mr. L. and Mrs. Scanlan, J. and Mrs. Heelan, J. Prendergast, Toor; Miss Lee, etc. The attendance of the general public was abnormally large. Telegrams of sympathy were received from General Mulcahy, Minister L.G.; Dr. White, T.D.; Mr. Dee, ex-T.D. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr. E. Fraher.

DEATH OF MR. C. NUGENT HUBLEE, CLONCOSCRINE, DUNGARVAN.

The news of the death of Mr. Charles Nugent Humble, D.L., Cloncoscrine, in Dublin last Friday afternoon created a shock in his native district and county, where he was for long so prominent a figure. Up to the previous week he had been around attending to the business of his estate apparently in his usual health, when he went to a private hospital in Dublin for treatment, and his death followed with such tragic suddenness that few could realise he was no more. On all sides expressions of deep regret were heard at his demise.

Son of the late Sir Nugent Humble, Bart., who was in the days now far off an outstanding figure socially and politically and who worked so hard to secure the return of Henry Matthews, K.C., afterwards Lord Llanduff, to Parliament in the famous election of '67, when he defeated Mr. Barry, Solicitor-General, the deceased gentleman was born 72 years ago, and having completed his education, he was crowned with a University Degree in Engineering, he took over at an early age the management of the Cloncoscrine Estate, which is so ideally and charmingly situated on a rising slope between the mountains and the sea. A practical farmer and a keen man of business, he brought to the discharge of his duties a broad mind and a sound judgment. A large and generous employer of labour, his employees were ever proud and ready to give him of their best, and he in return treated them with the utmost kindness and generosity. Some thirty years ago he kept at one time 145 milch cows. The milk was separated and the cream churned at Lacken, where a magnificent dairy of the most up-to-date kind was in full swing. He also kept a pure-bred dairy herd, and in that department he bred some very high-class stock. With the change in the times he sold out the dairy herd, and for the past 20 years he made a speciality of fat and store cattle, which he shipped in big numbers to the cross-Channel markets. He invariably carried on the estate from 600 to 800 bullocks—2½ to 3½ years old, and as he purchased stores without exception at the Dungarvan and Kilmacthomas Fairs from the local farmers, his loss will be much felt by those with whom he was wont to deal. He was a sound, practical man from every point of view, who farmed in a scientific manner, always keeping in touch with modern methods.

He was a great lover of nature, and those who knew the Cloncoscrine Estate will readily admit that from the scenic point of view it was an ideal spot. He loved trees, forest and garden, and he had at one time planted another in its place. For that he had his reward in the music of the birds as they sang late and early in the groves of Cloncoscrine and in the charm of the panorama that unfolded itself from wherever you stood in the neighbourhood. A fluent Irish speaker he invariably conversed with the old stock of neighbours in the native tongue, and with a literary finish which moderns will not acquire for many a day. He was an authority on local folklore as well as on the fauna and flora of his country.

He was a great sportsman. A born lover of horses, he was a keen follower of the Waterford Hunt in his young days, though he had not the reputation for daring of his brothers, Robert and George (deceased), who were granted to be the best horsemen in the land. For a long number of years he was Master of the Waterford Hounds and kept a splendid pack at Cloncoscrine. Under his Mastership the finest sport was had, and many and great were the runs he had on his famous hounds—the Colleen Road—reputed to be one of the best mares ever saddled. He also hunted the Tipperary Pack for a few seasons. In addition he was a patron of the turf, and his colours were often carried to victory in the days now no more. A keen judge of horse-flesh, his services were much sought after by the Jockeys' Committee, and in his capacity as Judge he always gave perfect satisfaction. He is gone and the country is the poorer by his loss.

He was a Deputy Sheriff for the county and an ex-High Sheriff. As Justice of the Peace he was a regular magistrate at the local Petty Sessions Court, where he administered justice with an even hand tempered with mercy. Taken for all in all he was a splendid type of the old landed gentry now nearly extinguished, who acted his part honourably and well towards all men. A good friend and a kind neighbour, he occupied a high place in the esteem of all who knew him and he was ever ready to alleviate any case of distress or hardship brought to his notice. To his sisters—Mrs. Odell and Miss Nugent Humble—and the other members of his family deep sympathy is extended in their bereavement.

On Monday the remains were brought by motor from Dublin and reached Dungarvan Church after 2 p.m., where the coffin was laid over night. There was a large attendance of mourners present, especially from the surrounding districts. On Tuesday at noon there was a special service at the church at which the following clergy attended—Very Rev. Dean Mayers, Waterford; Very Rev. Canon Staunton, Tramore; Very Rev. Archdeacon Burkill, Cappoquin; Rev. J. Going, Dungarvan, and Rev. Bruce Little, Lismore. Subsequently the funeral took place to Abbeystide, where the remains were laid in the family vault in the ancient ruins there.

Amongst those present were—Mrs. Odell and Miss Nugent Humble (sisters); Lady Musgrave, Major Gahin, Major Perry, Woodroff; Mr. Gair, Castlemary; Arthur Hunt, A. Carroll, solr.; S. J. Power, Afane; B. G. Usher, Dr. J. C. Hackett, Mrs. Furlong, Ballinaparks; G. St. G. Williams, J. H. O'Sullivan, Secretary County Council; J. Bowen, B.E.; T. C. Williams, solr.; Thos. Flynn, Coolesour; N. Draper, Fitzgerald Bros., Waterford; C. E. Sibley, C. T. Martin, J. B. Cooke, W. S. Miller, Col. J. M. F. Shine, C.B.; J. A. Cartwright, Thos. Draper, Ml. Flynn, Mrs. Gough Dower, O.B.E.; John Wall, E. Casey, J. J. Crotty, P. J. Moloney, J. D. Palmer, W. Stack, J. Higgins, Mr. Nicholson, West Park, etc., etc. Miss Joan Nugent (daughter of Sir John Nugent, Bart.) very regretting her inability to be present, being absent in France.

The following floral tributes were laid on the coffin—"In deep sorrow for my dear brother Charlie, from Mrs. Odell"; "In great grief, from his sister Fanny"; "In affectionate remembrance, from Sir John and Lady Nugent and Miss Joan Nugent"; "For dear Uncle Charlie, with deep regret, from Nora"; "Mrs. Gerald Nugent"; "With deep sympathy, from Lady Susan Downey"; "With sympathy and regret, from Mrs. Anderson and Miss Anderson, Graedieu"; "To Charlie with love and regret, from Mrs. J. DEATH OF MR. MICHAEL LENNON, LISNAGERAH, BONMAHON.

The death occurred on Monday last of Mr. Michael Lennon, Lisnagerah, Bonmahon. The deceased gentleman had been in failing health for some time past, and endured his last illness with true Christian fortitude. His end came calmly and peacefully, fortified by the final consoling ministrations of holy religion. An exemplary Irish Catholic, an extensive and practical farmer, and a good neighbour, the closing of his earthly career in his 77th year has caused the deepest regret on all sides. He was brother to Very Rev. John Lennon, P.P., Stradbally, and to Mr. Wm. Lennon, Lisnagerah.

On Tuesday evening all that was mortal of the late Mr. Lennon was removed from Lisnagerah to St. Anne's Church at Ballylennan, and was followed by an imposing public procession, representative of all classes. The remains were received at the church by Very Rev. John Lennon, P.P.; Rev. Wm. Burke, C.C., Stradbally; Rev. T. O'Shea, C.C., do., and Rev. Michael Dowley, C.C., Kill.

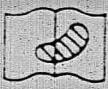

At 9.30 a.m. on Wednesday there was Solemn Requiem Office and High Mass for the eternal welfare of his soul. The celebrant was Rev. W. Burke, C.C., Stradbally deacon, Rev. M. SHEEP BREEDING SCHEME. PURE LINE OATS. WHERE IT CAN BE HAD. FRUIT AND FOREST TREES.

Mr. Thomas Flynn, V.C., presided. Also present—Messrs. M. F. Walsh, P. B. Sheridan, M. Brennock, C. J. Curran, P. Mulcahy, John Curran and D. Heskin. Messrs. John O'Dwyer (secretary), P. O'Keefe (A.I.), and P. O'Shea (H.I.) were in attendance.

Border Leicester Sheep Scheme. In connection with the above the Department wrote in reply to the committee's previous resolution that for the reasons set forth in their previous letter they did not approve of the Border Leicester scheme proposed by the committee.

The Secretary explained that that referred to the Border Leicester scheme for the year 1928-29, but had nothing to do with the same scheme for next year for which they had allocated funds at the last meeting.

Mr. Brennock—There is no regard evidently to be paid to the lowland sheep. They think we have nothing in this county but horn sheep.

Chairman—Have they such a scheme in any other county?

Mr. O'Keefe—They have in the Six Counties, but not in the Free State.

Mr. Heskin—It is very unfair of the Department to turn down the Border Leicester Scheme.

Mr. Brennock—The principal sheep are the lowland sheep.

Chairman—It is too bad to be turning down a progressive scheme.

Mr. Brennock—This scheme was adopted last April by the committee.

Mr. Walsh—And it was adopted at our last meeting as well.

Mr. Brennock—The excuse they offered was that there was no sale to purchase rams, while there were plenty available both in Leinster and the North.

Chairman—Does this mean it will be turned down for the coming year?

Secretary—No.

Mr. Brennock—I hold this scheme is of vastly more importance than that for the black-faced sheep.

Mr. Heskin—And every day of the week the Department asks us to improve our stock.

Mr. Curran—Is there any reply to Mr. Brennock's resolution that the scheme be revived?

Mr. Brennock—It is there refusing to adopt the scheme for this season.

The committee decided to ask the Department to sanction the Border Leicester Scheme for 1929 as the money was already allocated for it.

Mr. Brennock—The mountain sheep are all right to improve them, but they are only a feebly in importance with the other. The black-faced rams they sent to the county this year were better than anything that have yet come.

Returns of Crops. The Department wrote re County Agricultural Instructors furnishing a return of the produce of crops in the county.

The committee approved of the suggestion.

Mr. C. J. Curran—In that return will you give a return of this year's beet crop?

Mr. O'Keefe said he would. He would work it out and strike an average.

Mr. Curran—Would it not be better to take the returns as they come from Carlow?

Mr. Brennock—Regarding all the other crops, you make an average?

Mr. O'Keefe—Yes.

Mr. Sheridan—What about pure line oats? Is there much of it in the county? There is a great demand for white oats, and if better cleaned merchants would give a better price for them.

Chairman—Farmers will only get 1s. a barrel for it when better cleaned.

Mr. Sheridan—If properly cleaned it would be a benefit to everyone concerned.

Chairman—Are not the merchants giving the same price for machine threshed as for engine threshed oats?

Mr. Heskin—Yes.

Mr. C. J. Curran—The fact that white oats is 2s. per barrel over black oats should be sufficient inducement to the farmers to grow white oats.

merchants have been standing aloof and they would not touch that scheme in this county, and they say they know nothing about it. Every grower who has it will say this is out on its own.

Mr. C. J. Curran—I planted Victory II this year, and Mr. Christopher told me if properly cleaned and properly done he would give me an extra price for it for seed. I sent it to him and he tells me it was very good oats and he is keeuing it for seed. He kept my oats last year for seed also. I think he is looking for that sort of oats for his customers.

Mr. Sheridan—Moloneys and the Shandon Dairy are also doing it.

Chairman—You will only get 4s. a barrel over the market price for that?

Mr. Curran—I am getting more.

Mr. O'Keefe said there was black oats sown in this county, and it was a mistake to call it black oats. It is magpie oats. It was not more than 5 per cent. black tary.

Mr. C. J. Curran—If we grow imported seed we do not get the best return the first year. How long does it hold? If we have to buy new seed every year it would not pay.

Mr. O'Keefe—I don't believe in the importation of seed oats.

Mr. Curran—I am talking about our own breeding, and how does it work out in a year or two?

Mr. O'Keefe—Pure line oats sown five years ago is perfectly good yet. If reasonable care were taken in keeping the seed oats clean there was no reason why the stock of oats introduced should not remain perfect for an indefinite number of years.

Mr. C. J. Curran—I know black oats after a few years is brown and it is certainly deteriorated in appearance and quality.

Mr. Heskin—It is often advisable to change your seed from one place to another.

Mr. O'Keefe—Yes. One field will give you a bright sample, and another field on the same farm will not give you a bright colour. The most perfect strains of black tary are brown rather than black.

Chairman—Are not you putting farmers in touch with those who have the pure line oats?

Mr. O'Keefe—Yes. The committee then requested Mr. O'Keefe to draw up a report showing where the pure line oats was to be had in the county.

Winter Classes. In connection with a communication from the Department re the Agricultural Instructor delivering lectures at various centres during the coming season.

Mr. O'Keefe said his idea was to hold one winter class either at Knockmore or at Kilmacthomas and to devote the remainder of the time to lectures.

He said there was considerable anxiety for lectures in various parts of the county and with classes that could not be done. The question was whether the classes should not be suspended this year and have lectures all over the county.

Mr. Walsh—Are there many attending those classes?

Mr. O'Keefe—At some centres. The last two winters west of the Blackwater I had two very satisfactory classes, and the previous year I had a very satisfactory class at Modeligo.

Chairman—If you could manage with one class and have the rest of the week for lectures it would be a better arrangement.

Mr. O'Keefe—I think I would get a good class in Kilmacthomas area.

The committee approved of having an Agricultural Class at Kilmacthomas and have the rest of the week devoted to lectures up and down the county.

Wheat Experiments. Arising out of a circular from the Department re small scale wheat variety experiments, Mr. C. J. Curran said a good deal of wheat sown last November rotted in the wet weather.

Mr. O'Keefe—You can't expect to grow wheat sown in December as the County Waterford farmers sow it. Wheat sown before 20th November was a good crop even last year. Bad as the winter was none of the wheat sown in November failed, but any sown in late December or January was a failure.

Mr. Heskin—Would wheat grow well after beet?

Mr. O'Keefe—I have seen some good crops of it after beet, and it was sown in late January. In addition there are a large number of thatched houses in the county, and it would pay the people to grow wheat. Men spend a lot of money thatching their houses with oaten straw and it wears away quickly.

Chairman—Is there any difficulty in selling the wheat afterwards?

Mr. O'Keefe—There is a bit of a slump this year. A man who had five acres of wheat this year said he was offered 25s. a barrel for it.

Chairman—It would pay him all right at that.

Mr. C. J. Curran—What was his return? Mr. O'Keefe—About 8 barrels per acre.

Poultry Station Holder. Mrs. O'Meara, Kildroughane, Carrick-on-Suir, wrote stating she would be very thankful if the committee would give her a grant for the erection of a poultry house as she had a station for a long number of years. The house she needed would cost £20. She never got a grant before. She trusted she would get a grant before any new station holder.

Secretary—Mrs. O'Meara is a station holder since the start of the Poultry Scheme, and when an application from her for a grant was before the committee the Inspector said the policy should be to encourage new station holders.

In connection with the application of Mrs. O'Meara, Miss Mullins, Poultry Instructor, wrote as follows:—"I am informed by Mrs. O'Meara, Kildroughane, that you have received from her an application for a grant for a poultry house for season 1928-29. That station in season 1927-28 was approved by me and passed by the Department on condition that suitable housing would be installed for the number of birds kept. Sixty birds are kept at the station and the housing accommodation is just sufficient for 36. After repeated visits and pressure to have suitable housing provided no effort was made by the station holder to fulfil the requirements of the scheme in the matter."

Mr. C. J. Curran—I suggest that you send a copy of Miss Mullins' letter to Mr. Godfrey Greene.

The committee made the following order:—"That unless Mrs. O'Meara complies with the instructions of the Poultry Instructor the committee will cancel her station."

Fruit and Forest Trees. Tenders for the supply of fruit trees for the coming season were received from Messrs. Galvin Bros. Nurseries, Wexford; Wm. Power and Co., Waterford; and Watson's, Killiney Nurseries, Dublin.

For Forest Trees—Tenders were received from Messrs. Galvin Bros., Watson's, Wm. Power and Co., and Michl. Lyons, Ballyduff Nurseries.

For fruit trees Messrs. Galvin Bros. were the cheapest in price, but Mr. O'Shea, Horticultural Instructor, said Watson's, of Killiney, were the best value.

Messrs. Watson's tender was accepted by the committee.

For forest trees Mr. Lyons, Ballyduff, was the cheapest.

Mr. O'Shea said Mr. Lyons was very convenient and had very good stuff, which he cares very well.

Chairman—Is it the best?

Mr. Brennock—And he is the oldest nursery man in the County Waterford.

Mr. Heskin said Lyons was better than the others. His nursery was approved by the Department, and he should get a chance.

The tender of Mr. Lyons was accepted for forest trees, and that of Galvin Bros. for ornamental trees and shrubs.

Potato Prize Scheme. Mr. O'Keefe submitted a scheme of prizes for potatoes for export with a view to encouraging the industry.

The varieties to be grown are:—Arran Consul, Up-to-Date, Majestic and King Edwards. One acre of each to be grown. The prizes are:—£8 (1st), £5 (2nd), £4 (3rd), and £3 (4th).

A special prize of £5 will be given for the best statute acre of the King Edward Variety.

Mr. Curran—How did the King Edward Variety do this year?

Mr. O'Keefe—Reasonably well.

Boars. Applications for premium boars for 1929 were received from John Walsh, Jonestown, Carrick-on-Suir; John Roche, Moidiha, Carrick-on-Suir; and Patk. Dalton, Killooney, Ballinamult. The applications were approved.

REGATTA INCIDENT.

At a special court held at the Youghal Cottage Hospital (before Mr. M. J. O'Dwyer, Acting D.J.), Michael Hartly, Monátra, was brought up on remand charged with causing actual bodily harm to Declan Lynch on the 15th of August after the regatta at Pillown.

The injured man has since been confined to bed and the doctor would not certify his life out of danger. He was unable to sign the deposition made.

Supt. O'Shea, Dungarvan, prosecuted, and Mr. T. K. Keane, solicitor, Youghal, appeared for the accused.

The following deposition was made by the injured man:—"I have heard the deposition made by me on the 17th August last before Mr. P. J. O'Gorman, P.C., read. It is all true with the exception of what is stated of my being struck on the forehead by the defendant, Michael Hartly, but I was struck by him on the back of the neck. I have also heard the deposition read made by me before Mr. Farrell, D.J., on the 24th August. It is true."

Cross-examined by Mr. T. K. Keane—"I don't know how I got the mark on the forehead."

The accused was remanded on continuing bail to next District Court.

WELL-KNOWN IRISH SCHOLAR'S APPOINTMENT.

Mr. Liam De Lasa, Professor at the Christian Brothers' Schools, Kilkenny, has been appointed a Professor at one of the Free State Preparatory Colleges. Mr. De Lasa is well known in Ring district. Co. Waterford, and in Limerick, Cork and Dublin, where he has conducted summer courses in Irish and mathematics. He is a brilliant linguist and mathematician, and his appointment has given much satisfaction.

DUNGARVAN URBAN COUNCIL.

The weekly meeting of the above was held on Friday. Mr. M. Brennock, chairman, presided. Also present—Messrs. J. Moloney, M. Clancy, J. Hackett, T. McCarthy, T. Power and J. Curran.

Finance. The general account for the week amounted to £14 7s. 8d. The grant account amounted to £51 15s. 1d. Payments were passed.

Main Street. A letter was read from Messrs. Mce. Flynn, Main street, calling the attention of the board to the bad state of the channel opposite their premises.

Mr. Curran—There are two rails there and I suggest that you should block pave the channel; it would make a satisfactory job.

Chairman—We all know that the Main street is a public scandal. Block paving is very expensive.

Mr. Curran—It must be done. Borough Surveyor—You must write away for the blocks. I will attend to the matter.

Mr. Curran—Do it well.

Mr. Hackett—The Main street is a scandal; something must be done to it.

Borough Surveyor—Recently Mr. Bowen quoted a price for doing the Main street in tar macadam, and if the Main street were done that way it would be waste putting down channels as they would be covered. I believe the doing of the Main street in tar macadam is still in the air.

Mr. Moloney—Very much in the air.

Mr. Clancy—I oppose block paving; it is too expensive, and I agree with the Borough Surveyor that the money would be wasted if the whole Main street were done. I believe we should make an effort to get money for the work from the Road Board Fund. I think we are entitled to it.

Chairman—If something is not done to the Main street it will place the council in a bad state.

Mr. Clancy—I would also ask the council to put out no more stones without rolling them.

Borough Surveyor—I will get the channel repaired.

Abbeyside. Mr. Power—What about the stones for the road to Abbeyside Chapel?

Chairman—There are tenders for stones here to-night.

Tenders. Tenders were received for the supplying and carting of stones. The tender of Michael Condon to supply and cart the stones at 3s. per cubic yard was considered the lowest and was accepted.

Payment. Mr. J. Croty wrote to the council asking for a cheque on account of his bill. Some of the money is due since the Quay work. He also stated that he had not received the empty cement bags due to him.

Borough Surveyor—I was speaking to Mr. Croty during the week and I told him I would let him have the bags in a few days as I had not time to look after them.

Clerk—I intended asking the board to allow me to pay something on account of the outstanding bills to-night. There has been no material paid for up to the present.

Mr. Curran—Why? Clerk—We had no money.

Mr. Curran—You have it now.

Clerk—Yes, but if I pay it all out there will be nothing left. I will apply for another instalment of the loan.

Chairman—You have £200 now.

Clerk—I have something over £200 after to-night's payments.

The Clerk was instructed to appropriate the money and make an application for a further instalment.

Auditor. A letter from the L.G.B. advised the board that the auditor would be down to audit the books.

Broken Stand Pipe. S.S.O. Walsh reported that on the fair day Mr. Owen's backed his motor car into the stand pipe used for washing the street and broke it. The cost to replace the stand pipe would be about 60s., and he would suggest that Mr. Owen's be written to for that amount.

The report was approved of.

Light at Abbeyside. Mr. Power raised the question of the proposed light at King street, Abbeyside.

The Borough Surveyor was instructed to visit the place and see if the present light could be adjusted to meet requirements.

Light on Square Not to be Removed. In connection with discussion which arose at the last meeting and the suggestion to remove one of the lights, the Chairman stated that several people on the Square had come to him and asked him to convey to the meeting that on no account should this light be removed.

The S.S.O. was instructed to get the light on immediately.

Condolence. Resolutions of sympathy were passed with the relatives of the late Mr. Mce. Wall, O'Connell street, with the relatives of the late Mr. Thomas Barron, Ballinecta, and with the relatives of the late Mr. Charles Nugent Humble.

LISMORE CASE AT YOUGHAL.

INCOME TAX COLLECTOR RETURNED FOR TRIAL.

At the conclusion of the civil business at Youghal District Court (before Mr. M. J. O'Dwyer, acting D.J.) a young man named John O'Daly, Lisimore, was brought up in custody charged with embezzling the sum of £102 11s. 6d., the property of the Revenue Commissioners.

Mr. E. A. Ryan, State Solicitor, Dungarvan, prosecuted.

The accused said his solicitor, Mr. Carroll, was not there that day. He had no objection to the case being gone on with.

Mr. Ryan said the accused was charged with that on dates between 1 2 27 and 22 5 28, while in the employment of the Revenue Commissioners, he fraudulently embezzled the sum of £102 11s. 6d., received by him for the said Revenue Commissioners; also with that between the same dates made false entries in his cash books. It was in defendant's own interest that the case was brought before that court with the object of having him brought to trial at next Circuit Court; otherwise he might have to be kept in custody for four months.

Mr. T. Donovan, Inspector of Income Tax, No. 2 Cork District, opposed that Lisimore district was within his area. He knew the defendant, John O'Daly. He was appointed collector of income tax for Lisimore district in January, 1926, and his appointment terminated in May, 1928, when his resignation was accepted. His total remuneration from January, 1926, to April 30th, 1928, was £770 15s. 3d. It was part of his duty to supervise and check defendant's accounts, and he examined the books periodically. As a result of one examination he had reason to conclude that his books were not correct. He produced a cash book for one year, Schedules D and E, tax for the years 1925-26 marked "A," and also produced another cash book marked "B" for 1925-26 for Schedules A and B, tax. He also produced another cash book for year 1926-27, D, and E, tax marked "C," and cash book for same year marked "D" for A and B, tax; also he produced cash book for 1927-28, marked "E" for tax D, and E, and cash book for same year marked "F" for tax A and B. All those were in defendant's custody and kept by him. All cash received by him should have been entered daily in those cash books. He produced a copy of the collector's instructions, which to his personal knowledge was issued to and received by defendant. Paragraph 70 of which gave explicit instructions as to how defendant should deal with all monies received. As a result of examination of those cash books witness found that defendant was short in his cash £102 11s. 6d. As regards the several items making up that sum there were false entries in the books in some instances and no entries in others. There was in the Lisimore district an income tax payer named Mrs. A. M. Whillock-Lloyd, of Stranacally, Castle, Tallow, Co. Waterford. He was aware that that lady paid defendant a cheque for £25 14s. 5d. during week ending 11/2/27, which should be included in his cash book for that week. The cheque was, however, lodged in the bank to the credit of the Revenue Commissioners that week. That cheque was used to cover payments in cash made by sundry taxpayers to defendant. Mrs. Lloyd did not get a receipt that week for that cheque. In the week ended 19/3/27 Mrs. Lloyd pressed for a receipt to his personal knowledge and he had direct correspondence with her. A receipt was then given to Mrs. Lloyd by the defendant, in respect of that transaction witness found that defendant had made false entries regarding it at cheque in his cash book. The Sisters of Mercy, Cappoquin, were also taxpayers in the Lisimore area. He produced a cheque signed on behalf of the Sisters of Mercy dated 14 3 27 for £17 8s. 2d., due in respect of income tax. He was aware that cheque was lodged to the credit of the Commissioners during the week ending 21 3 27. The defendant should have issued an official receipt in accordance with his instructions for that cheque, but no receipt had been issued for it at any time. Witness found on inspecting the cash book that defendant had not made an entry of the receipt of that money, and that he had used same with other cheques to cover the money he had received from Mrs. Lloyd, she being then pressing for a receipt. Witness, in the course of his duty, had several interviews with defendant and a considerable amount of correspondence and knew his handwriting. He produced the original of a letter written by defendant to witness dated 16 7 28. That letter was in reply to a letter addressed by witness to him dated 13 7 28, in which witness asked for an explanation as to his dealings with the monies received by him from Mrs. Lloyd and the Sisters of Mercy. That letter of defendant's stated:—"Re Mrs. Lloyd and Convent of Mercy. I have gone into these matters and find that you are correct. Witness handed in a copy of his letter of 13 7 28 and the original of defendant's letter of 16 7 28. The full sum of £102 11s. 6d. was still unaccounted for by defendant.

Accused said he had no questions to put Mr. Donovan at that stage.

Serjt. Rochford, Lisimore, deposed that he arrested defendant at Lisimore on the 16 4 28 in the charge of embezzlement of £102 11s. 6d., the property of the Revenue Commissioners. He gave the usual legal caution. Accused said "it was all carelessness and mistakes on my part."

Accused asked no questions.

Mr. Ryan asked to have the defendant returned for trial to the Circuit Court at Waterford on the 5th November.

Accused said he had no statement to make at that stage, but he wanted copies of the documents for his solicitor.

The Justice asked was the defendant in custody.

Mr. Ryan replied in the affirmative.

Justice—Is there any application for bail?

Mr. Ryan said he would not object to substantial bail.

Accused—I prefer to remain in custody.

Accused was therefore returned for trial in custody to next Waterford Circuit Court.

ELECTION OF FISH CONSERVATORS.

The election of six Conservators for the tidal portion of the Blackwater took place at Youghal. Mr. Tobin, Villierstown, presided, and he was assisted by Mr. T. Drohan, Inspector and Secretary. Much interest was displayed in the even the courthouse being crowded with the candidates and the fishermen. There were 12 candidates.

The following result was declared at 3 p.m.:—Wm. O'Brien, 194; Capt. P. Dunne, U.D.C., 174; Thos. Murphy, U.D.C., 169;—Baldwin, 134; J. Power, U.D.C., 133 (new); J. Kennedy, U.D.C., 129; Gervois Power, 125; T. McCarthy, 121; T. Harrington, U.D.C., 117; M. Condon, 60; J. Quaine, 49.

The Chairman declared the first six on the list duly elected.

Mr. Condon objected that the presence of some of the candidates near the Chairman and Clerk during the day constituted a species of intimidation, and he intended bringing it under the notice of the Department.

YOUGHAL URBAN COUNCIL.

Present—Messrs. J. R. Smyth, P.C., chairman; P. Kenneally, vice-chairman; Mrs. S. Hurley, J. Power, E. P. Lynch, D. J. Linehan, P. J. McMahon, P.C.; T. Beausang, D. Dennehy, Capt. P. Dunne, T. Harrington, T. Murphy and E. Clancy.

Recent Rescue.

The following letter was read:—"The Hollies, Strand, Youghal, 14/10/23. Dear Sir—I am very sorry to be compelled to contradict some of the statements made at the last meeting of the Urban District Council as reported in the 'Cork Examiner' and 'Echo' relative to my recent rescue from drowning. In order to end any dispute about the facts of the matter the following is exactly what happened:—While bathing practically opposite the Strand Palace I was carried out by a very powerful under-current and a rough sea. I called for help and both Miss Farrell and Miss Murphy, who were bathing at the same place, took up my cry. Neither of them could assist me except that Miss Farrell called to me to keep up my courage. Then Mr. Robin Atkins rushed down and entered the water with all his clothes on, swam out to me. When I was practically saved Mr. M. Aherne, junior, and Mr. Roche came to his assistance, but Roche was being washed away by the rough sea and had to get ashore himself. Were it not for Mr. Atkins' timely aid I would certainly not be writing this letter now. As I think the matter should be placed before the proper authorities, I enclose you the true facts for transmission.—Yours faithfully—A. M. O'Keefe."

Mr. Dennehy—Another chapter in the new "Comedy of Errors" (laughter).

Mr. Harrington said it seemed strange that the young lady who was nearly drowned could remember all the facts so clearly.

The Chairman said they had already dealt with the matter and they could go no further.

The matter then dropped.

The Ferry Boat.

A long discussion took place on the question of the purchase of a ferry boat for the cross-harbour traffic, and a letter was read from Mr. M. Aherne, present lessee, offering his boat for £150.

It was decided not to take any definite action for the present as the lease would not be up till next April, but the council appeared to be in favour of purchasing Mr. Aherne's boat if she could be procured at a reasonable figure, and to order a new boat later on. In the meantime the Clerk was directed to procure further particulars.

Ancient Monuments.

The following letter was read from Board of Public Works:—"We have received a report from our Inspector of Ancient Monuments regarding the monuments referred to in your letter. The Rhincrew Preceptory and St. Molana's Abbey are private property, and in the present state of the law we have no power to take over these monuments unless at the request of the owner. The Dominican Priory or North Abbey is a structure which we should be prepared to accept for preservation if formally offered to us. With regard to the town walls of Youghal, which are very extensive, our Inspector is not in a position to make a definite recommendation with regard to them until he has had an opportunity of making a detailed study of the remains. We regret therefore that for the present we are unable to say whether we would be prepared to accept guardianship of them.—J. C. Taylor for Secretary."

The Chairman said the old Abbey at Ballynatray and the Preceptory of the Knights Templars at Rhincrew were on private property and could not be interfered with without the permission of the owners. The Dominican Priory in the North Abbey Cemetery was in the hands of the Burial Board.

It was decided to lay the facts before the parties interested.

Christian Brothers' Past Pupils Social.

The Town Clerk applied on behalf of the Christian Brothers' Past Pupils for the use of the ballroom on the night of the 13th November to hold the annual Social in aid of the Brothers.

On the proposition of Mr. Harrington, seconded by Mr. Power, the application was granted on the usual conditions.

Vote of Sympathy.

Mr. McMahon proposed a vote of sympathy with their colleague, Mr. John Kenneally, on the death of his wife's mother.

Mr. Kenneally said Mr. Kenneally was an old and respected member of the council.

The Chairman said that Mr. Kenneally had had a lot of trouble for some time, and he had the sincerest sympathy of all.

Messrs. Harrington, Dunne, the Town Clerk and others having associated themselves with the proposition, it was passed.

Work of Staff.

The Town Superintendent submitted a report of the work done by the staff during the week.

Chairman—That shows they are paying some attention to many things. Mr. Clancy—The staff are apparently kept very busy.

Chairman—We'd like to do a lot

A CATHOLIC NATION.

WHAT IT IS NOT—AND WHAT IT IS.

At the Catholic Truth Conference on Monday evening in Dublin, Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C., delivered an interesting lecture entitled: "A Catholic Nation. What it is not—and what it is."

Most Rev. Dr. MacNamee, Bishop of Ardagh, presided.

Mr. Maguire said whether or not a nation deserves to be described as a Catholic nation depends on how far it approximates or recedes from an ideal. An ideal Catholic nation would have all its citizens professing and practising the Catholic religion. Its Catholicity and its Catholic outlook would be unmistakable. It would not, perhaps, be perfect, but it would consciously aim at perfection in private, domestic, civil and social life. Its citizens would not merely acknowledge and submit to Catholic standards of morality and patriotism, but would zealously endeavour to apply these standards to all human activities, to private life, business, politics, education, literature, science, art, culture, and to its international activities and relations as well as to that sphere of its activities which might be described as domestic.

Such an ideal Catholic nation would necessarily develop great religious and missionary enterprise. It would be a centre of enlightenment, of culture, in fact a leaven in the world. Far and wide its sons and daughters would spread the light as in the past great Catholic nations have done. I doubt if under modern conditions such an ideal is realisable on earth. As an ideal it is worth striving for, but the difficulties in the way of the attainment of such an ideal to-day appear to be enormous.

Can we have a Catholic nation short of this ideal? I think it must be generally admitted that we can. Perhaps the most that could be attained in our time would be a nation, the predominant majority of whose citizens would profess the Catholic religion and would be practical in their profession of it.

It appears to me that the practical test for a rightful claim to be described as a Catholic nation lies not so much in the mere religious profession or denomination of the majority of its citizens, but rather in the measure in which in its laws and public institutions and culture, in its social and civic and ecclesiastical relations, it consciously recognises and proclaims the supremacy of Catholic principles, and, furthermore, effectually asserts those principles and makes them operative.

Judged by its ideals and the tendencies of its laws, in culture, in business, in education, by the measure in which it is making the influence of Catholic ideals felt and respected, is Ireland to-day an effectively Catholic nation? She undoubtedly answers to most of the tests of what a Catholic nation ought to be. Does she answer all the tests? Perhaps it is too soon to judge. We are at a crucial transition stage.

It is to be hoped that Ireland will awake to her opportunities and responsibilities. If Ireland is to prove herself a Catholic nation it is up to our people to form and foster a sound Catholic opinion, based on well-known and unmistakable Catholic principles, and to apply that opinion not only in our individual and domestic relations, but especially in our public life and public affairs, and at all times to assert and act up to Catholic ideals, not aggressively so, but with a firm determination to have those ideals maintained and respected.

If Ireland is to prove herself a Catholic nation she will be intolerant of the false and pernicious theories and of the unchristian standards of public morality which have poisoned modern life, and eaten into and destroyed the strength and morality of other communities. She has all the advantages of a great Catholic tradition behind her. She is rich in the inheritance of that tradition, handed down to her through centuries of noble history. Let us stand by that more, but we'll get things done by degrees.

MacCurtainstown Flooding.

The Town Clerk reported that the Chairman and he had visited MacCurtainstown in connection with the flooding complained of.

The Chairman said after abnormal rainfalls there was naturally some flooding which could not be anticipated, but if the gratings were kept clear matters would not be so bad.

Mr. Dennehy said several of the residents pointed out that the floods often came into their houses. Things were in a bad way there at times.

Mr. Power said he was a representative of the South Ward having been returned at the head of the poll, and he had never received any complaints. Mr. Dennehy said he lived in the immediate vicinity and people naturally did not wish to come in all the way to take Mr. Power from his business.

The Chairman read a letter from a resident at MacCurtainstown giving instances of the flooding after the last heavy rains. He said they would do everything possible to remedy the grievance complained of, but they could not anticipate unusually heavy downpours.

tradition. Let us not forget it is our duty in our turn to hand it down to the generations that are to come. In the desperate age-long struggle for the Faith, the character of our people has been moulded. In that same struggle our noblest national aspirations have been forged. The Irish may have been driven to the remotest corners of the globe, but they have been united always by the greatest tie on earth, the Faith that was their fathers, and devotion to the Motherland. Long may it so continue. Let our people recognise what the Church has done for Ireland, as well as what Ireland has done for the Church. Let it not be forgotten, too, that the Irish nation has been endowed with a new youth and the outlook of a young State, with all the priceless qualities of youth, its vigour, its vitality, its enterprise, and its enthusiasm. Great, indeed, is the responsibility of those to whom this crucial period of her history has been entrusted the duty of controlling and guiding the destinies of the Irish people. Splendid is the opportunity for restoring the prestige and of spreading world-wide the influence of this ancient Catholic nation.

Mr. H. Gallagher, in proposing the vote of thanks to the lecturer, said there was one aspect of the paper which he thought should be emphasised, that is the distinction between a Catholic nation and a nation of Catholics. The census returns showed that Ireland is a nation of Catholics. But have we made any sustained effort to make Ireland a Catholic nation? Were the discussions of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce different from any of their Chambers of Commerce. He thought they gave little heed to the real Catholic outlook in social life. People did not appear to have heard of the Catholic civilisation of the middle ages, which was responsible for almost anything beautiful that man had made. The task before them was to cure the evil economic effects of the so-called Reformation. In a real Catholic nation there would be a Catholic outlook on all subjects. A real Catholic nation would house its people properly because they were all brothers and God's creatures.

Rev. B. Maguire, P.P., seconding the vote of thanks, said that the Catholic Church was now 2,000 years old and only one-sixth of the people of the world were Catholics. They might think it a mathematical proposition that it would take 10,000 years more before all the world would be brought within the one fold. This would be a rash and hasty calculation, but he thought it no rash statement to say that the Church was still in its infancy. They could entertain the idea that the Church's work on the world was as yet only infinitesimal. It had taken a few million English Protestants 400 years to make the discovery that the Reformation was a mistake. How long would it take the rest of the English-speaking world to discover even the palpable truth. The Catholic Church is not a static institution, but was kinetic and always in motion. The more energy she exercises the more she stores. She does this in missions, in combating error, not aggressively, not violently, but secretly, slowly, effectively. Surely a nation to remain Catholic must imitate the Church. The ordinary man was not called upon to exercise his potential energy except in complying with the rules of the Church, but the educated man and man with the University degrees was called upon to exercise it in a higher degree. The educated and clever man, if he is to rule in the Catholic world, which he must do, must rule by entering Gethsemane voluntarily.

The Lord Bishop of Ardagh, in complimenting Mr. Maguire on his eloquent and interesting paper, said: "I still remain an optimist in regard to the Catholicity of the Irish nation. I believe that we have never really had the opportunity before of showing ourselves a Catholic nation in the fuller sense of the word. But we have now the opportunity of seeing that the State in which we live is run on Catholic lines. We have an opportunity that is unique, as the one democratic nation of Europe which holds within itself the potentiality of showing to men what a real Catholic nation will be in actuality, a nation that takes its stand upon the gospel of Christ. We have an instance at the present moment when we know that the new Bill to suppress evil literature has the support of the Catholics of Ireland. Just as 80 years ago the slogan was: "Educate that you may be free," the slogan of the Catholic Truth Society now is: "Educate that you may use your freedom aright."

BILLIARD TOURNAMENT AT YOUGHAL.

DUNGARVAN WINS THEIR MATCH.

A team of billiard players of the National and Commercial Club, Dungarvan, travelled across the Drum hills to Youghal on Sunday to compete on the billiard table for the beautiful silver shield presented for competition by Messrs. Orme and Sons, London. The shield is to be won on the highest aggregate score, and the competition will go on for several Sundays on the billiard table of the Catholic Young Men's Society of Youghal. There are six teams entered, namely—Dungarvan, Mitchelstown, Middleton, Cove, Cappoquin and Youghal. In the draw the first series of games were allotted to be played between Cappoquin and Dungarvan. To play against Cappoquin the following team of four went across to Youghal on Sunday—Messrs. T. B. Boyle, P. J. Crotty, J. C. Keohan and E. Keohan. Cappoquin travelled by the river side and the teams met at the beautiful rooms of the Youghal Young Men's Society. There was much interest taken in the proceedings.

The members of the Youghal Society received the visitors with much warmth and hospitality and treated them in a right royal manner. The Society has two splendid billiard tables in the one spacious room, where there is commodious seating accommodation, and during the games played there was the most perfect order among the large body of spectators. Every shot was watched with interest, and the games on to the close were very entertaining. The team from Cappoquin were Messrs. P. Weldon, W. Cullinane, J. Sergeant and J. Olden, that is four players at each side, and single games to be played of 200 up.

T. B. Boyle (Dungarvan) v. P. Weldon (Cappoquin).

Mr. Boyle played in his usual finished style, which showed touch and strength and judgment, while his opponent played a very nice game, making at times some brilliant shots. The steady play of Mr. Boyle, however, proved superior, and at the close Mr. Boyle was the winner, scoring 200 to Mr. Weldon's 120.

Mr. J. Keohan then played Mr. M. Sargent. Mr. Sargent is a really good player, and got some hard luck, while Mr. J. Keohan, playing rather hostile, ran the scores ahead. But his opponent never gave up, and fought the issue to a finish. Mr. Keohan, however, proved the victor for Dungarvan, the score being: Keohan, 200; Sargent, 100.

Then Mr. P. J. Crotty met Mr. J. Olden. Mr. Crotty plays with a dash, and proved faultless in the long losers. He also brought off some difficult round table cannons. His opponent played a nice, steady game, but Mr. Crotty forged ahead, and a very interesting game ended in Mr. Crotty's favour, the score being—Crotty, 200; Olden, 80.

The final game was looked forward to with interest as the veteran player, Mr. E. Keohan, played against Mr. W. Cullinane, Cappoquin. The play ran evenly on well to the seventies, when both players were just level; then Mr. Keohan brought off a break of 40, and this put him ahead. Still his opponent never missed a chance, but the veteran player got a few more openings, and ran out a winner on the score—Keohan, 200; Cullinane, 104.

At the close of each game the spectators applauded loudly, and showed every encouragement to the contestants. The total scores of the match now stand: Dungarvan, 800; Cappoquin, 410. The next match on Sunday will be Mitchelstown v. Cove.

The Young Men's Society of Youghal are to be congratulated in bringing off this interesting contest, and whichever team brings home the beautiful shield has every reason to feel proud. The billiard room in Youghal is spacious, well appointed in all particulars. The tables are quite new, very fast and true, and it may be said that all the players expressed their delight at the facilities given them, the courtesy shown, and having a table to play on so perfect in every respect.

BALLYGALLY ESTATE, LISMORE.

To the Editor of the "Observer." Sir—In report of meetings of the Waterford County Council appearing in the current issue of your paper, Mr. Brennock would appear to be labouring under a misconception. The announcement of which he speaks has reference to my place at Ballylemon, which has never formed part of the Foley property at Ballygally. So far as I know there has never been any cause for complaint as to nonpayment of rates on this property.

As to the discussion on Ballygally (of which estate I was appointed agent in August last) I have no remarks to make beyond saying that the statement that these lands have been taken over by the Land Commission is incorrect. The other aspects of this matter will, I am confident, be fully investigated in another place.—Yours truly,

B. O'KEEFFE.

Tourtane, Lismore, October 20th, 1928.

PRICE OF BREAD IN YOUGHAL.

In connection with the letter on the above subject, which appeared recently in our columns, it is only fair to state that the price of bread locally has been reduced by 1d. per 4lb. loaf. This may appear small when the local price is compared with the price prevailing in other places, but when all is said and done, "a half loaf is better than no bread." There are other articles of food the price of which would seem to be rather on the high side. Perhaps the example set by the local bakers may have the effect of inducing other traders to "go and do likewise."

By L. R.

In the China Sea.

Saturday—Arrived Penang about 5 p.m. Good-looking wooded hills are in the foreground, with small mountains behind. The town as viewed from the sea seems fairly all right, but nothing very striking.

After dinner with Major S. and W. went ashore in a "sampan." They are curious boats with two longish wooden horns sticking out aft, and the bow sloping upwards as a single horn. As they are quite flat underneath without any keel they must be impossible in a breeze. Also the rower occupies the broad stern part, leaving the narrow bow for passengers.

The first thing we ran into on leaving the quay was the "Diamond Jubilee Clock Tower," standing out boldly in the centre of crossroads. It was erected in 1897 by "Cheah Chen Bok, Esq." A showy structure, and must have cost a bit. Turning off to the left, we found ourselves amongst the shops, where we made one or two purchases—I bought a pair of sandals.

Strains of music floated on the stillness of the evening calm, and on tracking them down we found ourselves on the harbour front, along which was a good promenade, with a large green sward and cricket ground adjacent. The Municipal Band was playing excellently and a big crowd was about. A great display of motors of every make and size, with city magnates and prosperous natives lolling in them lined the promenade and edges of the grass.

On our way back to the quay we passed an ancient fort named "Fort Cornwallis." It is no longer in commission as such, but is now converted into flats, and living quarters inside.

Wednesday—Arrived Singapore about 10 p.m. last night. Went to town this morning and tried to get the "Dungarvan Observer," but found all copies had been sold out, so instead got the "Weekly," "Daily Mirror" and "Times," also some mosquito destroyer. Turned into the Hotel del Europe and had a lemon squash, a truly splendid hotel, but I hear Raffles is as good; if so, it must be hot stuff. Then had a look at the new post office, which is just completed. I think it is safe to say it is the finest building anywhere in the East. The general shape and style of architecture reminds me of "Australia House" in the Strand, London; but the architecture of the post office is more elaborate and ornamental, and the building itself must be fully twice the size of Australia House. When I say the "finest" in the East I mean of its type or kind, that is for dignified, massive grandeur—but one could not compare it with the delicate beauty, and tracery of buildings, such as the Taj Mahal at Agra, or the Victoria Memorial, Calcutta. These are in a different category.

Just beyond the P.O. you pass over Kavanagh's bridge, a fine girder bridge spanning a creek. On the other side of the bridge, on turning to the right, you find yourself on the harbour esplanade and grounds. This is a fine place with broad playing fields on the left, then a carriage drive, well sheltered by trees; next it is the promenade, and between the promenade and the sea wall is a nicely-kept sward with numerous flower-beds in full bloom, and looking very smart. Here and there pretty shrubs are dotted about on the grass, but they are well trimmed, and kept purposely low so as not to obstruct the fine view of the harbour with its crowded life and wondrous variety of craft of every size, shape and rig.

Altogether Singapore is a very fine place, well laid out and openly planned on the American "town planning" system—that is, broad streets and roads running parallel to one another in the form of main "arteries." Went to town by tram and returned by rickshaw. His right fare was 60 cents, but I gave him a dollar, so he was well paid. Well paid for sooth! Ran the three miles without once stopping, and all the time pulling the rickshaw in the sweltering heat! It's a dog's life and they die young. It should not be allowed, yet it is everywhere in the East.

We are now through the Straits of Malacca, a little run of over 600 miles. The Straits have weather all to themselves, and brook no interference from outsiders, such as cyclones, storms or monsoons, all of which are unknown. There is occasionally what is called a "Sumatra." It is a thunder storm accompanied by a strong wind; it lasts only about half an hour.

The usual weather in the Straits is flat calms, with occasional light puffs of air from any quarter. There is generally much thunder and lightning about and heavy showers, but these are not accompanied by wind, except the occasional "Sumatra" mentioned. I mentioned above that I got some "mosquito destroyer" at Singapore. This is sold in boxes, each box containing several spiral coils of the stuff. When a match is applied to a coil it smoulders away giving off a rather pleasant smelling incense. It is much used by Europeans in bungalows in the East to keep mosquitoes away. Personally, I think there is a good deal of eye-wash or make-believe about its use in bungalows.

Looking back on the eight years I spent in India I can recollect pleasant afternoon bun-worries in shady bungalows, and pleasant dinner parties, the pleasure of which was often mitigated by the mosquitoes with their fangs out gnawing away at your ankles as you dined, wine and chatted. They feed on you, though your thoughtful hostess does not forget to have the destroyer burning here and there. The fact is, the amount of air coming in through the spacious doors and windows of Eastern bungalows, blows the scent away, and the mosquitoes simply laugh at it.

However, it is quite different in the confined space of a cabin. Here the destroyer really acts like a charm, and is a great boon. No sooner is it lighted than they immediately cease their attentions. One spiral coil, costing about a penny, will smoulder the whole night, and causes not the least ill-effects to the sleeper—on the contrary the smell is pleasant. Of course the necessity for the "destroyer" arises only when a ship is in port in the tropics. As soon as she puts to sea they quickly disappear.

Thursday—Yesterday the captain told me he intended to depart slightly from his true course in order to pass close to the "Paracel Islands," which he expected to pass to-day about noon.

These are a group of small, low islands in the China Sea, and as they are uninhabited, and "off the beaten track" from a navigation point of view, nothing much is known about them, and even it is not certain if the position shown on the chart is their correct one. So to-day, both in the forenoon and after, the horizon was carefully scanned, but no land was "picked up."

But a curious phenomenon occurred—that is the arrival on board of many species of land birds. Except for these small islands, we are now, roughly, about 300 miles from land, and though seagulls, gannets and albatrosses are met with 200 and even 300 miles from land, land-birds never are—nor do they ever accompany a ship to sea. But all the birds which arrived to-day are obviously land ones. Altogether there must be 15 or 20 different species. Most are various forms of tropical birds, but we recognise the following old friends—An owl, hawk, sand martins and a bittern—not that I wish to class the bittern as an "old friend," nor even renew acquaintance with him, after his performance to-day. When one of the engineers caught him he was rewarded with an ugly wound where he stuck his beak in, and he pecked savagely at anything held near him.

Here is a unique little incident—I was standing on the bridge watching one of the ship's officers "taking a sight." He had the sextant raised to his eye when suddenly, from nowhere, swooped a prettily marked little bird and perched on the sextant. The officer had his eye to the eye-piece and so did not see what had happened, but of course he felt the jerk as the bird alighted and lowered the sextant to see what was up. To our surprise he made no effort to fly away, as we stood looking at him and chatting.

The officer again raised the sextant and took the sight with the bird still perched on it. What a unique snapshot it would have made, but unfortunately one has rarely a camera handy on such an occasion.

Apart from the uniqueness and personal interest, there is money in a "snap" of this sort. The illustrated papers would pay a couple of guineas or more for such a snap; and, in addition to uniqueness, a snap happened to be topical, it may be worth a small fortune, as the following incident will show.

A good many years ago—to be exact, it was shortly before noon on Sunday, 9th October, 1910—with a friend I was going along the Main street, Gibraltar, to catch the 12 o'clock steamer for Algceiras where we intended to have lunch at the Reina Christina Hotel.

In those days this was a favourite way, for those living on the "Rock," to spend Sunday afternoons. Lunch at the hotel, then tennis on the hotel courts, or down to the casino, or (I am ashamed to say) to a bull fight. The hotel was a palatial structure, built on the bungalow style—that is, no upper stories, and surrounded by its own spacious grounds, beautifully kept. It used to be very full during the winter season—all nationalities being represented, but especially wealthy English, Germans, Austrians and Americans.

Well, as we passed the Cathedral on our way to the steamer, there was a small knot of people on the steps outside, and lining the footpath, whilst a few police kept a clear passage; the crowd was just such as one sees awaiting a wedding party about to come out from church. My friend asked a policeman what was up. He replied the King of Portugal was about to come out, whereupon my friend shouted to me "wait" and bolted off. I thought he was mad. He lived in Artillery Square, which is quite close to the Cathedral, and in almost less time than it takes to write about it, he returned from his quarters with a camera, and was just in time to take two snapshots of the King. The first one was as he was walking down the Cathedral steps, and the other as he sat in the Governor's carriage with the Duchess d'Aosta alongside.

Much to my chagrin my friend would not come to Algceiras, but remained to develop and print the snaps, and that evening he sent off many telegrams to the various illustrated papers at home. "What price two unique snaps of King of Portugal?" To make a long story short—he got over £100 for the two snaps.

The reason the snaps were so unique and topical was, because the revolution had just broken out in Portugal, and the King had arrived in Gibraltar only the previous day, flying from his native land.

Naturally I was interested in all the money my friend raked in, and in the "push and go" he showed in the matter, and when I asked him where he got the tip to act as he did, he told me: Years ago when the "Jameson raid" took place and caused such a stir at the time, a friend of his made a modest fortune out of a snap of Dr. Jameson shaking hands with Cecil Rhodes, which he took casually and by mere chance.

So now you have the tip, free, gratis, and for nothing; all that is necessary to make a fortune is to keep your camera by your side—but I am afraid I am digressing a bit. As I said, the ship was a perfect aviary, so varied was the collection of birds aboard.

The captain attributes their arrival to a typhoon which has just been reported by wireless in the neighbourhood of the Philippine Islands. Already we are feeling the swell of the typhoon—I hope we feel nothing more!

It is, of course, well known that birds and animals have some mysterious sense by which they "scen" storms or other danger, and possibly this may be the cause. But personally I do not think it is so. I should say most of the birds which have arrived could not fly 100 miles without a rest, let alone the 600 from the Philippines. But, assuming they were able to fly such a distance, then, on arrival, they would undoubtedly be done in, and dead beat, whereas, they are all quite fresh and in perfect condition.

In my opinion what has happened is this: The Paracel Islands are known to be low lying, which means we could pass within 15 or 20 miles without seeing them, and have probably done so. The birds of the islands, year in year out, live their lives in peaceful isolation, undisturbed by man. Then one fine morning a ship passes close to them, the scent from which is drawn like a red herring across the islands. This excites their curiosity and interest, and they fit off to seek the cause. It may have been a whiff of "ghee" or the curry and rice of the "og-wallas" (native firemen) which attracted them, or perhaps that pleasant we had for lunch—goodness knows it was "high" enough to reach the islands, however low they may be! But whatever the cause, the visitors are very welcome and interesting.

I said above that land birds never accompany a ship to sea, but in this connection we once had an interesting incident: In harbour there are generally a good number of birds on board. This is especially the case in the tropics, where the "og-wallas" and lascar eat their meals on the fore-caste deck, and so there is plenty pickings for crows and kite-hawks. But like jats and the proverbial sinking ship, they instinctively clear off the minute the anchor's weighed.

But on one occasion, when leaving Colombo, two crows, by some mischance, accompanied the ship to sea. They were interesting companions on the long run to Aden, and we saw to it that they had plenty food and water on the journey. They spent the nights high up in the rigging, and spent the days flitting about the ship and enjoying the novel experience. Still, though they did their best to impress on us they were enjoying themselves, at heart, I think, they must have been a little ill-at-ease, because every day they made one or two flights of several miles from the ship—no doubt trying to get a sniff of land. On these occasions they used fly off until they would be almost out of sight and would then return.

We passed Cape Guardifue at night time, and as we missed one of the crows next morning we assumed he had gone ashore there, but the other stuck to us until we reached Aden. We carefully watched to see what he'd do. He remained perched high up in the rigging until we were quite close to the shore, then he flitted off shorewards. We waved goodbye to him and he flapped his wings in return.

But horror!—he was destined never to reach the land! He had not gone far when other crows in increasing numbers gathered around and attacked him. He did his best to avoid their onslaught, but to no purpose, and the last we saw of the poor bird he was struggling in the water.

Monday, 11th July, 1927—Last night we arrived and anchored in Hong Kong harbour, and this morning shifted to the jetties at Kowloon. Kowloon is the "British concession" on the mainland, and is separated from Hong Kong by about 1 1/2 miles, H.K., of course, being on an island. There is an excellent steam ferry service running every 10 minutes between the two. One gets some idea of the teaming population from the way these ferries are patronised, though they run so frequently 50 to 100 people cross (each way) every time, and, of course, many more during the "rush hours." It is only recently Kowloon has been developed, and it is now becoming the chief residential quarter for Europeans. There are also several fine shops there, and the new hotel, which is nearing completion, is a palatial and huge building. By the way, it has just been taken over by the Government as a temporary measure, due to the trouble in China, and is now full of soldiers. It is called the "Hotel Peninsula."

There are no facilities for large ships berthing at Hong Kong, so all ships must either lie at the various moorings in the harbour or come alongside the jetties at Kowloon. These are five in number, made of timber and steel girders, and running out at right angles to the shore. Each jetty accommodates one large ship at each side of it—ten in all.

Hong Kong, or rather Kowloon, is the home of cane-chair, table and basket making. It is very interesting to go into the native quarters and see them at work. Whole streets are devoted to the industry, and as the shops are quite open, and in many places they work even in the open street, the process can be seen in every stage. The workmanship and "finish" is the very best, and a recognised way amongst sailors of increasing their income is to buy some of these cane tables and chairs and sell them in London or elsewhere, at about four times the amount paid for them in Kowloon.

After lunch with W. went to Kowloon to get cigars. As I could not get my favourite "Manilla's" "El Nio" we crossed to Hong Kong. It is interesting to watch the arrival and departure of the ferry boats. The great majority of the passengers crossing are Chinese of the better classes—practically no coolies cross in the ferry boats.

The Chinese dress in all sorts of costumes, both native and European; but no matter how expensive or well cut their European clothes may be, they always look rather comical in them. You see many girls crossing of the shop assistant or typist class, wearing what is probably the latest thing in Parisienne shoes, silk stockings, and "tube" dresses, and yet their hair done in Chinese fashion; that is, a short, straight fringe in front, then the rest well oiled and brushed straight back, and formed into a pig-tail behind, with the characteristic binding of silk thread near the end of it, and often a small rose embedded in the hair just where the pig-tail commences. It looks pretty—and quite quaint with European dress. Some young ladies cut off their hair behind, so that it looks for all the world like the straggling stubbles of a worn-down crossing-sweeper's brush. By the way, I have noticed quite a good few young ladies in England, and even in Ireland, are nowadays doing this. I am told they call it "bobbed."

The name certainly has an "elevating" and euphonious sound, which may help to account for the appearance the practice gives. As I said in a previous "Log" no-body walks "out East." So, just before a steamer is about to depart, a few motors, but chiefly rickshaw-wallas, come running up and deposit their fares. After doing so they retire to a large open shelter close by, capable of holding about 100 rickshaws. Here they wait, and according as their turn comes, dart out and quickly pick up a fare from a steamer just arrived. It is a kaleidoscopic and interesting sight going on all day.

Arrived at Hong Kong, we decided to take a run up the rock before doing our shopping. Perhaps I ought preface my remarks by saying it is not possible to "take a run up the rock" in the literal sense. There are many fine buildings in the town, or city of H.K., but all these, as well as all the business life of the place, are situated on a naturally level piece of ground, not more than half a mile broad and extending along the harbour front for about 2 1/2 miles. Behind this level strip the rock rises very abruptly everywhere, the highest point being over 1,700 feet.

So if you want to take a "run up the rock" you have to go in the "mountain railway." This railway is a splendid institution. I do not know whether it is owned by the Government or a private company, but it ought to say well judging by crowds, which patronise it. Anyway, it shot us up 1,305 feet to the Peak in double quick time, where we breathed the cool, rare and refreshing mountain air, at least it seemed so by comparison with the heat below. Whether going up or down, you always sit facing upwards in the carriage. The gradient varies slightly, but in parts it was so perpendicular we were lying on our backs against the backs of the seats with our feet sticking up high in the air. The position was anything but dignified—but the lady passengers did not seem to resent it—indeed, it would be little use for them to do so, as owing to the position they were in they were practically powerless to move.

The railway landed us at the Peak—but it is "peak" only in name, as the real peak of the rock is another 300 feet up, where an observatory is situated. We climbed up to this, and steamy work it was doing—still it was worth it, as the view from the summit is superb. The thermometer in the observatory showed 81 degrees; pretty hot for climbing, but cool by comparison with the 95 below.

After tea in the Peak Hotel we went down. As we left the railway station there was an elderly Chinese woman selling newspapers. She was holding the usual placard in front giving the leading items of news. Out East these placards, as a rule, give only local and Eastern items, and so I rarely trouble to even glance at them. I did not look at the one the woman was holding—still, without actually looking at a thing, you know the way you sometimes "catch a thing with the corner of your eye." In this way I thought I saw the word "Irish" and so I looked at the placard and was horrified to read in large type: "Terrible Irish crime: Murder of Mr. Kevin O'Higgins." On buying a copy it said he was shot four times whilst walking to Mass with his wife.

Awful! This is a staggering blow to the young State just finding its legs, and undoubtedly must shake the credit of the country.

In England when a political party is "down on" an opponent they throw rotten eggs at him, or if he is very obnoxious they may, perhaps, duck him in a shallow pond, or even tar and feather him. But in Ireland apparently we have nothing to learn from "Balkan methods"—which, for long, have been a by-word amongst civilised nations. My word, such hot air in the cabin! I must go on deck. ### Waterford County Board of Public Assistance

The monthly meeting of the Board of Public Assistance was held on Wednesday last at the Courthouse, Dungarvan. Mr. J. O'Donnell, chairman, presided. Also present were—Messrs. D. Coughlan, M. F. Walsh, J. Butler, J. O'Halloran, T. D. Connolly, P. Caulfield, P. Brett, Mrs. White, vice-chairman; Wm. Stack, T. Cosgrave, T. Dunne, Michl. Curran and D. Heskin.

Water Rent to County Home.
An account was received from the Dunga. Urban Council for £70 water rate for the County Home.

The Secretary said as the supply was unsatisfactory he only paid £35. Mr. Butler said the council were to run a 4-inch main there.

Mr. Cosgrave—Is there any undertaking that it will be done soon. It is a serious matter with the congestion that is there to be without a good supply? What would happen if an outbreak of fever took place?

Mr. Butler—The Urban Council have the money for that scheme. They are only waiting to complete another scheme.

Laundry at County Home.
The report on the above from Mr. Spreadboro', engineer, was read and the matter was again adjourned until the water supply was improved.

Rathgormack Dispensary Residence.

A report was read from Mr. Jephson, engineer, on the condition of the above.

After some short discussion the matter was referred to Mr. Jephson to get quotations for the exterior painting required and to get the small necessary repairs carried out.

No House.

A letter was read from the midwife Rathgormack dispensary district asking the board to provide her with a suitable house as she was at present living in a cabin which was unfit for habitation.

Chairman—I hear she is after getting another house since, but it is a most unsuitable one, and we were informed at the Board of Health that we could not give her a labourer's cottage.

Mr. O'Halloran—It is very hard, but if you provide this lady with a house all the others will be looking for one. The matter was adjourned.

Ring Dispensary Residence.

A report on the condition of the interior of the above was read from Mr. Spreadboro' engineer. He estimated the cost of repairs at £50.

Chairman—Doctors' residence are a big item on the rates.

The Board referred the very necessary repairs, which would cost about £8, to Mr. Spreadboro' to get done.

Auxiliary Home for Waterford.
Arising out of the minutes of the County Waterford Committee, the question of providing an Auxiliary Home arose.

Mrs. White stated that owing to the present high rates the time is not opportune to spend a large sum of money, and proposed that the old workhouse buildings in the County Hospital be fixed up to make room.

Mr. Cosgrave—We discussed this thing upside down at the committee meeting, and to save the ratepayers' expense the committee would not agree to have a separate entrance from Passage road. Mrs. White, who did not object to the Auxiliary Home at that meeting, objected to the entrance from John's Hill, and wanted to have an entrance from Passage road. I cannot understand her attitude here to-day. I know Waterford, and an Auxiliary Home is badly needed there.

Mr. Brett—I agree with Mr. Cosgrave. I was an attentive listener to the discussion at the meeting, and it was stressed that an Auxiliary Home was needed there.

While Mr. Brett was speaking Mr. Curran stood up and objected to the valuable time being wasted, and referred to the big agenda which they had to go through.

Mr. Brett—We have a chairman and he did not call me to order. I think it is not etiquette for one member to call another to order while we have a chairman.

Mrs. White—I was questioned because I advocated the entrance from Passage road, and I adhere to my suggestion that it is the more suitable.

Mrs. White's proposition not being seconded, it was declared lost, and the question of the cost of the Home was referred to the engineer to give an estimate for next meeting.

Complaints.
A letter was read from the Department referring to the report of the Superintendent Assistance Officer re the complaint of Assistance Officer John Power, and suggested that the Superintendent should report specially on this district each month.

The letter was marked "noted."

Increase.
The Department wrote asking to be informed of the grounds for the increase of salary granted to Jas. Sullivan, Waterford.

Mr. Cosgrave said it was he moved in this matter. That man was on duty from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m. in a cancer ward at 10s. per week, and he now had great pleasure in proposing that it be increased to £1.

Mrs. White seconded the proposition, which was passed unanimously.

Butter or Margarine.

A letter was read from the Ministry for L.G. and Public Health asking to be informed what the increased cost would mean by changing the diet at the Waterford Hospital from margarine to butter, and pointed out that the responsibility for the proper diet was a matter for the medical officer.

Secretary—I gave them the increased cost, which amounted to £4 7s. 6d. a week. Of course it will be more later on.

After some short discussion Mr. Butler proposed that the L.G.B. be asked to approve of butter instead of margarine.

The proposition was passed, Mrs. White and the Chairman dissenting.

Assistant Storekeeper.

A letter was read from the Department notifying the Board that they were not prepared to sanction the appointment of Mr. T. J. Power as temporary storekeeper, as he was when appointed a member of the Dungarvan Urban District Council.

After a short discussion Mr. Stack proposed, and Mr. Cosgrave seconded, that the Minister be asked to sanction payment up to the receipt of the letter.

Cleaning Sewer.

An application was read from Patk. Keohan, Youghal road, claiming £2 40s. for the cleaning of the Union sewer from Youghal road to the spring.

Mr. Butler said that the sewer was undoubtedly a great nuisance to Mr. Keohan as the whole sewerage from the County Home is going into it.

Consideration of the matter was adjourned.

Rent of Dispensary.

A letter was read from Mrs. D. Collins, Knockanore, asking the board to have a new agreement entered into with her in respect of her house, which is let as a dispensary. She asked that the rent be increased by £15.

The Secretary explained that the original agreement was made with the Lismore Rural Council at 49s. per year.

The board referred Mrs. Collins to the original agreement.

Notice of Motion.

Mr. Butler handed in the following notice of motion—I beg to give notice that I will move or cause to be moved that a separate scale of charges for maintenance be fixed for persons in the County Hospital and District Hospital under 14 years of age.

A WATERFORD ARCHBISHOP IN AUSTRALIA.

We take the following from an Australian paper to hand:—"There are few men in Australia of the intellectual attainments of the very quiet, very reserved and very shy Dr. Sheehan (Co-adjutor Archbishop of Sydney since 1922). He is a man who shrinks instinctively from publicity, but the goodness of whose heart cannot help but shine out when he meets his fellow-creatures. His best friends and most loyal supporters are the children. Bishops mostly frighten children, but the kindly, quiet countenance and manner of the lovable Co-adjutor Archbishop of Sydney attracts the little ones. He is one of the most simple of characters—quick to sympathise and quick to appreciate a human sentiment. His absorbing passion is the Irish language and Irish music. Born in Waterford City in Ireland in 1870, he quickly joined the ranks of the scholars his native city has given the world. He was educated at St. John's College, Waterford, and later at Maynooth, and then at the Universities of Oxford in England and Griefswald and Bonn in Germany. He holds the degrees of Doctor of Divinity, Doctor of Philosophy and Master of Arts, and is thus an outstanding educational figure in the Hierarchy of Australia."

Readers of our paper in Waterford and Lismore Diocese will recall Dr. Sheehan's splendid work for Irish at Ring College, and students of Irish are well acquainted with his numerous works on the Irish of the Decies. His valuable and learned work, "Apologetics and Catholic Doctrine," is in use in most of the Secondary Schools in Ireland and also in England, America and Australia. He was Professor of Classics at Maynooth College before he was appointed to Sydney Archdiocese.

DUNGARVAN SECONDARY TEACHER'S IMPORTANT APPOINTMENT.

The many friends of Miss Una Cuddihy, B.A., H.Dip.Ed., Tramore, have learned with pleasure of her appointment as Professor at St. Ida's Preparatory College, Dingle, Co. Kerry. Miss Cuddihy had a very brilliant career at the University College, Cork, and has taught very successfully at Ring Irish College; the Mercy Convent, Ballinasloe, and the Mercy Convent, Dungarvan. She is a brilliant Irish, French and English Scholar, and is capable of teaching all the school subjects through the medium of Irish. The post at Dingle carries a starting salary of £240 a year, rising by increments to £350, and there is in addition full board and lodging.

YOUGHAL DISTRICT COURT.

Before Mr. M. J. O'Dwyer, Acting D.J.

No Lights.

Sergt. Crofton and Guard O'Hara, Ballymacoda, had a number of persons summoned for using vehicles without lights before sunrise on last fair day. Defendants were allowed off with a caution.

Female Fighters.

Ellen Troy, Mary McCarthy and Elizabeth Mulcahy, Cork Hill, were charged with riotous behaviour under the Towns Improvement Act.

Guard Dawnes deposed that the defendants were shouting and fighting, creating a public obstruction on the night of the 4th. They were each bound to the peace in the sum of £5.

Drunk and Disorderly.

Guard Flanagan charged Denis O'Brien, of no permanent address, with being drunk and disorderly.

Complainant deposed that defendant pushed up against him using filthy and obscene language, and witness took him into custody on the way to the barracks. He asked to be let walk, and on doing so he lay down on the footpath. The sergeant and another Guard came along and they brought him. His language was so bad that the sergeant put his hand over his mouth. At the barrack they had to take off his boots and put him in the cells.

Defendant—Can I talk at all, sir? Justice—You will have to conduct yourself here.

Complainant having completed his evidence, defendant denied laying down on the footpath. He asked the Guard, who was twisting his arm, to let go as I required a restaurant, for the night and he'd go with him. "Can I put up for a month's rest?" (Laughter.)

Evidence having been given of three convictions for similar offences, recently, defendant was sentenced to one month with hard labour.

Indecency.

The court was cleared at this stage, and Michael O'Brien, MacCurtains-town, who didn't appear, was charged with indecency.

Evidence having been given, he was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

THE CAMERA O.

My blessing on Ireland and likewise her mountains,
I pray God to bless them for ever so long,
And also her people so constant and faithful,
Who reside at the foot of the Camera O.

Ye lovers of nature, come visit this beauty,
Of mountain and woodland and bright purling streams,
And view the broad meadows, a smiling before you,
There's not in this land such a beautiful scene.

How lovely thy reeks on a fine summer's evening,
When lit by the rays of the sun in the sky;
Your craggy ravines and cliffs look more glorious,
Than a lady of wealth in her richest attire.

I vow there's no lake in this lovely green island,
Can boast of such fish as your waters procure:
Some say I believe it no falsehood I utter,
You've two big serpents ever watching for you.

A vision of beauty, unrivalled, undreamt of,
I view from summit as downward I gaze,
Each point of the compass do rival the other,
Words fail to describe it, I stand here amazed.

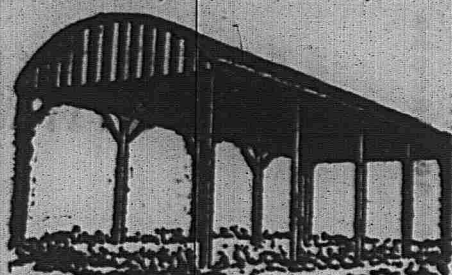

I once spread my sails to visit strange countries
I own they have many bright beauties to show,
But I'd sacrifice all one hundred times over,
For one sight of my beautiful Camera O.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S STORM.

A considerable amount of damage was done in this neighbourhood during the fierce gale on Friday night. Owing to its exposed position the headland from Ballymacoda to Knockadoon suffered particularly. It is one of the last places in which threshing is done, and many farmers found their stacks of barley blown down and scattered in all directions. At Greenland some was blown into the sea. The plight of some of the poor people is pitiable.

Kilmaethomas District Court

Before Mr. McCabe, D.J.

Breach of Dairy Produce Act.
The Minister of Land and Agriculture v. John Torpey, Kill.

Mr. E. A. Ryan, State Solicitor, for the prosecution, said the Kilmeaden Co-operative Creamery Co., Ltd., was also involved. Defendant (Torpey) was charged under Section 39 of the Dairy Produce Act, 1924, for presenting a quantity of milk for sale in a dirty vessel, and the Creamery Company mentioned were summoned for accepting same contrary to the provisions of Sections 4 and 2 of said Act. Mr. Ryan remarked it was the first case to his experience in which a Creamery Company were defendants, and it seemed to him a rather serious matter that any intelligent creamery manager should accept milk supplied in dirty vessels.

Mr. Murphy, sworn, answering Mr. Ryan, stated he was an Inspector appointed by the Department in connection with the working of the Dairy Produce Act. He remembered the 15th May last. On that date he visited the separating station at Kill, where milk was taken in for the Kilmeaden Co-operative Creamery Co., Ltd. He noticed an empty vessel from which milk had been delivered. The inside of the can and its lid, with which the milk came in contact, he found dirty and slimy. He called the attention of the manager, Mr. Kennedy, and of Pk. Higgins, the boy in charge of the vessel, to the matter. Both informed witness that the milk had been delivered and accepted from the vessel.

Mr. Ryan—In your expert opinion, Mr. Murphy, this particular vessel was a dirty one?
Witness replied in the affirmative. Defendant (John Torpey) told the Justice that he was sick in bed with the "flu" at the time.

The Justice asked if there was any representative of the Creamery Co. present in court.

Mr. Ryan here observed that where a Creamery Co. was implicated in a case such as the one now before the Justice that Company should have obtained the services of a solicitor to appear on their behalf.

Mr. Murphy came forward and told the court he was the manager of the Central Creamery at Kilmeaden, and that Mr. Kennedy was manager of the Kill branch. They admitted the charge. The milk was accepted through a mistake. Had Mr. Kennedy seen it he would have returned it. He returned dirty milk on previous occasions.

Mr. Kennedy was sworn and stated he was busy at the time of the delivery of the milk else he wouldn't have accepted it.

Witness said he didn't see the milk until it was on the weighing machine. He made it a habit of seeing the milk being delivered, but at all times he hadn't time to see all the milk.

Mr. Ryan—If a man in your position cannot do that the milk will not be regularly examined. Mr. Murphy's business is to take breaches of the Act. Only for Mr. Murphy's visit on this occasion Torpey's milk would not have been questioned, and days and days may elapse before he can visit the station again.

Replying to the Justice, Inspector Murphy said he knew that Mr. Kennedy had refused dirty milk a few times. He (Inspector) considered Mr. Kennedy a very careful man.

Torpey was fined 5s. and 40s. costs, and the Creamery Co. fined £1 plus 20s. costs.

A Fishery Case.

The previously adjourned case of the Waterford v. 3 Board of Fishery Conservators v. James Fitzgerald, Stradhally, and Rd. Crowde, do., was next dealt with.

Mr. Verrington, solr., for the Fishery Board, went over the charge preferred against the defendants (details of which have already been published in this paper) and asked that the maximum fine under the Act be inflicted.

Mr. Verrington applied for 40s. costs.

The Justice decided that the defendants had been guilty of a breach of Section 11-8-9 Vic., by using an unauthorised net, and imposed fines of £2 and £1 costs on each of them. He ordered the forfeiture of the net, and allowed two months for the payment of the fine.
