Obstructing Court Messenger.

SEQUEL TO SALE OF GOULANE FARM.

FATHER, SON AND BROTHER CHARGED.

At Armlane Court on Wednesday, before Mr. G. P. Farrell, B.E.,

Declan, Patrick and Wm. Hourigan, Goulane, Old Parish, were charged on remand with obstructing the Court Messengers.

Supt. O'Shea prosecuted and Mr. A. R. Farrell, solr., Dungarvan, defended.

The Justice asked what was the nature of the obstruction?

Supt. O'Shea said the Guards were affording the Court Messengers protection in the execution of an Order of the Land Commission.

Mr. Farrell raised the point under the Act of 1927 that the Order should be made by the Judicial Commissioner and not by the Land Commission.

Justice—What has happened in this case since?

Superintendent—Thos. Wall, the new tenant, is in possession now.

After some arguments the Superintendent said that on the 21st May the Court Messenger went to the farm of Declan Hourigan at Goulane to enforce a Court Order, accompanied by Guards for protection purposes. They arrived at the farm at 11.30. About 10 yards from the house they were met by Declan and his son, Patrick, who warned them not to enter the house. They got very excited and hostile and said that the house would only be got over their dead bodies. Then Wm. Hourigan, Declan's brother, who is blind, came on the scene. He didn't do much beyond stating that he was standing in with his brother and nephew. At one time Declan told his son to go into the house where there was a double-barrelled gun. Owing to their attitude Sergt. Hanafin spent an hour trying to reason with them. Finally when he saw there was no other way out of it he arrested the three of them for obstructing the Court Messengers. There was no actual assault committed.

Justice—Did the Court Messenger take over possession?

Superintendent—Yes, that day.

Justice—And handed over possession to Thos. Wall? Yes.

After some legal arguments,

The Justice said that would really mean adjourning the case in the absence of a solicitor on the other side. He was not going to expect the Superintendent to argue law points. He would take depositions.

Ultimately Mr. Farrell said he would waive the point regarding the Order.

Justice—What is the attitude of the prosecution?

The Superintendent said he had no desire to send the three defendant to prison, but he must afford protection to the people now in possession.

Mr. Farrell—I will undertake that there will be no further trouble after this hearing.

The Justice said he thought he could protect the interests of all by an Order in his power to bind to the peace if necessary.

The case was then taken up summarily.

Patrick English, Court Messenger, gave evidence of his visit to the farm at Goulane on the day in question, to take up possession from Declan Hourigan and hand it over to Thos. Wall or his representatives. Wall gave him a map to walk the bounds of the farm. When nearly through the walking they came along a lane near the house, where Declan and his son, Patrick, met them in a very excited state. Declan had a stick in his hand. They used very strong language towards Pottle and Wall for coming to the place, calling them "grabbers."

Witness told Declan he had a warrant for the execution of an Order to put Thos. Wall into possession of the farm, and he replied he would not allow it, and complained of having several grievances against the people coming in. Witness thereupon called Sergt. Hanafin and told him that Declan Hourigan refused to allow him to hand over possession to the complainants in the case. Wm. Hourigan, the blind man, came along and said they were making a protest against those proceedings, and he was throwing in his lot with his brother and nephew. He then said: "Now having made a protest we should go and see our solicitor." He then asked his brother to withdraw and leave the thing go on, but Declan would not be said by him until the sergeant took charge of him. They then asked the other parties to withdraw for a while, as not being good friends they would only cause more excitement. There was no actual assault committed.

Cross-examined by Mr. Farrell—Witness said Declan did most of the talking. The others were with him in the lane. The blind man, William, came out after the others.

Justice—He seemed to exercise a calming influence.

Witness, continuing, said Declan had a stick, but there was no attempt to strike with it. He might have seen them walk the lands. Declan was very excited and his son somewhat so.

Justice—Excitement is sometimes infectious.

Witness said the Hourigans made no attempt to molest them. Patrick said nothing in particular. There was mention of a gun, but they said that the Guards had taken it. William made a protest, and said they were advised to hold on as long as they could, that "possession was nine points of the law." Beyond making the protest he caused no trouble. They had a little trouble with Declan, who was very excited. His father's excitement got Patrick going probably.

All you complain about is the protest they made?

Justice—The form of the protest.

Superintendent—Does your Worship want the Guards' evidence?

The Justice said he didn't need it. Where did the defendants live now?

Mr. Farrell said they lived with a married daughter of Declan's. The latter lost his farm in circumstances of great hardship and he wanted to make some protest.

The Justice said the only question was what order he would make. The blind man had acted very properly in calming his relations. What did the Superintendent ask him to do as regards the father and son?

Superintendent—Would you bind them to the peace with regard to Mrs. Pottle and Thomas Wall, who got possession of the farm? The Guards have to afford them protection at present.

Mr. Farrell asked the court to deal with the defendants under the First Offenders Act.

The Justice said he was thinking of binding them to the peace as a matter of prevention, not punishment.

Mr. Farrell said the man had been sufficiently punished by the loss of his farm.

After further discussion the Justice suggested the adjournment of the case for three months.

Mr. Farrell said he would be satisfied with that.

Declan Hourigan was then called, and, in answer to the Justice, he said he would cause no further trouble.

The case was accordingly adjourned for three months.

DEATH OF MR. RICHARD BURKE, CLASH, MODELIGO.

Circumstances of a particularly sad character surrounded the death of the above well-known farmer, which occurred at his residence, Clash, on Sunday evening at the early age of 53 years. Two children of deceased had an attack of measles recently, and the father shared with their loving mother the task of watching over them and nursing them night after night, as a result of which he caught a severe chill, while the children were, fortunately, fully restored to health.

Deceased, who was an experienced farmer, living in very comfortable circumstances, was able to attend to his business up to Monday week, 20th ult., but on that night he was taken seriously ill, and pneumonia developing soon afterwards, his condition became steadily worse day after day. Mrs. Burke, in turn, owing to the great strain and anxiety of nursing him, also contracted pneumonia, and the result was that despite the best of medical attention on the part of Dr. White, the husband died on Sunday evening, while his wife, lying seriously ill in another room, was ignorant of the sad fact. It is one of the most pathetic cases which has occurred in the district for many years, and has aroused an extraordinary amount of sympathy amongst all classes of the public over a wide area.

The late "Dick" Burke was a splendid type of Irishman. Of a kind and generous disposition, he was one of the best-known farmers in the district and enjoyed the love and respect of all who knew him. Honest and upright in all his business transactions, he was a most obliging neighbour and the friend of all, and his premature passing away after such a short illness, and in such sad circumstances, has cast a deep gloom over the Modeligo Parish.

The remains were removed on Monday evening to Modeligo Church without the knowledge of his sick widow, while his two young children had been considerably kept in bed so that they, too, should remain ignorant of the sad proceedings which were being enacted in their once happy home.

The funeral was a remarkable display of general mourning and sympathy, as it was attended by large numbers of mourners. The cortege was headed by the Very Rev. M. Carroll, P.P. Requiem Masses for the repose of deceased's soul were offered up on Tuesday morning by Fr. Carroll, P.P., and Fr. Dwan, C.C., after which the interment took place in the adjoining cemetery in presence of a large attendance of the general public.

The chief mourners were—Mrs. Walsh, Ballinamuck, Dungarvan (sister); Thos. McCarthy, Ballyhane; Roger McCarthy, Knockavanagh; John McCarthy, Skgeens, do.; Martin McCarthy, Ballinock, Dungarvan, and Patk. McCarthy, Kilmurray (brothers-in-law); Mrs. Ryan, Glasheen (sister-in-law); Mrs. T. McCarthy and family, Ballyhane; Mrs. Walsh and family, Grange; P. F. Ryan, Dungarvan; John Fitzgerald, Mogeena, etc. (cousins and relatives). R.I.P.

The funeral arrangements were very satisfactorily carried out by Mr. P. Walsh, Cappoquin.

ACCIDENTS.

Early this week a Leamybrien youngster named Kett got a nasty fall off a tree he had climbed (searching for birds' nests) and had to be conveyed to Dungarvan for treatment.

At Boatstrand Harbour (near Kill) a sailor belonging to crew of cross-Channel boat which arrived there with coal for a Bonmahon merchant on Monday sustained injuries by falling into the water coming ashore on a gangway plank that became dislodged while he walked upon it. Dr. Foley, Kilmac-thomas, attended him and he is progressing favourably.

APPOINTMENT OF MOUNTAIN RANGER.

APPLICANT'S POETIC EFFUSION. VETS' HOLIDAYS.

Mr. G. J. Curran presided at the meeting of the above. Also present—Messrs. Jas. Daly, W. Stack, M. Curran and M. F. Walsh. Messrs. C. P. Hynes, V.S., and R. P. Byrne, V.S., were also present, as also Mr. M. A. Foley, clerk.

Mountain Ranger. For the position of mountain ranger during the Summer and Autumn dipping periods in the Comeragh mountain area of the Dungarvan and Kilmac-thomas districts seven applications were received, viz.—Michael Dunford, Knockboy, at £9 17s. 6d.; John Morrissey, Kilbrien, £14; J. Connolly, Scart, Ballinamult, £9 9s. 6d.; W. Walsh, Bohadon, £9 10s.; Patk. Fraher, Bleantis, £9 5s., and John Keane, Ballintlea, Kilrossanty, tendered at £20. Mr. Keane, in making his application, was evidently inspired by the Muses and addressed the Clerk as follows:—

"My dear boy, I now apply, To be a Mountain Ranger, My qualifications will stand a test, So I foresee no danger.

I can tot up sheep in yards or feet, And pen them with a fountain; And have them free (for V.S. to see) From scab on to the mountain.

If at "competitive" I have to get, I should have it all my own; On 99 per cent. I now am bent, If the examiner is Mr. Bowen.

And now my tender is £20; Don't think that I am faking; For the country now is getting good, We are close up to de-rating.

The tender of Patk. Fraher being the lowest (£9 5s.), he was unanimously appointed Mountain Ranger for this season.

Tender for Sheep Dip. The following tenders for sheep dip for the Summer and Autumn dipping periods were received—Carbokrimp Co., London, at 2s. 6d. per gallon; Carboleen Co., Dublin, 3s. 10d. per gallon; Nicobrand Co., Lismore, 3s. 9d. per gallon, and J. J. Crotty, Square, Dungarvan, tendered to supply McDougall's or Cowper's liquid dip at 4s. 3d. per gallon. It was stated that the Carbokrimp Co. was not on the Department's list of approved dips. Nicobrand Co. sent a resolution passed by the Co. Waterford Farmers' Union recommending Nicobrand Dip.

Mr. Walsh said they should support local industry and give the contract to the Nicobrand Co.

Mr. Byrne, V.S.—There is one objection to it. The Department say that sheep should be immersed in that dip for 1½ minutes.

Mr. Daly said it was a stronger and more effective dip than any other.

Mr. Hynes—It is an excellent dip.

Mr. Byrne, V.S., said he was not prepared to spend three days dipping at Two-Mile-Bridge when one day should be sufficient.

Mr. Hynes—It is very strange that that is the only dip they specify that way.

Mr. Daly suggested they accept Nicobrand Dip subject to sheep being dipped in the usual way and subject to the sanction of the Department.

Mr. Byrne—Yes, if they agree to that, but it is impossible to keep each sheep 1½ minutes immersed.

Mr. Hynes—Mr. Stuart does not recommend 1½ minutes immersion.

Eventually an order was made that the Nicobrand Co.'s tender be accepted subject to the sanction of the Department and the concurrence of the veterinary surgeons.

Mr. Hynes—You are not getting over the 1½ minutes immersion.

Mr. Daly—That might meet the case.

Mr. Walsh—Would not it be a good thing if samples of the dip were submitted in the future?

Mr. Hynes—It would be an excellent thing to have them.

For the work of dipping sheep, removing tank, etc., in Kilmac-thomas and Waterford areas, Thos. Cunningham, Ballybanogue, Kilmac-thomas, tendered at £1 2s. 6d. per day. Accepted.

For Dungarvan and Youghal areas, Mr. Doherty, Old Parish, tendered at £1 3s. a day, and John Barry, Goulane, at £1 per day. Barry's tender was accepted.

For Lismore area Patk. Barry tendered at £1 3s. a day, and Ml. Grealy at £1 5s. per day. Grealy was appointed to do the work provided he work at £1 3s. per day.

The Department wrote that arrangements should be made next year for the dipping of all the sheep in the county under the supervision of the V.S. That could be done if the County Council took advantage of the powers conferred on them by the Sheep Dipping Order of 1916. The Department also wished to have enclosed sites for dipping purposes and said £50 a year would provide 25 suitable enclosed sites for the dipping, half the amount of which would be recouped.

Mr. Hynes said the lowland sheep were mostly dipped at home and the owners notified the Guards, but whether the sheep were efficiently dipped they did not know. All the Guards know is that the owner says he dipped the sheep and they give the certificate. He would suggest that only the certificate of the V.S. be accepted next year.

Mr. Daly—The Guards should be asked to give no certificate unless they see the sheep dipped.

The Secretary said the Order stated the Guards could not supervise the work.

Mr. Byrne, V.S.—The only way out of it was for the owner to come to the tanks.

Mr. Daly—Make an order that no sheep can be exposed for sale without the production of a veterinary certificate.

Chairman—We can have it before us next year.

Mr. Hynes—It is a very peculiar thing in the Act that the Guards should be asked to give a certificate, and yet they would not know whether the sheep were dipped or not.

It was ordered as follows:—The committee desire to bring under the notice of the Department that the dipping of sheep will commence at an early date, and we request the Guards as far as possible to supervise the dipping and have no certificate issued unless they are satisfied that the sheep are properly dipped in accordance with the regulations.

Mr. P. Curran, Glenmore, having proved ownership of the dipping site of the tank at Two-Mile-Bridge, it was decided to ask him at what price he would sell the plot to the committee.

Dipping Centre for Ring. Mr. Curran proposed that a dipping centre be established near Ring P.O. Mr. Byrne, V.S.—There are not sufficient sheep in the area to warrant a centre there.

Mr. Curran said most of the sheep in that area had to go to Two-Mile-Bridge and Old Parish.

Mr. Daly seconded the motion subject to a suitable free site being got.

Mr. Byrne—I am quite willing to have a centre there if it works out an economic proposition.

The resolution was passed unanimously.

Sympathy. On the motion of Mr. Daly, seconded by Mr. Curran, a resolution of sympathy was passed to Mr. P. Mulcahy on the death of his wife.

No Holidays for Vets. Mr. Hynes said it was a strange thing that the vets could get no holidays, and even when sick they had to pay their own substitutes. They were the only County Council officials who got no holidays. They were asked by the Veterinary Association to apply for them.

Chairman—Was not it agreed to here?

Mr. Hynes—It was in the old days when you were in the hands of the British Government, but under our own Government it was laid down that the vet taking holidays should provide his own substitute and pay him. It was most unfair that after their year's work they could get no holidays or leave of absence or even sick leave except by paying their substitutes.

Mr. Walsh—There is no reason why the vets should not get a holiday as well as every other official. There was no reason why their substitutes should not be paid as the doctors' substitutes were.

Mr. Daly agreed.

Chairman—We should ask the Department to grant the V.S. a fortnight's holidays on the same conditions as M.O.s.

The committee granted the request of the vets subject to sanction in the matter of holidays, and in cases of illness that their substitutes be paid.

BISHOP'S VISIT.

On Monday His Lordship the Bishop examined the children of Kilmac-thomas and Newtown Schools at Kilmac-thomas Mercy Convent. All presented received tickets, and in a brief address to the parishioners present His Lordship congratulated the pupils, teachers and parents of the children examined for the brilliancy exhibited. He exhorted the parents of the parish to keep their children regularly to school, and highly complimented Very Rev. John O'Donnell, P.P., Newtown, and Rev. W. O'Mahony, Kilmac-thomas, for the appreciable religious report submitted to him. The Sacrament of Confirmation was administered to the Newtown-Kill-Kilmac-thomas children at Kill Church on Wednesday. The above priests with Rev. M. Dowley, C.C., Kill, attended on His Lordship.

Kilmac-thomas News.

SYMPATHY. Newtown Gaelic Hurling and Football Club and Newtown Branch Irish Farmers' Union have voted sympathy and condolence with the widow and other relatives of the late Laurence McGrath, report of whose untimely, widely-regretted death appeared on our previous issue.

DEATH. Mr. Patk. Brown, of Briskey, Kilmac-thomas, whose death in his 97th year occurred last week, was a noted Irish-Ireland and one of Co. Waterford's most fluent native speakers. He was an intimate friend of the late "Bob" Weldon (Miller), Comeragh Corn Mill, the celebrated Gaelic poet of the Decies. His interment took place at Kilrossanty Old Cemetery in presence of hosts of relatives, friends and sympathisers. May he rest in peace.

DEATH OF MR. RODGER RYAN, LEAMYBRIEN. Fortified by the rites of Holy Church and at the comparatively early age of 64 years, the death took place at his residence at Leamybrien, Kilrossanty, on Sunday forenoon of Mr. Rodger Ryan, father of Messrs. Tom and Matty Ryan, the well-known Kilrossanty footballers. Deceased, who had enjoyed the best of health up to a few weeks ago, was a general favourite with all, and his rather unexpected demise is deeply regretted on all sides. The funeral to the family plot at Kilmunion (Abbeyside Parish) Cemetery on Tuesday afternoon was one of the largest seen in the locality for many years. Leading representatives of several of the G.A.A. Clubs of the Decies were in the vast cortege. Requiem Masses for the repose of deceased's soul were celebrated at Kilrossanty R.C. during the week. R.I.P.

SERIES OF UNUSUAL OCCURRENCES. Since the appearance of our previous issue the following trio of unique happenings took place in these parts:—

(1) A small purple containing two half-crowns was found in the throat of a large pike by Mr. James Bowdren, a rural postman of Kilmac-thomas, while bathing at Bonmahon. The fish was dead and washed ashore.

(2) The Fitzjames-Roderick Dhu Gray—fame-fashioned and framed by Sir Walter Scott—is only "trotting" after the fight witnessed by a number of people here at Kilmac-thomas last week-end. The event, which took place in the park (at the back of Mr. J. J. Joy's engineering works), was just one of those occurrences which are wont to happen not more nor less than once every thousand years. Now for the details, which briefly read as follows:—A hen (of the Buff Orpington species), the property of Mrs. M. Kiely, The Bridge, attacked and killed a sewer rat which endeavoured to carry off one of its chicks. Assailed by the feathered mother, the rodent (which, by the way, had "come up" from "that sentry-box" adjoining the Temperance Hall), dropped the chick, and after a furious battle, was routed. The mated fowl resumed the attack, and a struggle ensued which lasted for fully three-quarters of an hour, and ended with the marauder's death.

(3) Two swallows, flying in opposite directions, came in collision over the factory weir, Kilmac-thomas, on last Saturday morning. As a result of their forceful impact both birds fell into the river Mahon and were borne away by the current.

THE MISSING POSTMAN. A large party of Stradbally civilians begun on Monday last a fresh search of the Glen bogs, which skirt the Kilmac-thomas-Stradbally road about midway between both places. We are informed that the searchers will not give up searching the bogs for the remainder of the week. There is a feeling abroad on every hand that a satisfactory solution of the baffling mystery will be forthcoming in the very near future.

CLARIFICATION OF COMING CYCLING CARNIVAL. Sunday, June 22nd, will be a red-letter day in the annals of Kilmac-thomas athletics, when a highly-attractive 5-itemed card of cycle races will be brought off in our midst. All of the events programmed will be strictly confined to novices, and a competent handicapper will deal with the handicapping of competitors using geared machines in the various competitions. All entrants are assured of a "fair crack of the whip," and the costly and serviceable prizes on offer should gain "big fields" in the different distances. Full particulars of the gala fixture are detailed in our advt. columns. It will be noticed from a perusal of same that lady cyclists are specially catered for, and we hope a record entry of the youth and beauty of the Decies for this suitably-prized event. We will be in a position to deal more elaborately on the matter next number. Meanwhile tell your friends and your friends' friends all about it. Above all, remember the date of the "Raleigh Rally" of Co. Waterford—22nd inst!

CAPPOQUIN BACON FACTORY. VISITED BY THE BISHOP OF WATERFORD. Having administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to a large number of children in Cappoquin, Most Rev. Dr. Hackett, Bishop of Waterford, subsequently paid a visit to the Cappoquin Bacon Factory, being accompanied by the Very Rev. J. Gleeson, P.P., Aglish, and the Rev. J. Croton, C.C., Cappoquin. The distinguished visitors were met at the main entrance gates by Mr. Lincoln on behalf of the management, and conducted through the various departments, where the different classes of work carried out in each place were fully explained. The fine and up-to-date sausage-making department was first visited, where his Lordship was greatly impressed with the modern machinery in use, and also with the high quality of the products and the absolute cleanliness of the place. The "angling room," where the pigs are suspended after being killed, was next visited, and here the various workmen all knelt down as His Lordship entered and kissed his ring. The visitors were then escorted to the ground floor, where the pigs are killed, and shown the "condemned cell," where the animals are temporarily housed while awaiting their turn for execution, and the various processes through which the pigs go from the time they enter there until they emerge as cured bacon from the cooling cellars upstairs, were minutely described by Mr. Lincoln. Having inspected every working department in the factory proper, the visitors were finally shown through the comfortable and well-equipped suite of offices upstairs, at the conclusion of which His Lordship warmly thanked Mr. Lincoln for his great kindness and courtesy in showing him over such an important concern, which he hoped would continue to thrive and prosper in Cappoquin.

Before leaving Mr. Lincoln, on behalf of the management, presented His Lordship with a "Barley Brand" ham, for which the factory is famous, and requested his acceptance of same as a small souvenir of his visit. His Lordship gracefully accepted same.

SYMPATHY. The Committee of the Dungarvan Branch of the Bakers' Union at their meeting last Friday passed a vote of condolence on the death of their fellow-member, Philip Duggan, a staunch Trade Unionist with a lifelong Association with the local branch.

JOTTINGS FROM THE LOG OF A YOUGHAL MAN.

ABOUT TO ENTER THE SUEZ CANAL.

By L. R.

Monday—I have just been watching 3 fine ships leave the Canal. Before a ship actually emerges from it, the appearance she presents is rather weird and comical, as you get the idea she is gliding majestically over the sand. This effect is produced by a slight bend in the Canal, which, together with the dredged up sand, piled on the banks, prevents the water being seen—hence, ships appear as if placidly "ploughing the sands."

As these ships were emerging our anchor chain was slowly churning its way in through the hawse-pipe, whilst two other ships nearby were similarly employed—one is a Bibby boat and the other a German, one of the well-known "Fels" Line. We are all going through together—or, to be more correct, one after another, with an interval of about half a mile between each ship. I might here mention, in the Canal, captains and their officers practically cease to function, as ships are more or less completely in the hands of the Canal authorities; and the system of control and management is perfectly organised, and always works without a hitch. For instance, in the splendid offices of the Canal Company at Port Said there is a huge model of the Canal made to scale. It shows not only all the signal stations situated along the banks, and various details connected with the management (such as places where dredgers are at work, etc.), but the model shows also the exact position of every ship going through, and according as ships advance, officials are continually altering the positions. All this information is supplied to the head office by various signals and other modes of transmission; then the office issues instructions whether such and such ships are to proceed or tie up. As you know, the Canal is not sufficiently wide for ships to steam past one another, one or other has to tie up, and does so according to instructions from the office.

Just as the Canal is entered on the right, is a nicely-kept bathing place, the hot sun and clear blue water strongly inviting a plunge—all the more so, as safety is assured by a stout railed enclosure to keep off the sharks. On the opposite bank is a collection of bungalows and offices used by the various officials of the south end of the Canal; altogether there are not more than about 50 buildings, well arranged in broad avenues, with spacious gardens around the bungalows, and shady trees. This is known as Port Tewfik. It dates only from the making of the Canal, and its spick and span look is in contrast to the ancient town of Suez situated about a mile off.

Everybody is familiar with the appearance of Suez, but I have never known anybody who has actually been there. The reason is, it is off the beaten track, and leads to nowhere. But with glasses it is easy to see it is a typical old Eastern town, with its very narrow streets, and many picturesque mosques. In times gone by it was an important place on one of the trade routes to India; and in more recent times it again revived when the P. and O. Company in 1837 established the overland mail route to India. In those pre-canal days steamers discharged their cargoes at Alexandria, which were then loaded on camels, who with dignified and leisurely stride, trekked across the sandy desert, the cargoes once again to be re-embarked at Suez for the East.

We are now steaming through the Canal, but it is necessary to look at the banks to appreciate the ship is moving, as our speed is so reduced, the familiar throb of the engines is absent, and we glide slowly and noiselessly along.

Here is a dredger at work with its long arm extending far over the bank, and from it pours a continuous stream of slimy sudge on to the desert. There, for over a mile along the bank, are thousands of Arabs, digging away, carrying baskets of mud on their heads, pushing trolleys, etc. They are working on the widening of the Canal—a scheme which has been going on now for several years.

Here is a signal station with its well-built walls of cut stone, bright red roof, lofty signal pole, and several shady palms around. It looks very chic and picturesque. The lady-of-the-house is at the door with a baby in her arms, whilst two or three children by her side wave to us—the greeting being returned with vigour by the children on board. There a dozen camels, with Arabs seated on two of them and merchandise on the rest, are trekking along in single file—just as we pass they leave the Canal bank and strike out across the desert.

We have now entered the Great Bitter Lake. Flat and uninteresting all round. We have not long entered before the propellers reverse for a minute or two, and then the anchor-chain rattles from the hawse-pipe. We look around to see the cause, and in the distance see a large two-funnel ship. At first glance she looks as if she were high and dry on the sand, but a small "white bone" in her teeth" shows her to be approaching. On she comes majestically, in the small enclosed lake, looking about twice the size she'd look in the open sea. She turns out to be the fine mail-ship "Orsona" of the Orient Line. Her passengers line the deck and wave, but she is a little too far off to exchange personal greetings. In her wake follows a large cargo ship, she is beautifully clean and smart-looking and flies the Norwegian flag. We now ups anchor and are off again.

Here are two of the quaintest craft imaginable, with great raking lateen sailing bows and great raking lateen sails. Their very quaintness baffles description—they must be seen. Suffice it to say, the design must date back thousands of years, even before the Pharaohs were babies. But I notice one of them has a "rigging-screw" in one of her shrouds—and why shouldn't she! After all wasn't it Archimedes invented it.

Here, on the bank, are two or three "pill-boxes" smothered in sand, and quite impossible to say what they are or were, were it not for the surrounding barbed wire entanglements, now red with rust, and grim reminders of "the war to end wars." Forsooth! There is a "gare"; the name given to the slight widenings in the Canal where a ship ties to the bank to allow another pass. But we pass on.

We are now in lake Timshah; We slow down (but do not stop) to change pilots. A mile off, on the edge of the lake, is Ismalia, a popular military station; it is evidently a favourite bathing place, too, judging by the large number of wooden bathing shanties built out into the water. A beautiful two-masted schooner yacht flying the American flag, is anchored close to the town. There is much greenery and trees about, and altogether it is a pretty place. I should here mention that when going north, the right-hand side of the Canal is nothing but sand and desert, whilst on the left, trees extend all along, and here and there grass and green shrubs. The difference is due to the "fresh water canal" which has been made from the Nile to Ismalia. At Ismalia this Canal divides into two—one branch running along the bank of the large Canal to Suez, and the other going north to Port Said. A fair amount of water must percolate through the soil, judging by the amount of trees and growth along the whole left bank. This fresh water canal is no more than four or five yards wide, and is, of course, a mere pup by comparison with the Suez Canal, though it serves a very useful purpose in this rainless place.

The propellers are now reversing as we are about to pull into a "gare" and tie to the bank. In addition to the searchlight, with its motor plant, which was put on board at Suez, we also shipped there two rowing boats, each boat manned by three Arabs. One boat was hoisted by the crane into the well-deck for aft, and the other into the well-deck aft. These boats are now being lowered over the side, for the men to take the cables to tie to bollards ashore. You'd be surprised how quickly and smoothly the whole process of tying-up is gone through. In the distance a ship is approaching—she turns out to be a large oil-tanker, and glides past, not more than 10 yards or so separating us. The Canal Authorities have to be very careful no untoward accident happens, which may lead to the blocking of the Canal, and so, as regards tying up, oil-tankers take precedence of all ships going through. I believe even warships have to tie up to let them pass; certainly every other ship, whether mail or otherwise, has to do so.

Now she is past, and in no time the cables are cast off, the boats hoisted on deck, and we are off again. More dredgers are passed from time to time, belching forth sludge; also numerous signal-stations—all the stations are, of course, on the left bank, that is, where the fresh water canal runs. As we have now reached the part of the Canal where a road and railway run along the bank from Port Said to Ismalia, odd motor cars and a railway train or two whizz by now and again. More quaint sailing craft, with their huge lateen sails, also small fishing boats, are passed. In the distance now is seen a small dark object, with two great columns of spray radiating from it on each side. As we have seen this several times before, we know what is coming—and so line the railing. In no time it is on us; a "speed-boat" roars past, churning up the water at 40 to 50 miles an hour. I have never been able to find out—but she certainly "legs it" along all right, and makes an interesting diversion to the various "sights" of the Canal.

We have just passed a large Clan Line cargo boat tied into a "gare" to let us pass, and are now passing a very large Dutch Mail, also tied in a "gare" about half a mile from the Clan boat. There is a big crowd of passengers aboard, and amongst them many Dutch soldiers in khaki, wearing their unsightly "pot" sun helmets. They may be efficient from a sun point of view, but they look horrible—not, indeed, that any sun helmet can be made to look really "smart"—still they need not be quite so atrocious. As we pass only a few yards apart, the usual banner and waving takes place. A Dutchman says in perfect English: "Where are you going?"—and the answer goes back promptly: "To Batavia" (that is, of course, where the Dutch Mail is going to herself).

Now we are passing Kantara. My word, what a change from war time! During the war thousands and thousands of soldiers were in huts or under canvas here. Great stacks of munitions, and every conceivable thing were lying around, as Kantara was then the great supply depot, both of men and munitions for Palestine and other parts of the Eastern campaign. And what a sight it presented for some years after the war! Not a man to be seen. A pin could be heard fall—yet millions and millions of pounds worth of stuff was massed there. That after-war collection was a wonderful sight to see. Of railway engines alone there must have been a couple of thousand. Whilst ordinary rolling-stock, motor cars, and especially motor lorries were there in tens of thousands. For a few years after the war there appeared to be no attempt to deal with this mighty collection; then it began to disappear, and in the course of a year or so, all was gone. All the many wooden hutments and shanties have also disappeared. Nothing now remains of the mighty war camp, and Kantara is once again its peaceful self—consisting of a few dozen neatly kept bungalows and a small synagogue.

At each side of the Canal bank is a railway station, and the Canal is holloed out on both sides to receive the long pontoon, on which the Cairo-Palestine train is carried over.

Now, on the left a lot of water appears, and continues along right to Port Said. It goes by the dignified name of lake Menzaleh—but is in reality no more than a collection of water shallows, and sand banks of very irregular shape. In the distance can be seen Port Said—the three golden cupolas surmounting the fine building of the Canal Company, stand out conspicuously, and glitter in the sun. Some lofty buildings, mostly hotels, rear their heads, and funnels and masts are about.

As we enter Port Said we are surrounded by a crowd of motor launches that seem to vie with one another in earnestness of design and get up and they certainly succeed in these qualities and make a pretty picture darting about. Their one fault is, they seem to be continually getting in one another's way, with the result, the air is rent by frequent snarling hoots—quite out of keeping with their elegant appearance. Many of the launches are official ones—such as those of the port medical officers, pilots, etc. Others are owned by the various Shipping Companies whose ships regularly pass through the Canal; and others by agents—such as Cook, Grindlay, etc. A few are private launches. Rowing boats are to the fore and do a roaring trade carrying passengers ashore—especially as ships are moored to buoys quite close to the shore (not more than 50 yards); the charge each way, for each passenger is 5d. by day and 10d. after sunset. Fivepence for 50 yards—not bad!

On landing, many passengers make a B-line for Simon Arzt. Simon Arzt is the well-known emporium where one can buy anything from the proverbial needle to an anchor. Moreover, the establishment is popular owing to the reputation it has for allowing one to walk around unattended and inspect things at one's leisure. The bugbear of shopping at Port Said and Colombo is the way one is continually pestered with: "You buy this," "you buy from me"; "me very cheap." Such attention, of course, only drives one away.

On outward voyages little or nothing is bought at Port Said except sun-tops and prizes for deck game competitions, and perhaps a few ready-made washing suits. But on the homeward voyage you'd be surprised at the variety of things got. There seems to be a sort of sentimental feeling that the place is the last link with "the East," and so something must be bought. There is a fair selection of things to be had, consisting chiefly of tapestries, rugs, ladies' handbags, etc., which are undoubtedly, hand-made in Egypt and thereabouts—for the simple reason the "home" markets could not compete with the cheap Eastern labour. But unless experienced and know the "ropes," you may be "had" easily, and buy something "made in Birmingham."

What a change in Port Said compared with nearly 30 years ago when I first passed through! At that time it was a sort of international port, under no particular government, nobody's darling—and so one of the most lawless places in the world. Nobody would then dream of going ashore at night time unless in a party of at least four or five. To go alone was little short of suicide. Dens of iniquity, where men were drugged, robbed and murdered. Before the war a gradual improvement, but a very slow one, was taking place—but since the war the change is complete; and now Port Said is better run and well-conducted than the average sea-port town anywhere.

Instead of making a B-line for Simon Arzt, I generally make one for the strand, as it is an ideal place for a walk to stretch one's legs after the confinement of the ship. Along the north shore, facing the Mediterranean, there is a splendid stretch of firm sand, extending for miles, where even in the hottest months a breeze is assured. Here, too, it is interesting to watch the fishermen making "puts" with nets, much the same as one sees on Green Park Strand—with the difference that, whilst at home "puts" are made only at certain times of the year; here they are made every day, and all the year round. Incidentally these casts or "puts" give one an idea of how cheaply Eastern and semi-Eastern people can live, in that, a "put" is made by about 16 or 17 men—and the catches each time are ridiculously small. Though each boat makes several "puts," it is inconceivable how the amount caught can support 17 men and their families. Each catch consists of a few fish, which look like small "nags," a few dabs, stony-cobblers and jelly fish, and a few other species impossible to see, unless you happen to have a magnifying glass with you.

I have often seen Mr. Jimmy Manion turn his bunk inside out, rather than trouble to take aboard what it contained, though the catch would be three or four times as much as an average Port Said one. On one occasion I remember seeing poor Bill Keily take a dab and examine it, and then after Sammy Holmes had whispered something in his ear, with a toss of his head throw it away. Yet this dab, which Bill treated with such contempt would be twice or three times the size of an average Port Said one. Still they make "put" after "put"—I suppose it's the numbers that count. But even so, how can they get sale for such wretched collections? Needless to say, no "white man" would buy them. But as I said—it throws a light on how cheaply and simply Eastern people live.

But talking of fish and fishing reminds me of an incident of many years ago. When we were young we used often go at low spring tides to the old weir at the mouth of the Pill. In the pocket of the weir we used generally get some dabs, scad and small sprats. On one occasion we got several hundred scad—and to our joy saw swimming amongst them a nice peel of about six pounds weight. This was a great find—because in addition to getting a tasty fish there was the added glamour that we were now real poachers. "Some of the boys," in fact! As we loaded the fish into the boat we kept an eye on the Powers, who were at the mouth of the Pill cleaning their nets. All aboard, we pulled away for dear life, in true poacher fashion, and did not breathe comfortably until we beached the boat on the strand. We were resting on our oars and congratulating ourselves on the success of our morning effort—when, to our horror, the bailiffs, Jack Webster and Tom Graddy, appeared round Usher's Corner. We quickly covered the peel with the sea, tried to look as innocent as possible, and trusted they would pass on and take no notice. Nine times out of ten they would have done so—but as luck would have it, they not only came over to the boat, but Webster actually started picking up the scad and admiring them. Tom Graddy we didn't mind much; 'twas Jack Webster we feared. He had a deep musical voice—but in those days I don't think we appreciated the music of it much, on the contrary, its deepness, combined with the fine thick beard he wore, rather suggested to our youthful minds "Jack the Giant Killer."

We thought our last hour had come. We didn't mind our fish being confiscated, but the thought of "doing a month" each, sent cold shivers down our backs.

However, all's well that ends well—and they never spotted the peel.

Not since then have I eaten a fish I enjoyed so much as that peel!

YOUGHAL COW-TESTING ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Present—Messrs. G. O'Keefe, W. McCarthy, M. Smiddy, T. J. O'Hanlon, J. Hurley, J. Fitzgerald, M. S. Flavin, W. Monks, Instructor, and J. T. Murphy, Supervisor.

Owing to the absence of Mr. P. Kirk, chairman, Mr. G. O'Keefe was, on the motion of Mr. W. McCarthy, seconded by Mr. M. Smiddy, unanimously voted to the chair.

Letters were received from the Department, etc., which were duly dealt with.

The Supervisor submitted his annual report, which showed that with a membership of 15 and 245 cows, 161 cows completed their lactation periods as follows:—Six cows yielded under 3,000 lbs. of milk, 13 cows yielded over 3,000 lbs. of milk, 29 cows yielded over 4,000 lbs. of milk, 39 cows yielded over 5,000 lbs. of milk, 30 cows yielded over 6,000 lbs. of milk, 22 cows yielded over 7,000 lbs. of milk, 10 cows yielded over 8,000 lbs. of milk, 8 cows yielded over 9,000 lbs. of milk, 4 cows yielded 1,000 lbs. of milk. The average yields of these cows was 6,129 lbs. milk (565 gallons) with a test of 3.53 per cent., and 216.62 lbs. of butter-fat. The 10 best cows gave an average yield of 9,692 lbs. of milk (914 gallons), test, 3.59 per cent., and butter-fat, 366.89 lbs., and earned at the rate of 1s. 4d. per lb. for butter-fat, and 2d. per gallon separated milk, the sum of £30 0s. 5d. per cow. The most profitable uow in the Association, a non-pedigree Shorthorn, owned by Mr. T. J. O'Hanlon, Dysert, gave 11,088 lbs. of milk (1,073 gallons) with a test of 3.52 per cent., and 435.75 lbs. of butter-fat, calculated at 1s. 4d. per lb., and 2d. per gallon for separated milk, earned £38 19s. The worst cow gave 2,205 lbs. of milk (214 gallons) calculated at above sums, earned the amount of £5 17s. 6d., shows a difference of £31 1s. 6d. between the best and worst cows.

During the year I made 268 visits (morning and evening) to members, took 1,211 samples, which I duly tested and recorded. I may mention that I travelled 615 miles approximately for the year on official duty. Mr. McGuire, the Department's Inspector, held the annual inspection of cows and calves on the 21st May. Four cows were passed for registration to be included in the Department's register out of eight presented for examination. Mr. James Hinley of Knocknacally, was awarded first place with the prize of £1 from the Co. Cork Committee of Agriculture for the best cow, and Mr. G. O'Keefe, Brook Lodge, first place with the prize of £1 for the best heifer. Mr. J. Fitzgerald, McCurtainstown, second place and 10s. for second heifer.

Mr. Monks, Instructor, then addressed the members on the feeding and management of cattle generally, and paid a high tribute to the able manner in which the Supervisor had discharged the various duties imposed on him under the scheme during the past year, and the very great interest showed by him at all times for the welfare of the Association, which were second to none in the area over which he is Instructor. The Supervisor thanked Mr. Monks for the very flattering remarks respecting himself.

On the motion of Mr. W. McCarthy, seconded by Mr. T. J. O'Hanlon, a cordial vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Mr. Monks for his kind attendance and address. Mr. Monks replied. A letter was received from the Clerk to the Youghal Urban Council stating that the use of the Carnegie Free Library had been granted for the purpose of holding the meeting, at the same time stating that a deputation of his council were anxious to wait on the members of the Association to discuss the price of milk charged in the town. It was decided that as the Association had nothing to do with the prices of milk charged in this town, they see no good results could be derived by the deputation being heard. No deputation put in appearance.

New System of Grassland Management.

DEMONSTRATION AND LECTURE AT MOUNT MELLERAY.

On Thursday afternoon, 22nd inst., a most interesting and instructive demonstration and lecture on the advantages of the new system of grassland management introduced on the farm attached to the Agricultural College, Mount Mellerey, in 1927, were given by Mr. Owen O'Reilly, B.Sc. (Agr.), A.R.C.Sc.I., Tivoli House, Cork, Agricultural Adviser to Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., Dublin, who represents the company over the South-Western area of the Irish Free State.

The first experiment with this system was carried out at Mount Mellerey in 1927, in a large field of 44 acres which had been reclaimed from the bleak mountain at an altitude of 550 feet. The soil was of a peaty nature, cold and late; the herbage was poor, with Yorkshire fog prevalent, the better meadow grass and cocksfoot, while buttercups were numerous, and there were large patches of rushes, especially in the wettest places. The field was divided into six paddocks of equal size, which were separated with posts and wire fencing, and supplied with a large water trough between each two plots.

A preliminary dressing of 3 1/2 cwt. Semsol and 3 cwt. Kainit per acre was applied to the land in December, 1926, and the first dressing of Nitrogen was given as Sulphate of Ammonia on February 15th, 1927. Four paddocks had five dressings of Nitrogen during the season, one had four, and one had three similar dressings. Grazing commenced as early in 1927 as April 11th as compared with 15th in previous years, and continued until the end of October, during which long period there was always an abundant supply of fresh, sweet grass for the cattle. The number of cow-days obtained per acre was 312 or 0.58 acres per cow, equivalent for 181 days. The stock carried consisted of milking cows, dry cows and store stock, and during the season 417.7 gallons of milk were produced per acre. In 1926 the same field carried only eight cows from May 15th for 132 days or 1.8 acres were necessary to keep one cow, and in addition it was necessary to use catch crops as vetches to supplement the limited supply of grass. The stock-carrying capacity of the field was thus more than trebled in the first season under the new system, while the herbage was greatly improved, and there was a noticeable increase in the amount of clover. The cost of fertilizers, including the dressing of minerals, amounted to £4 1s. per acre, the capital charge for fencing and laying on water was £3 10s. 8d., and the annual charge for this on a ten years' basis amounted to about 7s. per acre; extra labour in harrowing, spreading manures, etc., 8s. per acre, making in all a total cost of £4 16s. per acre for applying the system. The returns per acre were 417 gallons of milk at 7d. per gallon, £29 3s. 3d., the increase in light weight (beef) of 7 cwt. or 1 cwt. per acre, £1 per acre, and the grazing of the dry stock valued at £1 5s. per acre, making a total of £4 8s. 3d. Against this must be deducted the cost of the system, £4 16s., together with the cost of concentrated food consumed during the period, £2 12s. 6d., or a total per acre of £7 8s. 6d. The difference between these two totals is £6 19s. 9d. for labour, rent and profit, as against £1 17s. 9d. per acre in the previous year. There was, therefore, a sufficient profit to wipe off the entire cost of the fencing and watering of paddocks in the first year, and still leave the owners in a better position than they were in under the old system at the end of the grazing system of 1926. The principal advantages claimed for the new system is that the cost of treatment of the land can be substantially reduced each year, while the quality of the grazing and the extended period during which it is available are altogether out of proportion to the overhead charges entailed. The paddocks at Mount Mellerey to-day are a striking and irrefutable confirmation of this claim, as they are now coated with a rich crop of the purest and most verdant pasture, and it will be a matter of great importance to farmers to know that this once poor field of over 14 acres is now producing such an amount of grass that one of the paddocks has been converted into a rich, waving meadow this year off which a heavy crop of hay will be cut next month.

As showing the vast improvement carried out in this field in 1927, the balance sheet for 1929 should prove of the greatest interest to all anxious to derive the fullest benefits under the new system. The expenditure per acre for last year was as follows:—Rent and rates, 17s. 6d.; fencing, 4s. 4d.; water costs, 1s. 8d.; manures, £3 15s.; labour, 11s. 8d.; foodstuffs, £3 7s. 9d. Total £23 17s. 11d. The returns per acre were—5,947 gallons of milk at 8d. per gallon from 44 acres—408 gallons per acre—£43 13s. 5d.; value of extra grazing, £1 4s. 31d. Total, £45 7s. 8d., leaving a credit balance of £26 9s. 9d. per acre.

In a word, the new system enables farmers who have adopted it: (1) To keep more cows and obtain more milk. (2) Provides extra grazing for dry stock. (3) Gives an earlier and later flush of grass, and (4) Enables farmers to reduce their cake bill very considerably.

The new system is being regularly carried out on the Mellerey farm in the most scientific manner by Rev. Bro. Carthage, who has a profound knowledge of practical farming in all its branches, and the large number of students attending the Agricultural College, which is a valuable adjunct to the famous Seminary so ably presided over by the Rev. Father Malachi, are extremely fortunate in having such an experienced and painstaking tutor in charge of this important branch of education.

Speaking at the annual Priza Day ceremonies at Mount Mellerey Seminary a few weeks ago, the Lord Abbot said that with regard to agriculture, this science had been in existence in their school for some years, and it was becoming a favourite subject with those students who intended to live on the land. They had a fair opportunity of those students devoting their time to acquiring a thorough knowledge of agriculture scientifically. In the agricultural department the system of intensive pasturage was giving real satisfaction. They had been practising it for the past three years, and it was making marked progress every year, with their pastures becoming greatly improved. Interesting experiments were carried out and instruction was being given in the most efficient and economical method of stock-raising and crop production.

In the course of his interesting lecture on Thursday Mr. O'Reilly explained in the most lucid manner every phase of the new system of grassland management, and his remarks were followed with the keenest and most intelligent interest by all the students of the Agricultural College present, as well as those from outside districts.

At the close Mr. O'Reilly invited questions from his audience on any points about which they were not quite clear, and many important questions were then asked by various parties, all of which were fully answered by Mr. O'Reilly and Mr. Buckley.

Those present then inspected the cattle grazing on the prepared plots, and were much struck with the healthy and finished appearance which they presented, which was an eloquent proof of the wonderful fattening pasturage provided under the new system. A large quantity of interesting literature dealing with the system was then distributed, after which the instructive proceedings ended.

LAND ANNUITIES.

LETTER FROM MR. M. O'RYAN, Co.C.

Dear Sir—I saw by the "Observer" of the 24th May where Dr. V. White laboured to show cause why the Free State are compelled to pay Land Annuities to England. The matter is that the opinion of six leading members of the Irish Bar (as lawyers) has been sought on this point by Fianna Fail, and the unanimous opinion of these six lawyers is that the Free State is legally entitled to hold the annuities and apply them towards the needs of the people of this country. Dr. White is vain enough to put his irresponsible lay opinion against the opinion of the lawyers. It is a sorry defence. What has the Government done to disprove the above-mentioned advice?

The Attorney-General is available. Why has not the Government put his opinion before the country? It is to be presumed that he should be consulted on all State matters where the Government are in legal doubt. Mr. Costelloe's advice has been obtained on this matter by the Government. Is it not clear to the meanest intelligence that if his opinion was favourable to the Government's contention it would have been given to the country long ago, but he has been significantly silent. Until he speaks contrawise to the opinion of the six lawyers it must be presumed that his opinion would not favour sending the annuities away. Dr. White's feeble denials to the contrary notwithstanding.—Sincerely yours, M. O'RYAN, Ballymacarbray, 26th May, 1930.

80,000 COPIES OF CO. WATERFORD PRELATE'S BOOK SOLD.

The publishers of Most Rev. Dr. Sheehan's "Apologetic and Catholic Doctrine" (Gill's, Dublin) announce in a note to a new edition of the book that since its first appearance in 1922 the record number of 80,000 copies have been sold. This is a striking proof of the excellence of the book. It is in use throughout the English-speaking Catholic world. Dr. Sheehan, who is a native of Waterford, is Coadjutor Archbishop of Sydney. He was the founder of Ring Irish College, Dungarvan.

Counsel—It seems to me wonderful how a mentally deficient man is so clever at robbing gas meters. We could not do it so easily.

DUNGARVAN URBAN COUNCIL

The weekly meeting of the above was held in the Town Hall, Dungarvan, on Friday last. Mr. J. Butler, chairman, presided. Also present were—Messrs. J. F. Moloney, D. Foley, J. Hackett, M. Griffin, Wm. O'Donnell and T. Power.

Keeping Down the Dust. Mr. Monahan, Hon. Sec. Feis Na nDeise, appeared before the meeting and asked the council to have the sprinkling cart put on the road to the Gaelic Field on Sunday to keep down the dust. The matter was referred to the Water Inspector to procure a water cart.

Children's Meals. Mr. O'Donnell—Some time ago we had a collection in aid of meals for necessitous school children, and I understood that the list of subscribers was to be published. Chairman—The matter was discussed here and the suggestion made, but there was no meeting of the Children's Health Committee since. The matter can be brought up here.

Payments. The following payments were passed:—General account, £12 9s. 5d.; harbour account, £3 18s.

Poundage. The council made an order to pay rate collector poundage on the amount of his (1929) warrants, which are now closed.

Acknowledgments. Letters thanking the council for resolution of sympathy passed to them were read from John Daniel, Kilrush; M. Morrissey, O'Connell st., and Pk. Walsh.

Rolling and Tarring Main Street. A letter was read from Mr. Bowen, County Surveyor, stating he would be ready to go on with the Main Street rolling at an early date. The men and plant will be put to work when available; purchase the necessary tar and other material on council's behalf, prepare the pay sheets and bills, certify same, and send them on to you for payment. It will be necessary to close the street in sections while the work is going on, and all concerned will have to find another way round. The fees I expect for this work will be £15 as arranged with your deputation. I shall be glad to have the council's approval of the several items referred to. The council approved of the letter.

New Housing Scheme. The following tenders were received for the erection of 13 new houses at Abbeyside containing four rooms:—C. S. Downey, O'Connell st., Waterford, £337 6s. 2d.; Michl. Murray and Sons, Youghal, £380 8s. 1d. per house for the Abbeyside houses. (Estimate of Borough Surveyor £281 10s.) For the building of six five-roomed houses at Mitchel st., Messrs. Downey's tender was £380 8s. 4d., and Messrs. Murray's tender £307 5s. 10d. per house. (Estimate £310). There was also an alternate plan of 10 houses for Mitchel street for which a tender was received Messrs. Murray, Youghal, for the sum of £381 18s. per house, the Borough Surveyor's estimate for this type being £250. Chairman—When we first decided to go on with this scheme we all agreed that unless we could have them built at a reasonable figure we would not go on with them. Mr. Griffin—Why not let the Borough Surveyor do it by direct labour within his estimate? Chairman—I suggest we adjourn the matter to next meeting. Mr. Hackett—The price is too high altogether. In reply to the Chairman, the Acting Clerk said the rent of the four-roomed houses would work out at 7s. 9d. per week and rates if the lowest tender was accepted. The matter was adjourned.

Report of S.S.O. The S.S.O. reported that the auctioneer (Mr. Hayes) sold all the manure at the auction on Tuesday last. The amount realised was £27 7s. 6d. Approved. The wheels of the scavenger's cart require repairs. Mr. Thos. Dawson, Mary street, complained that the drain from his premises is choked owing to a blockage in the main sewer. There is a break in the road at the Burgery opposite the premises of P. Maher. He had examined the water supply to Mr. Mee. Kiely's premises at Knockatemore. He was of opinion that it will be necessary to take up and clean about 90 yards of the main pipe at a probable cost of £8 or £7. The Inspector was directed to interview Mr. Kiely with a view to getting a contribution towards the cost.

THE FAMOUS HOUSE FOR FISHING TACKLE. In order to be a successful angler, it is necessary to pay attention to the selection of your Fishing Tackle. We have hundreds of Rods, Baskets, Reels, Trout Lines, Sea Lines, Hooks, Casts and Baits of every description in stock. Youghal Urban Council.

Present—Messrs. J. B. Smyth, P.C., Chairman, Capt. P. Dunne, D. Beane, E. Clancy, E. P. Lynch, T. Beausang, M. J. Fleming, M. D. Broderick, D. J. Linehan, J. Whelan, T. Whelan, J. Power, P. J. McMahon, P.C., T. Harrington, W. J. Broderick, P. J. O'Gorman, P.C.; J. Kennedy, Mrs. S. Hurley, A. J. Fowkes.

Chairman's Appeal.

The Chairman said before starting business he would ask them to try and conclude before 9.30 in accordance with the Standing Orders.

Mr. Harrington said things cropped up from time to time that required discussion. The Chairman said they had 1 1/2 hours to talk things out. That surely was long enough.

Mr. McMahon said if the Chairman enforced the rule that no member should speak more than once to the same matter, a lot of time would be saved.

The Strand.

A letter was received from the Strand Protection Association asking when would the repairs to the groyne be carried out. Was it not time to plant the marrum grass on the face of Claycastle as promised? The road from Moll Goggins' to the end of Claycastle was in bad repair and ought to be attended to before their visitors arrived. They asked the council to erect another water fountain for the children. It was time to appoint a permanent caretaker for the Strand.

Mr. Harrington said they were doing their best for the Strand. The Chairman said the Strand Association might rest assured that the council would do all they could for the place.

Anonymous Letter.

The Clerk said he had received an anonymous letter. Was he to read it? It was unanimously decided that it should be completely ignored.

Milk Tests.

The Veterinary Inspector submitted results of his test of six samples of milk. One was dirty. Mr. McMahon—What are we going to do about the dirty milk? The Clerk said the seller should be warned strongly. Mr. Harrington—Take drastic action. Mr. Dunne—How long is this farce to go on without legal proceedings? The Clerk was directed to notify the vendor that proceedings would be taken unless there was an immediate improvement.

A letter was received from the L.G. stating that any further legislation on the question of street hawking would be in the nature of an amendment to the Street Trading Act 1926. In the circumstances the Minister is communicating the views of the council to the Minister for Justice for his consideration.

The report of the committee appointed to draw up a statement in connection with the above question to be laid before the Minister of L.G. by a joint deputation of urban bodies was read and adopted on the proposition of Mr. McMahon, seconded by Mr. Whelan. Capt. Dunne asked who was to pay the expenses of the deputation. The Clerk said the council would pay.

Capt. Dunne said he would object to the ratepayers paying for joy rides in saloon carriages and champagne suppers (laughter). The Clerk said he had been on several deputations and anything outside travelling and hotel expenses came out of his own pocket.

Mr. O'Gorman controverted Capt. Dunne's insinuations in very strong language. The deputations went up to Dublin solely in the interest of the ratepayers and had done much more for them than ever Capt. Dunne would do with all his talk.

The Chairman said that deputations went up from Youghal when it was anything but safe to travel, by sea and otherwise, and they had done immense work for the ratepayers. He had never seen or heard of champagne suppers till then. Would Capt. Dunne tell them when or where did they take place? Capt. Dunne—They are to come (laughter).

During the discussion a remark of Mr. Harrington regarding Captain Dunne, whom he was supporting, created a noisy scene with shouts of "withdraw." Mr. Harrington said a wrong construction was put on his remark.

Ferry Coxswain.

There were six applications for the position of coxswain of the ferry boat. On a poll Mr. Geary received 10 votes to 3 for P. Mahony, 2 for J. Mulcahy, 2 for M. Troy and 2 for W. Nunn. Geary having a clear majority over all the others, was declared appointed.

Milk and Meat.

Mrs. Hurley said the milk deputation fell through. Could they not do something about it? A suggestion was made that they should communicate with the Milk Vendors' Association.

Mr. Lynch said he saw that the price of milk at Fermoy was 1s. 4d. per gallon. Supplying creameries was a different matter altogether. He moved that no action be taken. Mr. M. Broderick seconded. Mrs. Hurley proposed that the prices of milk and meat be brought down. They were scandalous.

Mr. McMahon—Stick to the milk. The Clerk said the council had no authority on that question. Mrs. Hurley said it was their duty to help the poor. The Chairman said they could only make a pious request.

Mr. Clancy objected to the council interfering in the milk and meat prices. They had enough to do without becoming a sort of Control Board.

Mr. Broderick said competition always regulated prices. Mr. Dunne seconded Mrs. Hurley. It would ease the minds of the people if a deputation met the Milk Vendors' Association and discussed matters with them.

On a poll there voted:— For taking action—Messrs. Harrington, Dunne, Mrs. Hurley—4. Against—Messrs. McMahon, Kennedy, Power, O'Gorman, Whelan, Linehan, M. Broderick, Fowkes, Fleming, Beausang and the Chairman—11. Did not vote—Messrs. Murphy and W. J. Broderick.

Mr. W. J. Broderick said they came there to do the business of the town, not to trot out every little grievance. What that country suffered from was a superabundance of officials, active and pensioned amongst them retired members of the R.I.C., whose pensions had been measured not by their years of service, but by their loyalty to the British Government. He moved that they call on the Government to revise those pensions.

Mr. Dunne said Mr. Broderick—Mr. Broderick—Move an amendment. Mr. Dunne moved an amendment—he was not concerned at all. His retiring allowance was not paid by the Free State Government.

Clerk—You move an amendment that Mr. Broderick's proposition also includes the ex-R.I.C. pension by the Free State Government.

Mr. Dunne—Talk about waste of time! Mr. Harrington seconded Mr. Dunne's amendment.

Mr. Murphy—What has this Government to do with us? Mr. M. Broderick—What have the meat and milk to do with us?

Mr. Harrington (rising)—I'll leave. I have enough of it (laughter). Mr. Murphy—If the pensioners were taken out of Youghal it would be a bad job for the place.

Chairman—That is one of our chief industries. Mr. W. J. Broderick—As mover of the motion, if you rule all irrelevant matters out, I am prepared to withdraw.

Mrs. Hurley said the council brought up the question of the reduction of the price of bread.

Mr. O'Gorman said it was absolutely ridiculous to divide the meeting on such questions. He suggested that both the proposition and amendment be withdrawn.

Mr. Broderick repeated that if the Chairman ruled out all irrelevant matters he was prepared to withdraw.

After some further discussion the matter dropped. It was now 9.30, and, on the proposition of Mr. McMahon, the Standing Orders were suspended.

Ladies' Lavatory.

The Clerk said that the committee appointed met Mr. Barrett on the question of the site for the ladies' cloakroom on the Strand were informed that the site had been valued by Mr. J. Condon at £100. The whole site measured 0'11" x 3'11". A space of 5'1" x 25" would meet their requirements and the committee offered £20 for it. Mr. Barrett said his minimum price for the whole site was £75.

Mr. McMahon proposed that until the legally completed agreement between Mr. Barrett and the original owners of the site be placed on the table, they go no further in the matter. Mr. Power seconded.

Mr. M. Broderick suggested an alternative site, but it did not meet with approval. Mrs. Hurley proposed that they go on with the legal proceedings.

Mr. Broderick proposed that the committee appointed investigate the whole question and report to the council.

Mr. Clancy seconded. Mr. McMahon—My proposition is before the council. Clerk—That is unanimous.

The matter was therefore left to the committee and the proposed legal proceedings adjourned.

Gas Report.

The Gas Committee submitted a report recommending the employment of a competent fitter by the Gas Manager, the present fitter to work under him. The report was unanimously adopted.

Holidays.

Mr. Whelan said the vacation season was now setting in, and he suggested that the Town Clerk should communicate with city and other firms pointing out the suitability of Youghal for holidays.

This was unanimously agreed to.

24,400 COLT WINS THE DERBY.

Blenheim, owned by H. E. Prince Agha Khan, won the Derby on Wednesday. Blenheim was sired by Blandford, who stands at Mr. Dawson's Stud, Co. Dublin, and was purchased as a yearling by the Agha Khan for £4,100. Tied by Swynford was 2nd, and the favourite, Diolite, by Diophon, 3rd. 17 ran. Time for the race (1 1/2 miles), 2 mins. 38.15th secs.

SALE OF DUNGARVAN BUSINESS HOUSE. On Tuesday Hayes and Sons put up for sale for Miss Hefferman, Main street, her fee-simple business house. The highest bidder at the sale was Mr. T. C. Williams, solr., at £610, but as the reserve was not reached, the sale was withdrawn, but later the premises were purchased by Mr. Williams, solr., in trust for Miss Colender, Modeligo. Mr. E. A. Ryan, solr., had carriage of Sale.

REMAINED IN CUSTODY.

On Monday Wm. Flynn, Home Rule street, Abbeyside, and M. Duggan, ex-soldier, Mitchel street, Dungarvan, were arrested on a most serious and unprintable charge, and on Tuesday they were brought before Mr. Murphy, P.C., and remained in custody to Waterford Jail until Wednesday next, when they will be charged before Mr. Troy, D.J.

BALLROAD AMATEUR DRAMATIC CLASS. The Ballroad Amateur Dramatic Class will produce a fine 3-act comedy entitled "The Rising Generation," at Kilgoinet Hall on Sunday night, June 8th, at 8.30 p.m. (old time). Admission (including tax), 1s. 3d.

BLIGHT.

Potato blight has made its appearance this week at Ballinacourty, and farmers are advised to spray their crop early and often so as to nullify the disease.

SHIPPING EARLY POTATOES.

During the past week early potatoes are being dug at Ballinacourty and consigned to various markets at home and across Channel. The yield as might be expected is not too heavy, and the price this week works out at about £12 per ton, which is rather low for this part of the season.

DUNGARVAN SHOW—THURSDAY, JULY 17th.

To-day we publish the statement of accounts of last year's Show, and considering the heavy expenses incurred in the running of such a fixture, the balance to credit is not bad. The committee have spared no expense in catering for every section of the agricultural community, and this year they are going still further and mean to make the Dungarvan Show even better than in the past. Prize Lists and Entry Forms are now ready, and all intending exhibitors should at once apply for same, so that their entries may reach the Secretary in time. In the past Show Day has been the day of days in the county, and July 17th this year will be more—it will be a carnival of sport and pleasure, education and leisure: a day to be looked forward to and afterwards to remember. In other words, a day that will make you twice glad, and that is a tonic in a troublesome world. Already queries are being received about the Jumping Competitions from long distances—'ok, but they know that the horse that wins a bracket at Dungarvan can safely be shown anywhere. Remember June 28th is the last day for entries.

POTATO BLIGHT.

Spray early and spray twice and make sure your potato crop will be free from this terrible disease. Prevention is better than cure. Crops properly sprayed with my special spraying powder are not only free from disease, but give an increased yield, the value of which is far out of proportion to the small extra expense incurred. Made up in 10, 20 and 40 lbs. bags; also stocked Pure Powdered Sulphate of Copper and Soda Crystals, Sprayers and Sprayer Parts.

MANURES.

Small quantities of the following to be cleared for the turnip crop. Superphosphate, Sulphate of Ammonia, best Special Manure and 40 per cent. Slag.—John J. Crotty, Square, Dungarvan.

DUNGARVAN MARKETS.

Meal (special), 21s. 6d.; middiecut, 21s. 2d.; 2796, 3rd; 3196, 4th; 6378, 5th; 1363, 6th; 3000, 7th; 2610, 8th; 2187, 9th. The possessors of winning tickets can obtain their prizes at Monastery on producing duplicates.

DRAWING OF PRIZES AT MONASTERY, DUNGARVAN.

The winning numbers were—178, 1st; 3190, 2nd; 2796, 3rd; 3196, 4th; 6378, 5th; 1363, 6th; 3000, 7th; 2610, 8th; 2187, 9th. The possessors of winning tickets can obtain their prizes at Monastery on producing duplicates.

AN EXILE'S RETURN.

Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald, nephew of Mr. Richard Fitzgerald, Killrossera, and son of the late Thos. Fitzgerald, Town Clerk, Dungarvan, who has been for years associated with the New York Police Force, is coming home to the old land for a well-learned rest. Prior to leaving he was entertained by the members of the Business Men's Club at which farewell speeches were delivered and songs sung. Mr. Fitzgerald, who is known as "the Irish thrush," rendered several well-known vocal selections. Reporting the evening's fun the "Brooklyn Central" says: "To bring the evening to a climax the guest of honor was presented with a Gladstone bag by his friends and everybody went home sober." Mr. Fitzgerald has in his day met and defeated some of the finest handball players in America.

STRAND PALACE, YOUGHAL.

As will be seen by our advertising columns, the Whitsun week-end will be a gay time at Youghal Strand, where the famous Strand Palace will afford visitors a splendid opportunity of winding up their holiday with a perfect "Jolly Night." Dance and music of first-class order within sight and scent of the bracing briny can be had ad lib.

Can you sing or play any instrument? Now is your opportunity to become an artist on the parlaphone records. Gramophone records will be made in Dublin. Not later than June 10th send your application to Moloney's Store, Dungarvan. Only Irish talent accepted.

STEAMROLLING MAIN STREET.

We understand that Mr. Bowen will proceed forthwith to tar-macadam the Main street, and in doing so we hope he will also include Friary street and Emmet street to the Parish Church gate. That done, the town will be quite presentable.

DERBY SWEEP.

National Commercial Club Derby Sweep has been postponed to the Irish Derby.

Confirmation in Dungarvan

ADDRESS BY HIS LORDSHIP MOST REV. DR. HACKETT.

On Sunday last His Lordship Most Rev. Dr. Hackett visited Dungarvan and administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to the Children of the Mercy and Presentation Convent Schools, St. Augustine's Seminary, Christian Brothers' Schools and Glen-Christ and Carriglea Schools. The spacious church was thronged in every part, a number of seats being reserved for the children to be confirmed—the girls at one side and the boys at the other. All were neatly attired, the girls looking remarkably nice in their white dresses and veils. His Lordship the Bishop presided at the Mass, which was celebrated by Rev. L. Egan, C.C. The other priests present were—Very Rev. M. C. Crotty, P.P., Abbeyside; Rev. M. Hearne, C.C.; Rev. P. F. McGrath, C.C. A special choir under the direction of Miss Boyle, organist, rendered the sacred music.

HIS LORDSHIP'S ADDRESS.

After Mass His Lordship Most Rev. Dr. Hackett ascended the pulpit and addressed the congregation. He said they all regretted the indisposition of their pastor, the Very Rev. Canon Furlong, and he hoped that God would spare him for active life for some years, and he firmly believed that his work in the parish would live when they had all passed away. But they must only bow to the inscrutable will of God, and pray for the welfare of Canon Furlong. He was one of the most active priests of the diocese, and he hoped that God would give him the grace he needed in his suffering. The visit he paid here, His Lordship said, did him good, for it taught him the lessons of Christian patience and Christian resignation. And they could rest assured that though he is not able to move about he takes a deep interest in all that they were doing. His sufferings he offers to God for his spiritual salvation. It was a great consolation to him to find that they had in the parish such a devoted body of priests, and it would be ungenerous of him not to pay, as he did, the very highest tribute to their work and to their devotion to the flock entrusted to their care. Between the clergy and the flock there existed the most affectionate relations, and he thanked them for their co-operation in carrying out the improvements to the church. He referred to the Augustinian Fathers and the other priests, and thanked them for giving their help to every good work; and as their Bishop he wished to express his thanks to them.

His visitation was nearly completed so far, but his work began with the reception given to the Nunzio by the people of Waterford, of which he felt so proud, and about which he could not express his feelings, which reflected so much glory on the people, and of which His Excellency was gratified beyond measure; and the evening he spent with him in the Bishop's house he could not cease from speaking about it and of the genuine devotion of the people and of their loyalty to the one he represented, His Holiness Pius XI. And even that manifestation would have been on a far larger scale were it not that the people interpreted the wishes of His Excellency, but he saw the loyalty and devotion that existed, not only in the City of Waterford, but in every parish in the united diocese. He was proud to be able to say that the reports he had received from every side were worthy of congratulation. So far as the schools were concerned, they had even surpassed themselves, and to his mind they were above what they had been. He had nothing but praise for the work that is being done, and he was sure their work would bring God's blessing on them. Everything must crumble, and hence it was that expenses must be incurred, and he thanked the people for their contributions to the needs which were required. He saw how everyone contributed his little, a penny or sixpence a week, and this helped what was necessary. "A cup of cold water given in My name would not be forgotten," and he could assure them that such would be given back a hundred fold. He had every reason to be grateful to Almighty God for the position in which he had placed him, and he prayed God's blessing would come to them all, and he gave them all his blessing, and he prayed that it might enter their homes and fill their hearts with the choicest blessing that Almighty God may give. He asked them to cling to the old faith in all its simplicity, that no new-fangled ideas would disturb them in any way. They would all pass away, and one great man said that "all is vanity" except that of serving God, not striving to gratify with the pleasures of this world, for so far, it is only by serving God that one can be happy.

His Lordship then administered the Sacrament of Confirmation, after which he gave Benediction of the Most Holy Sacrament, and bestowed his blessing on the congregation.

Blackwater Fisheries.

The usual monthly meeting of the above was held in the Devonshire Arms Hotel, Lismore. Present—Messrs. J. Kenned, chairman; E. A. Rice, solr., vice-chairman; Capt. Dunne, W. Baldwin, J. Kent, Major Langfield, B. Meagher, E. C. Penrose, Capt. R. Holroyd Smyth. Messrs. T. Drohan, Secretary and Inspector, and W. Buckley, Assistant Inspector, were also in attendance.

Banteer and Mallow Hatchery. A letter was received from the Department approving of the proposed expenditure on repairs to the Banteer and Mallow hatchery.

Bailiffs. The Department wrote approving of the appointment of certain bailiffs on the understanding that they should reside in the district to which they were appointed. The men in question were given a month to comply with the requirements of the Department.

Condemned Fish. A letter was received from the Department stating that three fish sent from the district (Fermoy)—one a salmon in spawn and two spent salmon—had been seized and destroyed by the Dublin Market Authorities. Special vigilance should be exercised next spring to see that such cases were detected at their source and prosecutions instituted.

Replying to Mr. Rice, the Secretary said that it was the Minister only who had power to revoke the license.

Chairman—Would you pass a resolution calling on the Minister to revoke this license? Could we not prosecute?

Major Longfield—What do they mean by "special vigilance"? We can't watch every fish sent up.

Mr. Rice—That is what they ask you to do. The fish could be examined to see if there are any marks of netting, and if so they could be seized under the Act.

Mr. Kent said it was quite possible that such marks might be got in the nets below.

Capt. Dunne agreed with Mr. Kent. The fish often broke through the nets. They must have control over the licensed buyers, otherwise the fishery would suffer seriously.

Major Longfield said many hotels and boarding-houses he knew bought fish. They ought to be compelled also to keep a register.

The Clerk said a fisherman could sell his lawful capture to whom he pleased.

Mr. Rice said he would like to see it done, but he thought it would lead to abuses.

After further discussion Mr. Rice proposed—"That the Minister of Fisheries be asked to pass a by-law for the Lismore No. 4 District suspending the license of every rod angler convicted of an offence under the Fishery Acts and prohibiting Boards of Conservators from issuing new licenses to such offenders again."

This was seconded by Mr. Kent and passed unanimously.

Monthly Report. Ganger Neill, Youghal, reported a considerable falling off had taken place in the catches of salmon in the lower reaches of the river and bay. On the 27th April he seized a fixed engine 45 yards long at Pilsparck. At midnight on the 11th May they observed a boat put off to sea from Youghal quays. They followed them inshore at Knockaverry. The men put out a net. Bailiffs Ellis and Sweeney entered the water and secured the end of the net. They hauled most of it into the Strand. They were hauling boat and men ashore when the latter cut the net and pulled away in the darkness, leaving 145 yards of net in the bailiff's possession. On the 22nd May he killed one seal at Cavan Point. On the 23rd May he seized three nets measuring 240, 187 and 60 yards at Redbarn. The boats using them fled on their approach over the bar rocks at Pilmore, where he was unable to follow in the launch. They made good their escape. On the 27th he killed one seal and one otter at Ardoe.

The Chairman said the report was very satisfactory.

The Clerk said he had also received reports from the bailiffs at Ardsallagh and Villerstown, who had captured a number of "cribbles."

Suggested By-law. Mr. Rice, in accordance with notice, proposed—"That the Minister of Fisheries be asked to pass a by-law making it an offence for any person or persons found in a pleasure boat or fishing boat in the fresh water portion of the Blackwater between the hours of 12 midnight and 6 a.m., unless such persons can prove to the satisfaction of a Court of Summary Jurisdiction that he, she or they are on such river for a legitimate purpose."

This was seconded by Major Longfield and passed unanimously.

Finance of Preservation. Replying to the Chairman, the Secretary said they had a balance of £900 to their credit, and there was about £150 arrears outstanding.

The Chairman said they ought conserve their funds as much as possible with a view to protecting the river adequately during the spawning season. Could they not dispense with some of the bailiffs now? How were the arrears of rates coming in?

The Secretary said satisfactorily, but he had much difficulty in getting at some of those who had left.

Chairman—We have not looked to the visiting fishermen for rates—have we?

The Clerk said they had.

Major Longfield said it seemed to him they ought not look to the visitors for rates. The people responsible, to his mind, were those who let the fishing, whatever private arrangement was between them. The present method gave a lot of unnecessary work to their Secretary and Inspector.

The Chairman thought the occupiers rather than the visitors were liable.

It was decided to keep on the present staff of bailiffs till next month.

Place of Meeting. The Secretary said there were two notices of motion regarding the future place of meeting—one by Mr. Power that all the meetings be held at Tallow and the other by Mr. Rice, that they be held alternately at Tallow and Ballyduff.

In Mr. Power's absence, Capt. Dunne proposed, and the Chairman seconded, Mr. Power's notice of motion for Tallow.

Mr. Rice proposed, and Mr. Baldwin seconded, Ballyduff and Lismore. After some discussion both propositions were withdrawn and the Standing Orders suspended.

It was then proposed by Mr. Rice, seconded by Capt. Dunne, and passed unanimously—"That the meetings be held alternately at Youghal, Tallow and Lismore."

Election Suggestions. In accordance with notice, Major Longfield proposed—"That the Department be approached with a view to altering the law governing the election of Conservators in the following respects—(1) That riparian owners who paid a rate of £2 or more be entitled to a vote. (2) That the date of the election be altered from October to April or May to enable visiting and other anglers to vote, or failing this, that they have the power to vote by proxy. (3) That the voting be by secret ballot."

The Chairman asked could they deal with those matters as they were fixed by Acts of Parliament.

The Clerk said the Act fixed the election for October, and there was no provision entitling riparian ratepayers to vote.

Mr. Rice said they should ask the Minister to get an Act passed to deal with the points.

Mr. Kent proposed that all payers of rates to the Board get a vote and that the voting be open as hitherto.

Mr. Rice—I think open voting is the greatest rot I ever saw.

Mr. Kent said that cast as aspersion on their sporting friends. The man who had not the courage of his convictions was a poor member of Society.

Mr. Rice said a large percentage of the people would not vote at an election if it were not by ballot.

Major Longfield said the open voting system was not in vogue elsewhere. Why should they carry out their elections differently to others?

Mr. Kent said that was a small domestic business like a Ltd. Co., and as long as they did their duty the voters would vote for them. He had never seen any intimidation.

Mr. Rice said the presence of some men at the voting might influence the voters.

Chairman—Did you see anything illegal at the last election?

Mr. Rice—No, absolutely no.

Mr. Kent—This Board is immune from politics anyway. Did you see any intimidation or undue influence at the last election?

Major Longfield—I am not making any such suggestion.

On a poll there voted—
For ballot voting—Capt. Smyth, Major Longfield, Messrs. Rice and Penrose—4.
For open voting—Capt. Dunne, Messrs. Kent, Meagher, Baldwin and the Chairman—5.

On the proposition of Mr. Kent, seconded by Mr. Meagher, a vote was passed in favour of all fishery ratepayers being entitled to a vote.

Major Longfield withdrew the point regarding the date of election and the proxy vote.

The Weirs. Major Longfield gave a lengthy and interesting account illustrated by photographs of his inspection of the Fermoy and Clondulane weirs, and said he hoped to take soundings, etc., at the Lismore weir soon. At Fermoy he had lifted the old sluice above the millrace, with the result that a big accumulation of stuff was washed down, leaving the place free in 20 minutes, and now salmon had an absolutely free run up. The timber was quite sound, but the iron required repairs calculated to cost about £20. He would also recommend the erection of a protective fencing to cost £15.

The Chairman said Major Longfield deserved their best thanks for all the trouble he had gone to in that matter (hear, hear). The Major would have his support in his endeavours to improve that important fishery.

Several members having expressed their concurrence in the Chairman's remarks,

Major Longfield thanked them for their kind remarks. Having pointed out that a sum of £75 had been allocated for the improvement of the Fermoy weir, he suggested that they should ask the sanction of the Department to an expenditure of some £40 on the works referred to.

This was unanimously agreed to.

Feis na nDeise.

BIG DAY IN DUNGARVAN. SUCCESSFUL FIXTURE.

On Sunday last in glorious weather and before a large attendance, Feis Na nDeise was held in the Gaelic Field, Dungarvan, and was most successful from every angle. The entries received in the several competitions were very good and the standard of the language tests was remarkably high, so high, in fact, that in many cases the adjudicators were unable to decide between the merits of competitors. The singing, dancing, recitations, etc., were followed with the keenest interest, as all present possessed a good knowledge of the mother tongue, and so were able to thoroughly enjoy the feast provided. The holding of one Feis for the city and county was a great advantage, as it brought out all that was best in the whole wide area. The Feis was in charge of a committee of experts with An Fear Mhor chairman and Sean Muineachain as hon. sec., and a more capable man never officiated as hon. sec. or one who devoted himself more wholeheartedly to the cause. There was an interesting football match played between Dungarvan and De La Salle, but the visitors were no match for the home team, who won as they liked to the tune of 5 goals 2 points to 1 goal 4 points. Keohan, Parsons and O'Mahony did the scoring for Dungarvan. St. Joseph's Boys' Club, Waterford, gave a very finished display of Swedish drill, which evoked much praise from the attendance.

FR. KELLEHER'S ADDRESS.

The Feis was opened by the Very Rev. J. Kelleher, President St. John's College, who was assisted on the platform by the Very Rev. M. C. Crotty, P.P., Abbeyside; Dr. V. J. White, T.D.; Liam Rafus, D. Connolly and An Fear Mhor.

Having first spoken in Irish, Fr. Kelleher said—Although I have no great knowledge of Irish, I would be very glad to prepare a speech and deliver it here if I thought it would do much good. But it could not, for there is no need to speak to the people who understand Irish. It is the people who are not in favour of Irish or are prepared to be in favour of it that need encouragement at present. After all the Gaelic League movement is not intended for people who can speak Irish—it is intended for the people of Ireland—who have love for their country and its traditions in their hearts, to work together for the sake of that common country. I wish I could inspire you with an idea of what it would mean for us all if we could all be inspired with the spirit of our country and our country's language. For some time and for one reason or another we hear a lot of pessimism and despondency in this country. We find fault with this thing and that thing, and no one, most of all those who are inclined to find fault, realise that they can do something to remedy things, and never can we do anything to raise up our country until we get something to give us a sense of interest in our country and a sense of unity with one another. It is for that reason I attach such importance to the language movement in this country. It is the one thing above all others that will make us realise we are all Irishmen, and if we want Irishmen to be happy we must work together for the uplifting of our common country. If we haven't such a thing as the language to bring home to us our unity and common interest we can make no headway. I look to the language to show us that, if we want to be happy, we must work for the country as a whole, and when the country is prosperous, then we can all hope to share in that prosperity. But unless we have interest in the country as a whole, then no one can prosper.

Nor was it a question of the language merely. As the language it may be very little. We may know it, speak it, and write, but if our hearts are not converted with it, it would be very little use. It is not the language we want, but what it symbolises and enshrines—devotion to our country. Therefore, I can appeal with confidence to the people who do not know the language, the good we hope to accomplish through the language is done before we know the language at all—done when the people get together and resolve to get back the language. It is the spirit, the tradition, the glory and common feeling of what the language stands for, that means everything. Do not be kept out of the movement for any reason. Even if you do not know the language you could do good for your country. The question may be asked—What could you do? It was easy enough some years ago to help by merely joining the classes and studying the language. That won't do now, because that work is being done excellently in the schools. If it were merely a question of the language we could leave it to the schools. It is a question of getting the language into the life of the country and that is where the Gaelic League comes in. The revival and re-organisation of branches of the Gaelic League are keenly desired. Personally I don't think we can do much in that direction at present, but if the people believe in the importance of the language for the country and for the traditions, the faith and the culture of the country, then, whether they speak Irish or whether they do not, they will come and find out what they can do to help.

My humble suggestion would be this, that in the various centres of this county, the men and women who have the national interests of their country at heart, would get together and see what they could do to develop an Irish spirit. They cannot confine themselves to working Irish classes. If they get a Gaelic League Committee together and get to work in organising Irish amusements, Irish music, Irish songs, etc., then the beginning will be made. Then you will find that the people who do not know Irish will be able to lend a hand and the people will be brought together, and if brought together with a common purpose, you may be sure they will learn to love one another, delight in working with one another, and the country will advance towards a truly Irish and Catholic Ireland (applause).

An Fear Mhor also spoke in Irish.

PEACE WITH HONOUR.

The Thoroughbred Stallion Chestnut Horse, PEACE WITH HONOUR is by (about) famous racehorse, General Peace, by Gallinule by Isomy, dam Troublesome by Ben Battle out of Imarora by Lotharis. Imarora was also dam of the winner of the Liverpool Cup (See Stud Book, Vol. 11, p. 832).

PEACE WITH HONOUR was a horse of brilliant speed. As a 3-year-old he won the Whip Plate, carrying 12 lbs. at the Curragh April Meeting. He won his first race, the Non Handicap, at Limerick Meeting—11 runners which included the great racehorses Ballynatty, Paed, Gerard, Golden Jubilee, etc.

After this he was sent to Wymondham for £1,000 to lead The White Knight in his work and Cup Races in the Liverpool Autumn Cup, value £1,000.

His own races in England as a three-year-old (13 runners) he finished close up with the placed horses, level weights, with 1st and 3rd, and conceded 1st, 9 lbs. to 2nd, 12 lbs. to 3rd, one of the best long-distance horses in England, and having behind him Foxon, etc. As a 4-year-old he was a pace-maker for The White Knight, and broke down in the race for the Goodwood Cup. He would have won this race without a doubt had not his jockey forced matters too soon.

His produce have won leading prizes at all principal Shows, including Rathfrum, at which a yearling filly by a foal by him won 1st Prize in their respective classes; and at Gorey Show 1st Prizes were awarded to his yearling and 2-year-old Fillies. A hunter by him also won 1st Prize at the Royal Show.

PEACE WITH HONOUR stands 16½ hands and measures 9 ins. under the knee. Terms—Thoroughbred Mares £7; Groom's Fee 5s.; Gentlemen's Mares £5; Groom's Fee, 5s.; Nominated Mares at Fees fixed by the County Committee and £1; Groom's Fee, 2s. 6d.; Farmers' Mares, £3 3s.; Groom's Fee, 3s.

This horse will stand at Owner's Stables, Kilmachomas, within 3 miles of Cappoquin and Lismore, and one mile from Camphire Bridge. Every care will be taken of Mares, but Owner will not be responsible for accidents. Season ends 1st July. All money to be paid on or before September 1st, 1929.

For further particulars apply to JAMES WILKINSON, Kilmachomas, Lismore.

THE LATE MR. WM. HODNETT.

SOLICITOR, YOUGHAL.

By the death of the late Mr. Wm. Hodnett, solr., Youghal has lost her grand old man and Ireland a sterling son, whose patriotism was based on a more solid foundation than la haute politique. Of an unusually kindly and charitable disposition, he was representative of the best traditions of his profession, and these gentlemanly characteristics made themselves easily evident in all his relations, public and private. The late venerated Dean Keller on a noted occasion said of him that he would as soon doubt his own life as he would the word of that gentleman (Mr. Hodnett) and a personal and business experience of nearly half a century justifies the assertion that he was all through unchanged and unchangeable.

The late Mr. Hodnett was born in Youghal, 7th June, 1848, being son of the late Mr. Jeremiah Hodnett, solr. Going to Trinity College, Dublin, he graduated at the early age of 19 in the same subjects as his father had done, being moderator in logic and ethics.

After some years spent in America, he was admitted solicitor in 1878, and became a member of the firm founded by his father, well-nigh a century ago. He was thus in time to assist in the closing stages of the celebrated Blackwater Fishery Case—a suit brought by the Duke of Devonshire against the fishermen in which the firm acted for the latter. This case eventually went to the House of Lords.

In 1889, upon the death of his father and in succession to him, deceased was appointed Law Adviser to the Youghal Town Commissioners, thus continuing a professional connection of more than usual interest, for the late Mr. Jeremiah Hodnett had been the first Catholic since the Reformation to hold the combined offices of Town Clerk and Law Adviser to the old and historic Corporation of Youghal.

On the passing of the Local Government Act, 1898, Mr. Hodnett was appointed solicitor to the newly-established bodies—the Youghal Urban District Council, the Rural Councils Nos. 1 and 2, and the Board of Guardians. The recent legislation has effected the abolition of some of these bodies, the deceased continued down to his death to hold the positions of Law Adviser to the Youghal Urban Council and Youghal Harbour Commissioners.

For many years he was prominently identified with the political and municipal life of his native town, and on many occasions he acted as election agent for the late Capt. A. J. C. Donelan, M.P. His work on behalf of the Ponsonby tenants during the celebrated Plan of Campaign, which finally undermined the iniquitous power in the hands of unscrupulous landlords, will be still gratefully remembered by some of the older generation. And in those stirring times his conduct of the defence in a case under the Coercion Acts brought him a tribute from the great Liberal Statesman, William Edward Gladstone, who referred to him by name during a momentous debate in the British House of Commons.

He was the last of the Old School, which included the late Messrs. Richard Carey, William Broderick, Michael Kennedy, T. V. Farrell and others, whose services and practical support were ever ready to push forward any project for the benefit of their native town, such as the Strand Protection Works, the Tourist Traffic, the Blackwater Steamer Service, the Amusement Committee, etc., and their names figured at the head of every subscription list for charitable or other good objects.

Although out of the running for some time owing to advancing years, he retained his old interest in the genuine welfare of his town and country to the end.

He leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter to mourn his loss.

STYLE. is something new in children's Shoes. No child really liked the ugly shoes that once were worn. But that day has passed, and now, at moderate prices, children—as well as ladies—may have Tor Brand Shoes full of charm and character. From the latest ideas new styles have been fashioned to give joy and pleasure to their wearers. WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE.

POST ORDERS. You can safely order your Footwear from Fennessy's by post. It is sent carriage paid. You can pay postman on delivery if desired. Simply send size usually worn, or sketch outline of stocking foot, drawn with pencil held upright. The utmost care will be taken to send just what you require, and money will be returned in full if not satisfied. Single shoes sent on approval anywhere.

HEALTHY CHILDREN. romp about and kick their feet in mud and dirt, testing the quality of their Shoe materials in a way no grown-up ever does. So in children's Shoes only the best materials may be used. Tor Brand Shoes are made of thoroughly reliable materials and have for years been noted for their wear throughout the trade.

REPORT.

THE FOLLOWING IS THE REPORT RECEIVED FROM THE ANALYST TO WHOM WE SENT OUR POLISH ON TEST:—

"We have tested the Polish sent us and are glad to say that your product is exceptionally good and suitable in every way, which is owing to the fact that the Polish has been prepared by taking a high-grade raw material and by use of pure polish oil.

"We have applied the Polish and find that only a very small quantity is necessary in order to obtain a particularly lustrous and durable surface. We further find that your Polish preserves and gives a brilliant and fine colour."

The original of the above can be seen at any time.
