DUNGARVAN URBAN COUNCIL.

Mr. J. Butler, Chairman, presided at the meeting of the above on Friday last. Also present—Messrs. Moloney, O'Donnell, Hackett, Clancy, McCarthy, Power, Griffin, and Keane.

Payments. The following payments were passed—General A/c. £15 13s. 8d. Footpaths Loan A/c. £4 0s. 2d. Harbour A/c. £2 5s. 10d.

Replying to Mr. Moloney, the B.S., said the expenditure on the footpaths was at Fair Lane, removing the surface for the tar macadam to be laid on.

The Dublin Deputation. Arising out of the minutes of the previous meeting.

Mr. Clancy asked the Clerk if he had made arrangements for the visit of the deputation appointed to wait on the Minister in connection with the housing scheme.

Chairman—I was in telephonic communication with the Department the following morning. I could not get on to the Minister or to Mr. McCarron, and the reply I got was that the Minister was pretty busy and they advised that the Town Clerk write, they promised we should have a reply for tonight's meeting, but it has not come.

Horse Show Night. The Band Committee were granted the use of the Hall on Thursday night, July 13th, for a dance.

Condolence. Votes of sympathy were passed with Miss M. Broderick, Abbeyside, on the death of her brother, Mr. Jas. Kiely, Shandon, on the death of his uncle, and with J. Dunne, on the death of his child.

Cooney's Lough. Mr. Clancy referred to the condition of the foreshore at Quann's, and to Cooney's Lough. Now that the fine weather is here, we should try to do something to clean up the foreshore, a few men should be sent down there. He also suggested that they level off the stuff in Cooney's Lough and close it as a dumping ground.

Mr. McCarthy agreed, and said the condition of the place was terrible. If he lived in that area he would be kicking up trouble every day, owing to the stuff being dumped there. You have bandages with human flesh adhering to them dumped there on top of the ground. A short while ago, a prominent shopkeeper took a dog down there and shot it, but what can you expect, when one of our own men, when he found a pig that was washed in with the tide on the foreshore, he went and made a hole in the sand and buried it. Mr. Clancy—Certain representations were made here after a visit of a deputation to these places, but nothing came of it.

Chairman—O'Connell street on yesterday was, I think as dirty a street as could be found in Ireland, with papers blowing around, although they had the scavenger there that morning.

Mr. McCarthy—As well as being unsightly, it is very dangerous to have papers blowing about.

The Council unanimously decided to close Cooney's Lough as a dumping ground, after giving due notice to the public. Mr. Clancy, proposed, and Mr. Griffin, seconded, the following resolution, which was passed unanimously. "That tenders be invited for the work recommended to be done at the Park, Esplanade, and Cooney's Lough, by the recent deputations. The tenders to be considered at next financial meeting, and the work to be carried out when money is available.

Rate Estimate. The following estimate of rates for the year was submitted by the Clerk, and after going fully into the various items, the estimate was approved—Poor Rate (Co. Council demand) 8/- in the £.

Town Rate made up as follows—Town's Improvement Rate 1/6; Public Health Rate 2/-; Roads Rate 1/7; Public Water 9d.; Housing of the Working Classes 8d.; Provision of Meals 3d.—6/9 in the £; also a rate of 1/- in the £ on domestic water or a total of 15/9 as compared with 15/10 last year.

G.A.A. At the Gaelic Field, on Sunday last, two challenge matches—Junior and Senior football—were staged. Dungarvan won both.

In the junior tie, Eire Og tried conclusions with the home team in junior football, but Dungarvan proved superior, and won a good game by 4-8 to 2 goals.

Dungarvan then played Clonmel in senior football. From the start Dungarvan had the better of the game, and showed good combination, the forwards doing excellent work. Clonmel played with determination, and showed a good defence, but the home team repeatedly broke through, and after a well-contested game Dungarvan came out the winners by 4 goals 4 points to 2 goals 1 point.

KILMATHOMAS NEWS.

TRANSFERRED. Within the week, Mr. Art MacMurrough-Kavanagh, accountant, National Bank, Kilmathomas, was transferred on promotion to Belturbet, Co. Cavan. During his term of 31 years in our midst, his genial and charming personality made him a general favourite. He not only devoted himself diligently to his daily duties at the bank, but also took an active if unpretentious part in the sporting and social life of our Deme. His hosts of friends in these parts heartily wish Mr. MacMurrough-Kavanagh continued success in his profession.

A "FLAT" CONTRADICTION. We wish to flatly contradict the rumour that the County Council intends to provide some of the local footpaths with "Zipp" fasteners to facilitate the frequent operation of opening them up.

HYMENEAL. St. Brigid's Parish Church, Kilmathomas, was the scene of a very pretty wedding last week, the contracting parties being Mr. Philip Clarke, Henry street, Waterford, and Miss Mary Curran, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Curran, Grawn, Kilmathomas. Very Rev. W. Kehoe, P.P., Kilmathomas, officiated. Miss Hannah Curran (sister of the bride), was bridesmaid, and Mr. Augustine Clarke, Waterford (brother of the bridegroom), acted as best man. Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the happy couple left by motor for Cork, on their honeymoon. Mr. Clarke, who is attached to the Telephone Department (G.P.O., Waterford-Clonmel section, is well and favourably known in the Urbs Infaeta, as is also his estimable wife, who for some years past assisted her uncle, Mr. J. Curran, Manor street, Waterford.

RECENT "FINDS." Under a stone in a yard adjacent to his father's house at Railway-road, Kilmathomas, Thomas Scurry (the star spearhead of the Croughan Rangers Hurling Team), found a copper coin of the reign of George I. The coin is slightly larger than a half-penny, and the inscriptions on both sides are almost obliterated. In a quarry in the vicinity of the village of Rathgormack, a resident of that region, named Roger Power, happened on a very heavy vein of silver-impregnated stone, a sample of which has been passed on to us. How about putting a company on the "float" in connection with the matter?

IN MEMORIAM. On Tuesday of this week, an anniversary High Mass of Requiem was celebrated at St. Anne's Church, Ballylaneen, for the repose of the soul of late Very Rev. John Foley, P.P., Kilgobinet, who was a brother of Mr. Jeremiah Foley, Ballynabonogue, Kilmathomas, and Mrs. Pat Morrissey, Square, do.

AIRSHIPS A-HOY! We are living in a flying age. Over the past few days a number of aeroplanes have been buzzing above the seaboard between Waterford and Cork. What a battery of eyes were focussed on the craft as they whizzed by Bonmahon! By the way, a neighbour who is reputed to be the richest resident in the whole wide purlious has informed us that he has already arranged to have his aerial baptism on a cruise to Ayr, on June 17th, 1939. And to-day is his 66th birthday!

A PLACE OF PEACE. A tourist who stood on the cross in picturesque Kill village the other evening, experienced the feeling that some unfamiliar force had just filled its confines with a substantial slice of Sahara's stupendous stretch of silence, and as he dandered away Annewstown-wards he unconsciously prayed a prayer for the upliftment of the spirit of poor, primitive man, whose relics are to be located in glass cases with labels on them in museums mostly. So, let us say—We doubt if you prowled from sun-up to sun-down. You'd find a musquash between Kill and Annewstown!

G.A.A. By order of the Eastern Divisional Board, G.A.A., the Millvale Rovers and Clonlea-Power junior hurling teams are to replay their first round county championship tie at Ballyduff on to-morrow (Sunday), under the sirenship of the able Chairman of the County Executive, Liam Breathnach. When the packs previously met at Rathgormack, on the 14th ult., the Rovers gained the "glad eye" of victory's goddess, but the Clonlea combination are confident of capturing the spoils to-morrow. Anyway the mix promises to run out a thriller in its every phase.

WARE O' VANITY BAGS!

"Housemaid's Knee," "Printers' Poison," and "T.D.'s Throat," are labels for well-recognised maladies. A new affliction, which may yet be known as "flapper's elbow," is now being diagnosed. It takes the form of neuritis-like twinges, and is caused by the constant carrying of vanity bags under the left arm. The bags are hugged close to the side, and the long periods in which the arm is kept in the same position affect the circulation and give rise to painful neuralgic stabs. This is no fairy-tale we are spinning. A young Comeragh Valley colleen and her mother had just entered a Kilmathomas shop yesterday, when the junior of the two ladies uttered a sharp exclamation of pain. "Oh, mother, there it is again!" she said as she placed her hand over the affected elbow. The explanation was as we have given it. We have heard of several other cases.

FLOWERY LANGUAGE.

There is to be a veto on swearing in the American Navy, and doubtless the U.S.A. influence will spread. After reading the information—contained in a most interesting letter to hand from a friend who fills a lucrative and responsible post in New York, and who emigrated from his natal home in Stradbally parish 13 years ago—we asked a local seaman who has sailed the seven seas (and who has never uttered in our hearing an expletive approaching the profane) if swearing obtained to any great extent in the British Senior Service. "You would not call it swearing," he says. "It is a language of its own, a pungent sarcasm, but which gets there every time on board ship. It simply shivers its victim." We are going to challenge this. Any time we heard sailors use a militant vocabulary it sounded shocking without shocking us, but now we realise it was only a form of nautical irony. Gilbert, whose lyrics gave Sullivan the inspiration of his Savoy Operas, recalls the commander of H.H.S. Pinafore, who never used a big D. We are also told, but not by Gilbert, that the more spiritually-minded among the pirates of the main forbade swearing on board. And the Duke of Cambridge deprecated swearing as a "d—d ungentlemanly habit."

The American swear words must have been hot stuff when they called for the intervention of the Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Navy, for sailors can, as a rule, stand a lot without wincing. But the greatest expert in lurid phraseology did not hail from Uncle Sam's clime, though the Yanks boast that they have all sorts of champions in their country. The individual with this questionable distinction hailed from Nuremberg, and was a woman (of course—says you). She was whipped out of the town on July, 15th, 1585, because "she blasphemed so horribly that a galley and two small ships could have been filled with her profanity." It is with a tribute of admiration we recall the fact that anglers do not swear. In this respect they pay due homage to Izaak Walton, who always advised disciples of the river "to be patient and forbear swearing lest they be heard and catch no fish." But how about the language of motorists on occasions of engine trouble, punctures, etc.? You might be tempted to ask. Surely it savours of the "flowery stuff" on such occasion. . . . Doth thou thinkest it doth not?

EARLY SPREAD OF POTATO BLIGHT.

WARNING TO GROWERS.

Attacks of blight on the potato crop have now been reported to the Department of Agriculture from a number of widely separated districts, in Counties Cork, Wexford, Galway, Clare, Mayo, Sligo, Donegal, Roscommon, Longford and Westmeath. In each case the occurrence of the disease has been verified. The widespread character of the attacks indicates that there is great danger of the disease becoming general unless timely measures are taken to arrest its progress. The most effective way to ward off attacks of blight is by frequent spraying of the crops as recommended in the Department's Leaflet No. 14, entitled "Potato Blight and its Prevention." The Department urge all growers to spray their crops without delay, whether the crops are backward or not. Backward crops are as susceptible to the disease as those that have reached an advanced stage of growth. It is of the utmost importance that a proper spraying mixture should be used. The materials recommended in the Department's Leaflet are blue stone and washing soda (commonly called "Burgundy Mixture.") Full directions on the subject are given in Leaflet No. 14, which may be obtained free of charge from the Department of Agriculture, Dublin, C.17.

Lismore District Court.

(Before Mr. G. P. Farrell, B.L.)

INTERESTING ASSAULT CASE.

Captain T. O. Jameson, Tourin, summoned Andrew Clancy, Ballyduff, for assault on April, 7th., and defendant's wife, Nano Clancy, was summoned for using abusive language on the same occasion, and an application was made to have both defendants bound to the peace.

Mr. E. A. Ryan, solr., Dungarvan, appeared for the complainant, and Mr. Skinner, solr., Mitchelstown, defended.

Mr. Ryan said that Capt. Jameson was married to a daughter of the late Sir Richard Musgrave, who was the owner of the property at Ballyduff on which Clancy's farm was situated. On the purchase of his farm by Clancy all the fishing and sporting rights were reserved to the landlord, and as Capt. Jameson was now managing the entire Musgrave property, he held the right to fish in the river Blackwater beside Clancy's land.

Clancy and his wife apparently resented the action of Capt. Jameson in exercising his right, because while he was fishing on the Blackwater on April, 7th., Mrs. Clancy came down to the bank of the river and used the most filthy and abusive language towards him, and a few minutes later her husband came on the scene and started bombarding Capt. Jameson with stones, one of which grazed one of his legs, while another missile narrowly missed striking him on the head.

Capt. Jameson was not looking for any vindictive punishment of the defendants in this case, but he simply wanted to have them bound to the peace so that he could exercise his legal rights to fish there in future without any molestation or interference on the part of Clancy and his wife.

Mr. Ryan handed in the legal documents showing that the fishing and sporting rights of the property were reserved to the late Sir Richard Musgrave.

Capt. Jameson, examined by Mr. Ryan, stated that as Manager of the property of the late Sir Richard Musgrave, he had the right to fish on the Blackwater near Clancy's farm at Ballyduff. As he was fishing there on April 7th. Mrs. Clancy arrived on the bank of the river and started shouting and abusing him in the most offensive manner.

She called him filthy names, and her husband then came on the scene and threw a number of large stones at him, one of which grazed his leg, while another skimmed dangerously near his head. Witness then came back to the bank and remonstrated with them, but when he went back to the river to resume fishing the abusive language was repeated. He then sent his gillie, John O'Brien, to fetch the Civic Guards, and Guard McLaughlin soon arrived on the scene.

Cross-examined by Mr. Skinner—Were you fishing with a dog that day, Captain?

Mr. Ryan—Fishing with a dog? Mr. Skinner—Had you a dog with you on the occasion?

Complainant—Yes, I had. Did you see your dog chasing Clancy's sheep on that day?

Complainant—No. Did you see the dog chasing Clancy's ducks in the river?—No.

If Clancy and his wife swear that the stones which you say were thrown at you were thrown at your dog when he was chasing their ducks will they be swearing falsely?

Complainant—The suggestion is ridiculous.

Replying to further cross-examination, witness said he saw no ducks on the river at the time, and he was equally positive that his dog had not chased Clancy's sheep. In 1931 he had called to see Clancy about his right-of-way to the river, which had been blocked with barbed wire and other obstructions against him, and he later got Mr. Carroll, solr., Fermoy, to write to Clancy about the matter.

He further denied that a local lady and himself had concocted a plan earlier on that day to go down and have some "fun" with the Clancys. John O'Brien, Ballyduff, gillie to Capt. Jameson, stated that he had been fishing with the Musgrave family for the past 40 years and there was never any trouble there until the present occasion.

On April, 7th. he was on the opposite bank of the river when Mrs. Clancy came down shouting and abusing Capt. Jameson, while he was wading in the middle of the river fishing.

Mr. Ryan—What was Mrs. Clancy saying at the time?

Witness—Well, she wasn't saying her prayers, anyway, (laughter). Witness gave a graphic description of how he saw Clancy throwing stones at Capt. Jameson and how one of them grazed him on the leg and another narrowly missed him on the head.

other narrowly missed him on the head.

Mr. Ryan—Why, O'Brien you are far more dramatic a witness than Capt. Jameson was, (laughter).

Continuing his evidence, O'Brien said that before the stone-throwing, Mrs. Clancy kept up a awful string of abuse towards Capt. Jameson and repeating, "Come out of it, you so-and-so," and other fancy language.

Cross-examined by Mr. Skinner—Capt. Jameson's dog was not in the river at all when the stones were thrown by Clancy as he was up in the Captain's motor car on the bank of the river.

Guard McLaughlin, Ballyduff, stated that on receiving a complaint from the last witness he went to the scene and saw Capt. Jameson fishing.

The latter came back to the bank when Mrs. Clancy caught him by the sleeve of his coat and told him that he could not go up that way.

Replying to Mr. Skinner, he said that he heard no abusive language nor saw any assault while he was there.

Mr. Skinner, for the defence, said the Clancys had no objection to Capt. Jameson fishing in the river, but they objected to the manner in which he abused his rights there. He said that on one occasion Capt. Jameson defied his clients and said he could go through their house if he wished to do so, and they certainly resented that defiant attitude on his part.

In his opinion this case should never have been brought into Court, as it was his clients were the aggrieved party and not Capt. Jameson.

David Clancy, defendant, stated that Capt. Jameson started fishing on the river in 1931 and when he asked him for his authority he referred him to Mr. Carroll, solr. On the date in question he saw Capt. Jameson's dog chasing his sheep and on going out he saw the dog running down towards the river and followed him down and met his wife on the bank.

The dog then swam out to an island in the middle of the river and started chasing their ducks and his wife then told him to throw stones at the dog in order to drive him away from the ducks.

He denied that he threw the stones at Capt. Jameson, and he had no intention of striking him at the time.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ryan—He did not know that Capt. Jameson was fishing when he followed the dog down to the river, so that he did not go down deliberately to assault him. He denied having put up barbed wire or briar fences in order to obstruct Capt. Jameson's passage to the river. Mrs. Nano Clancy, stated that she was insulted in 1931 by Capt. Jameson who called at her house and told her that he had a right to go through the whole house if he liked.

On April 7th., while she was in her house she saw the sheep running through the yard and when she went out she saw a dog running down towards the river and followed him down when she saw "Jameson" fishing in the river. She denied having used any abusive language towards him beyond saying that "he ought to mend his coat," (laughter). Her husband then came down and she told him to throw stones at the dog which was chasing their ducks, as several of their ducks had been previously lost over the same cause.

Mr. Ryan—Will you give an undertaking to the Court now that you and your husband will not interfere with Capt. Jameson in future?

Defendant—I will not.

Mr. Ryan—This answer and her contemptuous remark about "Jameson" show the feelings of hostility which the defendants entertain towards my client.

David Ahearne, brother of Mrs. Clancy, examined for the defence, stated that he heard his sister telling her husband to throw stones at the dog, but he heard no abusive language used on the occasion.

Cross-examined, he said he did not see any of the stones strike Capt. Jameson, as he was inside a high fence at the time.

Having given the case a patient hearing, the Justice said there was no question of title involved in this case, because if there were he would not decide it, but would let it go to the Circuit Court. He was quite satisfied from the folio handed in by Mr. Ryan that Capt. Jameson, as the representative of the late Sir Richard Musgrave, had a perfect right to fish and shoot over this property, but he was forced to the conclusion that the defendants resented Capt. Jameson exercising those rights in a perfectly legitimate manner. He was forced to disbelieve the evidence of the defendants that the stones were thrown at the dog on this occasion, and not at Capt. Jameson, and he was equally satisfied that the defendants had taken the law into their own hands, which they had no right to do. In order to preserve the peace of the district, and also to prevent a repetition of this offence, he would bind both of the defendants to the peace for 12 months in their own personal recognisances of £5 each, or, in default, a month's imprisonment in each case.

Death of Mrs. Hannah Hickey

LISMORE.

All classes of the people of Lismore received a painful shock on last Saturday when the sad news was received of the death in London of Mrs. Hannah Hickey, after a brief illness of only five days.

The deceased lady was widow of the late Mr. Thomas Hickey, Fernville, Lismore, and mother of Mr. Thomas J. Hickey, a brilliant past student of the Christian Brothers' Collegiate Schools, Lismore, who has been resident in London for the past five years where he occupies a most important position on the Editorial staff of "The Statist."

Mr. Hickey's younger brother having also gone to London last year, Mrs. Hickey went on a visit to her two sons some months ago, and had intended returning to her home in Lismore in a week or two, but unfortunately, she was suddenly taken ill early last week and despite the best of medical attention, she peacefully passed away on Saturday to the deep regret of her loving children and a wide circle of sorrowing relatives and friends.

During her long residence in Lismore the late Mrs. Hickey was always a most devout and exemplary Catholic and a daily communicant, while she was also one of the most regular and faithful members of the Confraternity of the Sacred Heart, and rarely, if ever, missed one of its monthly meetings.

Of a kind and charming disposition, a loving and devoted mother, and the friend of everybody, she was held in the highest respect by all who knew her, and the fact that her death occurred so far away from home, just as she was contemplating returning to Lismore, has added a special poignancy to the sad event and has caused the most genuine sorrow amongst her newly-made friends in London and her innumerable friends in Lismore.

A few hours before her death she was attended by the Rev. Father Fletcher of Brook Green Chapel, while she also had the great consolation of having her two sons by her bedside at the last moments, so that her death proved a remarkably peaceful and happy one as befitting a lady who had spent such a holy and virtuous life while on earth.

On Sunday morning the remains were conveyed by train to Lismore and were met at the Railway Station by the Rev. T. O'Gorman, C.C., Lismore, and a most imposing concourse of the townspeople who followed the impressive cortege to St. Carthage's Catholic Cathedral, where the remains lay for some hours.

On Sunday the late Mass was offered up for the repose of her soul before an unusually large congregation, after which the interment took place in the new cemetery, Lismore, in the presence of one of the largest and most representative gatherings of the general public seen at any local funeral for a long time.

The Rev. T. O'Gorman, C.C., Lismore, and the Rev. Father Morrissey, C.C., do., headed the cortege from the Cathedral to the cemetery, the latter clergyman reciting the last prayers at the graveside.

To the respected children of the deceased in London and Lismore the deepest sympathy of all will now be extended in their sad bereavement.

The chief mourners included—Miss Mamie Hickey, Fernville, Lismore, (daughter); Thomas J. and Michael A. Hickey, London, sons; David O'Sullivan, Ballynoe, (brother); Mrs. H. Noonan, Campfire, (sister-in-law); Michael Hickey, Campfire, and Wm. Noonan, do., (brothers-in-law); Miss Nellie Noonan, Dublin, (niece); Wm. and Thos. Noonan, Campfire, (nephews); etc.

A large number of beautiful wreaths and Mass Cards were laid on the grave.—R.I.P.

DEATH OF MR. W. DUNFORD, BALLYCONNERY.

The death occurred on the 8th. inst. of Mr. Wm. Dunford, Ballyconnery, one of the most respected farmers in the Kilgobinet Parish. He had been in failing health for some time and he passed away peacefully fortified by the rites of Holy Church.

The late Mr. Dunford was a large and practical farmer and a shrewd judge of livestock. Of a gay and cheerful disposition, he was very highly esteemed by everybody and his death is deeply regretted on all sides. In their sorrow deep sympathy is extended to his wife, family and relatives.—R.I.P.

On Friday evening, the remains were removed to the Parish Church, Kilgobinet, and were followed by a large and imposing cortege. On Saturday morning the interment took place in the adjoining graveyard in the presence of his family, relatives friends and a large gathering of the general public.

Mount Melleray College.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR. ANNUAL DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES.

At Mount Melleray College, Cappoquin, on Thursday week, the annual distribution of prizes took place under most impressive circumstances.

The Lord Abbot, Right Rev. Dom. Celsus O'Connell, O.Cist., was unfortunately unable to attend owing to a delay on his journey from England, where he has been attending the ceremonies in connection with the new Liverpool Cathedral, and also the ceremonies at Mount Saint Bernard, Coalville, Leicestershire, where Dom Celsus's successor to that office has just been installed.

In the Abbot's absence, the Ven. Archdeacon Phelan, R.P., Piltown, presided at the distribution of prizes and also at the dinner which was subsequently served to the guests.

A considerable number of clergymen from various parts of the diocese were present, though the number was smaller than is customary owing to the ceremony of the solemn reception of the Papal Bull appointing Very Rev. Canon Kinane to the See of St. Carthage, taking place in Waterford City on the same date.

On the previous day (Wednesday) the parents and other relatives of the students were the guests of the College, and an enjoyable and efficiently-organised programme of music, drama, gymnastics were presented for their interest and entertainment.

This programme was repeated on Thursday for the clerical guests, and was received with the warmest appreciation. In every respect it was a most convincing display of the high degree of culture, both aesthetic and physical being imparted in the famous college.

The musical section of it, under the able direction of Prof. Staf. Gebruers, the distinguished organist of St. Colman's Cathedral, Cove, was a genuinely remarkable example of natural talent and most competent training.

Dr. Gebruers, who is so noted for his own personal distinction as a musician has obviously the further ability of imparting his knowledge and enthusiasm to his pupils. Every one of the musical items—and there were several—was marked by the greatest finish and general perfection; but an outstanding feature of the day (which made a most inspiring impression on all present) was the production of a new oratorio, "The Second Spring," which was written for the occasion by Rev. Fr. Ailbe G. Luddy, O.Cist., and composed by Dr. Gebruers.

The work was created to commemorate in a fitting manner the occasion of the Second Advent of the Cistercians to Ireland; an event of the greatest importance in the history of the Order.

INTER-PROVINCIAL HURLING. CORK V. KILKENNY.

At the Copper Alley Grounds, Youghal, on Sunday, Cork represented by Sarsfield's selected, and Kilkenny by which county Carrigshock selected did duty, met in a thrilling game.

The field arrangements were all that could be desired, and the weather, though very threatening all day, held fine throughout. The fixture had aroused great enthusiasm, and the huge crowd present bore striking evidence of the interest and keenness which are always to the fore when these counties meet.

Prior to the big game Youghal and Gurtroe minors met and after a fine tussle the homesters emerged victors by a small margin.

The North Abbey Fife and Drum Band rendered several pleasing selections, and played the teams on to the pitch. Just before the start the Band played the National Anthem, and players and spectators stood to attention.

Rev. E. J. O'Riordan C.C., Youghal, threw in the ball, and Mr. T. Bowen (Eire Og H.C.) had charge of the whistle.

Kilkenny won the toss and played with a favouring breeze. Hard flashing occurred in midfield, and O'Farrell sent a long pass to Dunne who placed a fine point on a difficult angle.

Following the puck-out, Kilkenny were awarded a free, but the resulting puck was sent wide. Clever passing by Cork ended with Lewis sending well in, but Rohan and Dalton cleared in fine fashion.

An injury to a Kilkenny player temporarily interrupted the game. Kilkenny were mostly on the offensive in the ensuing play, but several overs were recorded. Dunne narrowly missed the upright with a first-time shot.

Both defences were withstanding fierce attacks. Play was very fast and spectators were on tip-toes on several critical junctures. D. B. Murphy sent the ball to Kenneally who doubled neatly and B. Murphy was right on the spot and by nothing a point equalised.

Duggan and Phelan were prominent in the Kilkenny defence and O'Farrell kept his forwards well supplied. Cork were almost through, but a free saved a nasty situation. A 70 to Kilkenny was just sent wide by O'Farrell.

YOUGHAL DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Mr. G. P. Farrell, B.L.) Area Exemption Order.

Supt. Dennehy, applied for an Area Exemption Order in view of the match Cork v. Kilkenny, on Sunday, hours 6 to 9.

The application was granted.

Substitution Of Hours. Mr. Wm. R. Hodnett, solr., applied on behalf of Mrs. M. J. Ledingham, Green Park Hotel, for a substitution of hours 2 to 9, instead of 1 to 8.

There being no objection, the application was granted.

Instalment Orders. Mr. T. K. Keane, solr., appeared on behalf of two creditors seeking Instalment Orders. In both cases there was a consent and this was made a rule of Court.

Forfeiture Of Nets. David Ellis, water bailiff, applied for the forfeiture of two salmon drift nets, captured during the weekly close season.

Applicant said they got the nets in Youghal on 3rd June. There were two boats in the vicinity when the bailiffs approached, but they got away. The bailiffs seized the nets from the water.

One measured 262 yards and the other 110 yards. The Justice—You can sell the short one. What about the other?—That is for the Court to decide.

Are they new nets?—Part is old. The Justice—That is a question always arising. Is not the practice here to adjust to the legal length and sell?—Ellis—It used to be done.

The Justice said it had been suggested to him that even in case of the forfeiture or over-length nets, in regard to which the Section appeared to contemplate their destruction, there had been a practice there of adjusting to the legal length. He proposed to adopt that practice in future unless there was very good reason shown for acting contrary wise.

An order was then made for the forfeiture of both nets. The over-length one to be adjusted and sold, the proceeds to be applied as penalties under the Fishery Laws.

Fishermen Fight. John Bransfield, Redburn, fisherman, charged John and Daniel Harris, Summerfield, fishermen, with assault. Michael Gleeson, Redburn, charged John Harris, with a like offence.

There were also cross cases by all defendants in the previous cases.

Mr. Hodnett, solr., for Bransfield, and Gleeson, and Mr. Keane, solr., for the Harris brothers.

Mr. Hodnett said there was more in those cases than an ordinary squabble between two rival fishing boats. For many years past, the Harris's arrogated to themselves the exclusive right of fishing opposite the townland of Redburn.

They had bullied the Youghal fishermen to such an extent—it did not say much for the courage of the Youghal men—that they wouldn't fish there except in the absence of the Harris's.

His clients were from the same region as the Harris's and seemed to be made of sterner stuff. Bransfield's licence enable him to fish in any portion of the Bay and the rule was first come first served. He didn't know whether he was too sanguine.

The Justice—Don't be too sanguinary (laughter).

Mr. Hodnett—But whatever happened elsewhere he confidently asked for protection for his clients to carry on their lawful occasions in the area under his Worship's jurisdiction.

John Bransfield stated he had paid out his nets on the day in question, there being several hundred yards between Harris's and their 50 yards was the legal minimum distance. The Harris's rowed towards them using terrible language and threatening to kill witness. John Harris lifted an oar and Gleeson took up a boat hook to fend him off.

Dan Harris then struck him on the side of the head with an oar, knocking him over the thwart. He saw John Harris prod Gleeson in the chest with an oar, inflicting a wound for which he had to be attended by a doctor.

Cross-examined by Mr. Keane—Witness said his nets were 200 yards away from Harris's at the nearest point. He didn't pay out his nets so as to interfere with Harris's fishing. He did tell John Harris that he should go into a home. He never had any trouble with other boats before. Dan Harris struck him, but saved him from John. It was John who struck Gleeson with the oar.

Michael Gleeson, and the two other members of the crew gave corroborative evidence.

Mr. Keane submitted that an attempt was made to make a very serious case out of an ordinary row between two fishermen. His clients made no attempt to arrogate to themselves the exclusive right of fishing in the Redburn berth. John Harris was called a lunatic by Bransfield, and the row that ensued was over in a few minutes.

The Justice said it was most improper to start a fight of that nature on the water. No one could tell how it might end.

Dan Harris said there was a custom between country boats to claim a certain place and stick to it.

The Justice—How long has that custom prevailed?—The Knockadon men did it before I started—what was good for the goose was good for the gander (laughter). When did you make this claim?—We didn't really make a claim but we put our boat to the swing there. We were first on the scene that morning.

Witness said Bransfield shot his nets so that they came within 50 yards of Youghal C. T. Association. GENERAL MEETING.

Mr. P. Kirk, presided and amongst others present were—Messrs. Wm. McCarthy, D. Flavin, J. Hurley, T. J. O'Hanlon, W. Monk, Inspector G. T. Murphy, Supervisor. The Supervisor's report is as follows:—

I beg to put before you a few facts relating to the working of the Association for the year 1932. At the commencement of the year we had 11 members and 186 cows, and at the end of the year, eleven members and 174 cows, 132 of which completed their lactation period with an average yield of 5,544 lbs. of milk and 233.80 lbs. of butter-fat 3.57%.

Comparing the two years 1931 and 1932, there is a slight increase of 247 lbs. of milk and 8.74 lbs. of butter-fat for the entire Association. An analysis of the yields of milk is as follows:—

1 cow gave under 3,000 lbs.; 7 cows gave under 4,000 lbs.; 17 cows gave under 5,000 lbs.; 34 cows gave under 6,000 lbs.; 37 cows gave under 7,000 lbs.; 38 cows gave under 8,000 lbs.; 17 cows gave under 9,000 lbs.; 6 cows gave under 10,000 lbs.; 5 cows gave over 10,000 lbs.

The best cow in the association owned by the Presentation Convent, Youghal, "Rose" gave 10,248 lbs. of milk and 404.79 lbs. of butter-fat test 3.97%, calculated at 1/- per lb. for butter-fat and 1d. per gallon for separated milk earned £23 9s. 3d. in 45 weeks.

The worst cow in the association gave 3,175 lbs. of milk and 108.76 lbs. of butter-fat on the same calculation and earned the sum of £6 9s. 10d., the difference between the best cow and the worst cow being £16 19s. 4d. The five best cows in the association are as follows:—

1 Presentation Convent "Rose" 10,248 lbs. of milk, test 3.97, butter-fat 404.74 lbs. 2 Wm. McCarthy, "Beauty" 9,140 lbs. of milk, 4.07% and 372.20 lbs. of butter-fat. 3 T. J. O'Hanlon's "Tipperary" 10,440 lbs. of milk, 3.70 test and 286.28 lbs. of butter-fat. 4 T. J. O'Hanlon's "Bell" 10,010 lbs. of milk, 3.60% and 333.33 lbs. of butter-fat. 5 Jas. Hurley's "May" 10,028 lbs. of milk, 3.60% and 179.2 lbs. of butter-fat.

Mr. D. Flavin, Kenilworth, who have a herd of 40 cows all Friesians, 26 of which completed their lactation periods gave an average of 7,479 lbs. of milk, 244.37 lbs. of butter-fat with a test of 3.40%. They were first entered for inspection on the 28th. of May, 1932, and four passed. This year the inspection was on the 22nd May, four cows were entered and three passed. Mr. J. Hurley was recommended for the Co. Committee's Prize (£1) for the best cow "Shelia" yielding 6,500 lbs. of milk, 234.32 lbs. butter-fat, test 3.68% in 45 weeks. The first prize for the best Heifer was awarded to Mr. Wm. McCarthy, Seafield. The second prize to Mr. P. Kirk, Ballyvergen. First prize £1 and second 10/-.

The number of Registered cows in the association is 26. I am happy to tell you that the two Dairy Bulls, kept by members, are producing a very nice lot of calves up to the present. I have brand-ed 7 heifers; 1 Bull this year.

On the motion of Mr. D. Flavin, seconded by Mr. Wm. McCarthy, the Supervisor's report was unanimously approved.

Mr. Monks, Inspector, paid a high tribute to the manner in which the Supervisor had performed all his duties throughout the year.

The Supervisor sincerely thanked Mr. Monks for his kind remarks and said a great deal of the credit was due to each and every member of the association for the way they had kept their records, which minimised his work to a great extent.

Mr. Monks dealt at length with dishorning of calves, and the treatment of the warble fly in cattle.

On the motion of Mr. D. Flavin, seconded by Mr. T. J. O'Hanlon, a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Monk's for his kind attendance and very valuable instructions.

Mr. Monks having suitably returned thanks, the meeting adjourned.—J. T. Murphy, Supervisor.

Mother: "You have accepted George! You know very well that I don't approve of him." Daughter: "That's all right, mother. Neither does he approve of you."

CENSUS OF DISTRIBUTION.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

Within the next few months an important enquiry into the merchandising of goods and services in the Saorstát will be undertaken by the Statistics Branch of the Department of Industry and Commerce.

The object of the Census of Distribution is to provide accurate statistics with regard to the transfer of goods through wholesale and retail channels from producer to consumer. The results of the Census will be of the greatest value not only to the community generally but very particularly to traders themselves.

While the external trade of the Saorstát is known in great detail as to commodities sold, direction of trade, etc., the available statistical information with regard to the distribution of goods and services within the country has hitherto been very meagre and conjectural. When the results of the Census are made available traders in the different parts of the country engaged in the various types of businesses will be able to compare their own personal experience as regards such matters as "turnover in relation to the wages bill" and "persons employed," "turnover in relation to population and area served," etc., with the averages for the country as a whole.

The different classes of businesses will be grouped together according to the amounts of their annual gross turnover and will be classified by size of population. Firms engaged in Wholesale and Retail Trading will be able to see where they stand in the scheme of the country's business. No figures will be published—nor will they be made available for any other Department or for

THOMOND FEIS,
 REPLY TO CRITICS OF GAELIC LEAGUE.
 ADDRESSES BY AN FEAR MHOR, AND MR. N. TOBIN.

At the opening of the Thomond Feis in Limerick, during the week-end, Mr. Nicholas Tobin, the well-known traditional singer and Professor at Ring College, delivered the inaugural address.

Mr. Tobin, who was cordially welcomed, thanked the Committee of the Feis for inviting him to deliver the opening address. Limerick had many things to boast of, such as the lordly Shannon and the hydro-electricity scheme; but in his opinion its greatest achievement was that it gave to Ireland a man, named Eugene O'Curry, who had done more for the Irish language than perhaps any man before or since. O'Curry came of humble parentage, but it was a striking tribute to his genius when a professor was required in Dublin University for the subject in which he was proficient, he was selected. At that time O'Curry occupied a humble occupation in the Mental Hospital, then known as the Asylum. It would be well for the young people to know and take pride in the work and life of O'Curry.

Alluding to the position of the Irish language in the city, Mr. Tobin said that while he had no intimate knowledge of the position in this respect, he had been assured that the young people were making steady progress in acquiring a competent knowledge of the language. If the young people were making progress, the primary work of the Gaelic League had been fulfilled. The complaints he had heard of the non-participation of the national teachers in the work of the Gaelic League should not be too readily accepted, as there were two sides to every story. Perhaps they in the Gaelic League were too apt to consider their own side of the question, and probably too hard on the national teachers. Personally, he did not see why that branch of the teaching profession should be singled out for criticism more than the secondary or vocational education teachers, and he could only hope that it would cease. Referring to the position of the clergy with regard to the language, the speaker said whatever complaints had been made in this direction, it was, nevertheless, true that in any part of Ireland where the language had made—and was making—progress, it was practically certain that a priest was behind the movement. There were sufficient Irish-speaking priests now in the country to meet the needs of the Irish-speaking population, and that being so, it was useless to expect more until the ordinary public provided the material necessary for their attention. Complaints had also been heard about the attitude of the Department of Agriculture, but it was his view that the present administration was the best they ever had, where the furtherance of the language was concerned. He thought, however, that more Irish should find a place in the Dail debates. It was in that Assembly that they could get an outlet for a real revival of the language and which would be much more profitable than the acrimonious discussions and vilifications that were all too common in Leinster House. The chief enemies, he went on, of the native language at the present time were the Irish imitators of John Bull, who were still very strong and the greatest obstacle to the language.

In conclusion, he thanked the Gaelic Athletic Association in Limerick for the great help it had given the language movement. It had closely co-operated with the League, and if they had similar help and co-operation from other bodies, it would not be long until they had an Ireland, not only Catholic and free, but Gaelic as well.

AN FEAR MHOR.
 "Why is the Irish language losing ground in the Irish-speaking districts?" asked An Fear Mhor, in delivering the Thomond Feis oration at Limerick on Sunday.

"There are many reasons," he said "but I will deal only with one—namely the educational programme that has to be taught in the schools in these districts. With one exception, Scoll na Leamh Ring, English must be taught, and the programme includes very difficult text books. The result of the teaching of this programme means the death knell of Irish in these districts."

Their educational authorities, he went on, strange as it might appear, were spending money in the English-speaking districts to propagate the use of Irish, whilst, at the same time, by the programme which is insisted on in the schools of the Irish-speaking districts they were taking the most effective steps possible to kill Irish.

That must cease. If English were to be taught in these schools it must not be taught to the detriment of Irish. "If we want the Irish language to survive," he concluded, "we must cease killing it in the districts where it is yet spoken."

At the outset, An Fear Mhor said that, as a result of the efforts of such great Limerick Gaels of the past as Most Rev. Dr. Hallinan, Father Lee, Geo. Clancy, Michael O'Callaghan, and P. Griffin, they had that that magnificent Feis, and they heard that day the musical ring of the Irish tongue from thousands of children of Limerick city and county.

In the early days of Feis Thomond and the Gaelic League, the critics were numerous and the helpers few, and yet it was wonderful all the work that was done. Irish was then taught in few schools. Now it was not only a subject of instruction in all schools, but it was the medium through which instruction was given in many.

"Yet many people to-day," he went on, "are keenly disappointed that more Irish is not heard on the streets and in the business institutions of the country. These people, I am afraid, rarely consider the magnitude of the task undertaken by the Gaelic League, and the difficulties it had to encounter.

They ought to remember that it took centuries of the great British Empire and all the agencies of Anglicisation to force English into the position that it holds to-day in Ireland.

"Wonderful, therefore, as our

PIG RECORDING.
 FEEDING IN RELATION TO LITTER WEIGHTS.

There has been much discussion recently on the subject of pig recording. Organisations across-Channel have initiated schemes with the object of recording certain data concerning pigs. Generally, these schemes provide for records of the number of pigs born and reared per litter, the weight of the pigs at some time up to eight weeks old, and in certain cases the weight for age at the time of slaughter for pork or bacon; while there may be or may not be some attempt to ascertain the amount of food required to produce a certain live or carcass weight.

The age at which pigs are weighed before weaning has varied with different recording societies. In some instances it is at three weeks old, as in Sweden, but in others the weighing is variously carried out at four weeks, or six weeks, or eight weeks old, the last-mentioned being chosen because it is the age at which weaning ordinarily takes place in commercial herds.

It is obviously very desirable that there should be uniformity of schemes, particularly as regards the age at which weighings are made up to the time of weaning. The weight at three weeks old is looked upon as giving the best measure of the sow's milking and rearing capacity, as up to three weeks little pigs normally subsist on their mother's milk. The size and weight of the litter at three weeks old provides information comparable with that provided by milk recording in the case of dairy cattle. After three weeks old, litters are usually given trough food additional to their mother's milk, so that their weight at weaning gives some information on the rearing capacity of the sow, and is also a measure of the efficiency of management in the pre-weaning period. The nature of the supplementary food and the kind of management between three or four weeks old and eight weeks old does, however, obscure the sow's true capacity as a milker, and it is surely on the sow's natural abilities that data are most required to help us in the selection of breeding stock.

It is desirable that it should be clear to those who are promoting schemes that provide for weighing the litter at eight weeks only that there is possibility of considerable harm being done as regards pigs intended for breeding, if special importance is attached to high weights at eight weeks old. The writer's attention has been drawn to abnormally high weights secured for individual pigs and litters at this age. In the case in point the owner was out to get impressive figures, and the feeding and management were arranged solely to this end.

If pigs are fed frequently on a ration containing new milk one may get an interesting demonstration of what can be done in the way of obtaining abnormally high weights; but the practice is disquieting, as it is the kind of thing that may happen if figures for litter weights at eight weeks old should be used for purposes of advertisement.

Breeders of dairy cattle realise that forcing and high feeding of young dairy stock, both male and female, is undesirable, and in the case of heifers has a prejudicial effect upon their subsequent milking capacity. Overfeeding particularly in the early stages of life, resulting in stock becoming over-fat, is regarded as a cause of sterility in farm animals. In "The Veterinary Journal," Vol. 89, No. 4.

Apart altogether from sterility and lack of milking capacity, little pigs that have been over-fed in the early part of their life have almost invariably done badly, later on, if kept for breeding. Feeding for maximum weight at eight weeks old may not seriously affect pigs to be slaughtered for pork at, say, sixteen weeks old, but it is, unquestionably dangerous with pigs intended for breeding. Hence it is important that organisations that promote pig recording schemes should consider this aspect of the matter very carefully before finally deciding upon litter weighings at eight weeks of age.

The weight of the litter at three weeks old cannot be influenced to any appreciable extent by extra feeding of the little pigs. Any attempt to force them to consume extra milk or other food is likely to be harmful and to result in digestive disorders or scour. For this, and the other reasons given above, the weight at three weeks old may be regarded as the safest and most valuable one for guidance in the selection of breeding stock.—W. A. STEWART, M.A., B.Sc. (Agric.), Principal, Moulton Farm Institute, Northampton, in "The Journal of the English Ministry of Agriculture."

achievement have been, we are only at the beginning of the work."

Their Training Colleges, which were the intellectual power houses of their movement, were now staffed by men and women who would infuse the right spirit into their young teachers.

"One of the great obstacles to the furtherance of the language in the schools, proceeded An Fear Mhor, is the multiplicity of subjects that have to be taught. Prayers, for instance, in many schools have to be taught in Irish and in English too.

One would think that St. Patrick knew no Irish, and hence the necessity that we should know our prayers in the Language of Queen Bess."

"As regards the Irish-speaking districts, the pure and unadulterated fountains of the language, the situation continues critical. English is gradually crushing out the Irish language and if the decay continues many years more, it is to be feared, all our work will go for nought."

Here's proof that PORKATINE pays!
 Pigs bred by users of Porkatine were champions at 17 L.F.S. Shows in 1932
 Mr. E. Hill of Kilmacthomas, who feeds several hundred pigs, made this test. Two lots of 20 store pigs were kept under identical conditions and fed the same balanced ration. Lot A were dosed twice weekly with Porkatine. Lot B, which were heavier to begin with, got no Porkatine.
 Lot A were ready for sale four weeks before Lot B, having consumed 115 cwt. 1 lb. of food and gained 1 lb. live weight for every 3 1/2 lbs. of food. Lot B, though heavier at the start, took longer to fatten, consumed 125 cwt. 4 lbs. of food, and consumed 1 lb. of food for every 1 1/2 lbs. gained. The Porkatine fed pigs were healthier and threw off all the time.
 This test is conclusive proof of the value of Porkatine. It shows that a man who fattens 100 pigs a year can fatten 40 more without additional cost except 1/- per pig for Porkatine.

CO. COUNCIL.

THREAT TO PUBLISH NAMES OF DEFAULTING RATEPAYERS.

A special meeting of the County Council will be held on Tuesday next at Dungarvan. The principal business is to consider the application from the Co. Board of Health for consent to the raising of a loan of £120,000 for the purpose of building 400 Labourers Cottages in the County.

The Council will also have to consider the following letter re ratepaying defaulters from the L.G.B.:

I am directed by the Minister for Local Government and Public Health to state that the arrears of rates outstanding in certain counties are abnormally high, and it appears to him that publication of lists of ratepayers in arrear might well be considered.

Prior to the issue of the Public Bodies Order, 1929, it was usual to publish such lists at the end of each financial year. The present position is governed by Article 102 (9) of that Order which reads as follows:—

"The Council may, and shall, if the Minister so direct, publish a full and accurate list of such rates for a local financial year as were unpaid in any collection district after the close of such year."

The Minister requests that each Co. Council will consider the present position in each collection district. Where the arrears appear to be of such extent as to warrant the procedure indicated it is suggested that printed lists of ratepayers concerned be published.

YESTERDAY A RECITATION.

(By Thomas Murphy.)
A dream, a vision from our life has fled;
No more that day of cares which we did dread
To meet "Tis gone, 'tis past, for us that faded day,
Its haunting sorrows now a dimming ray.

Yesterdays! Yes, memories for just a while,
Some caused us tears, at others we can smile,
Some brought glad sunshine to our troubled soul,
Seemed to bring life much nearer to a perfect whole.

Oh, for the joys of yesterday we all have known!
Thank God they left such memories ere they had flown,
Such sweetness, and such thrills of happy mirth,
Such tender thoughts beyond all mundane worth!

Yesterday to the aged seems just a few hours dead,
Yesterday to the youth seems just a vision sped,
And so our lives slip by—just yesterdays we've spent—
Cast down or heartened by the things they've meant.

Those days in youth which once were pleasant dreams
Are now but shadows just mere fading gleams,
Of many yesterdays that make up life,
Crammed full of joys and sorrows, love and strife.

Some yesterdays we very oft recall—
One never forgotten, one the best of all!
Where e're we go, where e're our steps may wander,
On this great day our hearts forever ponder.

Oh, happy yesterdays, your thoughts, your dreamy hours,
Still cheer us on our way like fadeless flowers!
And so, when life is but a yesterday and past,
Please God its better memories still with us last!
Dungarvan, 1933.

Bovine Tuberculosis.

METHODS OF ERADICATION ADOPTED IN CANADA.

A correspondent, writing to "The Banffshire Journal," gives some interesting information in respect to the methods adopted in Canada for eradicating tuberculosis from cattle herds.

The Government of Canada, through the Federal Department of Agriculture, he states, assists and largely controls the measures undertaken to eradicate this disease. There are three plans in operation, each being organised at various periods during recent years, in view of the demand by the public to obtain dairy products from healthy herds. The three methods are: Accredited herd plan, supervised herd and restricted area plan.

The object of the accredited herd plan is the eradication of tuberculosis in pure-bred breeding herds. These herds are tuberculin-tested free of charge by salaried veterinary inspectors. To be eligible for acceptance under this plan a herd must contain at least five pure-bred cattle of one breed registered in applicant's name. The number of pure-breds must, however, comprise at least one-third of the total number of cattle in the herd. As soon as the herd has passed two annual or three semi-annual tests, without a reactor, and contains at least ten registered pure-breds, it is designated a "Tuberculosis-free Accredited Herd." Compensation is paid for reactors and is based on two-thirds of the valuation placed upon the animals by veterinary inspectors. The maximum amount of compensation permitted under the Act is £20 for pure-breds and about £10 for cross-breds. The cattle which react are slaughtered and the premises thoroughly disinfected. Under this plan there are to-day 5,533 accredited herds in Canada. Ten years ago there were only 59 accredited herds.

The supervised herd plan is a single herd policy applicable to herds whether pure-bred or cross-bred, or a mixture of both. No compensation is, however, paid for reactors, but the owner receives whatever proceeds there may be from the salvage. Owners placing their herds under this plan must agree to slaughter reactors, to promptly cleanse and disinfect their premises, and to keep cattle from coming in contact with untested animals. If a herd sire is not kept on premises, breeding operations must be restricted to a tested animal. Under the supervised herd plan there are 4,856 herds so tested in Canada.

The restricted area plan for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis was initiated in Canada in 1922. The object of this plan is the eradication of tuberculosis in definite areas. One area in Quebec Province comprises thirty counties. In Prince Edward Island all the cattle in the Province, 94,772 head, have been tested, and only 0.59 per cent. found tubercular. The Prince Edward County, in Ontario, is now a restricted area; all the cattle, 24,584, in that area have been tested. At least two-thirds of the cattle owners in any definite area must sign a petition for the establishment of such an area under this plan. The restricted area plan is the most logical and satisfactory method of controlling tuberculosis. It is not subject to the caprice of the owner as the plans, dealing with individual herds, and the stock-owner is free from the probability of infection from his neighbours' cattle. There is no necessity to erect double fences to protect clean herds while at pasture.

The restricted area plan creates an active market for milk cows and breeding stock at higher prices, as area cattle are in great demand. Buyers for foreign markets demand tuberculosis-free cattle, and select areas to purchase their animals, as they obtain the number desired more quickly and at less travelling cost than elsewhere. It provides a safer milk supply to all municipalities in the area, and, at the same time, is an effective means of controlling bovine tuberculosis, which is not possible under the provisions of the Municipal Tuberculosis Order.

Area work promotes community interest and co-operation, and has a tendency to protect the general interests in an area against any action which jeopardises its health status. The restricted area regulations were amended in November, 1932, to provide for the payment of compensation for reacting steers. The restricted area plan has become very popular with the Canadian stock-owner. In ten years the number of cattle tested in Canada under all policies for tuberculosis eradication has increased from 20,000 in 1922 to 2,655,617 in 1932. By owners of farm live stock, along with the Federal Department of Agriculture, it is considered essential to Canada's live stock interests, and general health of the people, to maintain progressive control of bovine tuberculosis.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

CORPUS CHRISTI PROCESSION.

The Annual Corpus Christi Procession will be held in Dungarvan on tomorrow (Sunday) and granted a continuance of the present summer weather, it should be a most imposing display. For some years past the Corpus Christi Procession has been a wonderful public demonstration of the Faith of our people, and this year more than ever when the skies are dark with anti-religion and hatred of God, it is all the more necessary that our people should make public profession of their fidelity to the See of Peter. Beautiful altars are being erected on the Square and at the Church gates. The streets of the town will be profusely decorated with flags and bunting, while the citizens will decorate their homes as usual in a manner befitting so great an occasion. Our esteemed Pastor Very Rev. T. O'Brien, P.P., V.F., and his zealous Curates, assisted by an energetic Committee have the arrangements complete.

All school children will assemble in their respective schools and march to Fair Lane. Children of Mary will assemble in Emmet street; Women's Confraternity in St. Mary street; Boys Club and Men's Confraternity in the Church Yard. All processionists must be in their places at 2.30 o'clock sharp, so that the procession can start at 3 p.m. precisely.

Order of Procession. The order of the Procession will be as follows:

Crossbearer; Children of Presentation Convent; Children of Mercy Convent; Christian Brothers; Boys' Children of Mary; Dungarvan Brass and Reed Band; Choir; Mercy House Girls; Women's Confraternities (Abbey-side and Dungarvan); Boys' Club; Men's Confraternities (Dungarvan and Abbey-side); Urban Council Members; Crossbearer; Altar Boys; Clergy and Canopy.

The route of the Procession will be the same as in previous years with Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament on the Square, and at the Church gates.

URBAN HOUSES SANCTIONED.

As we go to Press we learned that the L.G.B. has sanctioned the acceptance of the tender of Mr. O'Reilly, Clonmel, to erect 83 houses 4-roomed and 3-roomed on the Loughmore site, Dungarvan, at £21,657 2s. 5d. The good work can now proceed with all speed, and our artisans and Labourers should be kept busy for the coming 12 months and have remunerative employment.

AUCTION OF ABBEYSIDE HOTEL.

On Wednesday, Mr. Patk. Ryan, M.I.A.A., Auctioneer, put up for sale for the poss. of the late Mrs. Fahy, the spacious premises known as the "Dun Na nGashal" Hotel, held for ever free of rent. There was a good attendance present. Bidding proceeded briskly. The highest bid was that of Mrs. Fives, Baryory, of £810, but as the reserve was not reached the sale was withdrawn. Mr. E. A. Ryan, solicitor, had carriage of sale.

GOLF CUP WINNER.

Heartiest congratulations are tendered to our popular young solicitor—Mr. Austin R. Farrell—on his victory at the Clonmel Open Golf Competition which was played on the Clonmel Links, and for which over 70 competitors entered. Mr. Farrell beat all with a nett score of 70, on a handicap of 15 and secured the splendid Cup offered for the event. We hope to chronicle many such golf laurels for our esteemed young citizen, and hope to see him ere long in the Championship world.

DUNGARVAN PRIESTS ORDAINED.

At Kilkenny Cathedral on Sunday last, several young students from St. Kieran's College, were raised to the Priesthood by Most Rev. Dr. Collier, Bishop of Ossory. Amongst those ordained were Rev. John Power, son of Mr. Edmond Power, Mitchell St., Dungarvan, and Rev. F. O'Brien, son of the late Mr. Francis O'Brien and of Mrs. O'Brien, O'Connell street. Fr. Power will after a well-earned holiday take up duty in the Diocese of Port Elizabeth (South Africa), and Father O'Brien, in the Diocese of Los Angeles (U.S.A.). We heartily congratulate the young priests and wish them long years in health and strength to carry on their great and noble work for the salvation of souls.

URBAN RATES DOWN.

The ratepayers of Dungarvan will be glad to learn that the coming year's rate is 15/0 in the £, or 1d. under last year's rate. The decrease may seem small, but considering the amount of work that has been done in the Urban Area and the transformation effected in the general conduct of the public services, the Urban Council deserve to be congratulated on giving the ratepayers the lowest demand made on them for many a day.

DEATH OF MR. ML. QUEALLY, MARY ST., DUNGARVAN.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Michael Queally, which occurred at his residence Mary street, Dungarvan, on Thursday morning after a brief illness and fortified by the rites of Holy Church.

The late Mr. Queally was a well-known and widely-respected citizen. As Cattledealer and Victualler, he was a popular figure at all the fairs of the South, and was universally respected for his uprightness and fair dealing. Kind, generous and neighbourly with a pleasant word and a cheerful smile, he was a general favourite with all who knew him. A sound Irishman and a fervent catholic, he had all the qualities that go to make a good citizen. He reared a most respected family, who have won the admiration of all who know them. Two of his sons are priests in the Archdiocese of London.

To his bereaved wife and family the deepest sympathy is extended in the great loss they have sustained.—R.I.P.

PRESENTATION TO POPULAR SPORTSWOMAN.

Miss Dorothy Musgrave, second daughter of Lady Musgrave, and the late Sir Richard J. Musgrave, Bart., Tourin, having been recently married in London to Mr. Glen Browne, Northumberland, both bridegroom and bride paid their first visit to Tourin within the past fortnight after their honeymoon.

Miss Musgrave had been for years one of the best-known and most popular sporting ladies in the Co. Waterford, being Master of the West Waterford Hounds for some years, and one of the most generous and enthusiastic supporters of the various Point-to-Point Meetings held in the West Waterford area.

She has also been a valued and most prominent member of the Cappoquin Point-to-Point Race Committee, and when she and her equally-sporting husband, Captain Browne, Royal Artillery, arrived in Tourin after their honeymoon they were both the recipients of the heartiest congratulations of all classes of the sporting and general public of this district.

In recognition of her valuable services in connection with the successful Point-to-Point races held in Cappoquin in 1932 and 1933, the members of the local Race Committee decided to make her a suitable presentation as a small token of their gratitude and esteem towards her while she was in the district, the selection of the most appropriate present being left in the capable hands of Mr. Jas. Lincoln, Treasurer, and Messrs. M. J. Sargent and P. Walsh, Hon. Secs.

The presentation was formally made by Mr. P. Walsh at Tourin House last week, when he conveyed to the charming recipient the warmest congratulations of the Cappoquin Race Committee on her recent marriage, together with their best wishes for a long, prosperous and happy life in the years to come.

Mrs. Browne has also received several presentations from individual members of the Race Committee and other sources, and both she and Captain Browne now feel deeply grateful for the many marks of affection and esteem shown towards her by her generous and admiring friends in Cappoquin and the surrounding districts.

SCHOOL BOYS RECORD.

At a recent sports meeting in Dublin, a school boy named Sheehan, representing Blackrock College, jumped 21 ft. 8 inches in the long jump. This was considered a schoolboys' record. But the public memory is proverbially short. Did not our popular fellow-townsmen, Mr. Maurice Fraher, jump 22ft. 7 inches at Mullinshone (Co. Tipperary) sports when 17 years of age. On that occasion the measuring tape was held by Mr. T. P. Kiely, the World's Champion.

At a meeting of the above in the Town Hall, Dungarvan, on Sunday last, the following resolution was unanimously passed:— "We, the members of the West Waterford Old I.R.A. Men's Association, strongly resent the insult offered our Glorious Dead by His Lordship, the Bishop of Galway. That we deeply deplore the fact that His Lordship should single out for attack two men, Emmet and Tone, whose memory has been and will continue to be an inspiration to all Irishmen. "We would remind His Lordship that Tone had the courage to come forward on behalf of the Catholics of that time when those who should have stood by the Faith deserted it."

A GOOD JUMP.

While Mr. Thomas Scanlan, proprietor Cappoquin Sawmills, and an employee named Thomas Foley, were hoisting a heavy tree trunk on to a saw bench on Saturday last, the wooden stays supporting the main arm of the crane snapped with the result that the arm of the crane fell with a crash on the roof of a shed. Messrs. Scanlan and Foley jumped clear of the falling beam and fortunately escaped unscathed.

CO. WATERFORD EVICTED TENANTS' ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the above Association was held in the Town Hall, Dungarvan, being specially convened to reinforce the claims of the evicted tenants and to persevere for the insertion of provisions in the New Land Distribution Scheme for their reinstatement in their evicted homes wherever possible. Mr. William Hourigan, president, said that Mr. Little, had been taking keen interest in the reinstatement of evicted tenants, and had generously responded to our appeal. Mr. Little states that the Government had recognised and appreciated the sacrifices, sufferings, and merits of the evicted tenants, and that he would continue to persevere for their reinstatement in their own evicted homes especially on non-residential farms used as grazing farms—transferring the occupiers of those lands that would be given to the evicted tenants. This is very kind of Mr. Little, and a favour which we very much appreciate. We must at the same time, up to the reinstatement of the evicted tenants and the settlement of the other members, continue an active agitation to ensure the fulfilment of those promises, and with this view, another meeting will be held at an early date. On the motion of Mr. James Prendergast, seconded by Mr. Maurice Brett, the following resolutions were unanimously resolved:— "That the Secretary convey the expression of our profound gratitude to Mr. Little. (2) "That any evicted tenant, uneconomic or landless man, whose applications are not lodged with us, on or before July, 1st, be disqualified. Several other resolutions to the Executive Council, Ministry for Lands and Deputies, etc., were unanimously passed. The Secretary received many letters of sympathy on the death of his brother, which are highly appreciated.

FITZGERALD FOR BIKES. DUNGARVAN

DUNGARVAN DISTRICT COURT.

Held on Wednesday before Mr. Troy, D.J.

Using Gun Without Licence. Superintendent O'Shea, prosecuted Charles Hubbard, Knockreany, Ring, with using a shot-gun without a licence.

Mr. T. C. Williams, solr., defended. Guard Lucy gave evidence (in Irish) of seeing defendant C. Hubbard, with the gun, which he threw into a fence. Witness went to the house and met Thos. Hubbard who admitted giving the gun to his son to shoot crows.

To Mr. Williams—When I went to the house I asked the father for the gun and he told me he had given it to Charles he said he had thrown the gun away up the land. The father have about 40 acres of land and had potatoes. He saw a crow shot in the potato field. He believed that they don't go in for poaching on other people's land.

Thos. Hubbard deposed he had this shot-gun 40 years, and always had it licensed. On the day in question my son told me the crows were pulling the potatoes, and as I was suffering from corns, I told him to get the gun and fire at the crows. When the Guard came I told him I had given the gun to my son to fire at crows. I was never in Court before. I had a five shilling certificate for the gun.

To the Superintendent—I did not think I was doing anything wrong. I told the Guard I would lock up the gun, and never let anyone handle it again if he left it to me.

Justice—Do you think it is a sensible thing to have Charles be able to put his hand on the gun.

Witness—No. Mr. Williams—If you get back the gun, you will be able to prevent any of your sons from handling it?

Witness—Yes. The Justice said there was not much in the case. I will allow Hubbard out under the Probation of Offenders' Act and will not ask him to forfeit the gun provided that he keeps his promise. I will adjourn the case for 3 months to see if the promise is kept.

School Attendance.

Guard Regan had a large number of cases under the School Attendance Act.

Fines varying from 2/- to 1/- were imposed in a number of cases, others were adjourned as attendances showed improvement.

In the case of a young lad named Sandford, who even when brought to school on various days managed to run away again.

The Justice imposed a fine of 1/- and warned the child's mother that if he was not kept to school he (the Justice) would send him to another school.

Sergeant Clancy, prosecuted John Wall, Buttery street, for allowing a horse to wander on the public road. Fined 5/-.

No Lights.

The following were prosecuted under the Lights and Vehicles Act:—

Mr. Veale, Ballinamona, Ring; J. Maher, Curraheen.

Sergeant Gallagher, Ring, and Guard McGrath, Cappagh, were the complainants.

Guard Sweeney, prosecuted two young lads named Lucas and Keohan, Davis street, for hurling on the public street.

A fine of 1/- was imposed.

Trespass.

John McGrath, O'Connell street, prosecuted Wm. Crotty, Woulfe Tone street, for allowing two horses to trespass on his land at Gallows Hill.

YOUGHAL URBAN COUNCIL.

Present—Mr. J. R. Smyth, P.C., Chairman; Capt. P. Dunne, Messrs. D. Dennehy, M. J. Fleming, T. Beausang, P. J. McMahon, P.C.; P. J. O'Gorman, P.C.; T. Harrington, D. J. Linehan, J. Whelan, E. Clancy, Thos. Murphy, E. P. Lynch, Vice-Chairman; M. D. Broderick, A. J. Fowkes.

Wages, Etc.

A cheque for £87 14s. 10d., week's wages, etc., was passed.

Work Neglected.

Mr. O'Gorman called attention to the fact that in February last he suggested that any work necessary to be done in view of the forthcoming season should be attended to in good time. A few evenings ago, Mr. Linehan and he visited the Green Park, the Diving Rocks and Strand and other points, and were astonished to find that practically everything had been neglected although his suggestion had been adopted. They were now into the season and that was not the proper time to do the work.

Mr. Linehan bore out Mr. O'Gorman's complaint.

The Ferry Slip.

Mr. Murphy said that the Ferry Slip which should be cleaned every week was in a disgraceful condition.

Mr. Harrington agreed and said that the Council was responsible. They should have seen that the work was done.

Rules Over-ruled.

Mr. McMahon backed up Mr. O'Gorman, but they were breaking so many rules that one more didn't matter. There was a definite resolution on the books that any work costing over £2 should be put for contract, but it was hardly observed.

Capt. Dunne said that was all in the South Ward, but they should go into the Centre and North Wards to see how things were not done.

The Chairman agreed that there were grounds for the complaints made. There were a lot of things that might be done, but they were anxious to avoid putting too much of an extra burden on the rates.

Mr. Broderick said it was strange that their wage bills were so heavy in view of the fact that they had the same sized staff and that the maintenance of the main roads had been taken off their hands.

Mr. O'Gorman thought the fault was in the allocation of the staff.

It was ultimately decided to set a number of the staff at the works referred to.

Mr. Lynch said if they didn't do the necessary work in the Green Park soon they would have a very big bill to face.

More Buildings.

The Clerk submitted a plan of a house to be built opposite the Green Park for Mr. J. Brooks.

It was unanimously approved subject to the opinion of the Town Surveyor.

Inland Fisheries.

A resolution was received from the Mayo Co. Council requesting the Government to review the present position and condition of Inland Fisheries in their relation to local rates. That a proper valuation of same be made for rating purposes and that Fishery rights which unduly interfere with or hamper Drainage operations be carefully examined into with a view to removing the anomalies which existed in that regard. That a refund be made to the ratepayers of the several Counties of which they have been deprived because of the operation of Section 13 of the Fisheries Act, 1925.

Mr. Broderick said that was a matter for the Co. Council.

Mr. Lynch said he hoped it would deal with the grip the Duke of Devonshire had on the river Blackwater.

Mr. Clancy said he didn't know how the Duke got the rights over the Blackwater Fisheries originally, but he should be called on to reduce the heavy license the poor fishermen of Youghal and up the river had to pay him annually.

The Chairman said they all agreed to that.

Irish Slates.

The Clerk said that three builders who were engaged erecting houses that would qualify for grants, complained that they were unable to get delivery of Irish slates as required. He had written to the Department about the matter and had received the following reply:—

"With reference to your letter of the 26th. ult., relative to the roofing materials on houses qualifying for grants under the Housing (Financial and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1932, I am directed by the Minister for Local Government and Public Health to state that where native slates are not procurable, it is open to applicants for grants to roof the houses with concrete tiles manufactured in Saorstad Eireann supplies of which are now available through most Builders' Providers. Messrs. P. Kenneally, M. Walsh, and J. Walsh, should represent the circumstances of their cases to the local appointed officer with a request that he will forward a report to the Minister on the subject."

Free Milk.

The Clerk read the L. G. D's letter re their scheme of Free Milk Distribution.

Mr. O'Gorman—Does that mean that all the votes the Government captured at the last Election will come to us this time (laughter)?

Mr. Lynch—It wasn't the Government ran it last time. Mr. Clancy—It was they got the creand Mr. P. Kenneally, Youghal, £5,864.

After some discussion as to the rent likely to be charged, the lower tender was accepted, Mr. McMahon asking to be taken as objecting on the ground that the price was still too high.

Mr. Broderick said the ratepayers would have to subsidise the scheme to the tune of about 1/6 a week per house. The majority of the ratepayers had more than enough to do without that.

Capt. Dunne—We are not going to hold up the scheme any longer. Mr. Clancy said the Council had done their best in the matter.

She: "No, Herbert, I am sorry, but I am sure we could not be happy together. You know I always want my own way in everything." He: "But, my dear girl, you could go on wanting it after we were married."

Waterford County Board of Public Health

Mr. Patrick O'Gorman, chairman, presided at the meeting of the above on Saturday. The other members in attendance were—Messrs. J. Butler, Wm. Stack, Mee. Keane, D. Heskin, and Ml. Curran, V.C.

Mr. J. O'Gorman, solr., to the Board was also in attendance.

Finance.
 The Secretary reported the balance to the credit of the Board at the end of the month was £4,309 1s. 3d.

Glendine Well.
 Dr. Ronayne, reported that the well at Glendine school required deepening and cleaning.

The Engineer was directed to see that the work was carried out.

Mr. Spreadborough reported on the well at Ballycurrane Cross, and estimated the cost of repair at £6. It was ordered that the work be carried out.

Additional Rooms To Cottages.
 Mrs. Wm. Fleming, Ballyvoile, appeared before the Board and applied for an additional room to her cottage.

As any member of that area was not present, the matter was adjourned pending the handing in of a notice of motion by some member.

Mr. Spreadborough reported that the probable cost of building an additional room to the cottage occupied by M. Connors, Clonea, would be £70.

The matter arose on the recommendation of Dr. Casey, M.O.H., that an additional room be built.

The report was adjourned to enable the Board to get further information.

A man named Coffey also applied for an additional room to his cottage. He promised to build the room himself if the Board would supply the material.

The application was refused as the applicant after being questioned admitted that only two members of his family are permanently living in the cottage, the other four only came there on holidays.

Claim For Damages.
 Mr. Ml. Mason, Cappoquin, appeared before the Board in support of a claim lodged by him for £15 7s. 6d., for damages to a motor car (£26 12s. 6d.) Suit and Overcoat £8; underclothes 15s.

Mr. Mason explained that after the funeral of the late Thos. Brown, the doctor ordered the car and driver's clothes to be disinfected. A sulphur candle was put into the car, as a result of which damage to the amount claimed was done.

The Board adjourned the matter pending a report from the Doctor.

Glendog Water Supply.
 Mr. Spreadborough, reported that the cleaning and re-laying of the Ballymacmague section of the above supply was now completed at a cost of £165 3s. 8d.

The Graunfoda section was also completed at a cost of £21 9s. 4d., and work is still progressing on the Ballinamintra section.

Mr. Butler asked if it was the intention of the Board to carry on the work at the Graunfoda section as far as Ed. Dower's Cross. He was well acquainted with the supply there, and can say that there is not any water coming there for three months of the year.

Mr. Spreadborough said the pipes raised were in a bad state. You could not see daylight through them.

Mr. Butler said the Board will eventually have to clean all these pipes as they are down thirty years.

The Engineer was directed to carry out what work he considered necessary to give a good supply.

Mr. Heskin—It is a formidable looking document anyway.

Mr. Fitzgerald—The duties are now doubled. The £13 would not keep nails in my boots, there are eleven miles of main pipes.

Mr. Butler—What is the revenue from this scheme?

Secretary—I cannot say now, you cut it down recently.

Mr. Butler—It is a big scheme entailing a lot of travelling.

Chairman—If we raise it to £20.

Mr. Fitzgerald—It would be no use to me.

Mr. Butler—He should have at least 10/- a week in my opinion.

Mr. Fitzgerald—It is very small.

Mr. Curran—It is a big jump from £13.

Secretary—You will be lucky if the Department sanction it.

Mr. Fitzgerald—If they don't they can get another caretaker. Look at the increased duties, at one time I had only to scour the pipes once a month, now I must do it weekly.

The increase to £26 was granted subject to sanction.

Slates v. Concrete Slabs.
 Arising out of a letter from the Contractor (erecting a cottage in the Lismore area) that he is unable to get Irish slates.

Mr. Butler said he hoped that in the new scheme of 400 cottages they would have an alternative in the specification for slates or concrete slabs. He also suggested that the concrete slabs be made in the County (preferably in Dungarvan which would be central for the whole County).

The Board decided to embody Mr. Butler's suggestion in the specification.

Letting Of Cottages.
 The vacant cottage at Portnaboe (Carrick-on-Suir area) was let to John McGrath, Coolnahorna.

Three applicants applied for the vacant cottage at Ballybeg (Waterford area), viz.—John Mooney, Thos. Evey, and Patk. Regan.

On the proposition of Mr. Curran, Mooney, whose father was the tenant of the cottage for the past 24 years, was appointed.

Increase Of Salary.
 The caretaker of the Ballyduff Upper water supply, wrote asking for extra remuneration owing to increased duties since the installation of the new reservoir.

The matter was adjourned.

Tenders.
 The following tenders were accepted for supplies to the Co. Home, Dungarvan: Butter—Messrs. R. A. Merry, 1/2d. per lb; Dungarvan Co-operative Creamery 1/3; G. Stokes & Son, 1/3d.; Wm. Stokes, 1/3d.; M. J. Casey & Co., 14 1/2. per cwt.

SHARP FINES IN FISHERY CASES.

(Before Mr. G. P. Farrell, D.J.)
 Thomas Drohan, Inspector of Fisheries, Mallow, charged John Barron, Ballyheeny, and Thomas Keogh, Tinabinna, with fishing during the weekly close season. There was a further charge against the same defendants by Patrick Barry, water bailiff, of resisting and obstructing the bailiffs in the execution of their duty.

Mr. J. L. Keane, solr., Youghal, appeared for the complainants in both cases. The defendants were not represented professionally.

Mr. Keane said there were two offences charged. As a matter of fact, there might have been a third. Both defendants were charged with fishing for salmon on Sunday, 14th. May, and also with obstructing the bailiffs. In addition, they were using a "fixed engine," but were not summoned for that.

Patrick Barry, water bailiff, stated that on the day in question he saw the two defendants fishing with a salmon net. He asked them to haul up the net and go away. Keogh refused to comply.

The Justice—Where and when was this?

Witness—At Ardsallagh, in the river Blackwater, at five o'clock in the evening.

Witness, continuing, said he proceeded to get their boat, and with bailiff Hayes approached the defendants in their boat. Witness caught the net outside the cork line, but Keogh interfered and said he would not let him take it. The defendants were still fishing when they (the bailiffs) left.

The Justice—How could two men fish a net?—How were they fishing?

Witness—They had it tied into the shore—a "cribble" we call it—a kind of cribble. It was 28 or 30 yards long, and tied to the black oroweed. It was swinging between the two tides.

What depth of water?—It was very deep there. The net was a salmon net.

What happened then?—We went up the river and returned two hours afterwards. They were then gone.

The two men in a boat could do this kind of fishing?—Oh, yes; they could.

And catch fish?—Yes.

Bailiff Hayes corroborated. Barry attempted to take the net, catching it on the outside and lifting it out of the water. Keogh said something to the effect that he would rot in jail or prevent him taking it. The result was he was not able to take it.

THE DEFENCE.
 Barron said they admitted that they were fishing. Necessity brought them to it. About a month ago their craft was taken by the Duke of Devonshire's men off the quay at Youghal. They had nothing to fish with and were out of employment. The net was only 25 yards long and the river was over 200 yards wide at the point, so that they had only a 20 to 1 chance to catch anything.

Mr. Keane said those nets were known as "cribbles." They were tied ashore, and were, therefore, "fixed engines." To be "drift" nets, they must drift with the tide.

The Justice—What about their capacity to catch salmon?

Mr. Keane—My instructions are that they had a great capacity, and were a great nuisance on the river.

The Justice—Is there anything against either of these men before?

Mr. Drohan said they were fined there last August in the sum of £10, reduced on memorial to £2. A charge of assault against Barron had been withdrawn on his Worship's suggestion.

The Justice said he had great sympathy with, and pity for fishermen, whose task was both arduous and risky, and who often had very little for their labours, but he found it very hard to do anything for the present defendants, who had been before him last year. They seemed to be the "black sheep" in the flock of fishermen around. In the circumstances, it was very embarrassing for him to know what to do with or for them.

The minimum fine in the first charge was £10. In the second summons the evidence was that Keogh was the active resistor to the seizure of the nets.

They were each fined £10 for fishing during the weekly close season and Keogh was fined 20s. for obstructing the bailiffs.

Nets Seized.
 Mr. M. Carroll, solr., Fermoy, applied on behalf of Patrick Dooley, bailiff, to the Lismore Estates Co., Ltd., for the forfeiture and destruction of two salmon drift nets, and for the forfeiture of another, all captured in the Blackwater in the early morning of 22nd. May.

Dooley stated that between 12 o'clock and 1 a.m. on the morning in question they came down the river. When they arrived at Ballinacash they saw several crafts fishing. They followed three crafts up the Ballinacash "pill" and took their nets. When they first saw the crafts they were about 150 yards distant, and had their nets in the river fishing. One crew escaped and two got into one boat, went up a tributary and tried to get down again. As witness was trying to identify the men one struck him with a pole and witness put a torch on him, but he didn't succeed. All the men escaped. The bailiffs took away the three nets, which measured 220, 212 and 198 yards respectively. The men tried to drive them down the "pill," but the bailiffs kept alongside them till they got the nets.

The Justice—Did you get any application about those nets—did any one apply for them?

Witness—No.

The Justice—Very well. I will have to make the orders sought for, accordingly to the law.

No. 127.—
THE BEAUTY OF BIG DOGS.
OLD BRITISH BREEDS.
 By "PHILOKON."

LAST week's show of the Big Breeds Canine Society at Ranelagh, led to the conviction that the giants of the canine race have many supporters among exhibitors, for the entry was unexpectedly large. As shows set the fashion, in a few years we may find the general public taking them up. There is no doubt that most of them make satisfactory companions and incomparable guards, provided one has the accommodation and can afford the expense.

There is a tendency, perhaps, to over-estimate the cost of keeping an adult. Paradoxically, a puppy's rations may be more expensive, since it requires a lot of nourishing food in order to give it the necessary size and bone.

An adult Irish Wolfhound, which is the tallest of all, can do with an evening meal of two pounds of meat and two dog biscuits in a dry state if he has had a light feed of biscuits or meal in the morning. All of them being hardy, they can, if required, live in an outbuilding or a wooden kennel that is reasonably warm.

There are four really big breeds—Irish Wolfhounds, St. Bernards, Great Danes and Mastiffs and but little behind these are Newfoundlands, Borzios and Deerhounds.

Bloodhounds, Old English Sheepdogs and Bull Mastiffs also come within the sphere of the society mentioned, any of which have bulk enough to look imposing. Without these breeds our shows would be sadly depleted, for there is no doubt of their attractiveness to the visitors, who admire if they do not often buy.

We have to be especially grateful to those exhibitors who preserved mastiffs during the troublous times and extended their numbers after peace had been declared. It is nothing but a matter of sentiment, of course, yet sentiment, does count. Here we have a breed that was in England when the Romans landed in the pre-Christian era. I cannot say which are the older, mastiffs or greyhounds. Bloodhounds came next at a much later period, having followed the Norman Conquest. It is possible that wolfhounds have as long an association with Ireland as mastiffs have with England, but they were almost extinct by the third quarter of last century, and we have to thank the late Captain Graham for the dogs as we now know them. I daresay the Old English sheepdog has a respectable history. St. Bernards were introduced soon after the beginning of dog shows in 1859, and at one time were all the rage, enormous prices being paid for the best. Sir Bedivere was sold to America about 1892 for £1,300.

Newfoundlands and Great Danes had been seen in the country for many years before shows brought them to the front, and we had also occasional borzios obtained from the Tsars or Russian Grand Dukes. They owe their naturalisation, however, to the Duchess of Newcastle, who had the predominant kennel at the end of last century. Great Danes are the most prosperous of all, and they were the chief section at last week's show. The two powerful kennels owned by Mr. J. V. Rank and Mr. Gordon Stewart have not had the effect of destroying competition, as sometimes happens. These too, are the most popular with the public, though they are not as common as they were before the War.

WATERFORD MENTAL HOSPITAL.
PATIENT ASSAULTED.

In the course of his report to the monthly meeting of the Waterford Mental Hospital Committee, Dr. Fitzgerald, R.M.S., stated that on May, 16, a male patient was severely assaulted by another, as a result of which he received a broken arm and some facial cuts. The incident occurred very suddenly, and although two attendants were present they could not, in his opinion, have prevented the injuries. The patient, he added, had now recovered.

Shortage Of Water.
 Dr. Fitzgerald, further reported that general bathing in the institution had to cease for two weeks during last month owing to a shortage of water. All the bathing on the male side had to be stopped, but it was carried on to some extent on the female side. He had had several consultations with the Borough Surveyor and his assistant, and he thought they were doing everything they could to help. Matters had been slightly improved lately. The report was adopted.

A. I. V. FODDER.

The results of recent research work have shown that grass in the young stage has a much higher feeding value than grass which has reached maturity.

If some method could be found to conserve this grass without incurring undue loss of feeding value in the process there would be a very material benefit to the farming community of this country.

An alternative to making young grass into hay is silage. Although for many years the practice of ensiling certain fodder crops has been popular in some districts it is only in recent years that there has been any real attempt to make grass into silage.

Thanks to the researches of Prof. Drew of the Albert Agricultural College, and to other workers, this method of conserving grass is gradually gaining ground.

In the making of silage a considerable loss of food constituents takes place due to respiration, fermentation in the silo, and waste. Waste occurs where the air obtains too free access and mould, which needs air, sets in. Mould attacks chiefly the top and the sides of the mass and the loss from this cause varies according to the method of making, being highest in the stack and clamp silage and lowest in the silo.

The silo, which is usually from 5 feet to 6 feet in depth with a diameter from 10 feet to 16 feet, is generally sunk partially or wholly into the water table, since all external water must be excluded.

The crop, which is carted as soon as possible after cutting, and before wetting takes place, is put into the silo in lots of 2 to 3 cwt. at a time and sprinkled with the solution known as A.I.V. (after the initials of the inventor) which is carefully measured and mixed with water according to the instructions. The whole mass is continuously trampled by men wearing rubber boots (the solution attacks leather). When the under-silo is full an over-silo (made to fit closely on top of the under-silo) is fitted on to the under-silo and filling, sprinkling and tramping are continued as before. The process is continuous from day to day. When the over-silo is full the top layer of fodder is sprayed with A.I.V. solution to which has been added a substance to prevent mould from attacking the upper surface of the fodder. The fodder is then ready for covering in. First a layer of newspapers or sacks is placed on top of the fodder. A layer of wet sawdust, peat, etc. where available, is placed on top of the paper or sacks. This is followed by a layer of 18 inches of soil, which is well trodden down and smoothed over.

In three or four days the fodder will have sunk down level with the top of the under-silo. The over-silo (which is made in sections) is removed and is available for other under-silos. The final appearance of the top of the silo is that of a flatish cone, so that rain can easily run off. Whilst filling is in progress and until the over-silo is removed the drain leading from the centre of the pit is plugged. After the over-silo has been removed the plug is removed and all effluent from the silo allowed to drain away. The drain is then plugged up again in order to exclude air. The silo is then left until the fodder is required. It is fit for use after a lapse of two months.

Experiments carried out at Jealott's Hill, the Agricultural Research Station of Imperial Chemical Industries, show that the application of the process, so far as has been the successful production from grass of high feeding value, of a fodder which shows but small loss of even quality throughout the silo and well liked by stock.

It was found that cows would consume up to 70 lb. In practice, however, the usual ration is more likely to be 40 to 50 lbs. which, provided the fodder has been made from young grass with a high feeding value should with a small addition of hay maintain a cow giving 2 1/2 to 3 gallons per day. It was found that the quality of the milk did not suffer, in fact the yellow colour of summer milk which is lost when cows are fed on an ordinary winter ration of hay, roots and concentrates, was well kept up and, as is now well known, the yellow colour of milk is closely associated with Vitamin A.

If these results are confirmed it would appear that this process affords a practical way of using surplus young grass in summer and storing it for winter feeding when it will provide a fodder with a higher feeding value than hay or ordinary silage.

Since the process entails expenditure on the solution it should only be used with grass in the young stage and at its highest feeding value. Here good management and balanced manuring will make itself felt in the abundance and quality of the grass.
