Important Notice.

We wish to call the attention of our customers and the general public to the fact that we have erected a Waltham Patent Kiln at considerable expense to treat the native Grain which it is incumbent on us to mix with Maize. Under the new Cereals Bill the quantity of this Admixture has been raised by a recent order of the Department of Agriculture from 10 per cent. to 15 per cent. Owing to this increased percentage to secure good sound Meal, the Kiln-drying of the home-grown Grain is in our opinion absolutely necessary. We therefore guarantee that the quota of native Grain used by this Firm in the Admixture will be Kiln-dried. This combined with the stone grinding at our Water-power Mill at Kiladangan should secure a first-class article.

We shall supply Maize Meal with the stipulated Admixture of either OATS or BARLEY. In the case of BARLEY being used a slight increase in price will be required. N.B.—As the percentage of admixture of Home-Grown Grain has been raised to 25 per cent. since 24th July, it is absolutely vital to have the Home-grown grain Kiln-dried to have good meal.

TREATMENT OF SEEDLING GRASSES.

MISTAKES MADE IN AUTUMN.

Apart from the thorough preparation of the seed-bed, manner of sowing and suitability of the seed mixture, a point of considerable importance, and one that calls for close attention, is the care and treatment of the young or seedling grasses. Farmers are wont to regard this detail very lightly, with consequent detrimental effects on both the hay crop and the succeeding pasture. Three directions in which by omission or commission mistakes are made may be outlined as follows:

(a) In the first autumn when the harvesting of the accompanying grain crop is undertaken, the interests of the young grass plants which are beginning to fix themselves in the soil are often overlooked. Too close cutting of the oats or barley, as the case may be, is to be avoided. A tolerably long stubble is required to be left as a protection for the young plants, as well as from frost and sun as from cold drying winds. It has often been noticed that the grasses and clovers seem to come more thickly and luxuriantly on land where the grain crop has been cut with the scythe than where it has been closely cropped by the machine. The reason for this is, no doubt, due not only to the longer stubble left by the scythe, but also because there is no topping of the plants. When the plants are injured, bleeding is sure to follow, with the result that the first touch of frost proves fatal.

(b) Another mistake often made is carelessness in putting stock on to newly-laid down grass lands. Of course, if the weather be dry and the soil fine and firm, a few young calves may with impunity be turned out, but very often the mistake is made of grazing it in autumn with sheep and lambs. Nothing more severe upon the young plants not yet fixed in the soil can be imagined. Sheep, as is well-known, are very close grazers, and are especially severe on the finer plants. The result of their grazing is that many plants are torn out altogether, many are so broken as to fall an easy victim to frost, while others, if the ground be soft through rain, are stamped out of existence, and especially is the harm of this mistaken policy intensified should the nights, as they very often do at this season of the year, prove frosty. At such a time a sheep is said to have five mouths, for so far as the clovers are concerned, every plant bruised by trampling and afterwards affected by frost, withers and dies out quickly—in fact, there is more of the herbage ruined in this way than is actually consumed.

(c) Another feature in the mismanagement of young seeds may be ascribed to the neglect of rolling. In most parts of the country the practice of rolling young seeds in early spring is, no doubt, generally carried out, and is so far commendable; but this operation might with advantage also be done in late autumn. The result of rolling in tillage operations serves a dual purpose—it at one and the same time pulverises the larger and more adhesive lumps of clay, and thereby reduces them to a fine powdery condition; it also consolidates the soil particles, and so promotes capillarity between the surface layer and the supply of moisture in the sub-soil; on grass lands the results it brings about are different; no doubt, it produces a desirable evenness of surface, but its chief benefit arises from the fact that it presses the clay around the tiny rootlets of the plants, thereby saving them from the injurious influences of either drought or frost. Of course, in rolling, as in many other farm operations, due regard must be paid to the prevailing weather, but the importance of the operation is greater than is generally supposed, for, just as the ordinary spring rolling is primarily intended to counteract the drought in the parched surface layers, so this much neglected winter rolling has as its object the preservation of many of the plants from being thrown out by frost owing to the exposure of their tiny rootlets. Rolling will sometimes have the effect of keeping plants alive which otherwise would have died, and neglect of attention to it in farm practice should, as far as possible, be remedied.—G. in "Farmers' Gazette."

A plague of hares has fallen upon the State of Victoria, Australia, and the authorities are giving free ammunition to anyone who will join in the task of shooting them. The total "bag" to date is at least 1,000,000. Many hares are being exported at 9d. a brace.
