COMPENSATION. The following letter was read from Messrs E. A. It was while on his way home on the night in question that the unfortun- sub-deacon, Rev. P. Donegan, O.S.A. ate man fell into the reservoir. The Council, we understand, is already aware of all the details of the sad occurrence. It appears that anyone unfortunate enough to fall into this reservoir has no chance of getting out unaided, owing to the nature of its construction and the level of the water below the side, and this veritable death trap is left entirely unprotected and unfenced, and there is nothing to indicate its extent or dangerous nature. It would appear clear that the Council were guilty of negligence in failing to make and keep their property safe for those entitled to be thereon, and that such negligence caused the death of our client's hus band. We have, therefore, to ask you what proposals the Council has to make as to compensating our client and her family for the pecuniary loss and damage sustained by them.

The letter was referred to the Coun cil's solicitor, without any discussion

He could not say if he told the defendant that the job would be completed in a fortnight. The day defendant took the car he Death of Mrs. Lawlor, offered witness some money, but witness said he would not take it until the lights were settled as the battery was in Cappoquin.

To Mr. Ryan—The battery was being repaired in Cappoquin and witness put in one of his own until the repair was done. Witness sent the bill. Defendant said he would pay if the amount was reduced.

Edward O'Brien, defendant, stated that he bought the car for £35. Mr. Beston did some light repairs early in 1931, for which witness paid 25/-Later, Mr. Beston suggested the car would require to get a tightening up.
Witness asked what it would cost.
Mr. Beston said £3. Witness is an Insurance Inspector and required the car urgently, but did not get it back until November. He took the car before the lights were settled. He offered plaintiff the £3, but plaintiff said he would not take anything until the lights were fixed. The car was much better before than after the repairs. C.Y.M.S. Cappoquin

On Sunday night a special general meeting of the C. Y. M. S. was held for the purpose of enrolling new members and strengthening the Society so as to make it a more virile and healthy school of Catholic thought and action in the town and parish.

The membership of this splendid Society has not been hitherto what it should have been in a Catholic town like Cappoquin, but since the Rev. I. Rea, C.C., took over control as its Spiritual Director, he has been working energetically to infuse new life into it and make it far more vigorous and popular than it has been. Special circulars had been sent out to all the non-members in the town inviting their attendance at Sunday night's meeting, and we are glad to be able to state that there was a generous response, as there was a very large gathering present.

Mr. R. J. Collender, President, occupied the Chair, and having explained the object of the meeting, Rev. J. Rea, C.C., delivered an eloquent address, in the course of which he pointed out the great advantages of having a Catholic Young Mens' Society in the town where all forms of healthy re-creation could be enjoyed by the young men.

He referred in complimentary terms to the great work performed by the Rev. P. Mescal, while he was C.C., in Cappoquin, and who had founded this Society on September, 16th, 1927. and made a strong appeal to all the young men who were not yet members to join the Society without delay, and so continue the good work started by Father Mescal for their benefit.

Between 30 and 40 new members were enrolled, which was considered most satisfactory, and steps were taken to still further increase the roll

KILMACTHOMAS NEWS.

DEATH. Sincere regret was felt throughout Mahon Valley at the death of Mr. William Thrum, Carrigcastle, Bonmahon, which sad event occurred after a protracted illness, and in the fulness of his years. An athlete of considerable merit in his heyday, he was ever a sportsman of the first water. The remains (accompanied by a large cortege) were removed to St. Anne's (hurch, Ballylaneen, on Wednesday evening of last week, and interment was made in the adjoining cemetery. Rev. T. O'Shea, C.C., officiated at the graveside.-R.I.P.

AGAIN.

It is our sad duty to record the demise of Mr. Thomas Hurst, which happened on the 24th inst., at his residence at Stradbally, after a some what lengthy illness and at the comparatively early age of 57 years. Deceased was a British ex-Serviceman and was severely wounded in the World War. Of a cheery disposition, he was a general favourite with all, and the neighbours gave him a fine funeral to Stradbally parish church on Sunday evening. Following the celebration of Mass of Requiem for his soul on Monday, the burial took place in the churchyard in the presence of many relatives, friends and sympathisers. Peace to his soul.

GENIAL GUARD TRANSFERRED. His hosts of friends and well-wishers in these parts were sorry to hear of the transfer of Guard N. J. Carroll, from Kill to Stoneyford, Co. Kilkenny. During his term of three years in Kill, Guard Carroll made numerous friendships by his kindly and courteous manner on and off duty. He filled a big part in the sporting and social life of the picturesque village, and his The Chairman referred to the re- departure therefrom last week-end is

The prices recently paid for pigs were regarded as fairly satisfactory, though, in view of the cost of maize meal for feeding, they left the producers very little profit. While farmers are having the satisfaction of finding a ready market for both pigs and bonhams, they are finding it impossible to find sales for their surplus cattle supplies. It would undoubtedly be a great boon to pig pro ducers and town traders alike if the pig trade continued to flourish. The weekly pig market here at Kilmacthomas is certainly a great asset to the

FAHA CROSS-ROADS.

Faha Cross is haunted with memories. When the old Toll house at that junction was demolished, another landmark merged into the past. The stage coaches passed its gates on 'he way to and from Waterford and Dungarvan, and one can visualise the tollman saluting the driver and inquiring as he doubtless would inquire, "Had you a safe journey?" In the old days the highway through the Decies had its Dick Turpins. The robber was monarch of the road, and there was no appeal from his pistol. His creed

Honesty's against all common sense, Men must be knaves; 'tis in their own defence.

He could hold up, and often did, an entire coachful who, when he called out: "Stand and deliver," yielded to the persuasion of the blunderbuss. As the menace grew, the drivers were strongly armed, and eventually the highway man lost his pernicious influence and his terror waned. The toll-house was a piece of concrete history; more romantic than a story, more stirring than any "thriller" from the brain of the late Edgar Wal-

By the way, it is interesting to note that to-day in the vicinity of Faha Cross may be seen an old milestone of the stage coach period, and from the one legible inscription thereon, we learn that Cappoquin is fifteen Irish miles distant from it.

A SUGGESTION.

In the event of Curraghmore becoming an airport—an event that is not at all improbable, according to a rumour recently on the rounds-we thereby respectfully suggest that that famous landmark, Clonegam Tower, which can be seen from such great distances, would make an ideal air ever 'planes there were approaching, and direct them safely to the landing a dozen stage. Only a few years ago who ever would have conceived this noble mounnment of a scion of the Beresfords as a beacon for night flyers?

BELIEVE IT OR NOT.

Bonmahon ladies, like those of other seaside places, have an unhappy knack of losing rings, or rather, nearly losing them. Almost every woman at some time or other gives a sudden start and exclaims, "It's gone!" Then follows an elaborate search for the missing "sparkier," which invariably turns up in some ridiculous place. Where it has been hidden for safety's sake. A Ballyduff Lower lady; who a short time ago advertised for a "lost" ring, annoyed her husband when she discovered that she had left it in a Waterford city jeweller's establishment to be cleaned! And she annoyed her poor spouse even more' when she claimed the reward he had offeredfor the purpose of buying a blue blouse!

THE MARCH FAIR.

This fair was fairly well supplied in the different departments, but the demand was slack if you except butchers' sheep, which showed some improvement. Stock owners were disappointed at the prospects, as this time of the year a revival in values is generally expected, and its absence was not regarded as an encouraging sign for the coming season. Store cattle were not in demand, but young heifers and springers sold pretty well. Beef cattle were looked for at recent rates and mutton made a little more than last fair. Bonhams and store pigs were in good supply and the demand was nothing to brag about.

It is freely predicted that the coming Budget will inflict a tax of 2/6 per annum on every owner of a push

We extend warmest congratulations to the Kilrossanty junior football XV. on their admirably achieved victory over Villierstown, in their first-round Western Divisional Championship clash, at the Shandon Field, Dungarvan, on last Sunday evening. Bravo, Joe & Co.!

The juniors of Clonea-Power and Ballyduff Lower (Cathal Brughas) crossed camans at Portlaw on the 25th inst., in the first round of this year's Eastern Divisional Championship. A stern struggle ended as follows:-Clonea-Power, 3-0; Ballyduff, 4-2. In a friendly camogic Contest at the same venue the Portlaw St. Declan's went under to Waterford St. Columncille's. Winners notched 1-2; losers, 1-0. Mr. J. Foley (Portlaw), refereed both bouts right well.

ROAD WORK.

Dear Sir,-Kindly allow me space in this week's issue of your journal for the following: -As road work has now commenced in various parts of the county, I wish to draw the attention of those responsible for the giving of employment that work should only be given to labourers, and cart work to small farmers with only a few acres of land, who cannot make a living solely from a small amount of land. I am going to refer to one district in particular, that is in the parish of Clashmore. There I can see farmers working with horses who have from sixty to seventy acres of land, and others idle who are in much more need of work. Is this fair to the poor labourers? The policy of the Fianna Fail Government is: Leave the farmers on their farms and work them and give this much-needed employment to those who need it, the labourers and small-holders. This would prolong the work for the workers, which if this is left go on will be diminished in a very short time, then the workers will again be out of employment and must be maintained through doles and Home Assistance. I appear again to the County Surveyor, to see that this does not go on any longer, and see that the foremen on these works do not give preference to farmers as carters, as there are plenty carters depending on this work without including farmers who do not need it. This would prolong the work for the workers, which is their Godgiven rights, and help to put them over another year in comfort LOOKER-ON.

Milk varies greatly in its natural colour. It shows its deepest tint in comes direct from the green food and ilage have been found to improve the colour of milk and its products, and very noticeably in some cases. Carrots, unfortunately, are rather expensive to grow as a farm crop, particularly for stock feeding, because of the labour costs of thinning and cleaning, as well as of lifting. But for this, they would, perhaps, be extensively grown as cattle food, because they have a rather higher feeding value then either mangolds or swedes, and, in addition, cream and butter that no other food! can impart. They are sometimes grown successfully in alternate rows with mangolds, and, even though only one row of carrots were grown to five of mangolds, enough would be produced to maintain good colour in the milk of the herd throughout the win-

For a short while after calving the milk is deeper in colour, than it is for the rest of the lactation which may be partly explained by the fact that colouring matter is stored up in the cow's body during the 8 or 10 weeks she is dry before calving. (Before Mr. F. J. McCabe, D.J.) ALLEGED ASSAULT ON GARDAI SERGEANT.

Eireann at the suit of Superintendent Michael Dennehy, G.S., Tramore, prosecuted James Kiersey, Ballyvohalane, Kill, and William Byrnes, Ballylenane, Dunhill, for having, in company with others unknown, assaulted and obstructed Sergeant Patrick O'Connor, Kill, a member of the G.S. in the execution of his duty, on the night of November 13-14th. last—the occasion of a U.I.P. dance in Kill vil-

Mr. E. A. Ryan, S.S., appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. P. O'Con-nor, junr., solr., Waterford, represented the defendants.

Mr. Ryan, at the outset, stressed the seriousness of the charge, and of the necessity of teaching a salutary lesson to perpetrators of cowardly assaults, such as was the one launched against the efficient Sergeant in charge of the Kill station on the night in question.

Sergeant O'Connor was then called, and in reply to Mr. Ryan, stated there was a U.I.P. dance in Kill Hall on the night mentioned in the charge. Witness was in plain clothes and on duty throughout the night. He and Jern. Cooney, of Kill, were about to enter a house in the vicinity of the Hall, when a man struck Cooney on the side of the head. Witness caught the man, whom he identified as William Byrnes of Ballylenane. He was pushing Byrnes into the house when a second man struck him. Both men struck him several times, and ultimately he fell to the ground. He held on to Byrnes all the while. Byrnes struggled to free himself, and he struck and kicked witness with the other two men. To save his face and head from their kicks with his hands, witness was forced to release his grip of Byrnes. While witness was being kicked in the head and on both sides, a man on the right-hand side shouted: "kick him," three times. Witness shouted "I'm the Sergeant." It was then he identified James Kiersey, of Ballyvohalane, as being one of the party who were kicking him. There were 15 or 16 persons about in little batches or 2 or 3, but nobody came to his assistance. Witness made tremendous efforts to save his head, and one of his arms was badly cut by the kicks he received. His assailants were furious. He had no doubt about Kiersev and Byrnes being two of his attackers. Kiersey rushed away through the crowd, and witness learned later that Kiersey afterwards went to th

Examined by Mr. O'Connor, witness said it was a very serious assault, and he might have lost an eye. His in-juries were treated by Dr. Walsh. There were no disciplinary measures taken as a result of Kiersey's com-plaint of maltreatment on the part of the Guards. Witness was protecting Jeremiah Cooney that night. Cooney was secretary to the local branch of the Farmers' Union before the merger, and was now a prominent member of the U.I.P. in the district. Cooney did not apply for protection, but from information received, witness deemed it necessary to protect him that night Witness was on a parallel with Coo ney at the door of the house they were about to enter, when Cooney was struck, and witness was positive whom he grappled. Cooney didn't see Byrnes, as the blow caused him to stumble forward inside the door. Cooney was struck in the head and was stunned by the blow. He did not come to witness's assistance afterwards. Witness never since heard a word about there being a drunken brawl in the village that night. He didn't have the accused arrested on the following morning, as his superior officer had instructed him to deal with them by summons. Guard Nevin did not strike Kiersey in witness's presence after the assault on himself (Sergt.) that night.

A PIED PIPER OF GOATS. AND HOW THEY FLOCKED TO HIM

"In the fall of the evening he would leave his house, wearing a fig-shaped gadget on his head and with a staff in his hand. He would utter a series of weird piercing calls, and after a while goats would come flocking to him from all parts of the Curragh."

This story was told by James Punch, who, with P. Brennan, was bound over at Naas, on a charge of stealing 50 goats.

Punch declared that Brennan was the charmer of the goats, and said that he bought the goats from Brennan and sold them to the Dublin Zoo.

NO. 168.— RESPONSIBILITIES OF OWNERS TRESPASSING DOGS.

By "PHILOKUON."

AS various points about the responsibilities of dog owners are constantly being put to the Tail-Waggers' Club it may be as well to explain a few of the commonest difficulties that arise. Within the last week several enquiries have been made about the quarantine restrictions. Many people seem to imagine that if they take their dogs abroad for a holiday they will be readmitted without undergoing the cus tomary six months in quarantine. This is an entire misconception. Any dog that is imported must be segregated for six months in kennels approved by the Ministry of Agriculture, and be fore they can be landed a permit has to be obtained from the Ministry. Those of us who remember the outbreaks of rabies that occurred before the imposition of these restrictions on importation, the expense and inconvenience of the muzzling orders that followed, and the nervousness that was aroused, will approve the wisdom of the precautions which have kept us free from a dreadful disease that is a danger to man as well as dogs. We met a man the other day who was obliged to have the whole of a valuable kennel destroyed because of an attack of rabbies. It is as much in the interests of dog owners as of the com-munity generally that these regula-tions should be observed. The few have to suffer inconvenience for the sake of the many. This self-protective action on our part has been misunderstood in certain quarters. An American writer complained that the regulations were designed to hinder free trade in foreign dogs. That, of course, is an entire misconception. British breeders would welcome the opportunity of buying from abroad without the quarantine expenses.

Complaints about dogs trespassing stock of any kind from straying on to chose a fence in my garden, my neighbour has no right to permit his dogs or poultry to trespass upon it, but must take means to restrain them. We are aware of the propensity of dogs to wander, and so long as no damage is done few people trouble to make a fuss about it, though the intrusion is illegal. In a sense a man cannot do as he likes on his own premises. He may keep a savage dog there without restraint so long as it cannot get at callers on legitimate business, but if anyone comes to your front door and is bitten, yours is the responsibility. On the other hand, an unauthorised person who trespasses does it at his own risk.
It should be generally understood name and adress. The Tail Waggers' Club supplies a metal tally with the name and address inscribed on it. A man was summoned recently for not having a licence and for allowing his dog to be about without a collar. On the first count he was acquitted because the animal was under six months, and was therefore exempt from a licence, but on the second he should know that the Council was prepared to go the whole hog, but not shall have to teach you a little law at your own expense—under six months no licence; from a day a collar."

THE ROWING CLUB CONCERT.

Great interest is being taken in the grand concert and variety entertainment to be held under the auspices f the Rowing Club in the Boathouse Hall on Easter Sunday night.

The interest in this event is stimulated by the knowledge that the proceeds are to be devoted towards the purchase of a new Racing Boat for the Rowing Club so as to enable our local events to compete in most of the local crews to compete in most of the Southern Regattas this season and so ensure the revival of our own popular Regatta over the picturesque Black-
