DUNGARVAN URBAN COUNCIL.

Mr. M. Morrissey, Chairman, presided at the meeting of the above on Friday. Also present—Messrs. T. McCarthy, V.C., S. Hayes, M. Connors, P. O'Dwyer, J. Mansfield, M. Clancy, J. Dahill, D. Foley, J. F. Foley, J. Christopher, J. Butler and P. Quann.

PAYMENTS

Cheques for £29 15s. 4d., on the general account and £1 14s. 6d., on the Harbour account were paid.

NO DEPUTATION REQUIRED

Arising out of the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting at which it was decided to send a deputation to the Department in connection with the sanction for the Water Improvement Scheme.

The Chairman said he got into communication with the Department by telephone and spoke to the Secretary of the Department. He was told that the plans were before the Department and that there was no necessity for a deputation; also that a letter on the subject would be forwarded for this meeting.

The following letter was then read: "With reference to the proposed Waterworks Improvement Scheme for the Urban District, the position is that the Department conveyed to the Council in December last a full survey of the existing supplies, and the alternative methods that might be considered for the augmentation thereof. The matter is being further considered at present. Pending final settlement of the points outstanding with the Consulting Engineers, it would serve no useful purpose to put a deputation to the trouble of attending at this office in regard to the Scheme. A further communication on the subject will be sent to the Council at an early date."

Chairman—J also understood from the conversation, that the Department is taking the matter up with the Council's Engineers Messrs. Delapp and Waller.

Mr. Clancy—It is good that so much has been done, but still it is a pity that the deputation are not going, they could put the matter more forcibly and would be more effective.

CINEMA LICENCE.

Mr. D. Crotty, wrote making application for a seven-day licence for his Cinema and trusting that the matter would receive favourable consideration from the Council.

Chairman—This is a matter that has heretofore raised a lot of controversy in the town, and in my opinion it would be as well to adjourn the matter and have it on the agenda for the next meeting so that each member can have an opportunity of considering it.

Mr. Clancy agreed and said the usual procedure was to put the matter on the agenda for the following meeting.

Mr. D. Foley—Take the matter on to-night. Some of the members may find it difficult to be here at the next meeting.

Mr. Christopher—We should deal with it now.

Chairman—My ruling is that it be put on the agenda.

Mr. Christopher—I move that we consider it now.

Chairman—I am ruling that it be put on the agenda. I will not take a proposal.

The matter was then adjourned to the meeting of April 28th.

EXTRAS FOR EASTER

On the proposition of Mr. Byrne, seconded by Mr. O'Dwyer, a resolution was unanimously passed asking Mr. Moynihan, Commissioner to increase the Home Assistance for the poor for Easter.

THE SHANDON ROAD

The following resolution proposed by Mr. Clancy, was also passed:—"That we ask the Department what steps if any, have been taken in connection with the resurfacing of the Council of August 17th last, re the inclusion of the Shandon Road in the Schedule of Main Roads in the Co. Waterford; also to point out to the Minister that portion of this road is almost impassable and beyond the financial capacity of the ratepayers to put into any fair state of repair, as it is estimated to cost about £2,000."

LOUGHMORE HOUSES

Mr. Clancy, further proposed, and Mr. Byrne, seconded:—"That the Council ask for a special report from Mr. Murphy, Architect, before final payment is made, in order to safeguard the Council from any further expenditure in connection with any repairs that may be required due to defective construction."

The resolution was passed unanimously.

TENDER FOR LIGHTING

One tender at 27 16s. was received

The Cunnigar Bridge

FREE STATE GOVERNMENT LIABLE FOR £15,000

LETTER FROM BRITISH TREASURY

In view of the move being made at the moment by the Dungarvan Council to try and secure the construction of the Cunnigar Bridge, the reclamation of the Western Bay and the improvement of our seaside with a view to attracting tourists as in the past, we have much pleasure in republishing the interesting letter on the matter of the £15,000 Grant from the Railway Guarantee Fund which Mr. Butler, when representing these parts in the Dail in 1924, obtained from President Cosgrave, when he raised the question in the House. That letter which President Cosgrave received from the British Treasury Officials shows that the £15,000 due to Dungarvan was a liability transferred to the Free State Government under Article 12 of the Order in Council of the 1st April, 1922. It is the duty of the Government to hand that money over to be spent on the purpose for which it was earmarked or on some other work of utility approved by the local people. It was the people of these parts paid it and it is legally due to them.

In the issue of the "Dungarvan Observer" of June 28th, 1924, the following interesting statement was made re the Railway Guarantee Fund and the Cunnigar Bridge Project.

LIABILITY FOR PAYMENT OF THE £15,000 DUE TO DUNGARVAN FOR THE CUNNIGAR BRIDGE PROJECT AND DEEPENING OF DUNGARVAN HARBOUR FROM THE BRITISH TREASURY.

In a recent issue we drew attention to the long delay in handing over the £15,000 out of the Railway Development Fund due to Dungarvan on the promise of the British Treasury on several dates from 1911 to 1921 for the construction of a bridge to the Cunnigar and the deepening of Dungarvan Harbour, etc., and asked for particulars from our representatives in the Dail as to how we stand to-day in the matter.

Mr. John Butler, T.D., has now handed us the following interesting letter which he received from President Cosgrave's Secretary:—

A Chara—The President asks me to send you for your information the enclosed copy of a letter received from the British Treasury relative to a sum of £93,000 repaid to the Treasury in 1901 by the Great Western Railway Company.

The letter from the Treasury is as follows:—

Treasury Chambers, 27th February, 1924.

Sir,—In reply to Mr. Brennan's letter of the 8th December last relative to the sum of £93,000, which was repaid to the Treasury in 1901 by the Great Western Railway Company on their failure to carry out an undertaking to build a railway line from Fermoy to Cork, I am directed by the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury to request you to inform the Minister of Finance that they are unable to admit that the British Government are liable to make any further issues to the Irish interests concerned in satisfaction of the undertakings given conditionally by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1911.

for the lighting of the lamps at Ballinacourty, from John Barry, Ballinacourty. The tender was accepted.

SYMPATHY

Votes of sympathy were passed to Mr. J. A. Lynch, on the death of his brother, and to the family of the late Mce. Clancy, O'Connell street.

A GRIEVANCE

Mr. Peter McGrath (Painter), appeared before the meeting and asked why he was debarred from getting work from the Council. His reason for asking was that Mr. Hayes met the B.S. and said he was not to get work. Mr. Hayes said he acted on instructions from the Secretary I.T. & G.W. Union, and said a resolution on the Minute Book debarred anyone not a member of the Union from getting work.

Mr. McGrath said he was a member and the only painter who was a member of the Union when it was first started, it was not fair that he should be debarred without being asked to join.

The Clerk at his stage read the minute dealing with employment of Union men, which only referred to unskilled workers.

The Chairman pointed out to Mr. McGrath that he was not debarred from working for the Council.

OBITUARY.

MR. MAURICE PORTEL, SQUARE, DUNGARVAN.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Maurice Portel, which occurred at the Square, Dungarvan, on Tuesday, after a brief illness and fortified by the rites of the Church.

Deceased, who had reached the allotted span, belonged to a most respected Kilrossanty family, and was brother of Mr. John Portel, Bellaheen, and Mrs. H. Crotty, Square, Dungarvan. In his young days he was identified with the business life of Waterford city, and later he farmed extensively in the neighbourhood of Kill. A man with a charming manner and a lovable personality, he was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him and was ever doing good turns to those around him.

A prominent athlete and a great footballer, he played many a hard-fought contest with the old Waterford "Commercials," while every form of sport, especially coursing, found in him an eager supporter—a trait well upheld to-day by his popular nephew, Mr. J. J. Crotty, Dungarvan.

A good-living, upright and honourable man, he has passed away to the great regret of all who knew him and who admired his manliness and his many noble qualities. Sincere sympathy is extended to his brother, sister and relatives in their loss.—R.I.P.

On Wednesday evening the remains were removed to the Parish Church, Dungarvan, and were followed by a large and representative cortege, representative of all classes in the town and country. On Holy Thursday, the funeral took place to the family burial ground Kilrossanty, and was of imposing dimensions. Mourners came

I am to point out that the sum of £93,000 in question was originally advanced by the Treasury in 1878 under Acts passed in 1872 and 1873 on mortgage to the Waterford, Dungarvan and Lismore Railway. This mortgage debt was repaid in 1901 by the Fishguard and Rossaree Railways and Harbour Company, which had taken over the original mortgage railway, and thereafter the British Government undertook, as an act of grace and without admission of any obligation to make certain advances to local interests in the South-West of Ireland within the limit of the loan of £93,000 which had thus been repaid, such advances being made out of moneys voted by Parliament for the purpose from time to time.

It follows therefore that there is no fund at the disposal of the British Government which could be transferred to the Free State Government, as an asset arising out of these transactions and the fulfilment of the undertaking referred to in 1911 must be regarded on the contrary as a liability transferred to the Free State Government under Article 12 of the Order in Council of the 1st April 1922.

(Signed) O. E. NIEMEYER.
 So now the air is cleared. The Free State Government in the transfer of the public services has accepted liability for the payment of this £15,000 due to Dungarvan and promised to them by the British Treasury, and in view of the fact that the other sums apportioned out of the £93,000 grant such as for the Cork Light Railways, Waterford Bridge, Tramway Sea Wall and Promenade have long since been paid out and expended, we are sure our own Government will also be as generous as the British Treasury and pay that sum of £15,000 to the Dungarvan Authorities for the purposes for which it was earmarked or for any other constructive purpose that may be devised by the citizens as a whole. Needless to say, the major part of the £93,000 involved was paid by the ratepayers of Dungarvan and the Barony of Decies Without Drum under the baronial guarantee, and no people have a greater or more just right to their due share.

Now that the air is cleared and that we are clear of the British Treasury on the subject, we hope our local authorities—Urban Council and County Council—will press for the payment of this sum and have all necessary steps taken by our Dail representatives and all others concerned in seeing it being put to the practical use for which it was intended from the start. If Grattan's Parliament in 1772 could give a free grant of £400 in Irish money (equal to about £4,000 to-day) for the improvement of Dungarvan Harbour, surely it is not too much to expect that our own Government would refuse to pay us £15,000 for which they undertook liability and which to us is not a grant in any sense but repayment of what our predecessors in title have overpaid in taxation. Anyhow the matter is now for our Parliamentary representatives and our public bodies, and we hope they will move in the matter without delay.

WATERFORD CO. BOARD OF PUBLIC ASSISTANCE.

Mr. J. O'Donovan, Chairman, presided at the monthly meeting of the above held on Wednesday. Other members present were—Messrs. J. Cosgrave, J. Cassidy, P. Caulfield, T. Treacy, and Commissioner Moynihan.

CO HOSPITAL SCHEME

A deputation from the Dungarvan Urban Council, consisting of Mr. Morrissey, Chairman, Thos. McCarthy, V.C., J. F. Foley, and J. Mansfield, appeared before the meeting in connection with the Co. Hospital Scheme for the County of Waterford. Mr. M. Morrissey, who acted as spokesman said:—

We come before you Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, as a deputation from the Dungarvan U.D.C., to stress the need of a Modern Hospital and a modern X-Ray Plant for the District Hospital, Dungarvan. We feel that the whole Hospitalisation for Waterford is not getting the attention that it should and we are here before you to-day to ask that you push this matter ahead and that any support that will be required from the Dungarvan Urban District Council will be given wholeheartedly. We feel there is a need for the modernisation of the existing Hospital which has to serve for the major surgical and medical needs of the Co.

from near and far to pay a last tribute of respect to his memory.

MR. R. KEANE, BALLYCOE.

After a short illness, the death took place at his residence, Ballycoe, on Saturday last, of Mr. Richard Keane, fortified by the rites of the church.

Deceased was a very well known man, having been a considerable time associated with the Nugent-Humble Estate at Cloncoscraine, where he won the esteem of all who came in contact with him. Deep sympathy is felt with his family in their loss. The interment took place in the Parish churchyard in the presence of a large attendance.

MR. WM. POWER, LOUGHMORE, DUNGARVAN.

The death occurred during the past week of Mr. William Power, Loughmore, Dungarvan. He had been for many years in the employment of Mr. Cummins, Draper, and was an expert in the house-furnishing business. The interment took place in the Parish churchyard on Monday.—R.I.P.

MR. JOHN MCGREGOR, ABBEYSIDE

Deep sympathy is extended to the family and relatives of the late Mr. John McGregor, Abbeyside, whose death occurred rather suddenly at a Holyhead Hospital, on Saturday last, after a brief illness. The deceased, who was a member of the crew of the s.s. Cargan, sailed from Dungarvan about a week previously in apparently his usual health, but being seized with a sudden illness at Holyhead, he was removed to hospital, where his death took place.

The late Mr. McGregor, was one of the old stock of Abbeyside, and a deep water sailor of world-wide experience. His stories of his sea-faring life were interesting and varied.

The remains arrived in Dungarvan by the 12 o'clock train on Tuesday, and were followed by a large cortege to Abbeyside Churchyard, where interment took place in the old graveyard, amidst the ruins of the old Abbey.—R.I.P.

The last prayers at the graveside were recited by the Very Rev. N. Dunphy, P.P.

MR. MCE. CLANCY O'CONNELL STREET, DUNGARVAN

The death occurred on the 6th inst. of Mr. Maurice Clancy, O'Connell St., Dungarvan, at an advanced age. Deceased had spent many years in the British Army and had campaigned in India, Egypt and elsewhere. He was a very entertaining man, full of anecdote, upright and honourable. The interment took place in his native Touraneena.

MR. JOHN HICKEY, REDGATE, MODELIGO.

The death of Mr. John Hickey, Redgate, Modeligo, which occurred last week occasioned deep regret amongst his numerous friends. Deceased who had reached an advanced age was one of the most extensive and progressive farmers in the County and was held in the highest respect by all. An upright and honourable man, and a true friend his passing is much regretted and sincere sympathy is extended to his family in their loss.—R.I.P.

The funeral to Modeligo, where the interment took place was largely attended and the cortege was a most imposing one.

Waterford.

There is an immediate necessity for the erection of increased accommodation in the Co. Home, where inmates are herded like cattle, and where conditions are hopelessly overcrowded. The District Hospital has also insufficient accommodation, and at times hospital cases have to be refused admission. There is an immediate need in Dungarvan of a New Hospital premises, which would give much sorely-needed employment in town, and give the poor people of Dungarvan and Co. Waterford the Hospital treatment already available practically in every town in Ireland.

Unfortunately in Dungarvan and West Waterford we cannot avail of the excellent Hospitals of Waterford City owing to transport and other difficulties.

I am sure the Waterford representatives will not deny to the poor of West Waterford the Medical and Surgical advantages which the poor of Waterford City enjoy.

It is a well-known fact that patients requiring X-Ray treatment must be sent to Waterford City and again returned to Dungarvan for an operation if necessary. This entails great expense and a good deal of suffering to patients.

While the Hospitalisation Scheme for County Waterford has been under discussion for 3 or 4 years it is a reflection on the Public Bodies of the County that nothing has been done, while other counties have big Hospital schemes either constructed or about to be constructed.

I believe that the L.G. Board have suggested a Scheme of Hospitalisation for Waterford and the general public cannot understand the undue delay in not giving effect to that scheme.

We must ask you, therefore, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, to give this matter your immediate attention and to push the claims of Waterford County for decent Hospital accommodation. As I said before any support necessary will be forthcoming from the Dungarvan Urban District Council.

It seems to me continued Mr. Morrissey, that we are too slow as public bodies. I am not blaming any particular body. I am sure the public representatives of the City, would not deny the poor of Dungarvan the same facilities as they have in the city. It is a well known fact that cases for X-Ray treatment must be taken to the City to be X-Rayed and taken back again to be operated on, at a terrible expense and often hardship on the patients. It is also a well known fact that the accommodation in Dungarvan is at times disgraceful, when you have two and sometimes three for a bed. It is up to all the public bodies of the County to initiate a scheme and as far as the Urban Council is concerned they will do all in their power to forward the scheme.

Mr. Cosgrave said it should not be allowed to go out to the public that this Board is to blame. Long before our friend came here on a deputation we discussed this matter upside down. Mr. Morrissey—I did not refer to the Board of Assistance. I think all public bodies are taking the matter too easily.

Chairman—I can assure the deputation that anything this Board can do in catering for Dungarvan they will do. We all know Dungarvan is more in need of a good Hospital than Waterford. We have a lot of facilities in Waterford that they have not got here. The deputation can rest assured that this Board will do all in their power to further the matter.

Mr. Cosgrave—Had the move made by Dungarvan to take the Co. Hospital to Dungarvan instead of to Waterford anything to do with the delay?

Chairman—No. It is our intention to start out now and try to make a real beginning to secure the erection of the County Hospital.

Commissioner Moynihan said he had given consideration to the Scheme both as regard Waterford and Dungarvan. With regard to other counties which have gone ahead with schemes they have not anything like the facilities that are available at Waterford or Dungarvan, so that they got preference. The Hospitalisation scheme which we are going ahead with will cost anything up to £100,000 and we have to pay 40% of that. Still I think it would be a good scheme for the health of the people.

Mr. Morrissey said their first consideration should be the health of the poor.

Commissioner—The provision of an X-Ray apparatus for Dungarvan is very urgent and he would suggest they get Dr. McCarthy's views on whether a portable plant would meet the requirements for the present.

The deputation then withdrew and the Board went into the report of Dr. McDonald, dated 28/12/32, from which the Commissioner read extracts. Continuing the Commissioner said 40 per cent. would represent an annual payment of interest and sinking fund of £2,500, and to this must be added administering expenses. He suggested an extra wing be added to the County Home for chronic cases from Waterford and a wing to the District Hospital for maternity cases.

Chairman—This Board were satisfied to purchase a few acres at the Co. Hospital, Waterford, to build a new hospital, but were not disposed to demolish the present buildings which should be used for the chronic cases in Waterford.

Commissioner—According to that suggestion, you would have two County Homes to maintain and the cost of an additional staff to run the new hospital. If you have a first-class hospital in Waterford for acute cases the chronic cases will be treated as well in Dungarvan as Waterford.

Mr. Cassidy—Will you have to have an additional staff in Dungarvan?

Commissioner—Not to the same extent as Waterford, the same staff with very little addition will be able to run it. The only extra cost will be food. In Dungarvan you have one management and one control.

Mr. Cosgrave said that by removing the chronic cases from Waterford to Dungarvan they would be exiling the poor respectable people of Waterford from their friends. That was the reason there was an objection to the amalgamation scheme. You will not, said Mr. Cosgrave, have ever more than forty acute cases in the proposed new hospital which will provide for 75 beds and there was plenty of staff in Waterford at present to run the two places.

Commissioner—You are only looking at the question from the Waterford angle. Dungarvan is the natural centre of the county and you would have equally bad cases going from Youghal and Tallow to Waterford.

Chairman—It is a question of the population in Waterford you have 90 per cent. of those in Waterford Waterford people.

Mr. Cosgrave—How many Waterford people are in Dungarvan at present?

Secretary—I couldn't say. The Chairman said that he saw they would have to fall in with the Commissioner's views.

Mr. Cosgrave—I will not fall in line. Chairman—I object as much as you to the transferring of Waterford people to Dungarvan. But we must have something definite to go on with the scheme.

Mr. Cosgrave said he would not agree to the sending of Waterford people to Dungarvan where they would be away from their friends. He would go further and say if that were to happen they did not need any new hospital in Waterford, the one they had was sufficient.

The Commissioner said that if the hospital were being built in Waterford they would demolish the old buildings which would mean that the new wing should be built at the Co. Home, Dungarvan, before the work was started in Waterford.

Mr. Cosgrave said that they had from 16 to 18 nurses in Waterford and 8 or 9 of those could be put in charge of the home, they could work the two places with the present staff.

Chairman—Yes, if it could be worked that way.

Commissioner—I take it that at the present time you are not over-staffed in Waterford and the nurses are fully occupied at present.

Mr. Cosgrave—I remember 360 patients in Waterford with the present staff or possibly less. I wouldn't like to see nurses overworked, but they were quite capable of dealing with that number. I would prefer to see no hospital built than to take the poor people away from their friends.

After further protracted discussion, the following resolution was proposed by Commissioner Moynihan, and passed:—

(1) That an extra wing be added to the County Home, Dungarvan, to be used as an infirmary for chronic cases at present there and those to be transferred from Waterford County Hospital.

(2) That an extra wing be added to the existing hospital in Dungarvan to contain 6 beds suitably equipped to deal with all kinds of maternity cases;

(3) That the present site of the Co. Hospital at Waterford be cleared when the County Home in Dungarvan, is ready and be utilised for the erection of a new County Hospital;

(4) That the report of the architects regarding Lismore be referred to the L.G.D. for observations of their chief M.O.;

(5) That the architects be asked to prepare plans and specifications regarding Numbers 1, 2 and 3 forthwith.

ALL MEETINGS TO BE HELD IN DUNGARVAN

A resolution proposed by Mr. Cosgrave at the last meeting and deferred for the attendance of the Commissioner, asking that the meetings of the Board be held alternatively in Waterford and Dungarvan was not put forward as the Commissioner stated that it would be inconvenient for both the Secretary and himself.

Waterford Hunt FINE SPORT AND GREAT CROWD

Judges—Sir Robert Paul and Lieut. Col. V. J. Heather. Starters—R. Russell, Esq., M.F.H., and Sir Ernest Goff. Clerk of Scales—Messrs. A. Hunt and T. H. Galloway. Hon. V.S. Mr. M. Hynes, M.R.C.V.S. Hon. Secretary—Lord William Beresford, M.F.H.

In the history of the Waterford Hunt Point-to-Point probably no greater crowd ever attended at Lisnakkil than that which was present at last week's fixture. And it was only fitting that in beautiful weather patrons should be rewarded by one of the best meetings ever held under the auspices of the hunt.

In the Hunt Red Coat Race the public divided their fancy between Southey and Maunday Monday, the other two starters obviously having no chance against them. It proved a splendid race between the two. Southey, after making all the running being strongly challenged in the last half mile by the other. Maunday Monday actually cleared the last jump in front, but in the run in Southey pulled out an extra bit, and passed the post a length in front.

The Open Heavyweight event started in sensational fashion, Johnstown Beau, the joint favourite with Johnstown, coming a cropper at the very first fence and injuring himself so badly that he had to be destroyed. Mr. V. Marnell, the rider, escaped with a severe shaking. This left the field clear for Johnstown, on whom Mr. W. Treacy rode a well-judged race. He lay behind the leaders for the greater part of the distance, and then wore down Decide, to win more easily than the official margin of three lengths would suggest.

A field of fifteen faced the starter for the Open Farmers Race, which fulfilled expectations by being the most thrilling event of the day. The pace was a tremendous one from the start, and when the first circuit was completed only half the runners were fancied. The casualties included the well-fancied Carrick Lad, who came down at the last jump of the first round: When Our Paddy fell at the double bank second time round the favourite, Eastwood, looked to be a certain winner, but he stumbled at the last fence and threw his jockey. Our Paddy, who had been remounted, passed him out. Eastwood was quickly remounted, and in a desperate effort to overhaul the leader only failed by a head. The winner had, of course, finished second in the Barbour Cup last week, and holds an engagement in the La Touche Memorial Plate at Punchestown. He has been consistently prominent this season, having dead-headed with Flying Ben for first at Cappoquin, and won twice since.

That great cob, True Minstrel, added further to his laurels when he won the Open Cobs Race, this being his seventh successive victory this season, and bringing his total of wins to nineteen. Mr. Noel Mahony again had the mount on Mr. Heskin's representative, and he rode a splendidly judged race, winning from a field of nine. Falls were again the order, and after the first circuit only Venetian Maid, Bob's Bottle, True Minstrel and Patricia were concerned in it. When Bob's Bottle fell half a mile from home Patricia took over the running, but had not pace enough for the favourite, who won convincingly. Blue Pearl was the popular fancy for the Farmers Race, and the backers' judgment proved very sound, as the favourite made all the running and won comfortably. There were eleven starters, and once again falls were the order, only the placed horses passing the finishing post. Details:—

LISMORE DISTRICT COURT. (Before Mr. H. A. McCarthy, B.L.) A DISPUTED ACCOUNT

Mrs. Bridget Moore, Grocer and Publican, Main street, Lismore, brought a civil bill against Michael Creedon, Blacksmith, Shrough, Lismore, for the sum of £15 18s. 10d., stated to be due for shop goods sold and delivered to defendant.

Mr. O'Gorman, solr., Lismore, for plaintiff, and Mr. E. A. Ryan, solr., Dungarvan, for defendant. The case had been partially heard at the previous court by Mr. Troy, D.J., but adjourned on the application of Mr. Ryan, as several of the items in the account were disputed by the defendant.

When it was called, Mr. Ryan, solr., explained to the Justice how far they had proceeded with the case before Mr. Troy at the last court, and said the defence was a complete denial that there was any money due, as his client was a blacksmith and had worked for the late Mr. M. Moore (husband of plaintiff) over a long number of years, and he maintained that the only goods he had ever got in the shop were by way of payment for work done by him for Mr. Moore, except those items for which cash was paid.

Mrs. Moore, plaintiff, examined by Mr. O'Gorman, said her husband died in May, 1933, and the present account was running since 1924, but various sums had been paid out of the bill by the defendant in 1928 and 1933. During her husband's lifetime the defendant often did blacksmith's work for him, such as shoeing the pony and other jobs, for which he took goods in her shop to the full equivalent of the various sums due for such work. All the items charged for in the present account were entirely independent of the other transactions, and were for goods given on credit for which the defendant had promised to pay.

Plaintiff was cross-examined at length by Mr. Ryan as to why she had allowed this account to run from 1924, and she said as Creedon and his family were dealing with her all the time she did not wish to take any proceedings against him, but he had been often pressed for payment in the mean time. The statement of account, which ran into several pages of items, was carefully examined by the Justice who questioned Mrs. Moore on various points, which she fully explained.

Miss Bridget Moore (niece of the late Mr. M. Moore), stated that she had been book-keeper in the shop for over 12 years, and it was she who had furnished the account in question, all the items of which were quite correct. She was cross-examined by Mr. Ryan, about a small item of 1/6 which was paid in 1933, and asked to explain how such a small payment was accepted out of such a large bill? Witness explained that this sum was due for tobacco given on credit to defendant's daughter some time previously, and as it was she (witness) had given the tobacco on her own account, she asked the daughter for pay.

Johnstown Beau, Mr. V. Marnell. An objection to the winner on the grounds of qualification was overruled. OPEN FARMERS AND SPORTSMEN'S PLATE.—Winner, £20; second £3; third, £2. About 3 1/2 miles. ment, and received it soon afterwards. Mr. Ryan also queried witness about other small payments of 1/6d. and 7/-, which were also explained. Michael Creedon, defendant, in reply to Mr. Ryan, said the work he had carried out for the late Mr. Moore included shoeing the pony once a month at 5/- per set, removing the shoes, 2/6 each time, while he also fixed axles, banded wheels, repaired an iron gate and engine, and did other work for which he was never paid in cash, but got the equivalent in goods in the shop and he claimed that those were the items which were now charged against him.

Cross-examined by Mr. O'Gorman, he said there were several cash transactions as well, and in February, 1923 he paid £4 to the late Mr. Moore, who told him that this cleared his bill. He said he got no receipt for this payment as Mr. Moore told him no receipt was necessary, so long as he had got credit for it in the book. In reply to the Justice, he said he had never kept any account of the items of work done by him, nor of the goods received as payment for same, because when he got goods to the amount of the sums due to him he thought everything was all right.

Miss Joan Creedon, daughter of defendant, stated in reply to Mr. Ryan that it was she did most of the shopping for her father in Moore's house and she never got any goods there except what were paid for in cash, or taken in payment for work done by her father. In reply to the Justice, she said she kept no account of the goods she got in payment for her father's work, as her father always told her how much she was to get, and he kept the account in his head (laughter). Witness having been cross-examined by Mr. O'Gorman, the Justice, after a lengthy hearing, said he was satisfied this debt was fully due, and he thought the defence set up here was an audacious attempt to evade payment of a lawful debt, and he would give a decree for £15 18s. 10d., but would allow no expenses.

Mr. O'Gorman—Mrs. Moore is not looking for any expenses, sir, as she only wants to get her own. Land Commission Cases Mr. E. A. Ryan, State Solr., Dungarvan, on behalf of the Irish Land Commission, obtained decrees for arrears of annuities, varying from £3 to £18 14s. 5d., against John J. Budds, Margaret Coughlan, Mary Keane, Anne O'Keefe, Thos. Fitzgerald, John O'Farrell, and Michael Ahearne. One case being adjourned to the next Court as Mr. Ryan said the defendant had promised to pay.

Dispute Over A Fence James O'Donoghue, Glencairn, brought a civil action against Mrs. Mary O'Neill and John O'Neill, same address, for injury to a fence, the property of plaintiff. Mr. O'Gorman, solr., for plaintiff, and Mr. E. A. Ryan, solr., for defendants. Mr. Ryan said that a civil bill in connection with this fence had been previously heard at the Circuit Court in Dungarvan before Judge Sealy who made an order giving his client certain rights to cut and trim this fence, etc.

The Justice said as the matter had already been heard by Judge Sealy, he did not wish to go into it now, and he would adjourn the case for three months so as to give Mr. O'Gorman an opportunity of again bringing the matter in dispute before the learned Judge. Untaxed Motor Vehicles Guard Collins, Lismore, summoned John F. McGuire, Cork, for failing to produce a licence for a motor car, and he was fined 5/-. Guard Byrne, Lismore, summoned Thomas Treacy, Commons Road, Cork (owner), and John Buckley, Liberty street, Cork (driver), for using a motor lorry in Lismore, for which the tax had not been paid.

The Guard said that on February 13th the evening of Lismore Fair, while the defendants were turning the lorry the vehicle knocked down a gas lamp standard, and when he went to question them on the matter he found they had no licence for the lorry. The defendants were fined 5/- each. No Lights Guard Byrne, Lismore v. Michael Morrissey, Glencairn, for using an unlighted bicycle. Defendant appeared and explained the circumstances, and was let off with a fine of 2/-. Guard Fitzpatrick, Ballyduff, v. E. Hegarty, Mocollop. Same offence. Defendant did not appear and was fined 4/-. Same Guard v. David Feeney, Ballynolane. No light, and no reflector on bicycle. Defendant did not appear, and was fined 4/- for the first offence, and 2/- for having no reflector. Same v. Thos. Caffey, Mocollop. No light on bicycle. No appearance. Fined 4/-.

Guard McLaughlin, Ballyduff, v. Patk. O'Brien, Killeak, and Johanna Bladwin. No light on bicycles. Both cases were adjourned to the next Court. Cutting Of Telegraph Poles & Wires The adjourned case of the Attorney-General v. John Keen, Mogeels, for the alleged cutting of telegraph poles and wires in October 1934, was further adjourned to the May Court for the attendance of Mr. Farrell, D.J., who had originally heard part of the case at the December Court.

Republic of Ireland with In the Day on Wednesday night, Mr. MacDermot, spoke on his motion, that the Government should either abandon the profession of Republicanism or seek authority from the electorate for establishing the Republic. He said so long as Republicans think a Republic continues in vogue, he said, there will always be a large number of people who deny the authority of the State and make their principles a justification for disorder and crime. Lord Danesfort and Miss McSwiney are in complete accord in denying the Irish people the right to decide their own destiny he continued. The Republic was, after all, a means to an end, and that end was the peace, prosperity and dignity of the Irish nation. The constitutional policy of the Government since they came into office, might have been specially designed to consolidate partition. To set up our own Republic will not make things a bit worse, and ten years of the Gaelic self-sufficient Republic may teach us a good many lessons worth learning. Referring to the North, he said that Orangeism, like separatism, is a symptom of a disease.

PRESIDENT'S REPLY President De Valera said that if Deputy MacDermot wished to provoke thought by a careful examination of the fundamental political position of this country he should have tried to express his resolution in somewhat less offensive terms. The word "profession" in the resolution was somewhat less objectionable than the word "pretence," but to the ordinary person it carried more or less the same implication. The first question was whether their party were Republicans or not. "I do not care," said the President, "who questions the fact. Let them apply any test they like. Some of us, practically every one on the front bench, stood for the Republic as declared by the Irish people, stood for it when it was first proclaimed, took the risks that attached to soldiers who were fighting for it, and to-day they have exactly the same ideals as they had when they first entered the movement. They want to see established here a completely free Ireland, and they believe that they could not be satisfied until this country is completely free—until its freedom is expressed in the form of a Republic. Where is the 'pretence' or 'profession' about it?"

Continuing, he asked was there one member of the Executive Council who had not by his efforts over the last fifteen or twenty years shown that he was sincerely desirous of seeing a Republic established here. There were gentlemen in the Opposition benches trying to pretend there was something of a sham about that position. If he (the President) desired to see a thing done and if at the moment he had not the means to secure it being done, was he a sham because he did the best at the time being to secure his desires? The people on the Government benches desired to see the complete independence of this nation established and were prepared to lead the nation towards its establishment whenever there was the slightest prospect of success. They tried to maintain the Republic even when its maintenance meant that "they were forced into a civil war." "We tried," said the President, "to maintain it in arms and we failed. We are here because we failed then and because we believe we cannot at the present moment make good our desires, and for no other reason."

The President, continuing, said that it was an offensive motion, prompted purely by a political and party desire, to try and make it appear to others that they were sham Republicans. "We believe" he added, "that we are the real Republicans, because we are taking the best means at our disposal to try and re-establish the Republic. Why did they not declare immediately a Republic? Why did they wait? The answer was, that at the moment they could not make their desires effective. But were they for that reason completely to abandon their ideal of ever attaining a Republic? If so, the same argument could be used in every generation in the past. To say that Irishmen should abandon the idea of getting their complete freedom because of the arguments suggested in the debate could have been applied to the past as now. They could not at the moment make their desires effective. Mr. MacDermot—Over what area? The President—Over any area at the moment. I do not wish to see the British care and maintenance parties in our ports. I want to see some means of putting or getting them out. I want to see when we have a Republic, a genuine, effective Republic, in which every inch of the whole of Ireland would be under the control of the Government selected by the Irish people. Even for the twenty-six counties I want to see every inch of the territory we claim to control under our control.

Concluding, Mr. de Valera said everybody in this country was free to advocate any political opinions they chose. Any suggestion that there was anything to stop liberty of speech was not true. Full liberty of speech was allowed, but people could not be allowed to advocate the use of force against the majority of the Irish people (Opposition cries of "Hear, hear").

KILMATHOMAS NEWS.

POWLDOM FREAKS

A Clones-Power poultry keeper has very kindly supplied us with particulars of what is certainly a curious happening, as follows: A sitting hen, belonging to her, brought forth a number of chickens in the usual term of twenty-one days. One egg, known to be fertile, still remained in the nest and in the course of six days a chicken emerged from captivity. The eggs were all set simultaneously.

A hen, the property of a Grawn farmer, daily drops an egg as big as a goose egg. Quite recently six of these out-size eggs were set under a clocker and the result was that from each shell two birds appeared, but none of the chickens lived longer than a couple of hours. Two-yolked eggs are rare (save when boiled, says you), but your simple scribe saw a three-yolked ova on one occasion—I had it on my breakfast-board the morning after the night before, and, as it appeared in a glass with a generous quantity of "aqua caelestis," it went down well, you bet!

WE PUT IT TO YOU

That for some poor folks life would be an epic tragedy if death were the end—

That though the modern spirit shrines a profound contempt for the veil of sentiment that hides the bald facts of life, it should never be forgotten that a person can die of a broken heart for the want of a heart (Just like the fabulously rich who die of ennui for the want of something to want)—

That Heaven tries our metal here, And some must bear a grueling test; But Faith Sustains, and hope can cheer, The sorely tried are always best—

That political ideas seem to cast a varied shade on many activities at present, but a dark one appears to have been the gift to Kilmac's trade where the largest weekly butter and fowl markets for any centre of its size in An Saorstat have been almost completely destroyed—

That there are State compensations of a kind offered to compensate in some measure a few of those whose fortunes have been affected by the "big change," but there appear to be none for the general town trader, whose main business was sustained by the trade resulting from the weekly markets—

That with almost every town in the twenty-six counties clamouring for factories as substitutes for a dissolving trade, and many of them finding it difficult to plunk the necessary contribution against a grant to start them, there is very faint hope that our Mahon-veined Deme will receive anything to compensate it for the loss which the exigencies of State policy demanded at such a price—

That there is here no political crow in the voicing or condemnation of conditions that cause the reduction of town trading, such as happens here through the necessities of State programmes—

That the operations of the Unemployment Relief Act have failed to achieve anything like what was claimed for that measure by its authors, or what local authorities expected from it—

That the majority of the agricultural ratepayers in our county have done their utmost to pay their rates, heavy though these imposts have been during the past two or three years—

That the County Councils of An Saorstat are being most unfairly dealt with by the Department in the matter of the Agricultural Grant, in respect of which large sums have been withheld, unjustifiably—

That rate-collectors cannot be expected to do more than their very best to procure payment of outstanding rates—

That rate collectors can neither squeeze blood out of a turnip, nor collect cash from farmers who have not the money to pay, and who cannot find sale for their cattle to meet rate demands, or their other obligations, either—

That the excuse given by the Department for withholding large sums due to County Council out of the Agricultural Grant is, that the Fund has been depleted owing to the failure of so many farmers to pay their annuities—

That that is no reasonable reason why County Council should be victimised—

That admittedly the Department, with all the machinery of the law at its disposal, has failed to get in the land annuities—

That, in view of that, it is hardly fair to expect County Council to achieve in connection with the rate collection what a Government Department has failed to accomplish in respect of the payment of annuities—

That the people who have paid both annuities and rates have placed the Department and the Co. Council under great obligations—

That it is really unthinkable that such people should be called upon to shoulder in addition the burden of those who have been either unable or unwilling to discharge their indebtedness—

That the Department should be called upon to pay promptly to Co. Councils the amounts to which they are entitled out of the Agricultural Grant, and devise other means for replenishing their depleted funds—

That instead of any hope of relief for local administrative bodies, from State sources, the new Fianna Fail

Act will impose fresh burdens on them in the shape of increased stamp duty.

That in its explanatory memorandum, the Department of Local Government points out that under the provisions of that Act a 2d. stamp must be affixed to each paying order issued by local authorities, while the recipient of each paying order must affix a similar stamp on the receipt—

That while the State Exchequer will benefit considerably by this, it will inflict yet another burden on the taxpayers—

That the youth and beauty of the Baronies will be well to the fore at the grand dance, in aid of the Newtown and Kill parochial debt) to be held in Mr. Patrick Baldwin's Hall, Kill, on to-morrow (Sunday) night—

That the Clerk of the Clime welcomed the resumption of "official time" with a clap or two of thunder on last Sunday morning—

That the biggest field in Fews parish would be a suitable "safety zone" for the establishment of a factory for the erection of more and more aeroplanes—

GAELIC GARNERINGS

On Sunday last, Kilmathomas were at home to Stradbally, in their first-round junior hurling tie of this year's West Waterford Divisional Championship of the grade, with Mr. Sean Ormonde, N.T., as referee. Much local interest centred in the conflict, and the attendance of spectators was deemed good. Considering the heavy rain which fell throughout the forenoon the play was pretty purty and interest was sustained to the sound of the full-stop siren, which left the visiting lot losers by a substantial margin. Scurry, Lannon, Flynn, Birmingham, Bluet and Reale, were in great trim, and did topping work for the homesters; while Keane, Whelan, Halpin, Linehan and Fleming shared the honours for Stradbally.

At Tramore, Kill junior football XV. trounced a local selection to the tune of 8 points to nil.

A KILL LADY'S DEMISE. Fortified by the rites of Holy Church Mrs. Kate Hayes, relict of the late Mr. James Hayes, Sleeveen, Kill, died on Thursday of last week, after a protracted illness and at an advanced age. A lady whose many estimable qualities of head and heart had secured for her a high place in the estimation of the neighbours, her loss is deeply felt and sincere sympathy is extended to her bereaved family. The remains, accompanied by a large cortege of relatives, friends and mourners, were removed to Kill Catholic Church on Friday evening, when they were met by Rev. T. Ahearne, C.C., Kill, who recited the prayers for the dead. Requiem Mass was offered up for the happy repose of her soul on the following morning, and the funeral left later for Dunhill cemetery. The attendance at the graveside was representative of all sections of the community.—R.I.P.

REFRESHING TO RECORD. That the Ballylaneen "45" Card Drive (in aid of praiseworthy parochial purposes) is being magnificently supported on all sides. Final rounds will be played in Ballylaneen Schoolhouse on Low Sunday evening (28th inst.); the draws will take place there on the previous evening. There is still time to participate. Entrance cards (containing complete particulars) can be had on application to Mr. Jeremiah Foley, Ballyabanogue, Kilmathomas, the esteemed Secretary to the Committee in charge of the Drive.

IN THE GARDEN. A child of the Muse from the mouth of the Mahon—in other words, a budding Bonmahon poet—submits the subjoined stanzas for the "funnification" of your fifth rib!

We walked into the garden, we wandered o'er the land; the moon was shining brightly, as I held her pretty—shawl.

Yes, I held her pretty shawl, how fast the evening flies; we talked in tones of love, as I gazed into her—lunch basket.

Yes, I gazed into her lunch basket, and wished I had a taste; there sat my loving charmer, with my arms around her—umbrella.

Embracing the umbrella, of this charming little miss, whose eyes were full of mischief, as I slyly stole a—sandwich.

A WORD OF WARNING. Respectable lady readers are hereby respectfully warned against gazing on the contribution under the caption immediately hereunder. So—eyes left! ladies, please.

SPRING'S HEART-SOFTENING MAGIC! How pleasing the blaze of beauty to the eye as the early morning sunshine is reflected by the gleaming Mahon waters. The cry of a gull rends the cool air as the bird circles and dives to the rippling waters breakfast hunting. "Kilmascians" early out of doors inhale deeply and think how much sweeter than usual the air seems—how different—a message proclaiming the real presence of spring in Mid-Waterford. Soft April showers are falling (from above of course!), and youthful hearts are falling in love (of course!). Yes, the dove of the comedy Decies has caught the magic of the springtime of the year, and a newborn hope wells up, and floods the being of every marriageable mortal in our midst. But all this is only by way of prelude to a phrase or two about the first phase thrills of love. Being in love is both an intoxication and a torment. You realise at once that this is transcendent happiness and exquisite pain. You did not dream that such emotional potencies had been slumbering under that ordinary boiled shirt. But there it is, behaving like a volcano in full activity. That heat of yours is something more than a pump after all. You spend your time, between exulting like a lunatic or sighing like a furnace. You laugh at nothing, like a man slightly bloated, and you go off into long pensive reveries like someone afflicted with a sleep sickness or acute hysepssia. Hence you forget many things you ought to remember; you pass friends on the thoroughfare without seeing them; you find yourself walking along one street when you meant to be in another street, and you make mistakes in your business that nearly get you the sack. But you begin to understand for the first time what all this fuss about women means. Maybe you thought hurling, or football or crossword puzzles was the only interesting thing in life. But here is a new interest that simply makes crosswords seem the most tedious trifling. No wonder the films have only one theme—romance; for it is really the only thing that matters in this prosaic world. So you think. Your personal and sartorial defects begin to worry you. What a barbarian you have been in the past, letting your hair grow untidily round your ears, allowing your pants to go baggy at the knees, wearing the same collar for a week and never manicuring your finger nails. Monstrous! So the civilising influence of a woman has already begun to work. Your co-mate, who formerly met all the requirements of friendship, notices the change in you. And his heart sinks. "Connie! to-night, Mick? There's a good 'gaff' after coming to—"

"Sorry, Nick, I promised Stasia!" "What! You were out with her last night?" "Yes, I know, Nick, but she insists that I see her to-night and—"

"And you can't help yourself, eh? Got to obey already. I'll soon not be seeing you at all. And we haven't had a decent game with the cues for such a time."

"Ah, that reminds me. Stasia dislikes my playing billiards; she thinks I ought to give up the game."

"What! give up billiards, and you said that nothing would ever put you off your game, and now—"

"But, Mick, I'm in love. It's different now."

"Yes, different for me, too. Our good old times are over and I'm only a relic of the past and no longer required."

"Yerra draw 't mild, old man, it's not so bad as that. But you don't know what it is to be in love—it's—it's—"

"It's on with the new and off with the old, just that."

And how can you deny it. For love has a way of monopolising your time and attention and of ringing down the curtain on old congenial habits and hobbies. Sad, sad. Alas and alack! Can anything make up for the loss? But you think of her peroxidized hair, of her powdery nose, her rouged cheek and her pencilled eyebrows, and you are in spirits again. "Love is the sweetest thing," as the song says. Yes, yes, so it is. And you start slobbering the brilliantine on your noddle.

"What shall I buy her to-night? Chocolates last night; mixtures the night before; barley sugar the night before that—I'll better get some buttery ones to-night; they're not so expensive and they last longer, too. Not that I mind the cost—ahem! Love takes no account of lucre; Cupid scorns capital. . . . Ah, poor Nick, if only he knew what it is to be in love!"

But Nick is thinking that love is the worst of all corrupters of youth. (In the next number we will pour forth a few "spasms" anent the affection test, under the caption: "Making Sure of Him," and in this coming contribution we hope to be able to convince you in our own left-handed sort of style that love's second phase surely spells—Heartburnings.)

RIGHTS OF THE STATE JESUIT'S LECTURE

Very frequently in the history of the world the common good has been used as an excuse for the most unjustifiable policies of Governments, said Rev. E. J. Coyne, S.J., in a Lenten lecture on "The Common Good," in Dublin.

The common good was not the welfare or dominance of a single class or a single party in society. That was the idea that the Communists had—some future classless society where all men should be equal in every possible respect.

The only answer to Communism was not violence, not abuse, not even retaliation, but the abolition of those conditions that exasperate the hearts of men, the destruction of the "boil-plate of culture," outside of which the bacillus of Communism cannot live and thrive.

If they were not willing to abolish those conditions quickly and effectively, they left themselves open to the accusation that it was not the evils of Communism they attacked, but the advantages of those conditions that they despised.

The Pope wished to make it clear beyond doubt that uncompromising hostility to Communism was in no way influenced by a desire to profit in any way out of the abuses of the present system.

The common good was not an exaggerated nationalism. They saw how in other countries that exaggerated nationalism had led to that final blasphemy of setting up a "national" religion in opposition to Christianity, an adoration of the nation, as Communism was an adoration of humanity. The common good was not mere economic wealth, or political power. It was a moral good, and therefore an Order. As every Order of its very nature required some principle or final cause to determine its intrinsic elements, that Order which was the common good had the personal good of man as its principle. Individuals, fanatics, economic groups, religious societies—all had an existence distinct and independent of the State. The State did not create them, but it should create an Order between them, putting each in its right place and keeping it there. All that the State had any right to do was to ordain, adjust, order and co-ordinate those elements according to distributive justice, with one aim only—the good of human nature, the complete flowering of the human personality created in the image of God. Unfortunately, an impression had been created that the Corporate State was in some way blessed, or at least sanctioned by Pope Pius XI. What the Pope did recommend was something different and distinct—namely a corporative society, or the corporative organisation of society. The Pope did not condemn Capitalism as an economic system, but the Pope did declare and show that it had been misused, had many serious defects, and needed to be readjusted to the "standards of right order."

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

HOLY WEEK

The Solemn ceremonies associated with Holy Week were attended by very large congregations and were most edifying. At the Parish Church on Spy Wednesday evening there were Stations of the Cross and on Holy Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, there was Solemn High Mass, followed by a procession to the Altar of Repose, which had been beautifully decorated. The Church was thronged and the greater number approached the Holy Table. In the evening following the Rosary, a special sermon on the Blessed Eucharist was preached. On Good Friday, the Solemn Ceremonies began at 10 o'clock. The Stations of the Cross was recited at 2.30 and 7.30, after which an eloquent sermon on the Passion of Our Lord was preached. On Holy Saturday the ceremonies began at 8 o'clock and on Easter Sunday there will be High Mass at 11.30 o'clock.

At St. Augustine's Church, the Stations of the Cross were recited on Wednesday evening and on Holy Thursday morning after High Mass, a procession took place to the Altar of Repose. There was an enormous attendance present. The altar was artistically decorated. In the evening a powerful sermon on the Blessed Eucharist was preached by the Rev. Fr. Gilmartin, O.S.A. On Good Friday morning there will be Mass of the Pre-Sanctified with Stations of the Cross at 3 o'clock and also at 7.30 p.m. after which Very Rev. P. Donegan, D.C., O.S.A., will preach on the Passion. On Easter Saturday, the ceremonies begin at 7 a.m. On Easter Sunday, there will be High Mass at 11.30 a.m.

The Holy Week Ceremonies at the Parish Church, Abbeyside were attended by very large congregations. On Holy Thursday after Mass there was a procession to the Altar of Repose, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. On Holy Thursday evening at 7.30 p.m. an eloquent sermon was preached on the Blessed Eucharist by Rev. Fr. Smith, St. John's, Waterford. On Good Friday morning there will be Mass of the Pre-Sanctified and in the evening at 7.30 p.m. there will be a special sermon on the Passion of Our Lord preached by Fr. Fitzgerald, Dean of Studies, St. John's College, Waterford. On Holy Saturday morning the usual ceremonies will take place.

CARNIVAL DANCE

A Grand Carnival Dance will be held at the Ocean View Hotel, Clonea, on Easter Sunday night. There will be spot prizes, Old Waltz Competitions, etc., and perfect music by a Rhythm Band.

DUNGARVAN FAIR

Dungarvan April Fair was fairly well supplied in every department and though prices remained at the figure of previous fairs buying was better, especially for blacks, which were in good demand. Good yearlings (blacks) made from £3 10s. to £5 and others £2 10s. to £4; two-year-olds £4 to £5 and three-year-olds and upwards £5 to £6 10s.; springers were in fair demand; old cows—fat and lean—sold at recent rates sheep were scarce and those on offer were quickly bought up. Mutton sold up to 10d. per lb; pigs were not too plenty and all were sold at good prices.

CONFIRMATION OUTFITS

Splendid selection of Boys Navy Tweed Serges for making up. M. Fraher, Square, Dungarvan.

DEATH OF MISS M. DONNELLY.

We regret to announce the death at a recent date of Miss Minnie Donnelly, which occurred at her residence, Sheare's street, Abbeyside, fortified by the rites of Holy Church. Deceased was one of the old inhabitants of Abbeyside and was greatly respected by all. The interment took place at Abbeyside, the last prayers were recited by Very Rev. N. Dunphy, P.P.—R.I.P.

POSTPONED

The Draw in aid of the 2nd Batt. Old I.R.A. to be held at Englishtown, is postponed to a future date of which due notice will be given.

The Dungarvan Brass and Reed Band will play at last Mass at the Parish Church on Easter Sunday, and after Mass will return to the Square and play the following programme:—March—Washington Post, Sousa; Overture—Caliph of Bagdad, Boieldieu; Valse—Incognito, Ivanovici; Selection—The Shamrock, Myddleton; March—Liberty Bell, Sousa. Finale—National Anthem. Conductor M. J. McHugh.

EASTER POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS

GOOD FRIDAY, April 19th, one delivery will be made in the Town area only. One despatch will be made at 5.30. Latest hour of posting 4.55. Town letter boxes will be collected at 4.30 p.m. Telegrams and telephones will be the same as on Sundays.

EASTER MONDAY, April 22nd

No delivery. A despatch will be made at 6.30 p.m. Latest time for posting 5.55 p.m. Town letter boxes will be collected at 5.30 p.m. Telegrams and telephones as on Sundays.

CLASHMORE DANCE

Easter Sunday night will be a gala event in Clashmore, when the Grand Carnival Dance will be held. There will be any amount of novel features introduced. Beautiful decorations; excellent music; a specially prepared floor and high-class refreshments will make the night a memorable one and the object for which it is held is most worthy.

NOTICE

A special meeting of the Ballinacorney Early Potato and Vegetable Growers will be held in the Schoolhouse, on Wednesday 24th April, at 8 p.m. old time. All members are earnestly requested to attend.

CELEBRITY CONCERT

On next Wednesday and Thursday evenings—April 23rd and 24th—the Grand Celebrity Concert (in aid of the Friary Renovation Fund) will come off in the Town Hall and it is sure to be the greatest event of its kind for many a day. The artistes are all stars in their particular lines and to have heard them will be a treat to remember later. It is an occasion we are sure that no one will miss. Music and song, humour, step-dancing, etc., all are provided for by the top of the ladder. Doors open each night at 7.30 p.m.

NO MONEY FOR TURF CUTTERS

In the Dail, Mr. Wall, T.D., asked the Minister for Industry and Commerce if he was aware that large quantities of turf have been rendered useless in the Nire and neighbouring districts in Co. Waterford through not being marketed expeditiously, and if he will consider the question of compensating the owners of this turf for the losses they have sustained in view of the fact that the people in these localities feel that they were induced to cut extra turf in order to promote Government policy.

Mr. Lemass replied—I am informed that the turf to which the Deputy refers was cut late in the season and that consequently the producers were unable to save it. I am unable to accept the suggestion that the circumstances warrant the payment of compensation from public funds.

WATERFORD BULL SALE

On Tuesday, Mr. J. D. Palmer, Auctioneer, held a successful Bull Sale at Waterford. Prices ranged from 8 to 19 guineas and 45 Bulls were sold. The quality of the animals was considered very high and buying was brisk.

DOCTORS INCREASE

At the meeting of the Board of Assistance on Wednesday, the meeting had before them the application for an increase of salary.

Mr. Cosgrave—is the doctor at the District Hospital to be included in that?

Secretary—I put him on the agenda because he was here with the deputation on the last day.

Mr. Cosgrave—The doctors in Waterford should also be included.

Commissioner—I think you can take it that it is only the Dispensary doctors you have to deal with. A deputa-tion saw me yesterday and Dr. McCarthy told me that he didn't want to be included at present as the hospital doctors were distinct from the others. So we can leave them out for the time being. We have as you know cut the estimate by £5,000 this year. I have a good deal of sympathy for the doctors, the scale requested by them is only what is being given in neighbouring counties. Dispensary doctors have to maintain a motor car which is a boon to the people as their needs can be served immediately. The upkeep of a car costs a lot of money. The salaries have not been increased in proportion to the increased expenses, nor in proportion to the increased work. If we give the increase now it will mean about £750 and considering the reduced estimate we could not bear that. He would propose that the scale of salaries for Dispensary M.O.'s in the County be £250 rising by increments of £5 to £300 and subsequently by increments of £10 to £350, this scale to come into operation in July 1st next and in the cases of M.O.'s who have already reached the old maximum of £300 that they be allowed the first increment on that date.

The proposition was passed unanimously.

DEATH OF NOTED TIPPERARY SPORTSMAN.

Mr. Michael Ryan, Bohercrowe, Tipperary, whose death has occurred, was with his brother, William, now resident in Manchester, a member of the old Arvale Rovers football team, which in 1896-97 won All-Ireland honours. He was an all-round athlete and a noted winner in the half-mile and 440 events.

Veteran footballers in the Co. Waterford, will recollect that the late Mr. Ryan, was captain of the Tipperary team on the day that they defeated Waterford represented by Kilrossanty team, of which Mr. Patk. Wall, Ballinavouga, was captain, at Clonmel, by the narrow margin of one point.

A Night at Ballingown.

By Michael Walshe

We were all seated round the fire-side at Ballingown some years ago, Jim Vale of Chicopee Falls, Mass., U.S. (at home on a visit to his native land); Pat Cronin, from Modeligo, Patsy Lynch from the Pound Boreen, and last but not least Tommy Power, the gallant smith from Ireland, whose exploits, achievements and adventures at home and abroad would fill a volume or rather a bookcase of volumes, for Tommy travelled the wide world over. Tommy sleeps his last long sleep in the old Church-yard of Kilrossanty, and may the sod lie lightly and the green grass wave gently over his mortal remains, for his heart was kind and true, and many the pleasant hour we spent listening to his wonderful tales of adventure. God rest his soul. But to return: Jimmy Veale told us of the boy from Springfield, Mass., U.S.A., who when cornered by a crocodile in South America jumped clear over the reptile's body, got a grip of its tail swung it three times over his head (he was a hammer-thrower) and landed it 147 feet four inches from the mark, and not only broke the record for throwing a crocodile, but also broke the crocodile's skull. He also told us of the boy from Faha, Co. Waterford, who one Easter Sunday morning finished 56 hen eggs, ten duck eggs and a goose egg. He must have a stomach like an elephant says Tommy the smith and had anyone to go for the doctor? No, said Jim Veale; he was as right as the mail after them. How we knew 'twas a fact, the fresh-shells were counted in the yard that morning. Myself, says Tommy, saw sixteen men trying to finish an Ostrich's egg in South Africa, and they couldn't do it; they were subjects of the King of Basutoland. Did you know the King, says Patsy Lynch. I drank with him says Tommy, and I could be married to his daughter if I had fancy for her, for she fell in love with me when I fought and overthrew a seven-foot gorilla that attacked her in Central Africa. Come on Mr. Cronin, tell your story said Jim Veale before we'll have Tommy seated on the throne of Basutoland. Pat Cronin then told us of a strange, wonderful and mysterious adventure, that happened him on the road to Lismore, too long to be narrated here. Then Patsy Lynch, recited Fontenoy, and in response to an encore gave us Tom Moore's beautiful poem, "The Meeting of the Waters," and when he came to the lines:

"Sweet Vale of Avoca, how calm could I rest, On thy bosom of peace, with the friends I love best."

Stop it Patsy said Tommy; stop it. I don't mean to insult or offend you, but there's neither peace or rest in the Vale of Avoca, at least there was not when I travelled there and if Tom Moore suffered there like me he'd have a different song to sing about it. Tell us the story Tommy said Patsy, for it must be a good one. I might as well say Tommy. I was working in the city of Dublin a good many years ago now. I had the pledge at the same time, and I had a good few pounds spared and as the Yanks would say, I was doing fine. Well, one evening as I was walking down Grafton street, I met a friend of mine, a jockey from the Curragh, Mick L. by name. Tommy boy says he I'm delighted to see you, and how is every inch of you poor fellow. I thought he'd shake the hand off of me before he let it go, and now you must do the good Samaritan for me now, for I have lost my job and I haven't a shilling in my pocket or a friend in Dublin, barring yourself, and Tommy boy, says he, I'm starving and the poor fellow started to cry. Ah! don't Mick boy says I, for I can't bear to see a man or woman in tears; come on away with me to the hotel where I'm staying, and I'll make everything alright for you. So I brought him away with me, ordered supper and paid a week's money in advance for him. Now, Mick says I, when we were at supper tell me all about it. Ah, well there isn't much to tell Tommy says he; I went on a batter for a week and of course when a man is drunk he is not able to manage horses so I got the sack, and I believe I deserved it.

Well, 'tis often a good man's case, says I. Come on away down to the Bar, Tommy, says he, and have something from me; although 'tis yourself must pay for it. You were always kind-hearted, Tommy and many a good turn you did unknown to the world, and many a widow and orphan are praying for you, that you relieved from distress, and sure if you're not rewarded in this world, you'll be rewarded in the next please God.

Come on away down to the Bar Mick, says I, for he was talking loud and some of the hotel-people were listening, and I didn't want to have him broadcasting my good deeds all over the place.

Well, I started with lemonade, then it went to ginger beer, then Anti-lara, non-alcoholic sparkling tonic wine, then Guinness's double XX, then John Jameson's Three Star, and I went to bed that night as drunk as a Lord. That was on Monday. Well we gave the whole blessed week on the booze and when Saturday came my last shilling was gone, and you may be sure I was well sick of Mick the Jock. That's what bad company did for me. On Saturday evening, Mick came up to me. Tommy says he I am after meeting the Boss, and I have my job back again, and he gave me a few shillings, and here is one shilling for you and I'm off back to Kildare and good luck to you. Well then Mick, says I, I have my job lost over you, and 'tis bad luck to you I should say, but I won't, and I'm heading for Waterford to-night. So I drank the shilling for luck and off I started. I headed towards County Wicklow, and that night about ten o'clock I entered the Vale of Avoca; it was pitch dark and raining to beat the band, and I was cold and wet and hungry.

Well Tommy, says I to myself, this won't do at all, if you don't get shelter for the night you're lost, so you had better look alive my poor fellow. So at last, I saw a light through the fields, and I went towards it. It was a farmer's house, so I asked for shelter till morning. Well I'm sorry I have no place to keep you, says the man of the house, but there's another farmer's place about half-a-mile from here. I'll go down with you and I'm sure he'll give you shelter for the night. When we came near the house the farmer asked me, and I thought it a curious question at the time. Did you ever give a night up minding a sow and farrow. No then says I, why do you ask me that. For no reason, he answered, just curiosity. He lifted the latch of the kitchen door, and a tall stout man came down, and a woman. I believe his wife, was sitting by the fireside, there was no one else in the house. God save all here says the farmer who came with me. God save you kindly said the man of the house. If you could give a night's shelter to this poor fellow, it would be an act of charity for you says my friend. I had no place myself to put him up. I will of course, says the farmer. Let ye take a heat of the fire whilst the wife is getting supper. So I warmed and dried myself at the fire and after supper we were chatting awhile, and then the other farmer went away home.

Well, says the man of the house, when he was gone awhile, I'm up with three nights minding a sow and farrow, and I'm half dead with the sleep, and if you would be kind enough to stay up to-night for me I'd be much obliged to you. I know of course you're tired and sleepy yourself, but you can have a good rest to-morrow. I didn't like to refuse him, so I said alright, although a good night's rest would be more in my line at the time. He handed me a lantern, and here is a stool for you to sit on says he, and for your life don't fall asleep, for the sow is a bit cross, and she might attack you and kill all the bonhams. And what will I do says I, if she attacks me. Hit her on the nose says he with the stool, and that will quieten her. Well I was a bit daunted, but I didn't like to show the while feather. We went out then and he opened the door of the pig-house very cautiously, and I hung the lantern on a nail in the wall where he showed me. Then the sow got up and when I saw her, she was about the size of a three-year-old heifer, with a mane on her like a lion, and two little wicked eyes and they glinting like stars in her head. Oh, the Lord save me, says I, turning around to make a run for it, but the villain of the world had the door locked on me, and he was gone. I had barely time to turn around, when the sow was on top of me. I brought the stool down on her nose as hard as I could, but I might as well be hitting Clocklourish below for all the effect it took. Then 'twas tumble-toss and turn over around the house for half-an-hour, sometimes Tommy was on top, and sometimes the sow, and 'twas she was getting the better of me, and I was a good hardy boy at the time, when I chanced to get an iron bar in a corner, then I hit her on the forehead with all my strength, and down she went like a ton of bricks, and down I fell in the corner too, exhausted and played out.

Oh boys! Oh boys, I'll never forget that terrible night. But that wasn't the end of my troubles, if I may finish her then I was safe. When I came to myself a bit I tried the door to see if I had any chance of opening it, no use, 'twas locked, then one of the bonhams screeched, and I heard a grunt behind me, and there was the villain of a sow about to attack me in the rere, but when I turned around she backed away, she had a bit of respect for my iron bar. Seven times she attacked me that night, and seven times I beat her back, for the sting I may say was knocked out of her after the first battle. Oh, I didn't fall asleep, never fear, and when the villain of a farmer opened the door about seven o'clock in the morning, I was going to knock him down with the iron bar. Well poor fellow, he says, you're safe and sound after the night. I may thank my own four bones for that says I. What kind of a villain of a man must you be to lock me in with an animal like that. Sure I might as well be in a cage with a hungry lion. Well says he, I had a servant boy minding her last year, and she ate the leg off him during the night. Well I don't know what kept me from drawing on him with the bar when I heard that, and says I, you locked me in with her after a thing like that happening. Well he was only a soft gom and you are a strong hardy boy. I was thinking you'd manage her if you didn't fall asleep. Then he looked in. Are the bonhams alright, he says. I don't know, I answered, or I don't care, but after the tumbling and wrestling myself and that old savage of a sow had around the house all night, they ought to be all killed. The Lord save us said he; that would be bad work, and 'twouldn't be bad work to have me killed at all. I answered, However, he counted them and they were alright, but how they escaped was a miracle. Come on in now to your breakfast, says he, and you can sleep in my own bed for the day, and you might as well give to-night up about her again for me. I looked at him in amazement. Is it numbugging me you are says I, or do you take me for a fool or an idiot. Why if you gave me the sow and farrow, the farm, the Vale of Avoca and the County Wicklow thrown in with it, I wouldn't stay another minute in the house with that ruffian of a sow. So say no more about it, and looked so fierce and savage that he quailed before me. Well after breakfast I set out for the town of Wicklow, and coming near the place, I met a Horse-Policeman chatting with a girl on the side of the road, and when I passed him, he looked at me very sharp and started to follow me. Now says I to myself, what is this boy up to. So when I entered the town I stood on the side walk on one of the streets, and he beckoned me to come across from the opposite side. Now says I, if this lad is going to question me he'll get very saucy answers. When I came across he put out his hand. Tommy boy, says he, how is every inch of you, I was thinking 'twas yourself was in it when you passed me on the road. I knew him after a bit. John says I, I am glad to see you. He was from my own part of the County, and a decent lad enough for a peeler. How are they all in the old town, says he, that was Dungarvan. Faith I'm working in Dublin with the last two years, and I wasn't at home all the time since. Did you ever come across Mick there says he. Mick was another brother of his, in the police too. No then says I, I never met him, but I came across another Mick, and he was the cause of all my misfortune, and I told him my story, and when I came to a certain part of it, Tommy, says he, you never gave a night in a house with that sow. John says I, did you ever hear a lie after me. I spoke very cross, for I was both angry and offended. Tommy, says he, excuse me, I know you never told a lie in the whole course of your life, but what you're after telling me is so amazing, that if anyone else but yourself told it to me I wouldn't believe them. And how I came out alive from her is next to a miracle. Next to a miracle, says he, why 'tis a complete miracle. Sure she ate the leg off of a servant boy he had last year. Oh, he told me that alright, but 'twas in the morning he told me; but sure himself gave three nights up about her. He might Tommy, but he didn't stay in the house with her. His grandfather or great-grandfather, I forget which fought through the Rebellion of Ninety-Eight, and he was wounded at New Ross or Vinegar Hill, and you often hear the song:

My Grandfather fought at Vinegar Hill and fighting was not his trade, But his rusty pike's in the cabin still, with Hessian blood on the blade.

Well they have that pike in the house, the one his ancestor fought with, and a twelve-foot handle to it, and there may be Hessian blood on the blade and undoubtedly, there is, but the sow's blood is on it anyway. Did you notice a round hole in the wall near the door, I did says I, and I thought to come out through it, when I had the sow laid out after the first battle, but 'twas too small. Ah, faith, Tommy, says he, you're too stout and your shoulders too broad; an ordinary man might have a chance of coming out, but you had none. Well he stands outside with that pike (Oh he won't enter the house, never fear) and when the sow gets cross he gives her a prod and that quiets her for a while, but as for going into the house to her! Ah catch him at it, and he knew Tommy that night if he gave you the pike to watch her outside, you'd only go and have a sleep in some outhouse, when he was gone to bed, for you were too played out to stay awake. You may be sure that's what I'd do too, says I. Oh, he knew that I'd do, and signs on he put you in the first line trenches. The gap of danger. But why don't he get rid of her, sell her, or kill her says I. What a fool he'd be, Tommy says he. She has two farrows every year, and twenty-five bonhams in every farrow, and when another farmer is going to the fair with his little slips at three months, he has his own fit for the factory, between two and three hundred-weight. She's a gold mine so for him, says I. You may say that says he, a gold mine is right. I knew always you were a hardy boy, Tommy, says he, since the day you hammered all the peelers in Cappoquin, and had to be left out in the middle of the night, before you'd pull down the barrack, but I know now you're the best man in Ireland. He brought me in then, and gave me three glasses of whiskey and a good dinner and bid me God-speed on my way to Waterford, and that's my story of the Vale of Avoca.

Well said Jim Veale, I am very much impressed with your story. You meant to hide your light under a bushel, but your friend Mick the Jock, in Dublin, proved or rather exposed your charity to the widow and the orphan, the desolate and the afflicted. Your courage, valour and desperate bravery was proclaimed by your overthrow of the peelers in Cappoquin, the Gorilla in Central Africa, and the sow in the Vale of Avoca. And your truthfulness was vouched for by John the Policeman in Wicklow, and I'm pleased and happy to have the honour of your friendship. Well said Pat Cronin, I am moved to re-echo Mr. Veale's sentiments, and

I wish health, wealth and prosperity to our mutual friend, and now says Patsy Lynch, hats off and three loud ringing cheers for Tommy, the gallant smith from Ireland, and the cheers were given with a heart and a half.

MATCHES AT DUNGARVAN.

On Sunday last two interesting matches in the first round of the 1935 Junior Hurling Championships were played at the Gaelic Field, Dungarvan. The first match between Cathal Brugha's and Clashmore, proved a very one-sided affair. Cathal Brugha's winning by a big margin, Clashmore failed even to register one score. Lannon Coleman and Daly were the scorers for the winners.

The second match between Eire Oge and Dungarvan, which had aroused great local interest was a well-contested and hard fought game. Eire Oge, whose forward line made the best advantages of all the play given to them were responsible for the victory of their side. Dungarvan on the other hand lost several scores and with a good forward line would have made matters hot for Eire Oge.

The final score read:— EIRE OGE 3-3 DUNGARVAN 1-0 Foley, Burke and Curran scored for Eire Oge, while Joe Murphy in goal was almost unbeatable.

THE POWER OF PRAYER

The concluding Lenten Conference on "The Prayer of Christ" was delivered in St. Saviour's Church, Dublin, by Very Rev. Father Cleary, O.P. The preacher said that Christ could truly be said to have passed His life in an atmosphere impregnated with the perfume of prayer. His miracles were rare; the ministry of His preaching was confined to the closing years of his earthly career; but His Apostleship of Prayer was never. The manifold examples of Our Lord's prayer should move us to echo the joyful cry of the Apostles: "Lord teach us to pray." We of to-day need to learn the lesson of Christ's perseverance in prayer if we are to save ourselves from an irrevocable estrangement from God. In a world where self-love and self-worship have almost made man a little less than a god unto himself, prayer is regarded more as a burden than a privilege.

With the passion of hate unchained, men were so consumed with a desire to injure their fellow men that they had no time to raise their eyes to Our Common Father and to ask the blessing of His right hand. Men who were not afraid to cure were ashamed to pray. They had cast aside a weapon which men could lawfully use in wrestling with the All-High. For prayer could stay the hand and move the will of Him Who moved mountains and made worlds as easy as they drew breath.

"Ireland was never more powerful than when she unsheathed the sword of prayerful submission to God in the teeth of armed force," he added. "Her victories of prayer will be remembered when the echo of her conquests in battle will have faded into irremediable oblivion. When the whole of Europe was sunk in a seething cauldron of red blood, Ireland on her knees gained a bloodless victory against conscription. When, in the Phoenix Park, men forgot their differences as they knelt side by side in the mightiest hosting of religious worship ever seen, they gave an example to the world of the all-compelling power of prayer to bridge the chasm of political strife.

"When mankind by disowning the Gospel has found only desolation, it may be that our country, now so little heeded and so despised in the council chambers of the nations, will one day teach a tortured world how to possess everlasting peace. If it be the vocation of Erin to teach the world the power of moral beauty, it can only be when as a nation she repeats with child-like simplicity the Gospel-cry 'Lord, teach us to pray.' For Ireland can be truly great only at the feet of her God."

DEATH OF MRS. DRAPER, N.T. RING.

The death occurred last week of Mrs. Nora Draper, N.T., Ring National School.

Deceased was wife of Mr. Martin Draper, merchant, Ballinagoul, Ring, and a member of one of the oldest and most respected families in the parish (the Griffin family of Shanakill, Ring).

The late Mrs. Draper, who was quite a young woman, was an excellent Irish scholar, a competent and painstaking teacher and a most estimable woman. She was deservedly popular and highly esteemed and respected in Ring both as teacher and in public life. Her death is deeply regretted and deep sympathy is felt for her bereaved husband, Mr. Martin Draper, Ballinagoul, her little boy and other relatives. There was a very large attendance at the funeral to Ring, Churchyard on Saturday.

A sister of deceased is a member of the Mercy Community of nuns, at Wexford. The late Mrs. Draper was among the small group of first pupils from Ring parish who attended the Irish Secondary School established at Ring

YOUGHAL URBAN COUNCIL

WAGES OF STAFF

Present—Messrs. P. J. O'Gorman, P.C., Chairman; M. D. Broderick, R. Power, W. O'Sullivan, T. Beausang, E. P. Lynch, J. Forrest, R. Savage, T. Murphy, T. K. Keane, solr., J. N. R. Macnamara, solr., D. McCarthy, E. D. Condon, M. Cashman J. Daly, J. R. Smyth, P.C.; R. C. Farrell, Vice-Chairman; M. Aherne, J. Whelan, Capt. C. Watson.

Housing Crux With Coffins

A letter was read from the L.G. regarding the question of the impossibility of getting coffins into the new house, and asking for suggestion and sketches from the Town Surveyor as to the best means of overcoming the difficulty.

The Clerk said the required particulars had been duly forwarded.

Ratepayers Summoned

Letters were read from a number of defaulting ratepayers who had been summoned for the arrears due, asking for time for payment.

Mr. Power said the collector had got the extension of time he had asked for to close his collection. Surely he might have given the parties the benefit of it. It looked like victimisation.

The Chairman said the collector was the final authority in the matter. Mr. Power thought it was very wrong. One had given £5 on account. The Chairman said the Collector had told them that some persons never paid without being summoned. In any case they could only make a pious request.

Republican Memorial

The Youghal Republican Memorial Committee, applied for the use of the Ball Room on 26th April, to hold a Ceilidhe.

The application was granted, on the proposition of Mr. Daly, seconded by Mr. Beausang.

Main Sewer Extension

A letter was read from Mr. M. Walsh, the Strand, Contractor, agreeing to extend the main sewer from McCurtainstown, provided the Council supplied the necessary pipes, as promised.

New Stamp Duty

The Clerk stated that he had got the men receiving £2 wages, etc., to put a 2d stamp on the receipts. He had asked the Department if weekly wages of £2 and over required a 2d. stamp, and had received a reply stating that amounts of £3 and over should be stamped. He was inclined to think that was an error. They would have to strike a rate to cover receipts of poor rates, etc.

Green's Dock

The Clerk read a letter from the Inter-Departmental Committee stating that the proposal to erect a wall across the front of Green's Dock, as suggested by Mr. Power, would be considered.

Free Milk Contractor

The L.G. wrote confirming the appointment of Mr. H. McGrath, Ballyhenry, as contractor for the supplying of milk under the Free Milk Scheme.

Volunteer Training Camp

Correspondence was read in connection with the selection of Youghal as a centre for the training of Volunteers during the summer months from which it would appear that the camps will be at Summerfield.

Front Strand Road

A letter was read from the Co. Surveyor, regarding the Front Strand Road, which the Council were not intended to maintain for the £75 allowed by the Co. Council. That amount couldn't be increased at present. He would do his best to maintain it, but there was a lot of clearing to be done to it during the summer months. As that came under the head of scavenging, it should be done by the Council.

Mr. Whelan said the road was in a scandalous condition, considering the large amount of rateable property in the vicinity. They should again ask the Co. Council to do something.

Mr. Broderick suggested that it be referred back to the Co. Council.

Mr. Savage said the road in question was much used by the people of both city and county.

The Clerk was directed to write to the Co. Council again.

Clearance Orders

On the proposition of Mr. Savage, seconded by Mr. Murphy, the final steps were taken in the Clearance Orders regarding Kenny's Lane, Hurley's Lane and Power's Lane.

Wages Of Staff

The next item on the agenda was "a demand from the I.T. & G. W. Union, reminding the Council that the rate of wages set out by the Branch is 40/- per week from Monday to Saturday and giving the Council 14 days in which to comply with the demand on behalf of the carters, general workers, gas works, labourers, etc."

The Chairman—That has been on the agenda for two weeks. Mr. O'Sullivan—What is the actual money received? The Clerk gave the figures ranging from 37/6 to £2 and one caretaker 35/8.

Mr. O'Sullivan said that was a very poor wage for a 7-day week. Replying to a question, the Clerk said the men worked a couple of hours on Sunday mornings.

Mr. O'Sullivan, proposed that they get £2 for the 6 days and 5/- for the Sunday work.

Mr. Power, seconded. The men's hours were longer than those of the ordinary labourer; they had a nasty job at times, and any money they got went back to the ratepayers. They didn't go to the bank and make a prisoner of their earnings.

Mr. Savage said they were dealing with the ratepayers' money, and while he always favoured labour, they should face facts. That Council always were sympathetic towards their staff. They had security of tenure; they never lost a day through bad weather and personally, he considered them very ill-advised. Had they perquisites?

The Clerk said they had oilskins, overtime and Church holidays.

Mr. Savage—If by speaking like this I am going to lose votes, I don't give a tinker's curse (laughter). The man without the courage of his convictions isn't worth a grain of salt.

Mr. Lynch said they talked about the ratepayers' money, but were ratepayers getting no value for it.

The Chairman—What has that got to do with the question?

Mr. Lynch—I'd like to see some members living on 35/- a week. Every man is entitled to a living wage.

The Chairman said he would give every member a fair opportunity, but they should speak only once.

Mr. Power—It is a very serious matter. We have a strike in town at present that cost £235 last week. The Messrs. Murray are good employers and we should give a lead and not be led.

The Chairman said there was a proposition before them. Was Mr. Savage moving an amendment?

Mr. Savage—I am only putting forward my views.

Mr. Farrell said the present arrangement was made 5 or 6 years ago, and there was no complaint from the staff since. That wasn't the time for increasing wages. They all could see the state of affairs in the town every day in the week, but evidently the Transport Workers' Union didn't realise the position. A large number of the ratepayers found it difficult enough to meet their liabilities without increasing wages, and he therefore, proposed they do not comply with the demand.

Mr. Broderick said that when the work of the staff was greatly lessened by the macadamising of the Main street some years ago, it was suggested that they reduce the staff by three. However, to avoid that the wages were slightly reduced, leaving the figure 39/-.

It was thought fair at the time, and he thought it fair still. In view of the present state of things, the men would be well advised to be satisfied with their present wage.

Mr. Power made some remarks, whereupon the Chairman reminded him that he had spoken twice already.

Mr. Macnamara—Is there any direct complaint from the men?

The Chairman—There is nothing from the men, but from the Transport Workers' Union.

Mr. O'Sullivan—How much would this put on the rates?

The Clerk—About 4d. in the £1. After further considerable discussion, a poll was taken with the following result:—

For an increase—Messrs. Savage, Forrest, Lynch, Beausang, Power and O'Sullivan—6.

Against—Messrs. Farrell, Watson, Macnamara, Whelan, Murphy, Smyth, McCarthy, Broderick, Cashman, Aherne, Condon, and the Chairman—43.

Didn't vote—Mr. Daly. The Chairman, therefore, declared the Union's demand rejected.

Condolence

Mr. Power, proposed a vote of condolence to the widow and family of the late Mr. Maurice Bransfield. A life long Gael, he was one of the best footballers in Ireland in his time.

Mr. Lynch, seconded.

The Chairman, Mr. Cashman and other members and the Town Clerk, having associated themselves with the proposition, the Clerk was directed to convey it.

YOUGHAL DISTRICT COURT.

Before Mr. H. A. McCarthy, B.L.

CIVIL BILLS

There was a long list of civil bills for hearing, Messrs. W. J. Barry, Middleton, W. St. Clair Rice, do., and J. J. Ronayne, do., and T. K. Keane, Youghal and J. N. R. Macnamara, solrs., appeared for plaintiffs. Decrees were granted except in those cases that were adjourned.

Change Of Hours.

Mr. Rice, solr., applied on behalf of the proprietors of the Bay View, Sea View and Pier hotels at Ballycotton, for a change of hours during the summer months—2 to 9 instead of 4 to 8.

There being no objection the application was granted.

McCarthy v. Corbett

This was a civil bill for £3 by Patt. McCarthy, Youghal, against his son-in-law, W. J. Corbett, for the trover and conversion of a donkey, and Corbett had a claim for £6 6s. 9d., against McCarthy, in connection with certain articles of furniture.

Mr. Keane, solr., for McCarthy; and Mr. Macnamara, solr., for Corbett.

When the cases were called a second time, Mr. Macnamara said he had no instructions and he asked permission to withdraw from the case.

From the evidence of McCarthy, it appeared he bought a donkey at Middleton for £5. Corbett gave him £2 and had taken and kept possession of the animal.

A decree was given for £3 and the other case was adjourned.

Unpaid Rates.

Mr. J. E. Farrell, collector, had a number of persons summoned for Town Rates and decrees were granted.

Bank Of Ireland v Riordan

This was an application for an Instalment Order on foot of a decree and costs of £57 2s. 0d.

Mr. Rice, solr., for plaintiffs and Mr. Barry, solr., for defendant.

From the evidence it appeared that defendant went security on a bill for his uncle Laurence Flaherty, Watergrasshill, who defaulted, and the bank took proceedings against defendant. He had sold his farm some years ago for £1,000, out of which he had to give to a member of his family £750. His present place was purchased by his wife. He had no income. He had not got a penny of the amount borrowed by his uncle.

Replying to the Court, defendant said he would be disposed to pay the amount if he had anything, but it was utterly impossible.

The Justice said on the evidence he couldn't possibly make an order.

Mr. Barry asked for costs.

Mr. Rice, objected.

The Justice said he wasn't at all sure that Mr. Barry wouldn't be entitled to costs, but he wasn't in the habit of allowing them in such cases.

Guard Healy had a number of young men summoned for cycling without lights and fines up to 3/- were imposed.

LAND ANNUITY CLAIM

CO. WATERFORD CASE

That there was no jurisdiction in the court to grant the decree, because in the first instance, the money was not due on foot of a contract, inasmuch as the defendant was not a registered owner, but merely an occupier, was the submission of Mr. C. S. Quinlan, when Judge Sealy, gave a decree for £20 and costs in an action by the Land Commission against Patrick Navin, Ross, Kilmeeaden, in respect of three half years' revised annuity. The sum was stated to be due under Section 28 of the 1927 Land Act as amended by Section 20 of the 1933 Land Act.

DEFENCE CONTENTIONS

Mr. Quinlan contended that the Land Commission had to show the Court under Section 43 (Sub-Sec. 7) of the Courts of Justice Act, 1924, that the Commission was a department of the State and that, therefore, it could sue. On reference to the Ministers and Secretaries Act, 1924, and to the schedule annexed thereto, it was expressly laid down that the Land Commission was merely a branch of administration assigned to the Department of Lands, and was therefore not a department of State.

Reference to the Land Act of 1881, under which the Land Commission was originally constituted would like wise show that it was not a department of State.

Mr. Quinlan went on to say that no attempt had been made in any Act to define what was meant by the term "State," presumably it was used as a paraphrase for the King, Senate, and Dail, who were jointly styled the Oireachtas under Article 51 of the Constitution. Section 28 of the 1927 Act, he submitted, was defective in not prescribing the forum in which the Land Commission could pursue its remedy for the recovery of arrears under the section, and it was no function of the Court to supply words which had been omitted by the legislator.

Judge Sealy, on the application of Mr. Quinlan, put a stay on the decree, pending an appeal on the points at issue to the High Court.

Youghal Mental Hospital

At the usual monthly meeting of the committee of the above on Monday, there attended—Messrs. Wm. J. Broderick, T.D., Chairman; and J. R. Connolly, T.C.; Rev D. Dwane, C.C., and Dr. M. Twomey, Visiting Physician.

The Manager's report stated that—Since last meeting five patients (three female and two male) had been admitted from the Cork Mental Hospital, and two patients (one female and one male) have died, leaving in residence at present a total of 428 patients—240 men and 177 women. I submit Stock-takers Inventory and Report of the Stock. A letter was submitted from the Drinagh Co-Op Creamery re contract for butter, etc. Contracts have been satisfactorily carried out during the month. Sums amounting to £45 16s. have been received towards the maintenance of patients, and lodged to the credit of the Mental Hospital account. I shall be glad if the Committee will allow the usual Easter extras for the Institution.

The Doctor's Report read:—Since my last report there have been two deaths. Three patients are confined to bed on the male side of the house and nine on the female side, owing to debility and other causes. There have been no case of seclusion, restraint, injury or violence. There has been no complaint of the water supply. The food supplies have been regularly examined and found up to standard requirements. There has been no case of zymotic disease, and the general health of the Institution is excellent.

The Drinagh Co-Op Creamery Ltd., wrote as follows:—Butter Contract—Dear Sir,—Attached is a circular issued by the Department of Agriculture and received by us this date. At the time we quoted for your contract, we were of opinion that the arrangements to stabilise the price of butter, this year would be somewhat the same as last year, and we couldn't reasonably have foreseen the advance in the levy and official fixing of prices. Having regard to the Minister's circular, we must ask your Board to accept invoices at the minimum prices specified therein or release us from the contract.

The circular stated that legislative proposals were about to be submitted to the Oireachtas with a view to continuing, with certain modifications, the provisions of the Dairy Produce (Price Stabilisation) Act 1932, which would expire in 31st March, 1935. The principal modifications were provisions (a) to fix by law the home price of bulk creamery butter, and (b) to collect levy on home sales only. Under the new measure which would as far as possible, have retrospective effect as from and including 1st April, 1935, it was proposed that the minimum price at which creamery butter might be sold in the home market would be fixed by law and any person selling under the minimum price would be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding £100. The minimum prices to be specified in the New Bill as being operative unless altered by regulations were as follows: Creamery butter delivered or forwarded elsewhere 144/- per cwt., for any consignment of not less than 5 cwt., and 144/- per cwt. for any smaller quantity.

Mr. Connolly—As we are coming on Easter, will the patients get anything extra?

The Chairman—Certainly, the usual.

The Manager was empowered to deal with the matter.

In the absence of a quorum, no business was formally transacted.

NUTRITIONAL SCOUR IN CALVES

Pail-fed calves must be treated with extreme care. Contaminated milk and dirty feeding pails induce a diseased condition of the stomach and intestines, resulting in loss of appetite, thirstiness, and frequently diarrhoea. Cleanliness in feeding is very important, but there is no use in scalding pails if the feeder of the young calf, in teaching the little animal to drink from the pail, introduces a dirty hand into the milk in doing so. One must be logical in this as in other respects. The most important consideration is the quality of milk fed at each meal. In the natural condition a calf sucks its dam some dozen or more times per day, taking a little milk on each occasion, and under such circumstances it is a very rare occurrence to find a calf experiencing any difficulty because of excessive feeding, even when on a high-yielding cow. Excessive pail-feeding of milk is, however, of frequent occurrence, and is responsible for very great losses. The explanation lies in the limitation of the number of daily feeds to three, and more often to two, as a result of which the calf approaches the pail exceedingly hungry, and drinks to excess.

STOMACH DERANGEMENT.

The effect of excessive milk-feeding, i.e. giving too much at an individual feed, is a derangement of the stomach, and the production therein of a hard clot of curd, which is digested with very great difficulty. The presence of the curd so irritates the stomach that its inner lining becomes inflamed and haemorrhage may actually occur. As a result of the stomach-irritation, the intestine is activated into violent contractions, so that the contents, which would otherwise be absorbed, are forced through at an excessively rapid rate, causing scour. Outwardly the disorder is first indicated by sudden lack of appetite, dullness, and diarrhoea. Diarrhoea produced in this way is of frequent occurrence in calves from the age of a few days to three weeks, and it has been given the name of nutritional scour to distinguish it from contagious diarrhoea, which is caused by a specific organism.

EFFECTIVE TREATMENT

Nutritional scour is responsible for very heavy losses in the way of fatalities, but more often its effect is evidenced by surviving sickly and unthrifty calves. Farmers wish to know how to prevent and to treat this disorder. The explanation of the cause of the derangement gives the clue. The best way to prevent the occurrence is to reduce the quantity of milk fed at any one feed, and, in order to permit of this, feeding should be done three daily for the first three weeks. For the first week two pints of milk per feed—that is, six pints per day—is ample; the quantity should be increased to two and a half pints in the third week. The health and vivacity of the calf, as well as its "bloom," is improved by the addition of a little water. If the milk fed it from newly-calving cows, digestive disorders will not occur on the dieting prescribed, even in the absence of added water. If, however, the milk is from cows advanced in lactation, trouble is much more likely to result, due to the heavier clot formed by it in the calf's stomach.

To provide against the possible occurrence of nutritional scour in that case, water must be added to the milk at each feed. In that case, also, it is recommended that the prescribed quantity of milk be somewhat reduced and the water in each feed increased to one pint. Should, due to injudicious feeding, scour develop, it should be treated at once. Instead of the usual feed of milk, a dose of castor oil should be given—one ounce for calves up to one week old, one and a half ounces up to the end of the second week, and thereafter two ounces, given in some warm water. For the next feed after the oil-dose give water only—boiled and cooled to body temperature, and thereafter give milk and water in equal proportions for a day or two till the disorder disappears—SHEEDY, in "Farmers Gazette."

LISMORE NOTES.

EASTER SUNDAY NIGHT AT LISMORE

A grand Variety Entertainment will be staged at the Town Hall, Lismore, on Easter Sunday night, by Mrs Violet McCarthy's pupils, who have long proved themselves adepts on the stage. Mrs. Violet McCarthy, herself has acted in the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, and under her tuition her pupils have undergone a thorough coaching for the coming entertainment.

The committee in charge is none other than that same body who have long proved themselves proficient in the art of brilliant organisation. The well drawn up programme will include singing, classical dancing recitations, etc.

G.A.A.—DOUBLE FOR TALLOW

Before a fairly good attendance at the Gaelic Field, Lismore, on Sunday, two matches, a hurling and a football match were played. The first was a minor hurling game between Tallow and St. Carthage's, Lismore, which ended in a win for Tallow on the scoring, but the match was given to Lismore owing to the inability of the Tallow Club to field a legal minor team. The final score read—Tallow 7 goals 1 point; St. Carthage's, 5 goals. Mr. M. Hogan, Lismore, refereed.

DANGER OF TARRED ROADS

SUGGESTION OF MR. WALL, T.D.

In the Dail last week, Mr. Wall, T.D. called the attention of the Minister for Local Government to the system of road construction which was being invariably followed in the county by which the entire surface of the road from fence to fence or nearly so was covered with tar and while this made an ideal road for motoring it made a very dangerous road for horse traffic. He suggested that a reasonable untramped margin should be allowed at each side of the road, and this while not encroaching on the rights of motorists, would make the roads comparatively safe for horses. Numbers of serious accidents have occurred all over the country and this state of affairs will continue so long as the present system of tarring is followed. The matter required immediate attention unless the Government was determined to put horse traffic off the road.

AGRICULTURAL GRANT

WATERFORDS REDUCED SUM

In the Dail last week, Mr. Wall, T.D. raised the question of the reduced Agricultural Grant. He said when the Grant was first introduced the basis of allocation was the Co. Council estimate for a certain year. For the particular year selected it appears the Waterford Co. Council struck an abnormally low rate which was ultimately found to fall far short of their requirements. He thought the deficit was about £20,000. The Agricultural Grant allocated to the Co. Waterford was fixed according to that estimate and not according to the actual expenditure for the year. The result is that the ratepayers of Co. Waterford lost very considerably in the year of the introduction of the Grant and in every year since. He believed the facts were as he had stated and if the Minister finds that they are so after investigation, he should take steps to see that the money to which the County Waterford ratepayers are legally and justly entitled should be restored to them.

LOCAL WILL.

The Rev. John L. Power, P.P., of Stradbally, Co. Waterford, who died on May 1st, left personal estate in England and the Irish Free State valued at £1,954. Probate of his will and four codicils has been granted to the Rev. David Power, of St. John's Presbytery, Waterford and the Rev. James Hally, of Newcastle, Ballymacarbery, Waterford. He left £250 for Masses; £100 to the Bishop of Waterford and Lismore for the Ecclesiastical Benefit Fund; £1,000 to the said Bishop for various Catholic charities and institutions named and detailed; £50 to his housekeeper, Johanna O'Mahony; £20 to his former housekeeper, Mary Kirwan; a few small bequests and the residue of the property to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, Dublin.

BEQUESTS OF MICHAEL DAVITT'S WIDOW

Mrs. Mary Davitt, 21 Pembroke Park, Dublin, who died on 2nd November last, widow of Michael Davitt, who was associated with Charles Stewart Parnell and others in the foundation of the Land League, left personal property in England and the Irish Free State valued at £4,714 10s. Probate of her will has been granted to her daughter, Miss Eileen Agatha Davitt, of 47 Fitzwilliam Square, Dublin. The testatrix left £100 each to the Rev. Father Hooke, the Rev. Father Lawrence, the Guardian of the Franciscan Order, Merchants Quay, the Rector of St. Francis Xavier, Gardiner Street, Dublin, and the Superior of the Roscrea Monastery for Masses, and the residue of the property to her daughter, Eileen Agatha Davitt.

CAPPOQUIN NOTES.

EASTER DANCE

The Annual Grand Easter Dance under the auspices of the Cappoquin Rowing Club, will be held in the Boat-house on Easter Sunday night and bids fair to prove one of the most enjoyable social functions held for many years.

The energetic members of the Committee and Hon. Sec., are sparing no efforts to make next Sunday night's fixture greater and more enjoyable than ever. The music will be by the talented Nightingale Orchestra, Lismore.

SERIOUS CYCLING ACCIDENT

On Friday morning as John Flynn, Melleray, was cycling to his work in Cappoquin the end of his overcoat got caught in one of the bicycle wheels, and he was thrown over the handlebars and sustained several severe cuts and abrasions. He was rendered unconscious for some time, but regaining his senses he managed to reach the town where he had his wounds attended to by Dr. Wm. White.

C.Y.M.S. BILLIARD HANDICAP

The annual Billiards Handicap for the Valuable Dr. Hackett Perpetual Challenge Cup, presented to the Cappoquin Catholic Young Men's Society some years ago, has just been completed in the C.Y.M.S. Hall, and provided some very close and exciting games, the best of which was in the semi-final when G. Cahill beat W. O'Keefe by only one point.

The games were 250 points up, and the following results of the second and succeeding rounds speak for themselves:—

Second Round
G. Cahill (owes 70) beat M. Regan (owes 20) 250—245. W. O'Keefe (owes 40) beat J. Regan (owes 100), 250—188. J. Ahearne (owes 120) beat Joe Walsh (owes 40), 250—174. P. Walsh (owes 10) beat Joe Mason (rec. 10), 250—155.

Semi-Final
G. Cahill beat W. O'Keefe, 250—240. J. Ahearne beat P. Walsh, 250—228.

Final
J. Ahearne beat G. Cahill, 250—153.

In the Snooker Handicap, which was finished on Sunday night weekly Mr. G. Cahill, runner-up in the Billiards Handicap, was the winner of the Sargent Cup, presented by Mr. M. J. Sargent, Cappoquin, Vice-President of the C.Y.M.S. beating N. Regan by 48—41.

Both Cups, together with valuable cues and other prizes for the runners-up, will be presented to the winners at the Annual Meeting of the C.Y.M.S. on Easter Sunday night.

THE NEW SEWERAGE SCHEME

Great satisfaction is felt among the inhabitants in Barrack street over the announcement that all difficulties in connection with the new sewerage scheme have now been surmounted, and that it is intended to proceed with the work with the least possible delay.

SCHOLARSHIPS TENABLE AT RAMSGRANGE SCHOOL OF RURAL DOMESTIC ECONOMY

The above Committee have made provision for three Scholarships tenable at the above-mentioned School during the 1935-36 session.

The Scholarships will be confined to girls whose parents derive their livelihood wholly from farming and are rated occupiers of the county. Intending applicants must be not less than sixteen or more than thirty-five years of age on the date of admission to the School. Girls who have already attended a Residential School of Rural Domestic Economy are not eligible to compete for these Scholarships.

The course of instruction given is intended to qualify the pupils to perform efficiently the work of rural life, and includes Dairying, Poultry-keeping, Household Management, Cookery, Laundry-work and Needle-work. The school year extends from July to June and is divided into two terms which begin, respectively, in July and January.

The Scholarships will be awarded on the result of an examination to be held at any early date and forms of application for admission thereto may be obtained from the undersigned by whom all applications must be received not later than 20th APRIL, 1935. Competitors are required to produce certificates of good character. The eligible candidates will be duly notified of the date, place and hour of the examination.

The examination will comprise questions in English (including Essay and Dictation), Arithmetic (involving a knowledge of fractions, decimals, percentages and mensuration) and Irish. There will also be an oral examination for the purpose of testing candidates' general knowledge of rural conditions. The standard required generally will not demand higher educational attainments than are usually achieved by pupils who passed the sixth standard in a primary school, but candidates must reach the necessary standard of qualification in all subjects to be eligible for the award of a Scholarship.

Successful candidates will be required to produce evidence of age and good health.
