

Doctor and Councillor
CLAIMS FOR MEDICAL FEES

An interesting claim was heard at the Waterford Civil Bill Court, when Dr. A. J. D'Abreu, Newtown, sued Councillor P. O'Halloran, for the sum of sixteen guineas, stated to be due by the defendant to plaintiff in respect of professional services rendered. Mr. P. J. O'Connor, solr., appeared for Dr. D'Abreu, and Major Jones, solr., appeared for Mr. O'Halloran. Mr. O'Connor explained that included in the services rendered were X-ray photographs, and attendance by the defendant at plaintiff's residence in connection therewith. The matter arose out of a claim brought by the defendant under the Workmen's Compensation Act, when an award was made in his favour by His Lordship Judge Sealy, K.C. Dr. D'Abreu said he was a surgical specialist, residing at Newtown, Waterford. The defendant first visited him on the 3rd May, 1933. Defendant then asked his opinion on the case. "I made the usual examination," continued Dr. D'Abreu, "and said it was absolutely necessary to have the injury photographed. I X-rayed him on that particular day, and afterwards showed him the photograph and explained the result of it to him. I told him it was a case which required to be X-rayed repeatedly in different positions because the nature of the injury had not at all come to light in the previous evidence that was given at court by other doctors. Following the defendant's first visit I took a number of X-ray photographs, and I would say the defendant attended at my residence about ten times in all. I remember telling the defendant before the court that my fee would be about sixteen guineas. Defendant made no objection about the fee for if he had I would not have been there to give evidence. Cross-examined—Dr. D'Abreu admitted he was not accurate about the number of times the defendant was with him. There was absolute necessity for the defendant attending him on all these days because the photographs could not have been taken on the first day. He denied that he said to defendant that he would get the costs of the photographs from the other side. Councillor O'Halloran, the defendant, said he had a Workman's Compensation claim against his employers in 1933. Before the hearing he went to Dr. D'Abreu to get an X-ray photograph taken. The doctor told him the charge of the photographs would be charged against the defendants. Before the doctor took the photographs he asked him what the fee would be because he thought the doctor would be charging him for the first time and then. The doctor replied that if he won the case the costs would be got from the company through a soli-ditor. There was never a mention of sixteen guineas made to him. The only remark Dr. D'Abreu made was that if we won the case, and he had no doubt we would, the other side would pay all expenses. But, if we lost he referred to fifteen guineas. He simply mentioned it casually but did not develop upon it. Evidence was given that the fee allowed the doctor out of court on the hearing of the Workman's Compensation claim was four guineas. The District Justice said he was not there to decide the worth of Dr. D'Abreu's services. He was sure they were of the highest value, but what he was there to decide was the matter of contract between the parties. How much was the defendant liable under contract to pay Doctor D'Abreu was the issue he had to decide and when there was no sign of contract before him he had to take into consideration the status and position generally of the defendant and his capacity to pay. Dr. D'Abreu says he is a surgical specialist. He says his fees are much higher for matters of this kind than fees generally are by doctors who give this sort of evidence, but he is not entitled to charge higher unless he brings it to the notice of the defendant, or other clients. He (Justice) was far from deciding anything about the worth of Dr. D'Abreu's services but he had to consider the custom in the medical profession, as in all professions, of taking the rough from the smooth. Dr. Abreu says that was his fee. But Dr. Abreu would want to bring that clearly to the minds of his clients if he is going to make them legally liable. In view of all the circumstances he would say that Dr. D'Abreu was entitled to a fee of six guineas which, together with the four guineas allowed him by the court on the hearing would make his fee ten guineas. That, in view of the defendant's position, was, in his Worship's opinion, even more than sufficient.

THE COST OF LIVING

The Budget was severely criticised by Mr. W. Norton, T.D. when he spoke at a Connolly commemoration meeting at the Mall, Waterford, last night. So far as the Budget imposed taxes on food, it was, he said, a bad one from the point of view of the poor, and was a fair indication that the Government had swung from the left and were now well on the right. If, as stated by Mr. L. Mass, in a recent broadcast, the national income was higher than ever, then it should be easily possible for the Government to raise taxation from the rich without raking the pockets of the poor. Despite what the Minister for Industry and Commerce had said with regard to the cost of living index figure, the latter was higher in February of

LISMORE TOURNAMENT

SARSFIELDS WIN INTER-COUNTY MATCH

Sarsfields, 4-4; Mount Sion, 3-3. On Sunday, under glorious weather conditions, the third match in the Lismore Hurling Cup Tournament was played in the local Gaelic ground, which had been specially prepared for the occasion. In the first match in the tournament Tallow defeated Mallow, and in the second match Lismore played a draw with Dungarvan after a great game. The third match on Sunday, which lay between Sarsfields (Cork) and Mount Sion (Waterford) attracted an unusually large attendance of spectators, who were treated to a very fast and high class display of hurling from start to finish. Playing against a strong sun in the first half, Waterford were first away and had a beautiful goal scored within the first five minutes. Sarsfields had the better of the ensuing play and were looking dangerous when a stubborn defence was met with, and another over resulted. The half time score was:—
Sarsfields 2-1
Cork showed up to much better advantage in the second half, and several attacks were frustrated. Waterford soon had a point to their credit. They next shot a goal, and with the score now 3-3 to 2-1 the chances of Mount Sion were looking very rosy. Sarsfields had the better of the play in the final stages but the defence of the Waterford custodian and backs was sound. The final whistle found Cork winners of a grand game.
Teams:—
Sarsfields—Ml Brennan (Capt.); T. Murphy, (goal); B. Lott, Joe Lott, R. Walsh, C. McNamara, P. McNamara, Ml O'Keefe, Jas. Twomey, T. Line, D. Linehan, B. Murnhy, W. Horgan, M. Dwyer and P. Reid.
Mount Sion—D. O'Mahony (Capt.); John Ryan (goal); J. Keane, D. Hogan, P. O'Connor, P. Dugan, J. O'Hanlon, B. Breen, Jas. Burgoyne, B. Doyle, M. Gallagher, M. Doyle, P. McGrath, J. Walsh, and C. Mahony.

this year than it was in 1934, and in 1934 it was higher than in 1933. Answering an interrupter, who referred to the Glvde Shipping Co's steamer, which has been tied up in Waterford Port for several months past, Mr. Norton said when the Cumann na nGaedheal Party was in power such ships were not tied up, but were carrying to America the flower of the country's manhood.

WATERFORD CO. COMMITTEE OF AGRICULTURE

BOYS AND GIRLS SCHOLARSHIPS

At the meeting of the above, Mr. Thomas Flynn, Chairman, presided. There were also present—Messrs. P. R. Power and P. B. Sheridan. The Department wrote forwarding results of recent examinations held in the County for scholarships for boys to Agricultural Colleges and for girls to Rainsgrange School of Domestic Economy. BOYS' SCHOLARSHIPS The results in order of merit were—Ml. P. O'Donnell, 1; Palk J. Cunningham, 2; Thos. Hannigan, 3; Joseph Fitzgerald, 4. Five candidates failed to qualify. It was decided to award the three scholarships to the first three candidates in order of merit and if any successful candidate doesn't accept the scholarship, the next candidate in order of merit to be selected by the Secretary.

GIRL'S SCHOLARSHIPS

For three scholarships tenable at Rainsgrange School of Domestic Science, the result of the examination held by the Department's Inspector was announced as follows:—Bridget Conway, Clerkstown, Ardmore, 1; Kathleen Fitzgerald, Tallacole, Dungarvan, 2; Joan F. The committee awarded Scholarships to the first three candidates and should any of them not accept same, the Secretary is to give the vacancies to the next candidates in order of merit. The remaining business of the meeting was of a routine nature.

BISHOP'S TRIBUTE

Most Rev. Dr. Kinane, Bishop of Waterford and Lismore, administered Confirmation to 200 children of the Ballybricken parish, on Sunday, and recalled that the people had demonstrated their faith and loyalty when they had been put to the test. He knew that no matter who had been their Bishop they would have stood firm in defence of Catholic principles, but he would always remember with gratitude, joy, and pride, the splendid manifestation of devotion and loyalty to the Church which they had displayed, and which had made them the admiration of Catholic Ireland. Referring to Sunday newspapers, his Lordship appealed to the people to support only those papers which dealt with their religion and gave them facts in regard to it.

GALWAY BYE-ELECTION

Mr. Thomas McDonogh, Galway, was unanimously selected as Fine Gael candidate for the forthcoming Co. Galway bye-election at a Convention held in Galway, on Saturday. The candidate is a brother of the late Mr. Martin McDonogh, T.D., whose death caused the present vacancy. He is a well-known Galway and West of Ireland business man. Mr. Palk Hogan, T.D., ex-Minister for Agriculture, addressing the delegates said the opposition to the Government was growing in the country. Up to a year ago, there was a large number of people who thought the country had plenty of funds to draw on, but they now realised that the country was on the downward path. The people now realised that the resources of the country were going, and all the spurious enthusiasm was going too. He thought the results of the two bye-elections would be big set-backs to the Government. "No amount of propaganda can get rid of the fact that this country is going towards bankruptcy," he declared. "Bankruptcy will certainly come, and perhaps quicker than most people think, unless there is a change." It was a bad day when the Government had to impose taxation on the poor man's necessities, but it was better to do that and face up to it than let the country go bankrupt. It showed that the Government were learning. If they really wanted to learn Fine Gael would help them. Let them learn that they must have a foreign market for the country's produce or the farmer would go bankrupt, and all the beet and wheat and doles would not prevent that. Let them learn that the country was more important than the reputation of the Fianna Fail Party. The Fianna Fail Government had ruined the agricultural industry and tried to replace it with "toy factories in back lanes," said Mr. John Finlay, T.D., at Kilmorrah. About a fortnight ago 87 seized cattle were sold in Fermoy by the sheriff for £90, but they were traced to Belfast, where their owners saw them sold for £722 or a profit of £7 5s. per head.

CUCHULLAINN
Greatest of Ireland's Legendary Heroes

The qualities for which the ancient writers praise him include beauty and symmetry of person, a powerful physique, great valour, the gift of wisdom and eloquence, skill in horsemanship and in chess-playing. While yet a mere boy Cuchullainn left his home in Dun Dealgan (Dundalk) and set out for the North to undergo training as a warrior. His first memorable feat was the killing of a powerful hound belonging to Culann the Smith. As a result of this encounter, the youth who was hitherto called Setanta, received the title by which he is remembered to this day—Cuchullainn or the hound of Culann. Cuchullainn figures prominently in the famous story of the "Tain." On account of a dispute over the brown bull of Cuailgne, said to be the finest in the land, the famous Queen Maeve led a great army of Connacht men into Ulster. Single handed Cuchullainn defended the gateway to the North at a small river, the Dee, in Co. Louth. Day after day Maeve's picked warriors came forward to do combat with the hero, but as often were they vanquished. Cuchullainn's most famous encounter was that which he had unwillingly to fight with his great friend Ferdiad, who was in Maeve's army. After several days of combat the duel ended in the slaying of Ferdiad. Great was the grief of Cuchullainn: "Compared with this," he mourned, "every other fight I fought till now was play and sport." The beauty and nobility of Cuchullainn's character, as the old historians describe it, is proof that even in pagan times our forefathers had a lofty conception of the chivalrous and the heroic. In Cuchullainn they had a worthy figure of National Pride.

KILMATHOMAS NEWS.

The news of the death of Miss Teresa MacDonald, Johnswell, Co. Kilkenny, which occurred recently following a brief illness, and at a very early age, came as a great shock to the people of Kilmathomas, where she had passed the best part of the past decade of years, the while a valued member of the staff of Miss C. Flynn's drapery establishment, Main street. She was a most estimable young lady, and was a general favourite of all classes locally. The deepest sympathy is extended to her bereaved relatives.—R.I.P.

JUST AN INCH ANENT GRAVEYARDS—

Time and again the utterly and completely neglected condition of graveyards here and there throughout the country has been brought before the public, but little has been done to remedy the neglect. In many places there are spots where the greatest chaos and disorder exist, and the last resting place of the departed ones is hidden away beneath a tangle of briars and wild vegetation. A little attention and united effort would make those places worthy of being viewed by the stranger. In other lands, where even religion borders on disbelief, they are the objects of the greatest care and attention. Here in Ireland they should be doubly so, and a late movement is somewhat improving their appearance.

UNSALTED BUTTER—

Eightpence per lb. was the top price paid for fresh farm butter at the Kilmac market of this week. "Of course the supplies are not nearly as large as formerly, but the quality of the butter taken here weekly is always of the very highest grade."

DEATH OF MR. M. HOGAN—

Fortified by the rites of Holy Church Mr. Martin Hogan, Kilmacrossan, passed away last week, after a protracted illness and in the fullness of his years. A most estimable and respectable neighbour, he was held in the highest regard by all who knew him, and widespread sympathy is tendered to the members of his family and other immediate relatives. On Thursday evening of last week the remains were conveyed to the Parish Church, Kilmacrossan. Next morning Masses were offered up for the happy repose of his soul in the presence of a very large congregation, and interment was made afterwards in the adjoining cemetery. Very Rev. W. Kehoe, P.P., Kilmacrossan, recited the last prayers at the graveside, assisted by Rev. J. Harty, C.C. do.—R.I.P.

DEATH OF MRS. LONERGAN—

Her numerous friends on all sides will learn with keen regret of the demise of Mrs. M. Lonergan, which happened at the residence of her son, Mr. Edmund Lonergan, farmer, Carrigeen, Kilmathomas, on the 24th ult., after a comparatively lengthy illness, which she bore with true Christian courage and cheerfulness to the close. The late Mrs. Lonergan, who was a nonagenarian, was a worthy member of a well-known and highly-esteemed mid-Deise family. She was noted for her unfailing hospitality and charitableness, and possessed a fund of quiet humour which rendered her quite an interesting raconteur and conversationalist, whose reminiscences of the old days were always welcome to those who appreciated what we might now designate as pre-modern history. She was predeceased by her husband and a number of her children, and to the surviving members of her family, and other proximate ties, sincere sympathy is offered in their bereavement. Peace to her soul. The remains, accompanied by a large and representative cortege, were conveyed to the Parish Church, Newtown, wherein they were rested overnight, and after the late Mass on Sunday, the burial took place in the adjoining graveyard, in the presence of innumerable mourners and sympathisers. Very Rev. T. Galvin, P.P., Newtown, read the burial service, assisted by the Rev. J. Hally, C.C., Kilmathomas. (American papers please copy).

SPORTING "SPIFFS"

Handball is now in full swing in the newly-erected, regulation-sized alley at picturesque Stradbally village, and sojourners can have a game along with a "dip" there every day. All true lovers of the court code throughout these parts will support the Tournament organised by the energetic Stradbally Committee, the opening games of which will be played on to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon. A fine list of entries has been received and contests of a "needistic" type are assured. With such sterling sportsmen as Sergeant Bernard Lynch, G.S., Christy Linehan, and the brothers Jimmy and Paddy Whelan at the helm, the turney is sure to be successfully steered from start to finish. The winning pair will each receive a valuable, appropriately designed medal—presented for the competition by Mr. Thomas Lincoln, N.T., Stradbally, who is keenly interested in all native games and pastimes. It will be a pleasure to record the results at each stage as the competition progresses. Who would expect to find a reference to hurling and football in Shakespeare's Sonnets? Many are the mysterious allusions in those poems, many are the mares' nests that have been found in them, many are the explanations of the now inexplicable that have been put forward, and many are the learned and unlearned brains that have battered themselves into stupidity over the secrets enshrined in the sonnets. But none of those literary sleuths seem to have detected an obvious reference to hurling and football in those famous poems. And yet, if you will turn to the sixtieth sonnet, you will find in the fourth line thereof these plain and unmistakable words—"In sequent toil all forwards do contend"—in which "sequent toil" is a poetic putting of that "following up" which forms so large a part of the forward's function, and "contend" admirably represents the struggle between the spearheads of the one side against the defenders of the opposing set—the former fiercely striving to rush through, or indeed over, the latter. How this interesting allusion to our great games can have so long escaped the lynx-eyed scrutiny of our critics is little, if at all, short of a miracle.

Ten to one, however, some of our purblind pundits will say that the context does not warrant a hurling or a football interpretation. But what is a context? The whisk of a wren's web with it! It is only, in this case, the frame, as it were, of the line; but the line itself is the thing. And what does the line distinctly say? It distinctly says,

"In sequent toil all forwards do contend."

It may be that not quite "all forwards" do, as a matter of fact, "contend in sequent toil" as earnestly and as unremittingly as they should. "Art is long," and breath, in some cases, "is short." A space-span of two half-hours is no joke. But when Shakespeare said "all forwards," one feels sure he meant all good forwards, sound in limb and in lung, and full of puff, of pep, and of push. Let this line, therefore, become the motto and the inspiration of our hurling and football XV's.

Kilmathomas were at home to Clonea-Power on Sunday last in a friendly junior hurling mix. Sparkling sunshine and a fairly large crowd favoured the fixture. It was a good robust game. The visitors, exhibiting evidence of more practice, combined better, and the final whistle found them ahead of the homesters by a substantial margin. Mr. Sean Ormond, N.T., Kilmathomas, serenaded to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The victory of Stradbally's senior football fifteen at Dungarvan on last Sabbath Day deeply delighted their many admirers here in the heart of the Decies. Sweet on you, Stradbally!

Kilmac camanists are battering the trail to the Old Boro' to-morrow (Sunday), to engage Eire Og in championship clash. We predict a stern struggle for supremacy. May the best bunch triumph.

WE PUT IT TO YOU—

That the levy of 4d. per lb. on farmers' butter which is altogether apart from the Budget taxation, will constitute a heavier hardship on poor households than even the similar tax placed on tea—

That to the one lb. of tea used in the average family from 3 to 4 lbs. of butter is regarded as the complement needed, no matter how sparingly the bean-tithe supervises its consumption—

That an increase in the price of bread will be made very soon, though no notification of such increase has been given so far—

That the average housewife calculates that the increased prices for household requisites will mean an addition to her household bill by from 3/- to 4/- weekly—

That the tenants of labourers' cottages ought to be encouraged to go in for the growing of more vegetables, realising that in future there will be a better demand for them owing to the stiff tariff imposed on the imported types—

That the sowing of onions should be particularly encouraged as a paying proposition—

That the County Agricultural Committee ought to be able to secure a subsidy from the Department of Agriculture for supplying the necessary seeds to labourers holding cottages and plots—

That you never saw a blind man smoking—

That the Belle of Bonmahon walks to inaudible music—

That love is the turbulent emotion which Mid-Waterford's wisest woman has summed up as being the saddest, gladdest, maddest thing that ever befel a human being—

That the eyebrows of the pleasantest personage of the population of Portlao and purileus are fierce little brothers of his mountainous moustache—

That even the affected Kilmeaden maiden who is known to "italicize" her smiles knows enough arithmetic to put two and two together and make a song about it—

That many a Fenor female who can't add can certainly distract—

AND—

That the comely Comeragh Valley colleen whose hair is laid out like a public park has it that if you can't fall in love there is something wrong with you, and you should see a psychoanalyst without delay.

THE FAIR—

Kilmathomas May fair, held on Tuesday, was somewhat below the average in point of supply. There was good demand but no advance in prices.

A CHARMING CLIFF—

The cliff above Stradbally Cove is an ideal spot to stretch one's limbs upon under the sheen of summer skies. Just linger thereon a little while any of these fine days, and you will be with us in voting it a sublime site, for memory to sniff.

KILL PLAYERS' VISIT—

On Sunday night last, the highly-talented members of the Kill Amateur Dramatic Class faultlessly staged a lively 3-act comedy at Messrs. Flahavan's Hall, Kilmathomas, in aid of the Newtown-Kill parish debt. All present whole-heartedly enjoyed the piece in which Miss Kathleen Brett and Messrs. John Joe Walsh, Michael Morrissey and Jeremiah Cooney held principal roles. Between the acts, choice concertial items were given by members of the Class, and the artistes concerned received rousing plaudits for their respective tip-top turns. That fine American recitation, "The Face On The Bar-room Floor," stirringly delivered by Mr. J. McGarry, was a feature of the unforgettable entertainment. Mr. Patrick Barron announced the concert numbers.

"THE NEW GOSSON"—

Co. Antrim playwright George Shiels's side-splitting three-act comedy bearing the above title, was again played to a packed house at Leamybrien Hall on Sunday night, by the peerless Kilrossanty Players, in aid of a laudable parochial purpose. Overflow audiences in the same hall on three successive Sunday nights speak volumes for the histrionic talent displayed by the really brilliant cast.

The players—good luck to them!—were:—The Misses Madge Power, Hannah Walsh, Hannah Power and Kitty Ryan and Messrs. John Drohan, Monnie Dee, Peter O'Connor, James Dunphy, and Joseph Blevins. So thoroughly did the audience enjoy the production that they frequently interrupted by applauding, and this of itself constituted a very high tribute to an excellent play perfectly produced. In conjunction with the comedy, a select concert was capitally contributed to by Miss Ciss Walsh, Mr. Berchmans Poyer, Mr. John Drohan (songs); Mr. Jeremiah Halpin (hornpipe and double-jig); and Master James Fleming (series of Irish airs on violin). Miss Eily Power (piano) played the vocal accompaniments magnificently. Mr. Patrick Kirwan was a competent M.C. The notably sociable gentleman in charge of the Kilrossanty Amateur Dramatists, was accorded a great ovation when he came forward to thank the audience for their attendance in such large numbers and for their kind appreciation of the entire programme. On announcing that the Players would present another play by Mr. Shiels later on in the year, there was a further storm of applause. A call for three cheers for the speaker was lustily responded to.

MAY PROCESSIONS—

Very Rev. T. Galvin, P.P., and Rev. J. Hally, C.C., headed the annual May Procession in honour of Our Blessed Lady, which took place in the beautifully laid out grounds of the Kilmathomas Convent of Mercy, on Sunday evening last. The procession was one of the largest for many years and was a truly edifying spectacle. When the processionists returned to the Convent Church, Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was imparted, bringing the august function to a close.

The May Procession of the parishioners of Stradbally, held on Thursday (Feast of the Ascension), was of imposing dimensions and was a strikingly impressive display of public devotion to the Queen of Heaven. Very Rev. J. Murphy, P.P., and Rev. P. O'Farrell, C.C., were in attendance.

REQUIEM HIGH MASS.

For the repose of the soul of the late Mrs. Lonergan, Carrigeen, was offered up in the Parish Church, Newtown, on Monday morning, in the presence of a very large congregation.

TO YOUR NOTICE—

On to-morrow (Sunday) night, a "45" Card Drive and Ceilidhe will be brought off at Newtown Schoolhouse, in aid of the Newtown and Kill parochial debt. The winners of the Drive will receive handsome prizes. A pleasant time is in store for all patrons. Be there with the rest!

STRADBALLY DRAMATIC AND CHORAL CLASSES—

It is pleasing to record that the above excellent classes have accepted an invitation to repeat—at the comfortable commodious Hall attached to Mrs. Monahan's well-appointed Hotel, at Ocean View, Clonea, Dungarvan, on to-morrow (Sunday) night—the grand variety entertainment that attracted overflow audiences to Stradbally Convent Schools on three different dates towards the end of April. The bill of fare will include Kinsale playwright J. Bernard McCarthy's hilarious 3-act comedy, "The Able Dealer," the screamingly funny farcical sketch, "The Black Bachelor," a "dumb Show" piece displaying "doings" in an hospital which are sure to excite irrepressible laughter; choruses, solos, duets, sparkling dialogues, recitations and masterly musical selections—a rare feast for all to enjoy. Never let it be said that you missed this "tonic" treat! A son of song and story famed "Knocknagow," who is one of Nature's own gentlemen, is in charge of the Classes. The proceeds of the entertainment will be solely devoted to further

RADIO STATION RACECOURSE UP-TO-DATE WIRELESS

A man who, according to a police statement, was carrying a portable directional wireless transmitting set which he could operate from his pocket, was arrested on Roschill racecourse near Sydney.

Experts declared that the transmitter seized was the first of its kind they had ever seen, and that it was probably the first occasion in racing history that such an intricate and successful method had been evolved by which information from the betting ring could be sent to people outside the ground.

Police allege that the unique wireless set could be employed to transmit the fluctuations of the betting market and the amount of investments on individual horses to a receiving station nearby.

It was realised that a portable wireless was being used, and it was decided to construct an extraordinarily sensitive set to detect the supposed illegal station. For three months technical experts worked at the task of perfecting an elaborate portable detector.

About 40 police, radio officers, and officials participated in the final test of the instrument at Roschill. A wireless technical expert strapped the apparatus around his body and wandered among the spectators at the racecourse, tuning in to the station.

By the varying strength of the signals he determined that it was a directional transmitting set, and notified his companions.

The increasing strength of the signals brought the official detector in the vicinity of the betting ring, and at an agreed signal a man was seized by the police. A portable set, it is alleged was found strapped to the man's body and batteries and other essential parts were ingeniously concealed in his pockets.

WATERFORD SCENE

COUNCILLOR ASKED TO LEAVE MEETING.

There was a heated scene between two members of Waterford Corporation at a meeting of Waterford Public Assistance Committee.

When Mr. P. O'Halloran, T.C., had been informed that, not being a member of the Committee he would have to leave, and had refused to do so, Ald. James O'Donovan (the Chairman) declared that he personally objected to the Councillor's presence.

When Commissioner Moynihan supported the Secretary's statement, Mr. O'Halloran asked him whom he represented, and when the Commissioner replied, "The people of County Waterford," Mr. O'Halloran retorted that he represented the City and would not be "coddled."

After some further exchanges, Mr. O'Halloran left the boardroom; declaring he would see the matter further. He added that he came there to protest against the demolition of existing hospital buildings at John's Hill and the erection of a new hospital on the same site.

DEATH AFTER FRIGHT

Mrs. Elizabeth Heffernan, of Tulla, Emly, Tipperary, collapsed and died at her home.

She had arrived home in an exhausted and excited condition after walking through a severe thunderstorm from a farm half-a-mile distant, where she was employed.

SHOT HIS WIFE DEAD

Because his wife refused to give him something to eat a 63-year-old porter of the Ile Seguin (on the Seine) shot his wife dead.

The tragedy occurred during a quarrel. The wife hit her husband with a bottle, and it is alleged he then got his gun and shot her. Afterwards he leaped into the river, but was dragged out by neighbours.

BY-ELECTION WRITS ISSUED

POLLING ON JUNE 17.

Writs for the holding of by-elections in County Dublin and County Galway were issued.

Nomination day will be June 6, and polling will take place on Monday, June 17.

The election in Galway is regarded as the first big test of the Government's policy since Mr. de Valera came into office.

The Dublin election is expected to be won by Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., the U.I.P. candidate. County Dublin is one of Mr. Cosgrave's greatest strongholds.

Senator Connolly, Minister for Lands, is the likely Government Party candidate for Galway.

SHOCK FOR GIRL YOUNG MAN COLLAPSES IN HER PRESENCE.

While in the company of a girl friend about 5 o'clock last Sunday evening, a young man named David Loneragan, 45 years of Ballydonagh, Ballymacarbray, suddenly collapsed and died.

At an inquest into the circumstances of his death held by Dr. McCarthy, Coroner, Dungarvan, evidence was given by North Gleeson, the dead man's companion, who speaking under stress of deep emotion, said she met the deceased by appointment at Kilmanahan. After they had been talking about a quarter of an hour, the deceased gave a couple of sighs and expired in a short time despite her efforts to revive him. A verdict that death was due to heart failure was returned and sympathy was expressed with Miss Gleeson and the relatives of the deceased.

We regret to announce the death of Miss Nano Walsh, which occurred at her residence Friary street, on Saturday last after a protracted illness and fortified by the rites of the Holy Church. The deceased belonged to a most respected local family, and was sister of Mr. Thomas Walsh, S.S.O. She was held in the highest esteem by all and her death is deeply regretted. On Sunday evening her remains were removed to the Parish Church, the cortege being most representative. On Monday the interment took place in the adjoining burial ground in the presence of a large gathering of her family, relatives, friends and the general public.—R.I.P.

DUNGARVAN'S OLDEST WOMAN PASSES AWAY.

Mrs. Mary Quann, Barrack street, has passed to her eternal reward at the venerable age of 100 years. She was possibly the oldest woman in the town and was hale and hearty to the last. All her long life she was engaged in the Fish Business and could tell some interesting tales of the days when Dungarvan Hake was famous. A big cortege followed her remains to Abbeyside, where the interment took place.—R.I.P.

LATE MISS FLYNN, KNOCKMACROOHA.

On Sunday last, Miss Kate Flynn, Knockmacrooha, died at the Hospital, Dungarvan. Her remains were removed to Modelgrove where the interment took place.—R.I.P.

A MEAT CANNING FACTORY.

According to Mr. Daly, T.D., at the Kerry Co. Committee of Agriculture, the experts had turned down the suggestion of having a meat canning factory for Kerry, and he understood that Waterford had been definitely selected as the centre.

TESTING WATER MAINS.

Dungarvan Urban Council have decided in accordance with the recommendations of Messrs. Delap and Waller, Engineers, to carry out the work of testing the water mains under the supervision of the Council's employees. This will be most valuable information, and well worth the cost. We would also like to have an inspection for wastage of water at the reservoir, if any, made by our own Engineer; also to have the Kiladangan supply attended to. If properly utilised and regulated, there should be an ample water supply in our two existing schemes to supply the needs of the town at all levels. At present it would appear there is a flaw somewhere. The sooner that is discovered the better.

WAS IT A MURDER?

The times were bad and the farmer decided to drown himself as a protest. He asked his wife to throw him into the river and she finally agreed. In order that she might give him a good push into the deep water he told her to go back some 20 yards and take a run at him down hill while he stood on the bank of the river. She did, but just as she was coming at full speed to give him the push he side-stepped and she fell into the water and was drowned. That happened in Rumania.

DUNGARVAN GOLF CLUB.

The annual general meeting of the Dungarvan Golf Club, was held in the Magistrate's Room, Courthouse, Dungarvan on 22nd of May, and was very largely attended. Mr. E. A. Ryan, solicitor, presided. The minutes of the last meeting were read and signed and the Auditor's Report put to the meeting and passed. Mr. Ryan stated the Auditor's Report showed that the Club's finances were now taking a more satisfactory turn and the Club seemed to be in a flourishing condition. Membership had increased considerably, and he was glad to be able to say that the course had been improved to such an extent that the members could be proud of it. The election of Officers and Committee resulted as follows:—President—Mr. E. A. Ryan, State Solicitor; Vice-Presidents—Rev. M. F. Heane, C.C., Rev. J. Murphy, C.C., and Mr. S. J. Moynihan, County Commissioner; Captain—Mr. J. B. Cooke; Hon. Secs.—Messrs. J. F. Lynch, and A. R. Farrell, solicitor; Hon. Town Sec.—Mr. E. Fitzgerald; Hon. Treas.—Mr. B. Mulcahy, Committee—Messrs. J. Lanigan, J. Cartwright, M. Foley, J. O'Dwyer, and Dr. McCarthy. Tribute was paid by Mr. Ryan to the excellent work of the groundsman, P. Carleton, on the course.

DUNGARVAN SHOW—FIXTURE POSTPONED.

At a special meeting of the Committee of the above on Thursday evening, Mr. A. Hunt, President, in the Chair. There were also present—Messrs. P. B. Sheridan, S. J. Power, N. Fitzgerald, J. A. Lynch, J. J. Crotty, N. Connors, T. F. Lynch, N. Morrissey, P. A. Walsh, D. Dempsey, and J. Lynch, Secretary. The Secretary stated that Mrs. Wilson, Anner Castle, Clonmel, had given the Committee a cup to replace the Farmers Cup, which she had won out and a resolution of thanks was tendered to her. The principal business of the meeting was consideration of the question of holding the Annual Show on July, 11th., as grave doubts were felt if in the present depressed state of the country it could be made a success. All the members present having frankly discussed the holding of the Show under present conditions and the pros and cons having been duly weighed, the Committee were unanimous it would not be feasible to go ahead at present and agreed to postpone the fixture to September when if times have improved the Show will be held with full strength and amid the applause of the farming community without whose unstinted support in the past it could never have reached such prosperity and popularity.

NO DANGER In the Daily on Wednesday the President said there had been some reports that seemed to suggest that this country was ready to give a foreign Power a means to attack Britain. "I can say," said President de Valera, "that as long as this Government are in office, and I think I can say any other Government, our territory will never be permitted to be used as a basis of attack on Britain. We are going to get our own independence from Britain, and we are not going to allow our territory under any conditions whatever to be made use of by any foreign Power as the basis of an attack on Great Britain.

The New Taxes

DENONCED BY MR. MacDERMOTT, T.D.

Caucic criticism of the general policy of the Fianna Fail Government and illuminating comments on the recent Budget proposals, were features of a speech delivered at Newcastle-west by Mr. F. MacDermot, T.D. The Budget, Mr. MacDermot said had been a bit of an eye-opener for the followers of Fianna Fail and Labour, and it was amusing to hear the gentlemen who claimed to represent Labour in the Dail standing up and saying that Labour had never expected to see Fianna Fail bring in a Budget which put a tax on all the necessities of the people's meals.

Mr. MacDermot was addressing representatives of the Fine Gael Branches of the West Limerick district, who received his and the other speeches delivered with pronounced enthusiasm. He said he was not a person who believed in destructive criticism, but rather that one had got to be constructive. He represented the National Executive of the United Ireland Party—a party which existed with its main object being the establishment of a united Ireland enjoying national sovereignty founded on peace and goodwill, experiencing prosperity at home and prestige abroad, which welcomed the contributions of all its citizens to the common stock; which sought to reconcile racial and religious differences; which sought to obliterate the memory of past dissensions, in the words of Wolfe Tone, and there by enable this nation to grow to full stature. He believed in idealism, and he believed in the ideal that imposed certain obligations on them to dedicate themselves to its fulfilment. They had the obligation of not being bitter and violent, small and mean, and of not being narrow and selfish, and of cherishing justice and law and order; of being willing to go out to work themselves to build up their country and to achieve its rightful destiny.

Taking the economic side of the country's affairs at present, said Mr. MacDermot, the first thing that enabled them to form any judgment was their own personal experience. Were they better off to-day than they were four years ago? Did they find it easier to-day to make a decent living for themselves and their children, and did they find they got better prices for their cattle and other produce as compared with those of four years ago? Was the price of land better? Some Ministers very often slung statistics at their heads, but one item of the statistics they didn't seem to think of at all was that of the principal source of wealth of this country. The gold mines of South Africa were no more surely the principal source of wealth to that country, nor was the wool of Australia to Australia than the land was the principal source of wealth to this country. There was no better proof of whether this country was going up or down than to enquire whether its fundamental source of wealth, the land, was more valuable now than at the time the present Government came into office. Would it not be reasonable to say that the land of this country had fallen in value, in that period, by something like forty per cent. That would be a moderate computation, and that, in spite of the fact that the Government were buying more land than ever for distribution among the people.

The external trade of the country was another very important item in their economy. It was used as an index by every other country in the world to judge how it was getting along. The volume of Ireland's overseas trade had fallen by one-third in value since the present Government took over office. Their exports had been halved. Orators like Mr. Lemass pretended it did not matter whether their external trade was big or small. "That is all nonsense," said the speaker. "There is one feature of external trade and no man can pretend it doesn't matter, and that is what is known as a balanced trade—that is to say, whether the figures show that a country is gaining or losing in the payments between ourselves and other countries. The situation is that whereas in the last year of Cumann na nGaedheal there was a decided volume of overseas trade to the extent of about 85 millions, and our adverse trade balance of slightly over 12 millions, to-day the total volume of such trade is, in fact, about 57 millions and the adverse balance has increased to over 20 millions. You'd expect that when the total volume of trade would sink that the adverse balance would sink in proportion from 12 to some 8 millions. Instead of that it has gone up steadily and is going up still, and there is nothing to suggest that it won't continue upwards as long as the present Government are in power."

He proceeded to refer to the position of employment, and said the Government had put an enormous tariff in the hope of creating employment at home. Notwithstanding all that, and notwithstanding the fact that before they came into office they said tariffs alone would be sufficient to cure the unemployment evil, there was no one who was not aware that unemployment was at least just as bad now as when Fianna Fail took over the Government of the country. Their own allies, the Labour Party, did not deny that the position was as bad and they were sometimes so incautious as to admit that it was worse.

Dealing with the Budget, Mr. MacDermot said it was an eye-opener for the followers of Fianna Fail and of the Labour Party. It was amusing to hear the gentlemen who claimed to represent Labour in the Dail, saying they never expected to see Fianna Fail bring in a Budget like this, putting taxes on all the necessities of the people's meals. "They have had to meet a lot of unexpected turns under the Fianna Fail policy," he went on, "this is by no means the first. A great many never expected to see Fianna Fail bring back the Public Safety Act into operation. A great many expected that Fianna Fail was going to reorganise the public services, to reduce the number of officials, and to save so much money. Instead of that they did just the contrary. Anybody who took Fianna Fail's statement literally before they came into office, and who had any feelings of shame, his hair would be standing straight on end permanently from surprise since they came into office. This Budget is one of the surprises. It was only a few weeks before they brought it in that they announced they were going to have a comfortable surplus. A surplus means that if you levy taxation over a certain period, you are going to have more than enough money to pay expenses. You can see for yourselves the sort of surplus they have, because instead of leaving taxation as it is, they are putting on a great deal more, and it is clear that instead of having a surplus they have a deficit.

Fianna Fail enthusiasts ought to try to grasp the idea that their much-admired Government has, in fact, produced a very serious deficit, and that all this new taxation is designed to make up that deficit. This new Budget raises roughly one million more money by way of taxation, and it also proposed to raise a lot more money by borrowing. Some of the items for which borrowing is proposed are more or less justifiable, but these are small items. The big item for which they are borrowing is certainly not one for which they are entitled to do so, and that is the payment of bounties. They borrowed one and a half millions towards bounties last year, and they are borrowing £1,350,000 in the coming year. They are adding this sum to the Irish national debt that will have to be shouldered by your children coming after you. Their excuse for doing that and not raising the money by taxation, is that bounties are something exceptional and transitory and won't go on for ever. How do we know the bounties won't go on for ever, what is going to stop them? So far from stopping bounties, it was only the other day that they made a coal-cattle agreement, under which the English graciously consented to let us send more cattle than we were sending, and to pay more tariffs than we were paying in payment of those annuities which Mr. de Valera says he is not paying, and that he is keeping in this country. Does that look as if the Government had any intention of suspending the bounties. As long as the economic war goes on the bounties will have to go on, and the Government have showed no inclination to settle the economic war. They may think that a Labour Government will come into office in England in the next general election. Personally, I don't think it will. But even supposing that it does, the best they can hope for from such a Labour Government is that they will agree to have an international arbitration tribunal set up, with a chairman from outside the Commonwealth instead of inside it. Certainly this Government of ours has no right to take it for granted either that such a tribunal will be given by a possible English Labour Government, or, if one is given, that it will necessarily decide in their favour. Because if it should decide against Mr. de Valera's wishes, or even half way against him would not he have to pay the annuities every year—as much as, or more than, the £1,350,000 which he is at present borrowing towards the payment of bounties."

Mr. MacDermot then dealt in some detail with the new taxes under the Budget, and with the reasons why the Government had to fall back on the necessities of the breakfast table. He went on to deal with the relative positions of the North and South, and from this phase of his speech passed on to a consideration of the present position of agriculture. "We ought get rid of the idea," he said, "that a flourishing livestock trade means a decline in our population. It means nothing of the sort. The decline in population that did take place in this country would have been far greater were it not for our livestock trade, and if this is destroyed in Ireland the first result will be to reduce the people engaged in that trade, and, by degrees to lower the standard of living and, God knows the standard of living in Ireland is none too high as it is. The logical conclusion would be a new decline in population, because the people won't be able either to afford to marry or to bring up children under these conditions."

He held no brief for the I.R.A., Mr. MacDermot said, but the things for which members of the I.R.A. were spending terms in prison at present were the same things that Mr. de Valera was advising everybody to do a few years ago. On the question of declaring a Republic, he likened Mr. de Valera to a shivering bather, standing on the brink of the water, putting in his toe to test if it was cold. It was too ridiculous for words. Organisation was necessary in the ranks of the U.I.P. to show the people that Mr. de Valera's fight was nothing but a sham fight, and that his whole national position was a sham position built up on humbug.

CAPPOQUIN DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Mr. G. P. Farrell, B.L.)

CHARGE OF DANGEROUS DRIVING

Supt. Quinlan, Lismore, summoned John H. M. Mulcahy, Rossmore, Newcastle, for having driven a motor car in a dangerous manner on April 20th and John Flynn, Tournarahan, Mellery, was summoned for having driven a donkey and cart in a dangerous manner on the same occasion as a result of which a collision occurred between the two vehicles.

Mr. A. R. Farrell, solr., Dungarvan, appeared for the first defendant, but Flynn was not professionally represented. Sergt. Dalton, Cappoquin, in reply to the Supt., stated that on April 20th a report was received at the barrack of a motor accident on the road at Lyre East, and he immediately proceeded to the scene accompanied by Guard Moloney. The surface of the road was pretty wet at the time, and he clearly saw the tracks of the wheels of the motor car and the donkey cart at the point of contact. There was a double bend on the road near that point and also an incline, and the motor car appeared to have been coming down the hill from the Newcastle direction while the donkey cart was proceeding uphill from the direction of Cappoquin.

From the tracks which he saw he was satisfied that the motor car had been travelling on its proper side of the road while the donkey cart was on its wrong side, but apparently the driver of the latter had made an attempt to cross over to his proper side before the collision occurred. There was a view of 30 yards from the point where the motor came round the bend and he found traces on the road to prove that the brakes had been applied to the motor car within 28ft. of the point of contact and that the car had apparently skidded on the wet road. He found the front side lamp on the motor car broken, this having been apparently caused by a long scantling which projected over the front of the donkey cart. The road was 21 feet wide at that point.

In reply to Mr. Farrell, solr., witness said it was Mr. Mulcahy who first reported the matter at the barrack, and when he questioned Flynn about the accident on the spot he said he had nothing to say beyond admitting that he was on the wrong side of the road.

Guard Thorne, Cappoquin, gave evidence of a statement made by Mr. Mulcahy at the barrack in which he described how the donkey cart was on the wrong side of the road, and as he was approaching, Flynn tried to pull the donkey and cart to the opposite side which was the cause of the collision.

Mr. Mulcahy added that Flynn had admitted being on the wrong side of the road and said—"I am only a poor man, sure you won't go against me."

Guard Moloney, Cappoquin, said that on April 21st John Flynn came to the barrack and made a statement, which was now read by the Supt.

In this Flynn stated that he had 16 scantlings 11 feet long on the cart at the time of the accident and they were projecting about one foot over the end of the cart. His donkey and cart were on the wrong side of the road, while he was walking on the opposite side, and when he saw the motor approaching him he tried to pull over to his proper side, but was too late and some of the scantling struck the motor car.

Mr. Farrell, solr., having briefly cross-examined the witness, said it was only fair to say that Mr. Flynn had fully paid up for any damage done to Mr. Mulcahy's motor car, and he submitted that there was no case proved against his client. The Justice said it was obvious that the whole trouble was caused through the driver of the donkey and cart being on the wrong side of the road, and as Mr. Mulcahy was not to blame in any way, he dismissed the charge against him.

Owing to the manner in which Flynn had honestly admitted his mistake, and had compensated the owner of the motor car for any damage done he would dismiss the case against him with a caution that he should be more careful in future.

Larceny Of Mangolds

Supt. Quinlan, Lismore, charged Patrick Hogan, of no fixed abode, with the larceny of a quantity of mangolds, the property of James Barry, Tourin, on March 5th.

A young lad named John Barry, said his father had a pit of mangolds on his land beside the roadside and on March 5th as he was drawing some of them from the pit a man like the defendant asked him for some of the mangolds, which he refused to give him, and the man then took a bag of them value for about 1/-.

There was a further charge against the same defendant and also against Michael Hogan, and John Connors, for having stolen a further quantity of mangolds from James Barry, Tourin, on March 31st.

Patrick Barry, aged 12 years, said he was playing football with other boys on the date in question when the three defendants came along and took about half a load of mangolds from his father's pit, value for about 4/-.

James Barry, father of the last witness, said he had a pit of mangolds inside the wall and there were about 4 or 5 cwts. of them taken, value about 1/- per cwt.

Sergt. Dalton, Cappoquin, said that he received a complaint on March 31st about the larceny of the mangolds and went to investigate the matter, accompanied by Guards Moloney and Mahony. He went to the camp where the defendants were living in a caravan and while they were searching the place Guard Moloney found some portions of mangolds lying about. Witness later arrested the three defendants when they made statements admitting that they had taken only a few mangolds for the horse.

Patk. Hogan, now made a statement to the same effect, but Michael Hogan denied having taken any mangolds on the occasion. Having heard further evidence, the Justice convicted Patk. Hogan, on the first charge relating to March 5th, and fined him 1/- and ordered him to pay 1/- compensation. On the second charge he fined Patk. Hogan 1/- and 2/- compensation, 5/- in all. He dismissed the case against Michael Hogan, but in the case against John Connors he fined him 1/- and ordered him to pay 2/- compensation, which defendant immediately paid.

The Justice asked if the other defendant required time to pay his fine but Sergt. Dalton said he held 30/- belonging to him since his arrest, and the Justice then ordered the amount of the fines and compensation to be deducted from this sum, and the balance handed back to Hogan, which was accordingly done.

Rate Defaulters

Mr. James Hartly, Rate Collector, summoned two local farmers for arrears of rates due to the Waterford Co. Council.

In the first case Mr. Hartly said the amount had since been paid, less 7/- for costs and a decree for 7/- was then granted.

In the second case, in which the sum of over £55 was involved, the defendant asked for time as he had some cattle to sell at the June Fair in Dungarvan.

The Justice—What do you say to this, Mr. Hartly?

Mr. Hartly—Well, sir, the rate collectors are in a very awkward position, as we are being pressed by the Commissioner to have all our Rate Books closed by the end of May.

On defendant promising to pay £20 after the Dungarvan Fair, and the balance in August, a decree was granted with a stay until August, with 10/- costs against the defendant.

Unlicensed Dogs

A large number of defendants were fined 5/- each for having unlicensed dogs in their possession.

The complainants being Guards Mahony, Moloney and Tormley, Cappoquin, and Guard Coyle, Villierstown.

SEIZED CATTLE

FERMOY SALE

The seventh sale of cattle seized for the non-payment of land annuities took place in the pound of the old Fermoy military barracks, on Monday. The first lot put up were two horses 37 sheep and 24 lambs, seized from Daniel Cashman, Francistown, Castlelyons, on foot of a decree and expenses totalling £33 10s. 10d. The auctioneer refused a request from Mr. Cashman that the horses be sold separately, and invited bids for the entire lot. The only bid forthcoming was from a buyer who gave his name as "Mr. Cash," and he purchased the lot with his first offer of £15. The same man purchased 14 head of cattle, seized from Denis Twomey, Glanville, on foot of a debt of £35 14s., for £15, and 19 head of cattle seized from Wm. J. Fahy, Desertmore, Ovens, on foot of a debt of £40 9s. 10d., for £20.

RETREAT AT YOUGHAL

The Annual fortnight's retreat for the members of the Confraternities of the Holy Family and for the people of the parish in general, came to a highly successful conclusion in the Parish Church, Youghal, on Sunday evening. It was conducted by Rev. Fathers Kelly and Burke, C.S.S.R. who laboured with an unceasing zeal which was rewarded by a most edifying response by the parishioners. The first week was devoted to the women and the second week to the men. Large congregations attended regularly at the morning Masses and lectures, and at the evening devotions and sermons. During the week the good fathers, assisted by the local priests, were engaged hearing confessions, with the result that the General Communions on both Sunday mornings set up new records furnishing ample proof of the efficacy of the Missioners' labours. The Church was packed at the Solemn closing ceremonies which included solemn renewal of baptismal vows, Papal Blessing. After the final Benediction the hymn "Faith Of Our Fathers," was sung.
