Acknowledgments Mr. T. Casey, wrote acknowledging re-solution of sympathy passed to him by the Council on the death of his mother.

Clerk of Works Mr. Brady, B.E., wrote, stating that he is prepared to take up the position of Clerk of Works when required by the Council. Mr. Dahill asked if anyone knew when the contractor would start work. B.S.—He will be taking on some men on Monday cleaning sites, etc.

Payment to Architects

The Minister for Local Government and Public Health wrote regarding copies of Accounts submitted by Messrs. Delap and Waller, Consulting Engineers in connection with work on the Water Scheme. The letter stated that any charges claimed by a Consulting Engineer in respect of special levest'gation undertaken by him as a preliminary to the preparation of contract documents should normally canerge into the fees payable on the basis of approved scales in respect of contract work. In this particular case the Minister notes that the preliminary work was ceived by the Hospitals in the Sweep-exceptionally heavy and in the special stakes to date: jection test're settlement proposed in the Consulting Engineers communication submitted. It is to be clearly understood that this decision is not to be regarded as a precedent for any claim in respect of any future work. The Clerk said there was a letter from Messrs. Delap and Waller which was then read and stated that they are returning forms duly filled up in so far as they are concerned. Form B. was filled in all respect except for the amount of the loan. With regard to the amount the Council should apply for, they regret, they can-not guide the Council as they are unaware of the amounts which the Council will have to insert in Form A. for cost of Mortgage, Land, Architect, Legal Expenses, etc., but in respect of the amount you will have to pay out in the immediate future, apart from the above items in Form A, and Clerk of Works salary. You will have to cover the certificate of (700 for the Contractors, and under the circumstances probably another certifi-

COURT

Held on Wednesday, before Mr. F. J. McCabe, D.J. The Attorney-General prosecuted Thos. Power, 16, The Quay, Waterford, for alleged breaches of the Road Transport Acts of 1933 and 1935 on the 13th and 31st of August last, respectively.
Supt. Dennehy, G.S., Tramore, con-lucted the case for the prosecution, and Mr. R. I. O'Farrell, solt., Waterford, appeared for the defendant.

Replying to the Supt., Guard Thomas Thorpe said that while on duty in the vicinity of Kill on August 13th last he had a conversation with the driver of a lorry who, at his request, produced his driver's licence and insurance paper. The lorry was laden with sand, which the driver said he was carrying from Bonmahon to the lute Factory in Water-ford. He also told witness that the defendant was owner of the lorry.

Supt. Dennehy, informed the Court that Bonmahon was more than 10 miles from the City, and the R.T.A., did not permit of the hiring of a lorry to convey goods or merchandise beyond that distance. Guard O'Connor, gave similar evidence to that of Guard Thorpe, respecting a re-petition of the breaches of the Acts, already named, on August 31st.

Mr. O'Farrell, held his client committed no offence, as the sand belonged to him and was being conveyed in his n nuoted Section 2 of the Act in support of

The Supt. maintained that the sand was for the Jute Factory and, therefore, was not the property of the defendant.

Mr. O'Farrell said it rested with the prosecution to prove that his client carried the said for reward.

D.J.—Yes, the onus rests on the prosecution to prove he was owner. Supt.—There should be something more than a mere statement in Court from

A CANNED HISTORY OF CANNED FOODS

There was practically an unanimous man, made the first food tins. He based vote in favour of having strike notice the pattern on a tea canister (hence the served, to take effect on November 7th. | modern use of the word "can").

Canned foods began to be marketed commercially in 1820. The first foods put quantities as early as the Crimean War. | • • • • here is still in existence a tin of bacon and vegetables packed by an Irish firm CLOVER BRAND SAUSAGES for the troops in 1885. Another tin of the same period was opened recently and the contents found to be perfectly good. Canned foods have since been used in-Canned foods have since been used invariably in military and other expeditions. Parry's Arctic expedition of 1824 furnished dramatic evidence of their keeping qualities. Parry made a cache of canned goods which was found eight years later by Sir John Ross. The cans were brought back to England. In 1911 points, seven were later they were were brought back to England. In 1911

—eighty-seven years later—they were opened. The contents—roast and boiled beef, vegetables and soups—were eaten and enjoyed. They were perfectly fresh. Cans of food which Scott took with him on his South Pole expedition in 1910 provided a further example. They too were opened recently and found to be in prime condition.

In the early days of canning tins were nade of iron and coated with tin after made of iron and coated with tin after assembly. They were made mainly by hand and they were very bulky (in those days they made canisters from 4 to 45 lbs. in capacity) and costly. Nevertheless they were of great value and British goods were carried into world trade. In fact they became so well known that people would have no other. SUGAR BEETS AS FEED FOR LIVE STOCK

Investigations in Germany

The importance of the sugar beet as a source of feed for live stock is being seriously investigated in Germany. The crop of leaves and tops alone is estimated at about eight tons per acre, the equivalent of an average meadow. If no sugar is produced, but only high-grade beet slices, the farmer obtains—in addition to the tops and leaves—a feeding product the nutritive value of which is about the same as that of barley. Whether it would pay him to turn out feed slices as well as pay him to turn out feed slices as well as 6 CHINA CUPS & SAUJERS pay him to turn out feed slices as well as sugar would depend upon the price which the former could command.

If a suitable price for feeding slices could be arrived at, it is thought that the area under sugar beet might be easily increased, and if beet products were substituted for imported barley in the feeding of pigs a saving of about 30 million ing of pigs, a saving of about 30 million R.M. in foreign exchange would be effected. The difficulties attendant on the change-over are, of course, recognised; drying plant would have to be erected, and the farmer would have to be induced to adopt the new feeding stuff. Neverthe-less, it is believed that, if all obstacles can be overcome, the increased growing of beet would benefit the land, besides giving employment to the families of many of the smaller farmers. Experiments in Denmark have shown that sugar beets are an excellent feed for cattle, horses and pigs, and that the dry matter in sugar beet is, in some cases, more valuable to milch cows than the dry matter in mangels. The growing interest among farmers in raising sugar beet for feeding purposes is shown by the fact that, while ten years ago the growing of Athy. Limerick, Waterford, Carlow, known in Denmark, the area planted for Carrick-on-Suir, Kilkenny, Nenagh, this purpose in 1934 amounted to 15,750 acres, and in 1935 to 20,250 acres.
