Sept., 10th., 114.

Housing Scheme

The Department notified the issue of seventh instalment of £2,200 on the £50,000 loan for the erection of 139 houses.

Galway's Lane

The letter suggested that the Council lay a new pipe in the old sewer and avoid any further trouble for a long time. A manhole and cover should be placed at the lower end, where the 9-inch pipe recently laid commences. It is possible that concreting of this street may be carried out within a few years, and a new pipe sewer would have to be laid in any event before that work could be done.

The matter was deferred to the quarterly meeting.

(To the Editor "Dungarvan Observer")

Dear Mr. Editor-I wish, through the medium of your valuable paper to protest in the strongest manner possible against the growing practice of our Merchants Business people and Professional Men, in going outside the City and County of Waterford to purchase their Motor cars, Vans. and Lorries, without giving the local Motor Agents the chance of tender-local Motor Agents the chance of tender-local Motor Agents the supply their needs.

I could quote numerous cases of business men and Professional men going outside the County to purchase vehicles although their needs could be quite easily attended to by the local Motor Trade. Suffice it to say that of the 400 vehicles purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post year over 200 of them were purchased in the City and County during the post years are promised to the county during the cou the past year over 200 of them were purchased in other counties thus depriving Waterford trade from benefitting to the extent of approximately £40,000, which if put into circulation here would give a pulses and a genial and attractive manner, he was a particularly warm favourite with all classes, and his passing the provided the greatest sorrow.

welcome fillip to the trade generally.

What is true of the Motoring Trade is also true of the Tailoring Trade, Mineral Water Trade, Printing Trade, Drapery Trade, Bottling Trade, etc., each one of which is suffering the same difficulties that the same difficulties the lack of civic pride amongst the lack of civic pride among the lack of civic pride among the lack of civic pride among the lack of civic pride am was done to remedy these matters. It is time we woke up to ourselves and called a halt to this uncivic habit of going outside the town for goods which can be supplied just as good locally. It is high time that those who get their bread and butter in Waterford should realise that others seek the same existence. The remedy lies with the young men and women of the City and County who, by steadfastly refusing to deal with Firms and Professional men who go outside Waterford to make their purchases, will this teach them to put first things first and to support local labour, purchase local goods, in a word to leave their money where they earn it.

Here's a gem from the well and popularly-known Kilmacthomas poet, Mr.

Thomas H. Brown:

DON'T MIND WHAT PEOPLE SAY

Memories of the Daly Cup, the valuable trophy presented to Cappoquin for a Football Tournament over 30 years ago by Mr. James Daly, Butter Merchant, Cork, were revived last week when the wedding of his grand-daughter took place in the Catholic Church of the President Read Clerkeen Co. Cork Precious Blood, Clogheen, Co. Cork.
The bridegroom was Mr. Richard Mulcahy, Lady's Abbey, Ardfinnan, Co. Tipperary, and the bride was Miss Lilian (Wendy) Biggane, formerly of Sunday's Well, Cork (and now of Nevada, U.S.A.

bridesmaids were the Misses Mona Kearney and Helen Dwyer.

Tall, pretty and graceful, the bride presented an unusually charming picture in a strictly-tailored model gown of ivory peche de soie,, the lily-shaped neck of the dress being new and very becoming.

She wore a veil of old Limerick lace, family possession), which was altered the position since the meeting in the O'Connell Hall, but if a reduction in the number of hours of trading in shops, particularly in the City of Dublin, could be brought about by the establishment of a joint Council, he would be prepared to support the project. He considered that conditions under which shopkeepers are compelled to work sixteen or bell is pushed and one man, acting as leader, inquires of the others: "What'll ye have?"

By the time the bar-tender enters the room the order is ready. It may be "Two bottles, a pint, a port, and two shandies!" or perhaps "Pints all round!" When the drink arrives on a multi-coloured tin tray, the man who of Munster.

he soon got into the Butter Trade, and the hours of closing in the City and country, but the necessity for definite country, but the hours question, between the hours of closing in the City and the hours of closing in the City and the hours of closing hours was manifest. He supported to be a distinction between the hours question the hours question only because of what might be done with regard to the hours question, but because the hours of closing in the City and the hours of closing in the City and the hours question only because of what might be done with regard to the hours question, but because of what he hours question only because of entertaining nature. Seldom is the request refused, when the singer then has the honour of a "call," which means that he can name someone else for "their pleasure."

Soon—too—soon the time flies to closing time, by which each crony has stood each of his pals a round. All are jubillantly happy and are on very best of terms with themselves and all the world. "Time, gentlemen, please?" is the barman's cry, and with one, or maybe two, stowed away in the pocket for the morning, the jovial company breaks up at the pub doorway all expressing the hope that they will meet again "Next Saturday night, same time and place?"

The Chairman, outlining the develop-ments which had led up to the calling of the Conference, stated that at the initial meeting held in the O'Connell Hall on the 18th August it had been decided to bring together representatives of different trade organisations connected with the associations in matters affecting them. The question before the Conference was whether the various associations repre-sented were in favour of such a Joint Council and were prepared to support it.

Mr. J. J. Hart, said that the recent and grand-daughter of Mr. James Daly, Order from the Minister for Industry and Cork.

Mr. John J. Brennan also spoke in Mr. P. J. Conlon said that in his opinion some such form of united action Main Street are now undergoing a complete course of renovation externally, which will materially help to give a brighter and more attractive appearance to this leading thoroughfare.

The people of Cappoquin have always displayed great taste in the matter of keeping their houses clean and bright, and the present improvements are only as the present improvements are only as the present improvements are only as the present improvements.

Mr. Kelly, supporting him, instanced the case of a town in the West of Ireland which had a population of only four hundred and fifty having twenty-eight shops, with two hundred shops within a five-mile radius. He held that unless the Suddenly the door is burst open and a head pops in. Just a suddenly, it disappears and a fading voice is heard numbling "Sorry !" as the door is closed again. Those in the room hardly notice the incident. They know they will not be disturbed by any intruder, for in every bar there is an unwritten law that if you are "in company" no one dare but in on that circle except by invitation. The staff generally add to the comfort of their customers by seeing that the law is observed, and occasionally they have reason to inform such persons that they must keep to themselves or get out.

The toasts on these occasions are uttered more or less unconsciously and are generally couched in the most friendly terms. "Good luck!" or or "Here's huck!" would seem to be the common toast, though now and again a wag will vary the wording (and the meaning!) by saying "Lu'k where it goes!"

Two or three other members of the party having taken their turns to one of the men calling on another for "his pleasure." This means, of course, that the man named is required to sing a song or otherwise give some item of an agong or of the considered and proposed the considered that it wording the constitute of the considered that it who hundred shops within a five made and tradeling registration of shops, about travelling and the attendance included!" the wide of the topics dealt with at a Conference content of the topics dealt with at a Conference conference and retailers were among some of the topics dealt with at a Conference conference conference and retailers and retailers and retailers association of the topics dealt with at a Conference conference conference and retailers and retailers.
