DUNGARVAN URBAN COUNCIL

Mr. M. Morrissey, T.D., Chairman, presided at the weekly meeting of the above on Friday last, other members present were—Messrs. T. McCarthy, V.C., I. I. Crotty and P. Quinn.

Payments.
 Payscale for 1938-9 general, £2-16-6 Harbour, 5000 Co. Council, £1.11 Sewerage and 2,000 Housing were presented and passed.

Repairs to Town Hall.
 A letter from the Department of Local Government dealing with repairs to the Town Hall asked that plans, and any further information as to the necessity for the repairs be forwarded.
 Mr. Crotty—Isn't the plan gone on? Mr. McCarthy—So we are led to believe.
 Clerk—the plan is gone to the Department.
 The letter was referred back to the B. S.

I. N. T. O. Dance.
 The Hall was granted to the local branch of the Irish National Teachers' Organisation for an all-night Dance on Oct. 26th.

The proceeds are in aid of the Widows and Orphans Fund.

Housing Scheme.
 The Clerk of works reported the number of men employed on the housing scheme for the week ended Sept. 24th, was 120.

Sewerage Tank at Shandon.
 Messrs. Delap and Waller, consulting Engineers wrote stating they are quite satisfied that the tank is of ample capacity to hold the sewerage matter, not only from the portion of the town attached, but provision was made to allow for the taking in of a large number of additional houses.

Inspector Under Petroleum Act.
 Sergeant Kelleher was appointed Inspector under the above act.

Late Mrs. Tutty.
 On the proposition of Mr. McCarthy, seconded by the chairman, a resolution of sympathy was passed to the relatives of the late Mrs. Mary Tutty, St. Bridget Street.

Resurfacing Road.
 An application was received from Mr. Bowen, County Surveyor for £16 7s. The cost of resurfacing the water trench in Battery Street.

KILMATHOMAS DISTRICT COURT.

Held before Mr. F. J. McCabe, D.J.
 This being the annual Licensing Session all the publicans' licenses in the Court area were renewed, there being no objection by the Guards.

The usual Exemption Orders entitling publicans to open their premises from 7 o'clock a.m. on the fair mornings of the local monthly fair were also renewed in all cases where application was made for same.

Mr. Michael Hill, Kilmathomas, and Mr. Patrick J. Baldwin, Kill, respectfully, applied for and were granted licenses to hold a number of dances in their halls, under the customary conditions.

Several civil bills were dealt with in the usual way.

A big sheaf of infringements of the Lights Act evoked fine ranging from 2s. to 3s.

Superintendent Walsh, Dungarvan, prosecuted a motorist named John Moloney for driving a Baby Austin at Curabaha level-crossing, near Kilmathomas, without due care and attention on June 10th, last. Defendant was fined £1 and £1 4s. costs, together with an endorsement of the conviction on his license.

Sued by Mr. Commissioner Moynihan (Waterford County Council) for making false representations on application forms for a rebate of rates, a number of local farmers were given the benefit of the P.O.A.

Some few cases were adjourned to the October sitting.

MOUNT MELLERAY ABBEY.

New Church Building Fund.

SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR IN CAPPOQUIN

A Monster Bazaar and Grand Drawing of prizes was opened in the Boathouse Hall, Cappoquin, on last Sunday night in aid of the Building Fund for St. Philomena's new Church and Shrine, now in course of construction at Mount Mellerau Abbey.

The Rev. Father Malachy, O.Cist., Mount Mellerau, presided, and was accompanied by the Rev. T. Dunphy, C.C., Cappoquin. There was an unusual crowd present, and the spacious Hall taxed to its utmost to provide accommodation for all.

Despite the large attendance, the best of order was preserved, and the excellent manner in which all the arrangements were carried out reflected great credit on Mr. M. J. Sargeant, Hon. Sec., while the success of the Bazaar, of which he was the sole organiser, was a striking proof of his great popularity with the public, as well as his wonderful organising ability.

Mr. Sargeant was assisted by a large staff of Lady and Gentlemen helpers who kindly took charge of the various Stalls and Games and other forms of varied a wonderful round of interesting entertainment during the night.

The list of assistants included the following—
 Mrs. M. J. Sargeant, Cappoquin, Mrs. B. Regan, do., Mrs. Nell Spillane, do., Miss M. Kenford, do., Miss Alice Fraher, do., Miss M. Ahearne, do., Miss "Babs" Lacey, do., Miss "Breda" Affane, Mrs. E. Colander, do., Miss B. Morrissey, Affane, who piled a busy trade in the Fancy Stalls, while the other stalls and games were conducted by the following—
 Messrs. Jas. Frazer, Gymnastic Instructor, Mount Mellerau Seminary; J. P. Sheehan, Cork; J. McCarthy, B.A., Cappoquin; M. Mason, do., Willie and Michael Sargeant, do., Jas. Daly, do., Liam Ryan, do., R. Curran, Junr., do., Séamus Brennan, do., G. P. Hely, do., George Russell, do., P. Lacey, do., while the following students from Mount Mellerau Seminary also rendered most valuable assistance—
 Messrs. Ignatius Whelan, B. Devlin, J. Beecher, D. Daly, M. Daly, J. Dunphy, all of whom carried out their duties in the most courteous and expeditious manner.

Great interest was taken in the Drawing of prizes, some thousands of the Counterfoils having been carefully mixed up in a big drum, and the full list of the prizewinners will be found in Advt. columns this week.

The Bazaar was continued on Monday and Tuesday nights, when large numbers also attended, and the event on the whole proved a great success.

A special attraction was provided on Tuesday night when several songs were rendered by M. Frank Ryan, Tallow.

CHAMPIONSHIP MATCH IN KILLEAGH.

INCH V. YOUGHAL

In the Killeagh Gaelic Grounds on Sunday last before a good crowd Youghal and Inch tried conclusions in the final of the divisional area.

It was generally supposed that Youghal would have an easy win because of their far larger club membership; their better facilities and the fact that this team included such players as Healy and others who up to quite recently had been playing senior hurling.

Owing to the harvesting operations in the district the Inch fifteen had no recent opportunities of practicing and the best their supporters could hope for in the circumstances was a close game.

The result came as a surprise to everybody for although Youghal shone in the opening stages, in the second moiety the vigour and determination of the Inch lads overwhelmed them, and they were extremely lucky to have the game end in a draw.

First Half.
 Youghal won the toss and played with the wind and sun at their backs; they immediately took the offensive and despite a good Inch defence had the white flag up two minutes from the start.

Following the puck out they again attacked but P. Power saved and John Collins relieved the pressure in the Inch territory but the result was short lived. Hussy sent in strongly and Healy getting possession just missed the post. Inch led by O'Leary invaded the Youghal end, and M. Collins just missed the posts. Inch were awarded a free, but the ball went wide; but in from a subsequent free O'Leary saved a nice point. Deane sent in strongly for Youghal but P. Tracey drove back as strongly and Kiniry made a great effort and just failed to find the net.

In a daring raid on the Inch territory Youghal got through for a goal. Keeping up the pressure M. J. O'Mahony again sent Youghal in but Walsh saved the Inch net splendidly and M. O'Mahony, M. Collins and P. Joyce worked down the right wing, here M. Collins got possession and despite all opposition he broke through for a spectacular goal.

The short whistle left the score—
 Youghal 1-4
 Inch, 1-1.

On resuming Hennessy netched a point after which Youghal vigorously attacked the Inch end and in this raid they got a brace of points. Inch now pulled themselves together and breaking down all opposition they had the green flag waving amid tremendous excitement. The marking was now very close and each side went all out for a win. Jennie Power broke up a Youghal rush. T. Callaghan crossed to Kiniry and a white flag resulted. Only one point now between the teams and the crowd frantic with excitement Youghal striving hard to increase their lead. Swaine sends to the Inch Square but Walsh pulls on the ball and it soars to midfield. Paddy Power races for it. Hennessy draws in with all his might; Joe Collins, P. Walsh and Sonny Power break through the the Youghal backs and a great Inch cheer greets the raising of the white flag to level the teams. But the time is nearly up. Youghal call up all their forces to defend their citadel for the Inch men are eagerly looking for more scores; the whistle goes however, and a strenuous game ends on the score.

Inch, 2-3.
 Youghal, 1-6.

Referee P. O'Neill, Killeagh, H. C.

The teams were—
 Inch—P. Power (Capt.), J. Kiniry, E. Walsh, M. O'Mahony, J. Collins, P. Joyce, J. Power, P. Tracey, J. O'Leary, T. O'Callaghan, M. Collins, J. Hennessy, P. Walsh, J. Collins and J. Power.
 Youghal—J. Coine (Capt.), J. Healy, M. O'Sullivan, M. Hussy, R. Deane, T. McCarthy, G. Swain, M. Roche, C. Cotter, J. Forrest, W. O'Callaghan, C. O'Donoghue, D. Walsh, M. O'Sullivan, and M. J. O'Mahony.

CAPPOQUIN NOTES.

The Mount Mellerau Bazaar.

A full report of the Grand Drawing of Prizes and Monster Bazaar in aid of the Building Fund for St. Philomena's new Church and Shrine at Mount Mellerau, which were opened in the Boathouse Hall, Cappoquin, on Sunday night, together with a full list of the prizewinners for the twelve valuable prizes, will be found in other columns in this issue.

With regard to the twelve winners of the valuable prizes for the tickets which had been previously sold it was a remarkable fact that while eleven of these ticket-holders had given their full names and addresses on their coupons, only one had used a "non-de-plume," and this was "Come on, Lads," which was the first ticket drawn from the drum, and which entitled the holder to the first prize of £30.

It was only on Monday evening that Mr. M. J. Sargeant, Hon. Sec., discovered the identity of the owner of the ticket, "Come on, Lads," when he found that it was a legal gentleman, Mr. J. O'Connor, Creamery Manager, Cappah, who resides in Richmond House, Cappoquin, and whose wife the respected Teacher in Affane National School, Cappoquin.

When the news became known that the winner of the valuable prize of £30 was a local gentleman it gave great satisfaction, but when it was found that the lucky winner was Mr. M. O'Connor, the greatest delight was felt everywhere because this gentleman is one of the best known and most popular sportsmen in west Waterford to-day.

Tobacco Growing in Co. Wexford.
 The first consignment of 4,000 plants of south-east Wexford tobacco crop had been deposited at the drying sheds at Broadway, Co. Wexford, Mr. R. Doyle, Secretary of the Fort Tobacco Growers' Association, described the leaf as being of good standard despite the inclement summer.

DUNGARVAN DISTRICT COURT.

Held on Wednesday before Mr. Troy, D.J.

Publicans' Licences.
 This being the annual licensing session all the Publicans' licenses were signed.

Transfer of Licences
 Confirmation of transfer of licences were made in the case of Dr. Walsh, Commercial Hotel, Mrs. Mary Cullinane O'Connell St. Messrs. E. A. Ryan, and T. C. Williams were the Solrs. engaged.
 In the cases of confirmation of transfers on behalf of Mrs. Bridget Greene, and Mrs. Julia Dempsey, the Justice adjourned the cases to the Annual Licensing Sessions.

Dance Hall Licences.
 Mr. Wm. O'Meara Town Clerk applied for a Dance License in respect of the Town Hall.

Mr. Williams solr. appeared for the applicant and said he understood there was an objection to the application on the grounds of sanitary accommodation. Superintendent Walsh—That is correct. The various Committees who hold dances have complained about the sanitary arrangements. Justice—Why not prosecute.
 Superintendent Walsh said he would prefer to have the Health Authority do that.

Mr. Williams said the Urban Council were only awaiting the sanction of the Local Government to expend £250 on repairs to the Hall.

Justice—Who is applying for the licence Mr. Williams—The Town Clerk on behalf of the Council.
 Justice—The people who are guilty. They should not get it. Is there another Hall in the Town?
 Mr. Williams—No.
 The Justice said as there was no other hall in the Town he would grant the licence.

Superintendent Walsh—Said he would like if possible to have the dates of the dances defined. There are often three all-night dances in the Dungarvan sub-area on the same night and the Guards find it very hard to supervise all.
 The Justice said he was afraid he could not do so.

Ocean View Hotel.
 Mr. Williams Solr. applied for a dance licence in respect of Ocean View Hotel. There being no objection the licence was granted.

The Pike Amusement Club.
 Mr. E. A. Ryan Solr. applied on behalf of the Pike Amusement Club Committee for a renewal of the Dance Licence.

Superintendent Walsh on behalf of the Local Authority opposed the application. Mr. J. Ormonde B.E. replying to the Superintendent said he had inspected the premises, which he considered were unsuitable. The Hall contained no cloak-room or sanitary arrangements for men. The sanitary arrangements for ladies were primitive, and in fact more objectionable than anything else. The exits were unsatisfactory. There were three exits from the Hall, all opening inwards. The largest or main door into a porch which rendered it very dangerous. The second door at the same side of the Hall was 2ft. 1 inch above the level of the floor and there was but one step there. The third exit was through the ladies' dressing rooms, from which there is another exit. The maximum number which could be with safety, would be from 100 to 120.
 To Mr. Ryan—This hall is on the side of a hill, where you have the finest sea and mountain air. It would be easy to put in flushing arrangements and in his opinion there was a fire the exits are not sufficient.
 Mr. Ryan—This Committee have done wonderful things up there in the side of a mountain, in providing a first-class Dance and Amusement Hall for the people of that area.
 The Justice said that in his opinion if flushing arrangements were put in, it would after a week cause more nuisance than if there was nothing there.
 Superintendent Walsh said he agreed with Mr. Ryan that they made great progress there with the past 2 years.
 Guard O'Dea replying to the Superintendent said he saw roughly 250 people in the Hall on one occasion. The Hall was very crowded.
 Justice—They would have a sporting chance in case of fire.
 Superintendent Walsh said that cars from Waterford City attended the dances and he would ask the Justice to fix a radius of 3 or 4 miles limit.
 Superintendent—The cars obstruct the highway, and he thought the Committee must take the responsibility. The Guards can't always be there.
 Theas. Lynch Secretary to the Committee said he saw at one time 375 in the Hall. There was plenty room for 250. The Committee are prepared to carry out the suggestion about a further exit. The

 It is added the final Italian acceptance of the withdrawal of Volunteers is to be announced in agreement with General Franco.

INCH NOTES.

Transfer of parishes Priest.

The news of the transfer of Rev. C. Brew, C. C. from Inch to Donirale has occasioned feelings of very sincere regret all over this district. It is just over three years since Fr. Brew came here from Grenagh in North Cork, and from the very start his popularity with all classes of the community increased by leaps and bounds. He was very zealous regarding the duties of his sacred calling and his services whether in a spiritual or temporal capacity were always at the disposal of the people. An able and eloquent preacher; his sermons were always instructive and were listened to with the deepest attention. The revered Parish Priest; the Rev. P. O.C. Sheehan had in him a very able assistant. Fr. Brew tried to improve his lot of the people locally during the acute economic crisis. He worked unsparingly to have a creamery built in Inch, and for a while it looked as if he would succeed. It is, however the members of the hurling will miss him most. He gave his best in trying to popularise Gaelic pastimes in Inch and the success of the team on the field shows the manner in which the young men responded to his efforts. He will however have a worthy successor in Rev. Fr. Mortell C.C. who celebrated Mass in the Inch Church last Sunday and who is coming in from the Dungourney and Clonmult Parish. Fr. Mortell is already well known.

Killeagh Station Master's Success.
 Heartiest congratulations to Mr. Cusack, the respected and popular Station Master at the Great Southern and Western Railway Station of Killeagh in winning first in competition with other stations in the South for the manner in which the station premises are cared for and decorated. Mr. Fogarty undoubtedly deserves his win for he has spared no pains in improving and beautifying the premises of which he has charge and he is also one of the most courteous and obliging officers of the Company.

KILMATHOMAS NEWS

Very Rev. T. Halpin, S. J., Dublin, will conduct a week's Retreat in the Parish of Kilrossanty and Fews, Commencing at St. Brigid's Parish Church, Kilrossanty, on to-morrow (Sunday). His good parishioners are grateful to their reverend Pastor, Very Rev. J. Crotty P.P., for securing such a distinguished preacher as Father Halpin, who, by the way, is a native of historic Kilrossanty.

Unless the original draw has been changed, the Senior Football XV's of Fenor and Dungarvan are due to play off their County Championship tie at Kill on to-morrow (Sunday).

At Leamybrien, last Sunday, teams representing the Kilrossanty and Fews Boys' National Schools met in a friendly football challenge for a set of medals provided by deservedly popular Father John Crotty, P.P. who is a sterling supporter of the games and pastimes of the Gael. A big local crowd eyed and enjoyed what proved to be a sparkling struggle for supremacy.

When Sergeant J. O'Shea, G.S., Leamybrien, blew the long whistle, the sides ceased play at level scores. The replay is fixed for Mahon Bridge on to-morrow (Sunday) week, Sergeant O'Shea again to referee.

The International Beef Conference
 London on Tuesday finally confirm the authorised importation during September-December quarter of 62 slaughter cattle from Eire (58,000 fatts-4,800 bulls and dry cows). This shows fairly substantial increase on the corresponding quarter of 1937, when 50 slaughter cattle were recommended importation, but the actual number ported was 55,581.

In June the conference made its recommendation under the new Anglo-
 Eire Agreement when the importation
 33,500 slaughter cattle during the July
 September quarter was agreed.

Imports of 1,997,035 cwts of chilled beef, 800,880 cwts of frozen beef, 108,100 cwts. of veal, and 183,571 cwts
 of beef offals were agreed to from Australia, New Zealand, other British territories, and the Argentine Brazil and Uruguay.

SHAUN RUE, THE RAPPAREE OF GAERAGH.

(A Tradition of Macroom.)

By P. J. O'Brien.

Twenty miles due west of Cork City a stream called the Sullane branches off the river Lee, and two miles further on another stream called the Toon branches off from it also due west, through an extensive and apparently impenetrable tract of morass, forest and bog...

The "Sullane" flows from north-west to its junction with the Lee through a low alluvial plain, which was in former times the bed of an ancient lake. About a mile or so from the Lee it stretches to the south-west in an irregular line to a spot at which the plain narrows to little more than the breadth of the stream...

Amongst the English companies which supplied munitions of war to William the Third during his campaign in Ireland was one called the "Hallow Sword Blade Company" of London. This Company had claims to a large amount on the Government, and when the confiscated Irish lands were put up for sale at Chichester House, Dublin...

In 1678, Catholics were prohibited from residing in garrison towns; Catholic tradesmen began to take small farms in the country districts, and worked at their trades whilst cultivating the tenants of Edmund Barret, who was a man named Jeremiah Murphy, shoemaker. He is said to have been an industrious man and much respected in the locality.

Mr. White of Bantry, a friend of Mr. Hedges, it seems, was staying at the Castle at this time, and as they sat near a big open window which looked out on the river, with "Sandy Hill" at the right, and the park on the left, and on the table between them, a tallow candle, such as was then used; all of a sudden they saw a flash, the report of a shot rang out from one of the clumps of trees in the park in front of them, and the candle sprang from its socket.

On these occasions when in want of food he sent his dog with a small basket tied under his neck, into Macroom, where certain shopkeepers who knew what was wanted put into it the necessary supplies. The dog would then trot away towards "Gaeragh," and on some occasions when followed by persons who seemed anxious to "bring in" Shaun Rue, he led his trackers into quagmires and other difficult places, and when he saw them unable to pursue him any further gave them "the slip" and made his way to his master.

Sometime early in the century a Rapparee attack was made in the district between Macroom and Bandon; and Shaun was charged with having taken part in it. Mr. Hedges, it seems, was much annoyed at its occurrence, and threatened that if he could find out the parties who made it he would deal severely with them. The Bandon Yeomanry also took the matter up and resolved to look after it. For a year or so afterwards, they, no doubt, made several expeditions to bring in parties suspected of having been engaged in it, but it does not seem that they succeeded in capturing any of them.

For some reason or other, he had got into his head that Mr. Hedges was in some way the cause of the Yeomen's attempt to arrest him, and he was in consequence in a high pitch of anger against him.

Mr. Hedges kept a pack of hounds, and at this time it was the custom for the owners of such packs to send out the young hounds, to be reared at the houses of friendly well-to-do farmers on their estates. This was looked on as a sort of recognition by the landlord that the farmer had a plentiful house and was willing to do him a favour; and the farmers almost without exception, willingly took charge of the dogs; a good reason why, because it was the best of their play.

Mr. Hedges had arrangements made by which he was sure to be informed of every occurrence that took place within his district, almost as soon as it had happened and he was apprised of the morning's proceedings. He had nothing to do with the raid from Bandon, and was exceedingly irritated at the killing of the hounds and probably threatened to pay of Shaun Rue, too, for his services of information; and as Mr. Hedges was angry was no trifle he thought some time should be put in trying to disarm him and accordingly devised a plan for doing so.

Mr. White of Bantry, a friend of Mr. Hedges, it seems, was staying at the Castle at this time, and as they sat near a big open window which looked out on the river, with "Sandy Hill" at the right, and the park on the left, and on the table between them, a tallow candle, such as was then used; all of a sudden they saw a flash, the report of a shot rang out from one of the clumps of trees in the park in front of them, and the candle sprang from its socket.

He then called for another candle and turning to Mr. White said "I am too strong for him, and will let him see that he cannot stay in this country if I resolve to make it too hot for him."

Then getting pen, ink and paper he wrote a letter to the General Commanding the forces at Cork, and sent it off at once by a special messenger on horse-back. "Now," said he to Mr. White, "we shall have a strong force of military here to-morrow, and we'll try to get the fellow in, but even if we don't succeed, we shall give him such a fright that he will leave the country, or else he would be frightened for the rest of his life to do anything to annoy me."

The messenger had scarcely got half-way to Cork before Shaun Rue was informed of his errand. He saw that his attempt to intimidation had failed. He did not by any means under-rate Mr. Hedges' power and determination, and he made up his mind to get out of the General at Cork got Mr. Hedges' letter early next morning, and at once ordered a detachment of infantry under the command of an English Lord to proceed at once to Macroom and make search for the outlaw, and continue under Mr. Hedges' directions as long as he considered it advisable.

Shaun Rue made his arrangements on the same day, and whilst the soldiers were marching from Cork, he was leaving miles of morass, wood and water between himself and his old hiding-place. He struck out west to Ballyneary district and called to an old friend's house (Mrs. McSweeney) on the southern shore of Lough Allua near the north-eastern spur of Sheehy mountain. Her husband and sons were away, and she and her only daughter managed a large farm. A settler named Powell who some few years before had come to reside in the northern side of the lake.

On the day after their arrival at Macroom the soldiers began their search for Shaun Rue, but as the bird had flown their labour was in vain. Shaun Rue was pretty well known it seems at Powell's place also, and while the soldiers were struggling after him in Gaeragh, he took a boat made of canvas and rowed across the lake to Powell's house. The family consisted of Powell himself, a widow about fifty, his mother a hale and vigorous woman of seventy, and her son, a young man about twenty-three years of age, and there were two Englishmen whom Powell got over to assist him.

Shaun Rue called to Powell's house one evening during his stay at McSweeney's after boating across the lake. Suspecting that he had a message for her grandson from the girl at the other side of the lake, Mrs. Powell got enraged against him. She knew that he was an outlaw and there was a reward for his capture, dead or alive, and may possibly have heard that the soldiers were on his track. She evidently wished him out of the way, and determined to avail of the opportunity now offered. The house faced southward towards the lake and immediately in front of it was an open lawn about a hundred yards in breadth, with an extensive tract of wood lying between it and the lake. Powell and his son were absent, and when Mrs. Powell learned that Shaun Rue was coming, she called the two Englishmen, posted them at the window of her son's bedroom to the right of the kitchen, supplied them with loaded arms and directed them to fire at Shaun Rue as soon as he came within range. They undertook to carry out their instructions, but instead of coming up the lawn, Shaun came by a branch of the wood at its eastern edge, and entered the house by the back door. Mrs. Powell and a servant girl were the only persons in the kitchen when he came in and dissembling her anger the former greeted him as usual, and asked him if he would take any refreshments. He replied that he would feel obliged for a bowl of milk, which she went and got for him. He then asked the servant to warm it for him over the fire but she gave a significant look, and said in Irish "If you wish to live long drink cold and run." Shaun Rue took the hint. Seizing Mrs. Powell by the arms he put her on her back, bolted through the front door and ran down the lawn towards the wood. The Englishmen were at their post, but seeing Mrs. Powell's position they refrained from firing lest they should hit her, and when Shaun Rue got to the wood he dropped his burden and got safely away. The old lady picked herself up uninjured and made her way home increased more than ever against the papist outlaw.

While Shaun Rue was adventuring on the lake, the officers and soldiers were searching Gaeragh unsuccessfully for him, and returned wet and weary to Macroom. When at table with Mr. Hedges and Mr. White, the officer expressed great disappointment that a certain sergeant in his force popularly spoken of as "the Hessian," did not even get a glimpse of the outlaw even for a second. Continuing to boast of this sergeant he offered a wager that not one on the Company's estates could compete successfully in shooting with him. Mr. Hedges said there was, and narrating the particulars as to the recent shot at the candle, and strange to relate; it was arranged that a shooting contest should take place on the square of Macroom at one o'clock on the following Saturday between the sergeant and Shaun Rue.

It was settled that the mark should be a crown piece set up close to the eastern wall of the castle yard, about midway between the entrance to Castle Street and that of Slieveen Street as it was then called, that the competitors should fire from a spot in front of the market house fifty paces east of the mark; that a certain number of shots should be fired in turn by each competitor, and that the one who hit the crown the greatest number of times should be declared the victor; but that in the case of a tie the sergeant should accept for one shot any further test of skill that Shaun Rue might propose to him. The officer, it is said, offered to back his man in thousands, but Mr. Hedges declined to go beyond hundreds, and the stakes were therefore kept within the bounds of moderation; Mr. White was to act as judge, and everything promised to go on satisfactorily.

Although Mr. Hedges did not know where Shaun Rue was at the time he entered into arrangements for the shooting match, he was able to send him intimation regarding it, and requesting him to be at the time and place appointed, assuring him that if he should do so and shoot for him, he would not be in any way injured or molested, but would be allowed to return to his home in safety. It speaks much for the reliance reposed in Mr. Hedges promises that Shaun Rue unhesitatingly consented to comply with Mr. Hedges request, and showed perfect confidence in what he had undertaken. What Shaun did during the two intervening days does not transpire. The report that there was to be a shooting match between him and one of the Hessian soldiers spread far and wide, and on the appointed day crowds of country people flocked into Macroom.

Mr. Hedges and his party and the gentry of the neighbourhood assembled in front of the market-house. The mark was set up, Shaun Rue and the Hessian were ready, and when the hour struck the firing began. The Hessian fired first and struck the target, Shaun fired next and hit also. How many shots they fired is not recorded; but it is certain that both did well, and that the contest resulted in a "tie." It then devolved on Shaun Rue to propose a test of skill for the deciding shot; he suggested that a knife should be put up in place of the previous mark; the back of the blade to be against the board and the edge towards the competitors, and that which ever of them should split his bullet on it into two more nearly equal parts should be held the victor. This test was agreed to. The knife was set up. The Hessian soldier fired first but missed the edge of the blade. Shaun Rue took aim and fired. The knife was not stirred, but Mr. White examined it, and found the bullet had hit it on the edge and had been divided into two equal parts which passed into the board one at each side of the blade. Shaun had won.

Mr. Hedges looked round immediately after Mr. White's announcement, but Shaun Rue was gone. Mr. Hedges lived for several years after the great shooting match at Macroom and continued to rule Muskerry. He had a son Robert who married Miss Eyre, of Galway, who had one son Richard Hedges, inherited the City of Galway and large estates in Tipperary and Cork from his mother, and took the name of Hedges Eyre.

One of the Hedges with Mr. White, Beecher, Barnit, Sweet and Smith; are mentioned in the great Gaelic Poem, which had been composed by Mrs. Maria Rue. "O'Leary of Keimaneigh," in reference to a battle which took place early in the nineteenth century. The battle was in connection with the Title Rent war. The parties above referred to were officers of the Yeomanry force stationed at Bantry and Macroom.

Slender Cattle Quota. The International Beef Conference in London on Tuesday finally confirmed the authorised importation during the September-December quarter of 62,800 slaughter cattle from Eire (58,000 fats and 4,800 bulls and dry cows). This shows a fairly substantial increase on the corresponding quarter of 1937, when 59,000 slaughter cattle were recommended for importation, but the actual number imported was 53,960.

In June the conference made its first recommendation under the new Anglo-Eire Agreement when the importation of 23,500 slaughter cattle during the July-September quarter was agreed.

Imports of 1,370,035 cwt of chilled beef, 1,806,886 cwt of frozen beef, 108,100 cwt of red, and 183,571 cwt of beef offals were agreed to from Australia, New Zealand, other British territories, and the Argentine, Brazil, and Uruguay.

CATTLE SUBSIDY PAYMENTS.

Fat cattle certified for subsidy in the United Kingdom last month totalled 137,954, as against 127,882 in August, this total was 9,106, as against 7,101 in August a year ago being given in par per live cwt. of certified cattle during the month was (the comparative figure for August a year ago being given in parentheses) 36s. (39s. 10d.) for Northern Ireland, compared with 40s. 10d. (42s. 10d.) for the United Kingdom as a whole.

BORDER LEICESTERS FETTER IRELAND.

Several purchases were made by the Department of Agriculture, Dublin, at the Lanark sale of Border Leicester rams last week. One of these was the first prize lamb from Mr. A. B. Howie, Eshott Brocks, Felton, which realised £22. From the first prize pen of ram lambs shown by Messrs. James Howie and Sons, Muirside, Durries, the Department secured one at £70. Another Irish buyer, Mr. Robinson, paid £40 for a ram lamb from Messrs. J. and W. Young.

SHAUN RUE, THE RAPPAREE OF GAERAGH.

(A Tradition of Macroom.)

By P. J. O'Brien.

Twenty miles due west of Cork City a stream called the Sullane branches of the river Lee, and two miles further on another stream called the Toon branches off from it also due west, through an extensive and apparently impenetrable tract of morass, forest and bog, whilst the Lee itself stretches to the south and west through a narrow but not deep valley, till some ten miles further on it merges into Lough Allua eight miles westward of which is the lake "Gougane Barra" and beyond that the old and romantic "Pass of Keimaneigh."

The "Sullane" flows from north-west to its junction with the Lee through a low alluvial plain, which was in former times the bed of an ancient lake. About a mile or so from the Lee it stretches to the south-west in an irregular line to a spot at which the plain arrows to little more than the breath of the stream, whence the latter spreads south-west. The latter place is bounded on the south by a steep and rather high ridge of land called "Sieveven" extending east and west, for about two miles or so; it separates the valley of the "Sullane" from the valley of the "Toon" and the "Lee" to the south. Along the southern base of the ridge, extending from the junction of the Lee and the Sullane from twelve to fifteen miles parallel to the range, and for four to five miles in breadth; from north to south, lies a tract called "Gaeragh." This tract evidently formed the bed of a lake subsequently silted up, but at the beginning of the Eighteenth century and for a long time afterwards it was a wilderness of bog, alluvial islands, deep pools, tangled underwood and large trees.

Amongst the English companies which supplied munitions of war to William the Third during his campaign in Ireland was one called the "Hallow Sword Blade Company" of London. This Company had claims to a large amount on the Government, and when the confiscated Irish lands were put up for sale at Chichester House, Dublin, they purchased immense tracts, and amongst them the Castle and town of Macroom, and the lands adjoining which had belonged to the MacCarthys of Muskerry and the O'Learys of Iveleary. The population of Ireland was scarcely more than a million in 1707, and Macroom was then a small village of probably not more than five or six hundred inhabitants. About this time an English settler named Hedges purchased the Castle and town of Macroom and a large tract of land in the neighbourhood, and came to reside at the Castle. Tradition speaks of him, as a man of large means and elevated social position. There was also a Catholic gentleman, Edmund Barrett, residing at Toames in Kilimichael parish on the south side of Gaeragh who held lands there under the "Hallow Sword Blade Company" with whom Mr. Hedges as agent was necessarily acquainted.

In 1678, Catholics were prohibited from residing in garrison towns; Catholic tradesmen began to take small farms in the country districts, and worked at their trades whilst cultivating their holdings. In this way amongst the tenants of Edmund Barrett, was a man named Jeremiah Murphy, shoemaker. He is said to have been an industrious man and much respected in the locality. Residing at the same time at a place called "Terelton" was a relative of Jeremiah Murphy, a carpenter by trade who from his red hair was known as "Shaun Rue." For some years in his early manhood Shaun Rue, it appears was "away," probably in the Irish Brigade; but he returned to his native place some six or eight years before the end of the first quarter of the eighteenth century. He was reputed to be very deeply involved with the Rapparees, and respects of the law he kept a gun; a long light highly finished foreign piece. He was an "inexpressible poacher." About forty years of age this time, he was tall and slight and possessed of wonderful strength and agility. As a known or reputed Rapparee he was an out-law, and as a poacher hated by the sporting members of the Protestant "Gentry." He was liable to be at any moment "brought in dead or alive," and in order to keep out of the meshes of the law he made in the recesses of "Gaeragh" a retreat known only to himself and his dog, and frequently took refuge there.

On these occasions when in want of food he sent his dog with a small basket and under its neck, hid Macroom where certain shopkeepers who knew what was wanted put into it the necessary supplies. The dog would then trot away towards "Gaeragh," and on some occasions when followed by persons who seemed anxious to "bring in" Shaun Rue, he led his trackers into quagmires and other difficult places, and when he saw them unable to pursue him any further gave them "the slip" and made his way to his master. When the danger was passed Shaun Rue returned to his Cabbit and worked at his trade.

Sometime early in the century a Rapparee attack was made in the south of the district between Macroom and Bandon; and Shaun was charged with having taken part in it. Mr. Hedges, it seems, was much annoyed at its occurrence, and threatened that if he could find out the parties who made it he would deal severely with them. The Bandon Yeomanry also took the matter up and resolved to look after it. For a year or so afterwards, they, no doubt, made several expeditions to bring in parties suspected of having been engaged in it, but it does not seem that they succeeded in capturing any of them. In some way or another, they learned that Shaun Rue was at his house and they decided on capturing him. A detachment of them accordingly set out soon after midnight and proceeded to his house. He was at home and as they were arranging themselves around his house his dog gave the alarm. Shaun Rue jumped out of bed and saw that the place was surrounded, but he was equal to the occasion. Quick as thought he got off his coat, rapped it round a cart wheel that was at hand, and sent the wheel rolling down the path which sloped northwards from the house. Thinking that the fleeing object was the man they wanted, the yeomen discharged their fire-arms at it, and gave chase, and before they found their mistake, Shaun Rue was away in safety. The yeomen returned to the house which they set on fire.

For some reason or other, he had got into his head that Mr. Hedges was in some way the cause of the Yeomen's attempt to arrest him, and he was in consequence in a high pitch of anger against him.

Mr. Hedges kept a pack of hounds, and at this time it was the custom for the owners of such packs to send out the young hounds, to be reared at the houses of friendly well-to-do farmers on their estates. This was looked on as a sort of recognition by the landlord that the farmers had a plentiful house and was willing to do him a favour; and the farmers almost without exception, willingly took charge of the dogs; a good reason why, because it was the best of their play. Mr. Hedges was well acquainted with Terry Murphy, Shaun's relative, and had a high opinion of him, and he sent him two of the hounds to be reared at his place where they were willingly received and well taken care of. They were growing up splendidly, but unfortunately whilst Shaun Rue was in the height of his anger, he exclaimed that they would never hunt a fox for Hedges, and seizing a bayonet he killed the two hounds.

Mr. Hedges had arrangements made by which he was sure to be informed of every occurrence that took place within his district, almost as soon as it had happened and he was apprised of the morning's proceedings. He had nothing to do with the raid from Bandon, and was exceedingly irritated at the killing of the hounds and probably threatened to pay off Shaun Rue, for all his anger of information, and as Mr. Hedges's anger was no little he thought no man should be so trying to disturb him and accordingly devised a plan for doing so.

Mr. White of Bantry, a friend of Mr. Hedges, it is said, was staying at the Castle at this time, and as they sat near a big open window which looked out on the river, with "Sandy Hill" at the right, and the park on the left, and on the table between them, a tall candle; such as was then used; of a sudden they saw a flash, the report of a shot rang out from one of the clumps of trees in the park in front of them, and the candle sprang from its socket. "Heavens" said Mr. White, "one of us has been fired on." "No" replied Mr. Hedges it was easier to hit a person than a candle, neither of us was meant to be injured. It has come from that accursed Shaun Rue. He blames me for this nearly being arrested by the Bandon Yeomanry this morning, and the trifling act of revenge, killed two of my best dogs to-day. He knows that I am aware of his designs, and now wants to intimidate me from displeasing by punishing him, but it won't do I will have him brought in, or I will drive him out of the country before the end of the week.

He then called for another candle and turning to Mr. White said, "I am too strong for him, and will let him see that the cannon stay in this country if I resort to make it too hot for him." Then, getting pen, ink and paper he wrote a letter to the General Commanding the forces at Cork, and sent it off at once by a special messenger on horse-back. "Now," said he to Mr. White, "we shall have a strong force of military here to-morrow, and we'll try to get the fellow in, but even if we don't succeed, we shall give him such a fright that he will leave the country, or else he would be frightened for the rest of his life to do anything to annoy me."

The messenger had scarcely got half-way to Cork before Shaun Rue was informed of his errand. He saw that his attempt to intimidation had failed. He did not by any means under-rate Mr. Hedges' power and determination, and he made up his mind to get out of the danger without any loss of time. The General at Cork got Mr. Hedges' letter early next morning, and at once ordered detachment of infantry under the command of an English Lord to proceed at once to Macroom and make search for the outlaw, and continue under Mr. Hedges' directions as long as he considered it advisable.

Shaun Rue made his arrangements on the same day, and whilst the soldiers were marching from Cork, he was leaving miles of morass, wood and water between himself and his old hidingplace. He struck out west to Ballygeary district and called to an old friend's house (Mrs. McSweeney) on the southern shore of Lough Allua near the north eastern spur of Sheehy mountain. Her husband and sons were away, and she and her only daughter managed a large farm. A settler named Powell who some few years before had come to reside in the northern side of the lake.

On the day after their arrival at Macroom the soldiers began their search for Shaun Rue, but as the bird had flown their labour was in vain. Shaun Rue was pretty well known it seems at Powell's place also, and while the soldiers were struggling after him in Gaeragh, he took a boat made of canvass and rowed across the lake to Powell's house. The family consisted of Powell himself, a widow about fifty, his mother a hale and vigorous woman of seventy, and her son, a young man about twenty-three years of age, and there were two Englishmen whom Powell got over to assist him.

Shaun Rue called to Powell's house one evening during his stay at McSweeney's after boating across the lake. Suspecting that he had a message for her grandson from the girl at the other side of the lake, Mrs. Powell got enraged against him. She knew that he was an outlaw and there was a reward for his capture, dead or alive, and may possibly have heard that the soldiers were on his track. She evidently wished him out of the way, and determined to avail of the opportunity now offered. The house faced southward towards the lake and immediately in front of it was an open lawn about a hundred yards in breadth, with an extensive tract of wood lying between it and the lake. Powell and his son were absent, and when Mrs. Powell learned that Shaun Rue was coming, she called the two Englishmen, posted them at the window of her son's bedroom to the right of the kitchen, supplied them with loaded arms and directed them to fire at Shaun Rue as soon as he came within range. They undertook to carry out their instructions, but instead of coming up the lawn, Shaun came by a branch of the wood at its eastern edge, and entered the house by the back door. Mrs. Powell, and a servant girl were the only persons in the kitchen when he came in and dissembling her anger the former greeted him as usual, and asked him if he would take any refreshments. He replied that he would feel obliged for a bowl of milk, which she went and got for him. He then asked the servant to warm it for him over the fire but she gave a significant look, and said in a low voice "If you wish to live long drink cold." "If you wish to live long drink cold and run." Shaun Rue took the hint. Seizing Mrs. Powell by the arms he put her on her back, bolted through the front door and ran down the lawn towards the wood. The Englishmen were at their post, but seeing Mrs. Powell's position they refrained from firing lest they should hit her, and when Shaun Rue got to the wood he dropped his burden and got safely away. The old lady picked herself up uninjured and made her way home increased more than ever against the papist outlaw.

While Shaun Rue was adventuring on the lake, the officers and soldiers were searching Gaeragh unsuccessfully for him, and returned wet and weary to Macroom. When at table with Mr. Hedges and Mr. White, the officer expressed great disappointment that a certain sergeant in the force popularly spoken of as "the Hessian," did not even get a glimpse of the outlaw even for a second. Continuing to boast of this sergeant he offered a wager that none on the Company's estates could compete successfully in shooting with him. Mr. Hedges said there was, and narrating the particulars as to the recent shot at the candle, and strange to relate; it was arranged that a shooting contest should take place on the square of Macroom at one o'clock on the following Saturday between the sergeant and Shaun Rue.

It was settled that the mark should be a crown piece set up close to the eastern wall of the castle yard, about midway between the entrance to Castle Street and that of Slaveen Street as it was then called, that the competitors should fire from a spot in front of the market house fifty paces east of the mark; that a certain number of shots should be fired in turn by each competitor, and that the one who hit the crown the greater number of times should be declared the victor; but that in the case of a tie the sergeant should accept for one shot any further test of skill that Shaun Rue might propose to him. The officer, it is said, offered to back his man in thousands, but Mr. Hedges declined to go beyond hundreds, and the stakes were therefore kept within the bounds of moderation; Mr. White was to act as judge, and everything promised to go on satisfactorily.

Although Mr. Hedges did not know where Shaun Rue was at the time he entered into arrangements for the shooting match, he was able to send him intimation regarding it, and requesting him to be at the time and place appointed, assuring him that if he should do so and shoot for him, he would not be in any way injured or molested, but would be allowed to return to his home in safety. It speaks much for the reliance reposed in Mr. Hedges promises that Shaun unhesitatingly consented to comply with Mr. Hedges' request, and showed perfect confidence in what he had undertaken. What Shaun did during the two intervening days does not transpire. The report that there is as to be a shooting match between him and one of the Hessian soldiers spread far and wide, and on the appointed day crowds of country people flocked into Macroom.

Mr. Hedges and his party and the "gentry" of the neighbourhood assembled in front of the market-house. The mark was set up, Shaun Rue and the Hessian were ready, and when the hour struck the firing began. The Hessian fired first and struck the target, Shaun fired next and hit also. How many shots they fired is not recorded; but it is certain that both did well, and that the contest resulted in a "tie." It then devolved on Shaun Rue to propose a test of skill for the deciding shot; he suggested that a knife should be put up in place of the previous mark; the back of the blade to be against the board and the edge towards the competitors, and that which ever of them should split his bullet on it into two more nearly equal parts should be held the victor. This test was agreed to. The knife was set up. The Hessian soldier fired first but missed the edge of the blade. Shaun Rue took aim and fired. The knife was not stirred, but Mr. White examined it, and found the bullet had hit on the edge and had been divided into two equal parts which passed into the board one at each side of the blade. Shaun had won.

Mr. Hedges looked round immediately after Mr. White's announcement, but Shaun Rue was gone.

Mr. Hedges lived for several years after the great shooting match at Macroom and continued to love Muskerry. He had a son Robert who married Miss Eyre, of Galway, who had one son Richard Hedges, inherited the City of Galway and large estates in Tipperary and Cork from his mother, and took the name of Hedges-Eyre.

One of the Hedges with Mr. White, Beecher, Barnit, Sweet and Smith are mentioned in the great Gaelic Poem, which had been composed by Mrs. Maria Rue. "O'Leary of Keimaneigh," in reference to a battle which took place there early in the nineteenth century. The battle was in connection with the Tithe Rent war. The parties above referred to were officers of the Yeomanry force stationed at Bantry and Macroom.

LAND ANNUITIES IN NORTHERN IRELAND.

Premier tells Deputation why Concessions would be Inadvisable.

The view that any approach by the Northern Government to the Imperial Government on the question of a revision of the land annuities might jeopardise Ulster farmers in regard to existing financial assistance from the British Government was expressed by the Prime Minister (Lord Craigavon) when he received a deputation from the Ulster Farmers' Union, on the 18th inst., who made a plea for a reduction of annuities or an extension of the period of payment.

The deputation was the outcome of a decision of the Executive Committee of the Union, and the grounds for the claim for a reduction of annuities was on account of economic difficulties. Their hope was that the Government would extend the period of repayment that the land annuities would be reduced by half. The farmers stated that they would not mind paying if they could get a return for their produce in accordance with production costs. There had been, it was claimed, an increase of 50 per cent. in production costs in recent years, and the value of crops instead of appreciating had gone down. There have been discussions on land annuities in many parts of Northern Ireland, particularly since the Anglo-Eire agreement, under which the Southern annuities question was finally settled in a manner regarded as beneficial to the Eire farmers. Also in August a farmers' meeting at Fermanshagh passed a resolution urging the reduction by half of the annuities and an extension of the period of payment.

The official statement issued after the conference was as follows:—

"The Prime Minister, accompanied by the Minister of Finance and the Minister of Agriculture, received a deputation from the Ulster Farmers' Union in regard to the proposed extension of the period of payment of the land annuities. A full discussion took place, at the conclusion of which the Prime Minister first of all referred to the fact that under the provisions of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920 (Preserved by the Land Purchase Winding-up Act of 1933) any reduction in the amount of the annuities or extension of the period could not be made without legislation in the Imperial Parliament.

"If the Imperial Government were approached with a view to such a concession being made they would undoubtedly consider themselves entitled to review the whole question of the assistance by way of Agricultural subsidies which were being given to Northern Ireland farmers in common with farmers in Great Britain at the expense of the British Exchequer.

"The Prime Minister further pointed out that the deputation itself had made it clear that even a remission of the land annuities would not suffice as a means of lifting the agricultural industry out of its difficulties.

"Even since the Government came into office he and his colleagues had constantly in mind the task and duty of helping the small farmer of Ulster who constituted the bulk of the agricultural community. It was often quite easy to get a concession which would be popular, but however popular a certain concession might be if he was satisfied (as in this case) that it was not in the real interests of the farming community he would never be a party to it.

"He repeated that after further examining the situation properly he was satisfied beyond a doubt that if the Government raised with the Imperial authorities the question of a concession of the land annuities it would at once jeopardise their position in securing the financial assistance which was being given to the Ulster farmers, either directly or indirectly, by the Imperial Government, and would thus endanger for the future the very important advantage which the Northern Ireland farmer possessed by enjoying the same concessions as farmers in other parts of the United Kingdom. He added that the Government will continue to foster the development of the agricultural industry and to use the best resources for that purpose, possibly were not in the minds of the Ulster farmers when they put forward their resolution for the extension of the period of the annuities he hoped that the deputation would recognise once and for all that not the highest degree of injudiciousness to consider any alteration in the amount or of the term of the annuities.

There were twelve members of the union and the general secretary, Mr. H. Jamison, in the deputation. It was headed by Mr. R. J. Hale, Banbridge, Union President, and the other members were:—Messrs. R. H. Gibney, A. McConee, J. P. Doagh, J. E. Flanagan, Lettermore, Co. Fermanshagh; E. Greenlan, Carrismoney; R. Baillie, Magherally; J. Gray, Dunmurry; and F. B. Small, J.P., Maralin. It was agreed that the statement should come from the Government, and no comment was made on the matter at union headquarters. It is expected, however, that the committee of the Farmers' Union will discuss the whole matter in the light of the recent conference, and that probably all branches of the union will be circumscribed for their views on the question, and the line to be adopted if the farmers' case for some revision of annuities is continued.

POTATO CROPS ACROSS CHANNEL.

Although early crops were somewhat light, main crops of potatoes in England and Wales promise to be up to the average, and disease is not prevalent. Over the country the estimate is about 6.7 tons per acre. From 1928 to 1937 the average estimate at the beginning of September was 6.1 tons per acre and the final estimate 6.6 tons.

CAPPOQUIN DISTRICT COURT.

Annual Licensing Sessions.

This being the annual Licensing Sessions, all the local Publicans' Licences were signed by the Justice, and a renewal of the usual Exemption Orders was also granted in all cases. Inspector O'Shaughnessy (for Supt. Quinlan) stating that there was no objection on behalf of the Garda Authorities.

Transfer of Licence.

Mr. E. A. Ryan, State Solr., Dungarvan, applied for an ad interim transfer of the licence lately held by Mr. M. B. Kelly on his premises in the Main Street, Cappoquin, to Miss Hannah Walsh, who had now purchased the premises, and was already in possession thereof.

He said the Deed of Assignment and all the other necessary legal documents had now been completed, and handed them up to the Justice.

Mr. Ryan added that Miss Walsh had now spent a considerable sum of money in improving the premises, and was at present carrying on the licensed business there, and she promised to prove a great acquisition to the business life of Cappoquin.

Inspector O'Shaughnessy said there was no objection to the transfer, which was accordingly granted.

Mr. Ryan also applied for a renewal of the usual Exemption Order which had previously been in force for the premises entitling her to open from 7 o'clock on the mornings of the monthly fairs in Cappoquin, and this was also granted, without objection on behalf of the Garda.

Dance Hall Licence.

Mr. J. W. O'Gorman, Solr., Lismore, applied on behalf of Mr. James Daly for a renewal of the Dance Hall Licence for the Boathouse Hall, Cappoquin, where dances had been conducted in the most orderly manner for several years past. He said they required the licence for the same hours and the same number of Practice Dances, Ciderella and All-night Dances as in previous years, and there being no objection, the licence was granted, subject to the condition re intoxicating drinks on the premises and that nobody under the age of 18 years be admitted to the dances.

Mr. O'Gorman then mentioned that when the first licence under the Dance Halls Act was granted for this Hall some years ago, his worship had put in a condition that nobody outside a 10-mile radius should be admitted to the Sunday night Practice Dances, and he now asked him to remove this restriction, as it prevented people from Dungarvan, amongst other places, from attending the Sunday night dances.

The Justice asked how had this restriction been imposed, by him in the first instance?

Mr. O'Gorman said when the Dance Halls Act first became operative, the Parish Priests all over the country raised certain objections, and the P. P. of Cappoquin also appeared in Court, and it was in consequence of this restriction had been imposed, but as all the dances had since been conducted in a perfectly orderly and decent manner he thought this restriction could now be removed with safety, as there was very little danger of any abuses occurring as a result of its removal.

Inspector O'Shaughnessy said he had no objection to the removal of this restriction, and the Justice then acceded to Mr. O'Gorman's request, so that there are now no area restrictions as regards any class of dance to be held in the Boathouse Hall in future.

Possession of Labourer's Cottage.

The Waterford Co. Board of Public Health sought possession of a cottage occupied by a labourer named Michael McCarthy at Ballyhane, Cappoquin, on the ground of non-payment of rent.

Mr. J. W. O'Gorman, Solr., Lismore, appeared for the Board of Health. Miss Monica Walsh, Cappoquin, Rent Collector for the Board, stated that the rent of the cottage was 1/8 per week, and defendant owed 11 11s. 8d. to July 31st, 1938.

In reply to the Justice, Miss Walsh explained that this amount was made up of 13 3s. for rent and 2s. 8d. for rates. Defendant, now explained that he was badly off for a long time and was unable to pay, but he promised to pay if he got time.

Mr. O'Gorman—I am sorry to have to say, sir, that this man has no intention whatever of fulfilling his obligations, and I must ask you to grant us a decree for possession.

The Justice told defendant that he had an unlighted bicycle, and he was fined 2/6.

no alternative but to grant a decree for possession in the usual way.

No Lights.

Guard Thorne, Cappoquin, summoned Thomas Walsh, Kilderribeen, for using Same v. John O'Shea, Knockgarron, Cappagh, for same offence, fined 2/6. Guard O'Mahony, Cappoquin, v. Michael Hogan. Same offence. Fined 2/6.

Sergt. J. Browne, Cappoquin, v. M. Walsh, Moneyvroe, for having no lamp and no reflector, and he was fined 2/6 and 1/6.

Guard Moloney, Cappoquin, v. James Corbett, Dromore, for same offence. Fined 2/6.

Guard Twomey, Villierstown, v. Thomas Healy, Ballinparka. Same offence, fined 2/6.

Do. v. Wm. Hallahan, Graigue, Aglish. Same offence, fined 1/6.

Do. v. James O'Brien, Ballyguiry. Same offence, fined 2/6.

Unlicensed Motor Driver.

Guard Deviney, Cappoquin summoned Jeremiah O'Leary, Blarney, for driving a motor car without a driver's licence, and he was fined 2/6.

Carrying Excess Passengers.

Guard O'Mahony, Cappoquin, summoned James McCarthy, Cork, for carrying an excess number of passengers in a motor car driven by him, and J. O'Connor, Cork, owner of the car, was also summoned in connection with the same offence.

Mr. C. Murray, L. L. B. Solr., Lismore, who appeared for both defendants, said McCarthy and another driver were conveying a number of passengers, from Cork to Mount Mellery in two motor cars, when one of the cars got broken down, and McCarthy then very kindly took some of the passengers from the other car into his own car to bring them to Mount Mellery; as he could not leave them standing on the roadside. The owner of the car, Mr. O'Connor, knew nothing about the transaction, so he could not be held responsible in the matter. Mr. McCarthy was fined 2/6, and the case against the owner was dismissed.

Driving on wrong Side of Road.

Guard Deviney, Cappoquin, summoned Patrick Lyons, Graigavura, for driving a horse and cart on the wrong side of the road, and he was fined 2/6.

Wandering Cattle.

Guard Moloney, Cappoquin, summoned Mary O'Brien, Boherbery, for allowing her cattle to wander on the public road, and she was fined 3/-.

Sergent J. Browne, Cappoquin, summoned Owen Long, do., for allowing a jennet to wander on the Kil-bree road.

Complainant said that defendant, had told him he had the animal in a field and he had broken out without his knowledge, and he was let off with a fine of 1/-.

Unlicensed Dogs.

Sergent Browne, Cappoquin, and Guard Boyle, Cappagh, had three local farmers summoned for having unlicensed dogs in their possession, and they were fined 5/- each.

HAY YIELDS ACROSS CHANNEL.

In England and Wales the yield of seeds hay is forecast at 21.4 cwt. per acre which is considerably below the 1937 figure of 29.2 cwt. and the ten-year average of 26.7 cwt. Meadow hay is also much below average, with an estimated yield of 14.3 cwt. per ten-year average of 19.7 cwt.

CANADIAN CATTLE.

During the fortnight ended September 10 a consignment of 454 cattle were landed at Glasgow from Canada; of these 429 were licensed out to premises other than a slaughter house.

WEST WATERFORD NEWS.

The Harvest—

Harvesting operations are now completed in Ardmore, Clashmore and districts. Threshing operations are in full swing. Both yield and quality of the grain are considered satisfactory despite the unfavourable conditions prevailing during the growth and development. In Clashmore work is somewhat delayed owing to a scarcity of threshing sets.

Crops generally are doing well and good root yields are assured granted a Grass is plentiful and practically all the hay crop is safely saved for winter use.

Ardmore Hall—

The weekly practice dances in St. Declan's Parochial Hall, Ardmore, continue to be a source of amusement to the young people of the locality. On Sunday and Wednesday nights (from 8-30 to 11-30 p.m.) they are attended by dancing enthusiasts from all parts of west Waterford and east Cork, who have a most enjoyable time dancing to the strains of the Accordion Band on a perfect floor. These dances have been most successful during the summer months and will continue during the winter. Arrangements will, as usual, be perfect in the hands of Messrs. W. Mockerly, J. Quaine, J. Crawley and J. Moloney.

Congratulations—

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Patrick Healy, a native of Ballycurane, Clashmore, on his recent marriage. Mr. Healy, who is well known gael, occupies a lucrative position in the Department of Lands and (Forestry Section).

CATTLE EXPORTS DOWN.

The number of cattle shipped from Eire to Great Britain and the Isle of Man from the beginning of the year until September 10 was 318,873, as compared with 399,263 during the corresponding period last year. About 17,000 more fat cattle were exported but this increase was offset by a decrease of nearly 77,000 stores.

Irish Classes at Ardmore—

Irish Classes have commenced at St. Declan's Irish College, Ardmore, and will continue for two nights weekly during the winter months. These classes afford local residents a splendid opportunity of acquiring a knowledge of the Gaelic Tongue and we hope they will get the support they deserve. Mr. M. Foley, the general and efficient manager of the Irish College, will have charge of the classes.

Clashmore G.A.A. Club—

The Football Club at Clashmore has been successfully revived and in recent practice matches with Youghal and Knockanora the team has given very commendable displays. It is intended to have a junior football team in next year's Championship.

In the old days the famous Clashmore team was a household word throughout, consequently the recent revival is all the more gratifying. The promoters are to be complimented on forming a genuine Clashmore Club as this will mean that the players will be actuated by a desire to emulate the feats of the famous Clashmore team of thirty years ago.

Ardmore G.A.A.?

What a pity there is not a G.A.A. Club in Ardmore? There is certainly plenty material in the district, and as evidenced by the generous response to the Waterford Senior Hurling Training Fund, the right spirit exists there. It is only proper that a gaelic district such as Ardmore should have a G.A.A. club, so it is hoped that during the next few months a practical move will be made in this direction. Efforts to promote gaelic activities in this district will, no doubt, receive the full support of the Waterford County Board.

Muintir na Tíre—

A Guild of Muintir na Tíre, under the Presidency of Very Rev. Fr. Michael Byrne, P.P., has been formed at Ardmore. It is hoped that the Guild will receive a generous measure of public support and be successful in putting into practical effect the high and commendable ideals of this very praiseworthy organisation, the principal aim of which is the uplifting of the rural population by the application of Christian social policy.

The Weather—

For the past week the weather in Clashmore district has been very broken, practically every day being wet.

The unsettled conditions have seriously retarded agricultural operations and delayed threshing operations.

Blackwater Embankment—

The reconstruction of the Blackwater embankment at d'Loughane, near Clashmore, is nearing completion following two years work by over 20 men under the supervision of the Department of Lands. Since the embankment collapsed three years ago a large area of valuable land adjoining has been inundated and this will now be restored to the owners.

It is understood that the afforestation scheme at Mounstuart will also be resumed in the near future.

Returned from Holidays—

Very Rev. Fr. William Coughlan, Des Moines U.S.A., who has been on holidays at his parental home, near Clashmore, has returned to his diocese. During his holiday Fr. Coughlan visited many places of interest in the country. He is a member of a well known Clashmore family and several of his relatives are eminent churchmen.

Ardmore—

Drying the past few months there was a record influx of visitors to Ardmore, which has now become one of the leading sea side resorts in the country. All spoke highly of its suitability as a holiday resort and stated that its bracing air is unrivalled while its position renders it admirable as a place for a quiet and restful holiday.

Montraea strand was also very popular. The new road leading off the Cork-Waterford Main road is a big boon to this pretty spot which is becoming increasingly popular each year.

Congratulations—

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Patrick Healy, a native of Ballycurane, Clashmore, on his recent marriage. Mr. Healy, who is well known gael, occupies a lucrative position in the Department of Lands and (Forestry Section).

Death of Mrs. Bowe Currahaha.

We deeply regret to announce the death of Mrs. Margaret Bowe, Currahaha, who took place residence on Sunday last. Her kind and generous nature, which was a source of comfort to her family and friends, has now occasioned the greatest sorrow to her husband and members of the family.

The funeral which took place on Tuesday was of a large number.

The chief mourners were—Mrs. Bowe, (husband); Mrs. Quinlan, (daughter); Mrs. Quinlan, (son-in-law); Messrs. John, Thomas and Sean Bowe and James C. Bowe, M.P. (nephews); Misses Mary Ann Bowe, (nieces); Mr. Thos. (brother-in-law); Mrs. Bowe.

The Old Age Pension Committee meeting of Old Age Pensioners, Dungarvan Rural and was held at the Court House, 23rd September, 1938, with Mr. in the Chair.

The following was proposed:—
Michael Morrissey, T.D., and Mr. Michael Keane.

"That we the members of the committee desire to place on record our sincere sympathy on the untimely death of Mr. John Foley, Main Street, Dungarvan, who was our chairman, Dungarvan Borough and Urban District Council, who was a most regular attendant at our meetings and whose assistance was helpful in investigating the claims of pensioners.

The Clerk wishes to be associated with the resolution.

BETTER SEED WHEAT

HARPUR BROS., of Waterford, are making a determined effort to help the Farmer by improving the quality of wheat grown in Eire. Obviously, better seed must be sown to grow better wheat, and with this in mind Harpurs are offering selected English Seed Wheat at a moderate price. The quality of this wheat is a decided improvement on that grown in this country, and Farmers using it will benefit undoubtedly when the harvest is reaped next year. Farmers interested in this higher quality seed should get in touch with Harpur Bros., Quay, Waterford, right away as the supply, naturally, is limited.
