KEEP GEESE IN 1940. GIVEN FREE RANGE THEY ALMOST FEED THEMSELVES. CHOOSING THE RIGHT BREED. As turkeys cannot be reared successfully without a plentiful supply of food, I suggest that this year more attention be paid to the rearing of geese for the Christmas trade. Geese are excellent grazers, and if allowed their freedom to range over reasonably good pasture they obtain most of their own food, particularly during the summer. Geese, too, can live on grass alone for a long period, although in their case it is wise to allow one small feed daily. In addition, they do not require the same variety of food as do young turkeys, and this is worth noting at a time like this when there may be a difficulty in obtaining certain ingredients. Indeed, the rearing of geese compared with that of turkeys, is an easy job, and morally is often nil. It may be generally realized that it takes approximately 8lb. of food to produce 1lb. of turkey meat. This means a 20lb. turkey at Christmas will have consumed not less than 80lb. of food. Birds hatched early in June, the month when large numbers are normally produced, would weigh from 20 to 24lb. at killing time, representing a food consumption up to not less than 90lb. per bird. Goslings, on the other hand, if allowed to forage would eat much less food, and the total consumption would be in the region of only about 50lb., plus, of course, the heritage which they obtained from the fields. GEESE HAVE BEEN NEGLECTED. In recent years, geese have been neglected, even by farmers who possess good facilities for rearing them. In former times they were kept on common lands, and were allowed to forage throughout the summer months for most of their food. During the fattening period—the last eight weeks of their existence—it is customary to boil swedes and potatoes which, with the addition of a small amount of barley meal, constitutes their fattening ration. We have to remember that the war is certain to have an effect on foods and poultry will only be allowed a proportion of whatever is available. It may not be possible for one to produce the same number of turkeys this coming season, and it may prove a safer proposition to concentrate on the rearing of geese. Before fattening begins plans must be made, and anyone interested in geese will do well to find where eggs or goslings can be obtained. The old saying, "Prepare for the worst and hope for the best," is sound advice at the present time. DESERVES MORE PUBLICITY. I am of the opinion that more publicity should be given to the goose in these days. It is the only breed of fowl capable of roughing it over a long period, and it costs less to house than any other. Unfortunately, however, we do not hear much about them at Christmas, and one imagines that they existed in name only.

LISMORE NOTES

'45' DRIVE. The '45' Drive in aid of the Lismore Hurling Club, held in the Town Hall, on Sunday night was a profound success, and upwards of 35 sixes were played.

LISMORE FIRE. A raging fire gripped several houses in the Main Street of Lismore on Monday night, and for several hours almost the entire population of the district, under the direction of the Garda, were struggling bravely under severe handicaps to cope with the inferno.

One drama of the fire was the saving of a sick man from the upper storey of the building in which the fire broke out. He was John MacNamara, a native of West Cork, who had been working in the town as a victualler.

DESPERATE BATTLE. Seriously hampered by the lack of equipment, the male population of the town turned out almost to a man, and under the direction of Superintendent Quinlan, Garda Siachana, commenced their desperate battle.

HOUSING. The housing scheme started at Townpark, Lismore, and which is delayed at present is an urgent necessity. It was considered a certainty that the houses would be finished last September.

USEFUL HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE DO IT THIS WAY. Dry off orange, lemon and grapefruit peel in the oven, rub well with olive oil the tins in which they are cooked.

Should you have to make apple pies with apples that do not easily cook through, peel them into the pie-dish by rubbing on the suet grater. They will cook in quarter the time and have a far better flavour.

You can prolong the burning power of a hundredweight of coal by dissolving a good handful of washing soda in half a pail of hot water and throwing the soda-water over the coal. The coal should be allowed to dry thoroughly before burning.

Cut up lb. of margarine and put it on top of the joint. You will have splendid dripping for toast, for roasting potatoes, or for frying fish as a result, and it will prove to be cheaper than lard.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING OF TALLOW RACE COMMITTEE.

The annual general meeting of the Tallow Point-to-Point Race Committee was held recently at the Devonshire Arms Hotel, at which there was a full attendance of members.

It was unanimously agreed that the same officials as elected for 1939, should continue in office for the present year.

Mr. J. F. O'Keefe then took the chair, amid acclamation. Having thanked the meeting for electing him to such a privileged position, he said he would do all in his power to uphold the standard set by his predecessors and he felt confident that given the same loyal support by the committee as heretofore, Tallow Point-to-Point Races of 1940 would equal if not surpass the success of former years.

The Secretary, Mr. T. Colbert, having read the correspondence, which included an official notification from the secretary of the Irish National Hunt Society, that

The preparation of programme was deferred to the next weekly meeting.
