The Government Party was elected at the General Election of 1943 in a minority of FOUR members. A combination of minor parties could, at any time, have brought about its defeat, and created a political deemed prudent to force this situation. Last week it was decided to strike. Action was deliberately planned. The Transport Bill was made the issue. The debate on the Bill was "talked out" in the previous week, to enable a full attendance of Opposition members to be ensured. Every deputy who voted against the Bill knew he was voting to defeat the Government. There was no element of chance about it. If there had been a full attendance of deputies the majority against the Government would have been larger.

Government would have been larger.

The plan was to force An Taoiseach's resignation, and to clear the way for the formation of a Government of Opposition parties. The leader of Fine Gael stated that such a Government could be formed.

The people in 1943 voted emphasically against a "mixum-gatherum" Government. Fianna Fall was determined to see that before the people found themselves saddled with such a Government against their will, they should be consulted about it. Hence the declaration of a General Election.

DEATH OF MRS. NORA MAHER, SEXTON STREET, ABBEYSIDE.

OBITUARY

SEXTON STREET, ABBEYSIDE.

The news of the death, which occurred with tragic suddenness on Saturday evening last of Mrs. Nora Maher, caused a painful sensation in the town and a shock to her many friends throughout the district. Wife of Mr. Thomas Maher, B.Sc., the popular science teacher under the Co. Waterford Vocational Education Committee, the deceased lady who appeared in her usual good health on Saturday when she attended the 7.30 o'clock Mass at the Friary and appeared in her usual good health on Saturday when she attended the 7.30 o'clock Mass at the Friary and later attended to her houeshold duties, complained of being unwell on Saturday evening. Medical and spiritual aid were quickly forthcoming but death intervened in a very short time. At the removal of the remains to Abbeyside Parish Church on Sunday evening, there was a very large and representative cortege. A squad from the local Group, L.S.F., of which Mr. Maher is an officer since the inception of the force acted as pallbearers. The coffin was received by the Very Rev. Fr. Roche, P.P., and escorted into the Church. On Monday, Masses of Requiem for the happy repose of her soul having been celebrated, the funeral took place to the new cemetery at Ballinroad, where interment took place. There was again a very large and representative attendance of the general public present, also a big number of pupils of the Technical School, Very Rev. J. Roche, P.P., officiated at the graveside.

TIPPERARY'S EASY VICTORY.

In the Munster senior football championship at Waterford on Sunday Tipperary defeated Waterford by 1-10 to 0-5. Tipperary had the advantage of a very strong wind in the first half and when the Waterford centre-field pair were well beaten by Lambe and Cahill the ball scarcely ever passed mid-field in this half. Tipp. had a lead of 1-9 to 0-0 at half time. On the turn-over Tipp. still held the upper hand at mid-field and although the Deise men were only able to register five points the only able to register five points they were surely worthy of five more. The Tipp. side had only one point in this half. The line out for Waterford was:— J. McGrath (goal).

SALES BY QUEALY & BALLOT. TRANSPORT BILL IN THE DAIL In the Dail last week, Mr. Denis

Heskin, T.D. (Farmer) speaking to the debate on the Transport Bill met their old rivals, Old Parish, in railway company got, to a great ex-tent, a monopoly of the whole trans-game ensued. The Old Parish team port service of the country, and yet the Minister now says that that company is still complaining. Well, made for a considerable improveif that is so, all I can say is that it is their own fault. From observation of the working of a line in my own county, which was second to none, in my own opinion and in the opinion of others, I would say that the company have not been working the service economically. For instance, even during the beet campaign, a lorry would have to be sent something like 35 miles if there was a question of a break-down and if repairs had to be undertaken, although we had plenty if that is so, all I can say is that it is ment. Clashmore, on the other hand, undertaken, although we had plenty of motor mechanics and repair men of motor mechanics and repair life.

in garages in the vicinity who could do the necessary repair work. Now, it appears to me that if this Bill is it appears to me that if this Bill is points which were the only scores bepoints which were the only scores below the score of passed as it stands at present, those men will be done out of their jobs, and, if that should prove to be so, then I say it will be very unfair to workers. It is quite unlikely that workers will be very unfair to workers. It is quite unlikely that were playing a great game for Old the new company will have its own repairing department within a convenient radius, but even so the men of whom I am speaking will get no work, and I suggest that, as a result to increase their lead by a further Ryan & Co.), having Carof whom I am speaking will get no company has not been able to pay Then, again, taking this huge and scored five points. Keeping on the pressure Clashmore seemed to seems will be necessary to put the be able to do everything but score company on its feet, I would not object so much to giving that money cient transport service would be given to the people of this country. In such circumstances, I think it would be a great bargain, but as things are at the moment I am afraid company is obselete and useless. There is also this question of providing money for the company in order that guarantees may be given to the owners of stock in the company. We are asked to guarantee a dividend to the subscribers to the company, but we are not told whether, if the company should prove to earn money in the future. that money will be refunded to the public purse. That is not right. If there should prove to be a loss on the working of the company, the taxpayers, evidently, are expected to bear that loss, but if there should be a gain, there does not seem to be any provision whereby the taxpayers will be recompensed.

I would suggest that this Bill be left over until after the war. Even when the war is over, I submit that, though it may involve a subsidy on the part of the State, the employees RICHARD CULLINAN of the railway companies should be guaranteed against losses, resulting from the stoppage of transport, due to the scarcity of fuel or to other causes. We all know that quite a large number of people are employed in railway services, and I think it would be very unfair that these men should be disemployed as a result of conditions arising out of the present emergency. Therefore, I suggest that the consideration of this Bill or any similar Bill, should be postponed until after the war, so that employment would be assured for these

My main reason for making this suggestion is that, after the war, as has happened after other wars in the past, many new ideas may be introduced. Always, during a war, many new ideas or new inventions are developed, or old inventions are improved. We have seen that in the case of the last war; and it is more than probable that after this war we may have much more up-to-date methods of transport than we have at the present time. If it were only for that reason alone, I should be anxious to wait for a period after the war when, perhaps, we would be in a better position to expend the

There is another matter about which I as well as other members of the House are deeply concerned, and that is in connection with cases diverted to the roads, but there is no provision in the Bill, so far as I can

Grief on the part of immediate relatives is only natural, but Miss Lennon's demise is scarcely less sinceriey came into contact with her in various ways during her earthly span. She came from good old family stock, and for the past 25 years or so partnered her brother, Mr. John Lennon, in conducting the business of their flourishing drapery business here. Miss Lannon was the essence of kindness, gcherosity, gentility and many other sterling qualities which made her numerous friends. There was something fine in her nature which manifested itself in all her relations with her neighbours, and her acts of kindness will perhaps only fully come to light when the scroll of life is unrolled. She died a happy death, fortified by the rites of the Catholic Church (administered by Rev. James Hally) and her loyalty to the Sodality of Mary was not forgotten by the grievous loss which your Company has suffered through the sudden and unexpected death of Mr. P. J. Moloney, your late Chairman, early last month. Mr. Moloney, who had been with us since the inception of your Company worked zealously and gave of his beet at all times towards its of his best at all times towards its progress. His work was not easy, in fact at times it was most difficult. Supplies, shipping restrictions, and progress. His work was not easy, in fact at times it was most difficult. Being a man of strong character, well balanced judgment and the highest principles as well as having that great gift of sympathy in a marked degree, he will be greatly missed by us and in all the circles where he was known and it will inevitably be a long time before the gap he leaves is competently filled. Owing to his untimely death my colleagues did me the honour of electing me Chairman of the Board. At all times I assure you that I will give of my best towards the progress and expansivn of your industry and I sincerely hope that I will be spared to fulfill that trust in your best interests and see your Company grow and expand with the assistance of my colleagues and the vo-operation of all the officials and employees. Mr. Pierce Casey was co-opted to fill the vacancy this created and as you will have noticed his name is being submitted to you to-day for confirmatich.

Referring to the business, perhaps it would be as well if I reminded you that your Tannery is manufacturing the essential raw matarials for very many industries throughout the country. As a result ilhousande of workers are to-day depending on our products for their employment and the nation as a whole for the products made from those leathers for its comfort and well-being. After the nation as a whole for the products made from those leathers for its comfort and well-being. After 4½ years of a world war I am pleased to say that the quantity of leathers produced last year shows no decrease. This was made possible by the strictest economies in the consumption of tanning materials imported on a quota basis. Native hides have become the exclusive raw material for our finished products of outside leathers of better quality than letthers manufactured from East India Tanned Hides. In 1938 we started tanning Irish sheepskins for boot and shoe linings. We have advanced far along that road, from Irish sheep pelts we are now supplying igloving, clothing, bookbinding upholstery and fancy leathers of all types and colours. As a result of the processing of this native raw material there is a 75 per cent, increase in the number of male workers in your tannery to-day.

During the past year the Minister for Supplies took over the control of manufacture and distribution of all leathers produced at home. It is not realised that Irish Tanneries did
