FESTIVAL TIME IN DUNGARVAN

Old Boro' will be host to thousands

'The Light of Other Days'

BY TOM TOBIN

THERE will be dancing on the streets during the Whit week-end (June 8th, 9th and 10th) when over 40,000 will join in the greatest celebrations the seaside resort has seen since the days when it was the venue for All-Ireland hurling and football finals.

It will be Festival time in the town when musicians from Glasgow, London, Belfast and Derry and from every county in Ireland will visit Dungarvan for the National Festival of Traditional Music sponsored by the Comhaltas Ceoilteoiri Eireann.

It will be a gay time for all, the opening ceremonies and have succeeded in getting industries representatives from Ireland, England and America to come along and enter displays in the All-Ireland competitions in industrial section of the parade, traditional music which will go on, non-stop for three days, with the finest of cello dancing for the three nights. It will be a week-end to remember. Already every hotel in the town is booked out and arrangements have been made to accommodate visitors in the towns and holiday resorts surrounding Dungarvan, including Clonac, Cappoquin, Lismore, Youghal, Ardmore, Tramore and Waterford City.

centrands will echo their rousing strains far across the waters of Dungarvan Bay in the shadow of the Comeragh Mountains.

Up in Kiltush, Co. Clare, Mrs. E. Crotty, will leave her public house for the weekend. She is coming to Dungarvan to play her concertina and she is leading a band of several champion musicians from the County Clare. Another big contingent will be making the trip from Belfast and among them will be some of the finest pipers in Ireland. There will be a panel of 40 adjudicators. Among them will be Seamus Mahony, of Youghal, brother of V. Rev. Dr. James O.F.M. Cap., Provincial, both of whom were many times winners of the Oireachtas for senior violin playing.

Details of L.L. Fund Disclosed

DEPT. CIRCULAR BEFORE U.D.C.

THE basis under which issues from the Local Loans Fund for the purposes of the Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts will be available during the current financial year were disclosed in a circular from the Minister for Local Government read at the fortnightly meeting of Dungarvan Urban Council on Friday night last.

HARBOUR MEETING Local Firms Urged To Make More Use Of Harbour

The Harbour Master reported a sum of £23 collected on import dues, with exports nil for the preceding month.

Mr. McCarthy referred to the big volume of goods going by road to Waterford from the Co-Op. Creamery and asked as to the possibility of contacting the Manager re exporting it through Dungarvan port.

The Harbour Master also referred to the big volume of coal going to the town by road.

SYMPATHY

Votes of sympathy were passed with the relatives of the late Dan Crotty, the late Wm. Browne and the late Fr. Richard Barry.

BOARD OF ASST. ADOPTS DEPUTY'S SUGGESTION

(Held over from last issue)

COLL. SEAN ORMONDE, T.D. caused the matter to be referred to the Department of Health when, arising out of the minutes of the meeting of the Board of Assistance, the question of the dental treatment was referred to.

A complaint that applications for dental treatment had not been dealt with in strict rotation was groundless, Mr. Hynes, Secretary, told the members.

He said that they had been dealt with in strict rotation, except in such cases as medical advice urging priority and in cases of expectant mothers. He added that the number of cases on the list had been dealt with out of order was something in the region of twelve.

The matter, arising out of the minutes, provided a short discussion.

The Secretary said that in the past three years the people who had received dentures numbered 410 (this was made up of 145 in Waterford City, 153 in Dungarvan, 47 in Lismore, 45 in Portlaoise and 20 in Clonmel). The number on the waiting list was 561, 290 from the City and 271 from the county.

Mr. Hynes pointed out that the Board had no full-time dentist. They had asked the dentists in Waterford City and County if they would treat the Board's patients free, but the dentists pointed out that their union would not permit this. It was suggested that a dentist from the County Council panel be appointed but this was not sanctioned by the Department.

He said that as the list was a confidential document it could not be made available for the inspection of members, even in the privacy of the Secretary's office, as had been requested by Ald. Kyne, T.D.

Ald. Kyne said that the withholding of the list meant that the members of the Board would be held up by the medical people and the officials from hiding out whether the rate-payers' money was being properly spent or not.

Colr. Curran said there should be no need for such a shroud of secrecy about the dental affairs.

The Secretary replied that as it was a personal medical service it came within the regulations governing the procedure concerning confidential documents.

Colr. Ormonde said he felt sure that the regulations did not apply to the members and he asked that the matter be referred to the Department of Health for clarification.

This suggestion was adopted by the Board and the County Manager said he would have the matter examined before the next meeting.

Behind the scenes

Man behind the Musical Week-end is Doctor Kevin McCann, Ballynamut, Clonmel, who hails from Dublin. He is Chairman of the Dungarvan branch of Comhaltas Ceoilteoiri Eireann. Working with Joint Secretaries, Tommy Boyle and Liam Comerford, he has successfully led the campaign to the present satisfactory position and several sub-committees are working against the clock preparing to set the stage.

One section is working on the provision of accommodation, another deals with preparations to decorate every street in the town. This committee is led by Dail Deputy Tom Kyne who is also Chairman of the local Urban Council. The Council too, will help. Members agreed to put 3d. in the £ on the urban rate to buy new decorations and help put them up. Other committees working hard are those looking after publicity, concerts and pageants.

Mr. D. O'Donovan, Manager, Provincial Bank, in Dungarvan, is in charge of the finance committee. His committee raised £5000 loan from the people of the town in a few days. This will meet the cost of preparing the Festival. The revenue from the competitions will pay the many other costs. The loan will be repaid by the committee two months after the Festival.

Every instrument will be heard

The first competition will commence on Saturday June 8th and will go on to Monday evening June 10th when the All-Ireland finals will be held at 4.30 p.m. Every instrument associated with traditional Irish music from harp to tin whistle will be heard and indeed, the cream of Irish

New possibilities

Yes, the ancient town of Dungarvan will certainly present a new look within the coming fortnight. Prizes will be offered to people for the best decorated houses and shops. Banners, buildings and flags will add colour and excitement to the scene. Even the old weighbridge on the centre of the town's Square will be spared the blows of the demolition squad. It is to be knocked down but the sentence has been postponed. During the Festival it will be used as an information depot where people will find out all they want to know about accommodation and the programmes of the day.

Past and present will be represented in this great National Festival and for the people of Dungarvan, it will be a week-end to remember. It will open up new possibilities and it will show once again that the picturesque town on the mouth of the Colligan can be host to the thousands in a style that is all its own.

FRIARY COLLEGE SPORTS

Cleared 4'11" at his ease

The annual College sports were held on Monday, 27th inst. in very good weather. Under the capable supervision of the committee the events were run off in quick succession. Most items were very closely contested but in the senior grade the flying Stephen Kelleher proved more than a match for his determined opponents as did the burly Peter McKenna in the junior grade.

The highlight of the Intermediate events was the high jump where Michael McCarthy cleared 4'11" at his ease. The presentation of the enviable prizes will be made on to-night (Friday).

The Friends of St. Augustine's

Augustine's

A hostel, which will be the first of its kind in this country, is to be established for mentally handicapped boys, who, having completed their training at the St. John of God Brothers Residential School, St. Augustine's, Blackrock, will be employed in Dublin.

Though hostel system is fairly common in Britain no attempt has yet been made in this country to adopt it. The hostel is to be erected by The Friends of St. Augustine's, the after-care committee attached to the school and it is hoped that in time it will be followed by other hostels.

The establishment of a hostel will perform a two-fold function—it will provide a stepping stone from an institutional environment to a full and normal life in the community and it will make more beds available at St. Augustine's for boys in need of institutional care and training.

At present some 7,000 children—out of an estimated 24,000 mentally handicapped persons in the country—are in need of such care and the hostel will mark a step in helping to provide this much needed accommodation.

The purchasing and equipping of the hostel will require a very considerable amount of money and The Friends of St. Augustine's have now launched their first major appeal for funds. As boys from all parts of the country are housed in St. Augustine's the appeal is being directed to the country as a whole, particularly to parents having children who are blessed with all their faculties.

Subscriptions, large or small, may be sent to the undersigned.

Mrs. EVELYN LAWLER, Hon. Secretary, The Friends of St. Augustine's, "Stillborn" Park, Blackrock, Co. Dublin.

DEPUTY KYNE ON THE BUDGET

All sacrifices being made by one class

I am more than ever inclined to agree that the people get the Government they deserve declared Labour Deputy Tom A. Kyne when he addressed Dail Eireann on the Budget proposals recently.

DEPUTY KYNE

The Deputy continued: Labour deputies and Ministers went around the Country during the general election campaign and told the people that if the number of Labour Deputies returned to the Dail was not sufficient to have an effect on whatever Government got into power, certain things would happen, for instance, that food subsidies would disappear and that extra taxation would be imposed on the ordinary luxury of the poor and middle income groups.

Having listened to Deputies of all parties in the House today, I am surprised that it was the Labour party alone that made it a point and a definite promise in their election policy that they would not take part in a Government that would remove the food subsidies. One would think that that was the interest of all parties and that they would be the custodians of the workers interest and that it was on that basis that their guarantees were given.

Certainly it is clear that the Fianna Fail party so implied, either by not denying, or by describing as a falsehood the accusations of the Labour Party. Certainly the Taniste in my Constituency of Waterford, denied that the Fianna Fail Party, if elected to power, intended to remove the food subsidies. He branded it as a falsehood and accused those who were making that charge of knowing it was a falsehood.

A Sickener Not only is the Budget a sickener to the poor and to the middle class groups but the Minister felt compelled to add a threat of worse to come.

In case the Budget and the threat of worse to come were not sufficient punishment for the workers for having put out the Fianna Fail party for a number of years, he felt it was necessary to indicate that they would take steps to see that evil servants, particularly the lower paid civil servants mainly those employed by the Post Office and the £600 and under groups, would be reduced in number. Perhaps that was the reason for that threat, but certainly it seems strange to me that all the impositions and all the threats and all the requests to tighten one's belt should appear to be aimed at the group. In cases that were not enough, the Minister made an appeal or a threat, according to the way one looks at it, that the workers who would have to sacrifice and who would have to seek compensation even through their Trade Union organisation.

On reading the Budget speech in an effort to decide what way I would work out my speech, I came to the conclusion that it was a very simple matter. It occurred to me that if one had two sheets of paper and headed one 'The poor and middle income groups one would find that all the taxation and all the privatisations could be entered under that heading and that it one headed the other sheet of papers: 'The Employers, merchants, higher income groups any concessions granted in the Budget could be entered under that heading. That may appear to be a very simple or foolish way of summarising the Budget, but I find that one could enter on the sheet headed: 'Employers and others £230,000 granted to master bakers to compensate them for something which they had received already.

Deputy Norton indicated in his speech immediately after the Budget statement that the Minister for Finance was wrong when he implied that any promise was made by him to the master bakers that they would receive any compensation for any wage settlement they made. It is well-known to us in the Trade Union movement that the master bakers had never any intention of granting an increase to their employees but that the Trade Unions through the power of their organisation and under the threat of industrial action, compelled the master bakers to concede that right, and even then a certain concession was given.

When the master bakers were permitted to reduce the slight overweight in the loaf that previously they were compelled to allow.

The second item on the sheet headed: 'Employers and others would be £100,000 for the eradication of bovine TB and £250,000 improved marketing of agricultural produce. It may be said that that is by the way of increasing agricultural output but let me suggest that increased output alone means increased profits and this money is being deliberately provided by the Minister at a time when he claims that the country is in dire need. Let me direct the Minister's attention to the fact that there was 5,500,000 of the agricultural grant, as indicated to him by the Advisory Committee, that he could have used for that very purpose and in the interest of the farmers or those whom he is inducing to produce more. But no, this is to be met out of the workers little share, out of the poverty and sacrifice of the widow and orphan, of the man who is sick and the man who is disabled and the man who is unemployed.

few days after the removal of the subsidy, butter is costing 4/4 per lb? That is 2d. above the 5d. because 5d. added to 3/9 makes 4/2.

At the present moment throughout small country towns in the South of Ireland, at some of the largest Creameries, butter is retailing at 4/4 per lb. Is it not amazing that the workers is expected to accept—that it is done in their own interests. It is calling to listen to the appeals being made and to be told: 'Nobody knows how much we are doing for you only ourselves.

No Concessions It is true that the workers got certain compensations. It is quite true that 1ld. per day increase had been granted to certain groups of non-workers, because it is quite obvious that the old-age pensioner, the non-contributory widow and orphans and those on unemployment assistance are certainly not workers, but they have got this magnificent help to compensate them for the slashing of the food subsidies and for the increase in tobacco and drink because of the tax concessions. Even if they are the only luxury which the workers have an opportunity of having.

It is quite clear that the most defenceless groups, the unemployed, the sick and those receiving disability pensions are not getting anything to compensate them, even though they are on the lowest amount that is payable under the social welfare benefits.

As has been indicated the children's allowance go just as much to the rich as to the poor. It must be quite clear that the large racehorse owner in Ireland or the most important employer and the most important drover in the city of Dublin if he has a qualifying child or children will receive just as much by way of these allowances as any ordinary worker in the city, however humble his circumstances may be. Was not that the very objection to the food subsidies? It is strange that we are now repeating it. One would have thought that the object was to avoid the giving of food subsidies to the rich and to those who did not need them the total amount saved in reducing the subsidies would be added to all groups of social welfare recipients, the unemployed, the sick, the widow and orphans and the old age pensioners. Instead of that a miserable pittance has been received and we are told that that is all that can be offered.

On the radio this morning, I heard that one of the reps of the unemployed has started a hunger strike in protest against the removal of the food subsidies.

I would use this opportunity to make an appeal to that probably very honest man not to be foolish in his efforts. He should come into this House and do what the Labour deputies are doing. We are not trying to change the position because we are unable to do that, Fianna Fail being here with an overall majority given to them by the people and, as I say, people get the Government they deserve, but he should use his voice and his health and strength to point out the fallacies of the promises of the Fianna Fail government. He should endeavour to use his position here to say that at least in 5 years' time the people will make a stronger effort and a better attempt to reason to Dail Eireann an increased number of Labour deputies. Let Deputy Murphy should have no doubts about the honesty of the present Minister for Finance in regard to employment I will quote what the Minister said in Volume 101 of last Wednesday's debate. He said I do not wish to be taken as advocating the maintenance of State expenditure at a high level simply to provide employment. On the contrary, the aim must constantly be to reduce to the utmost extent that the employment given is both necessary and productive.

He goes on to say that it is there on a certain circumstance in which it may be even necessary to provide unproductive employment but the whole aim whenever the cost should be to provide productive employment.

That is the policy. Again in the same volume the Minister says: 'The remedy for the related problem of emigration and unemployment is through the provisions of productive occupations. To absorb the unemployed on public works is to treat the symptoms without regard to the cause. When capital resources are scarce it would be fatal not to concentrate particularly on productive development. Higher taxation becomes inevitable to finance the net debt charges on public works and so the real income at the disposal of a wide section of the community is diminished.

I would suggest that promises such as that are very well covered by the saying: 'Live horse and you will get grass.'

Heavy fine in Youghal motoring charge

"I regard driving an uninsured car as a very serious offence and for not having been insured I will convict and find defendant £20", stated District Justice MacFionn-laoich at Youghal Court on Friday last, when Mrs. Kathleen Bonner, the Green, Youghal, was charged by Guard Stack with driving a motor van at Youghal on May 3rd which was not covered by insurance.

She was also charged with failure to display current road tax and with driving without a licence.

Guard Stack charged Mrs. Kathleen Bonner, The Green, Claycastle, Youghal, with driving a motor van at Youghal, on May 3rd, which was not covered by insurance, and in addition failing to have current road tax displayed and also without having a driving licence.

Mr. E. P. Finn, for defendant, said the offence was admitted; the van was off the road since last December and is now taxed and insured. My client, said Mr. Finn, is a lady of substantial means and had there been an accident no one would have been at any loss.

Justice—I regard driving an uninsured car as a very serious offence and for not having been insured I will convict and find defendant £20; for failure to have road tax displayed, I will impose a fine of £5 and for failure to have a driving licence I will impose a fine of £1.

Mr. Finn appealed to the Justice for a reduction of the £20 fine. The Justice, however, refused and added that it was at the mercy of the provisions that there wasn't an accident and he would like it to be known that putting an uninsured vehicle on the road is a very serious offence.

Mr. Finn then asked that recognisances be fixed in the event of an appeal. The Justice fixed one of £10 and two of £5 each.

LARCENY CHARGE The Attorney General charged Timothy Sealon, Castlemartyr Lodge, Saleen, Clonmea, with the larceny of a collection box.

Supt. Hughes, who prosecuted, said that the defendant took the box on the 17th November last from the premises of Mr. Denis Noonan, Longvalley Restaurant, Midleton. He made a statement admitting the offence.

Det. Officer Kennedy said the box was taken from the dining room. He arrested defendant and cautioned him and he made a statement admitting the offence. There was about 10/- in the box.

Supt. Hughes said defendant returned from England to meet the charge and he intends going back there and in the circumstances.

There will be two special parades on next week for this purpose, one on Tuesday night and the other on Friday night. It is important that all members make a special effort and be present at each of these training parades.

FIELD DAY. On Sunday last, the 28th May, a very successful Field Day was held at Shandon. Attendance was very satisfactory and training was of a high standard. During the course of the day a 2d rifle competition was held, this proved to be a very keen competition as shooting was good. The winner was Pte. J. O'Dwyer with 54 points out of a possible 55; second was a tie between Sergt. Thos. Keating and Pte. J. Kirby; third was a tie between Sergt. R. Walsh, Col. Mielch, McGowan and Pte. Thos. Egan.

Capt. Keating, Batt. O/C presented the prizes and exemplified all present on the turf out and the work which they did to make the Field-day a successful one.

UNLICENSED DOGS Guards Stack, Windle and Dempsey had a number of persons summoned for failing to have their dogs licensed. Most of the defendants were from Sarsfield Terrace.

The P.O. Act was applied in a few cases but in the majority fines of from 10/- to 2/6 were imposed.

"DE WET, DE WET" A reader has obliged us with the following ballad of the famous Boer War personality which should help to revive old memories.

Ho, sing me a song both deep and strong, Like the thunder of hoofs as they roll along, Let the music ride with a swinging stride, Like the gallop of steeds in their strength and pride, When they reach at their bridle and foam and fret, For I sing of a rider—De Wet, De Wet.

JET-POWERED CAPPOQUIN

PULVERISE MOUNT SION

MONASTERY MEN SURRENDER THE SARGENT CUP

Cappoquin - - - 4-9; Mount Sion - - - 3-6

THE jet-powered hurling men of Cappoquin grabbed a niche among the immortals of the game at the local Sportsfield on Sunday evening when, after being in arrears by 3-4 to 1-3 at the break, they pulverised no less a side than champions Mount Sion in a Sargent Cup final that must have warmed the cockles of the hearts of every man jack of the very big attendance.

The triumph, Cappoquin's first in a competition the perpetuates the memory of a sporting son of the town, will, I feel sure, be recalled with swelling chest by the Cornerstone regardless of what they accomplish in the future.

● The mighty fallen

Believe you me there was no shadow of doubt about the champions fall from grace. On the contrary, Cappoquin's victory was every bit as warranted as it was decisive.

Indeed, six points, convincing a margin as it may appear, would scarcely have measured the superiority had not the gods of war spasmodically mocked the endeavours of an attack that shot a spate of wides in addition to the very handsome total of four goals and nine points.

This was surely Cappoquin's finest hour. In turn the men from the Cornerstone met, matched and mastered a variety of situations. They beat the champions at their own game and in the process consolidated a claim to be just about the fastest moving combination in the game as they simply ran the far from leaden-footed Monastery men into the ground.

It is no disparagement of the victory effort to say that Mount Sion lacked the services of Frankie Walsh, Larry Guinan, Freddie O'Brien, Albie Richards and Willie Morrissey—all out of commission for one good reason or another—for Cappoquin's superiority was so pronounced over the hour that I incline to the view that even the presence of such hurling aspirants would not have thwarted Cappoquin's commendable aspirations.

When Mount Sion turned over with a flattering seven-point lead, even the bravest Cappoquin hearts must have been severely disturbed about the outcome.

By my reckoning, the winners should have been well clear at the interval. They had played the more attractive hurling and had enjoyed far more of the play. But the Mount Sion attack had put every ball to such good use that the Cup seemed destined for a further sojourn in the hostilities.

● Zealous opening

Cappoquin put in a zealous if not very profitable first half. But outside their own supporters few could have envisaged them overhauling such renowned finishers as Mount Sion on the resumption.

That they did, however, and in the process they won themselves an entirely new standing in the hurling world. Billy Conway it was who started the comeback shooting a point that was the herald for a further three goals and four points against the tenacious Monastery rearguard. How these Cappoquin men went to town in the dramatic second half! The entire team fully rose to the occasion. They grabbed the initiative in virtually contemptuous fashion—displaying scant regard for reputation—and proceeded to lord the exchanges to an extent that is not aptly reflected in their winning margin. In vain was waited for the legendary Monastery fight back. The home fifteen stood firm; this was their game and the champions had to be content with a measly two points during a half that saw Cappoquin go from strength to strength. At the end they were in complete control. Turning to the men who hammered out a victory that posterity will award a chapter all of its own in the annals of the game in the Blackwater-side town, the inclination is to award every man from goalman O'Donoghue to Mickey Fraher at top-of-the-left the maximum five-star rating.

exchanged points; McCarthy and Flannely did likewise and Mount Sion shot three successive goals per Mick Healy. Jer Mason closed the first half scoring with a point. Mount Sion 3-4; Cappoquin 1-3.

Conway pointed on the turnover; Fraher goaled from a melee and Conway was again on the mark with a point; Tom Keane and Mick Lacey exchanged further points and then amidst great excitement Conway shot a magnificent goal for the lead. Lacey placed the same player for a further point. Mickey Fraher stretched the advantage and points were again exchanged between Healy and Lacey. In the closing stages Cappoquin supplemented their advantage with a major.

● Lacey's distinction
But great as it is the urge to treat this as a team effort and it certainly took a maximum contribution from every man of the fifteen—I feel duty bound to extol the fluent hurling of Mick Lacey, who had the distinction of mastering Seamus Power and Mick Flannely in turn in a desperate battle for mid-field supremacy.

It is true that one man outstripped another in that magnificent second half effort, but Lacey remains the man of the match in my book. Rarely has Seamus Power been so inconspicuous, while Mick Flannely was just as unsuccessful in his duels with the Cappoquin man on reverting to mid-field.

Mick O'Connor, too, was very much in the limelight. He had a comparatively quiet opening half but recovered magnificently and was at his best when the effort was most needed. Right full-back Noel Mason added to his growing reputation. Charlie Cullen was again the essence of consistency at left half and Tom Coffey, a free-striking centre-half, Jimmy Lacey, Liam Dooney and goalman Francis O'Donoghue were all to the fore in bringing the Cup westwards.

Ned Costin had a great opening half until a head injury laid him low, while Tommy McCarthy hurled a while of a game when he switched from full-forward to mid-field.

Every man of the forward section had a hand in running up the winning score. I thought Jim Sargent again the best of the outer line. Billy Conway had his best game for years; Tom Lonergan was a right zealous worker and the full line in which the Fraher brothers and substitute Jer Mason figured for most of the hour always had the losers defence on edge.

On a Mount Sion team that was somewhat disappointing I marked out Billy Mulcahy as a man apart. He was ably supported by centre half Martin Og Morrissey, while Hayden and Connolly more than held their own prior to the interval but succumbed inexplicably on the change.

Grimes, after a magnificent opening, was another "early" being but a shadow of the man who performed with such distinction in the early exchanges.

The remainder of the side left little imprint on the game. Indeed, the surprising thing about the game was that Mount Sion got off so lightly with so many inconspicuous for such long periods.

● Points from play

Mount Sion had points per Keane and Grimes before McCarthy countered with a Cappoquin goal. Sargent and Flavin

MICK LACEY and BILLY CONWAY... heroes all in the defeat of mighty Mount Sion.

CHAMPIONSHIP TIME Our Football Men Face Mighty Kerry

THE APPEARANCE OF STORIED KERRY IN OPPOSITION TO OUR COUNTY MEN SHOULD ENTICE A BIG GATHERING OF FOOTBALL MEN TO WATERFORD ON SUNDAY NEXT. IT GOES WITHOUT SAYING THAT THE KINGDOM REPRESENTATIVES ARE FIRM FAVORITES TO BATTLE THEIR WAY TO YET ANOTHER MUNSTER FINAL, BUT WATERFORD'S FLAIR FOR PRODUCING A MAXIMUM EFFORT WHEN UP AGAINST IT AND THE FACT THAT KERRY ARE NOTORIOUSLY INDIFFERENT CHAMPIONSHIP STARTERS, ENHANCES THE PROSPECTS OF AN INTERESTING ENCOUNTER.

The Waterford team, which was announced after an exciting trial on Thursday evening, is on the expected lines. Kilrossanty, who ran a county selection for three points in the challenge test, supply six players and a substitute while the remainder is comprised of three from champions Mount Sion, and one each from Dungarvan, Cappoquin, Ballyduff Lower, Fenor, Kill and Old Parish.

Local competitions continue to produce a satisfactory standard of football, yet our men have achieved little of note in the inter-county field over the past couple of years. Toward the close of the league tourney, however, they appeared to be again running into form.

On the basis of their away performance against Tipperary, Kerry will have to hope that the final attack looks largely experimental.

The Decies defence, built around around seasoned campaigners in Prendergast, Lonergan, Cunningham and Power, looks particularly sound. Again Ger McCarthy's claims to the goalkeeping berth are above dispute, while Mick O'Connor and Con Crowley, who will captain the team, have rendered sterling service in league and championship encounters over the past eighteen months.

I have heard glowing accounts of Tramore's J. Forde, one of the star turns of the juniors line showing against Limerick last month, who has been called on to partner tenacious Seamus Power at mid-field.

Unfortunately, the vanguard does not inspire the same confidence. The introduction of Jimmy Whyte should add punch to the front line and it is also heartening to see Billy Kirwan again placed at left half-forward where he is best utilised but the overall composition of the attack looks largely experimental.

It is most unlikely that Kerry, none the worse of their narrow failure in the League final, will be caught napping at this stage. But Waterford, on their day, can still put up a performance worthy of the county's fighting heritage.

The Kerry team includes 12 of the side that failed narrowly to Galway in the recent league final. Mick O'Connell, who was forced to stand down against the Tribesmen, returns to the team at centre forward; Tom Moriarty reverts from the later position to left half-back a post vacated by Colum Kenneally who is no longer available.

M. Dwyer takes over the full-forward berth from Mick Murphy, who will be out of the game for several months.

The team is: G. McCarthy (Ballyduff); M. Prendergast (Lurgan); Crowley (Kilrossanty) (Mt. Sion); M. O'Con'r T. Cing'im J. Power (C'quin) (D'van) (K'santy); S. Power S. Forde (Mount Sion) (Tramore); L. Guinan N. Power W. Kirwan (Mt. Sion) (Kill) (Kilrossanty); S. Beresford J. Whyte T. Power (Fenor) (Kilrossanty) (Old Par) or J. Timmons (Kilrossanty); Subs.—S. Roche (De La Salle); G. Whyte (do.); W. Daniels (Dunhill); S. O'Donohue (Kilrossanty); E. McCarthy (Dungarvan); Kerry—D. O'Neill; J. O'Shea; E. Roche, T. Lyons, S. Murphy; J. Dowling, T. Moriarty; T. Long D. O'Shea; P. Sheehy, M. O'Connell, T. Loney, P. Fitzgerald, M. Dwyer, D. McAuliffe. Subs.—T. Barrett, E. Fitzgerald, Jack Dowling, T. Collins, M. Kerins, Seamus Murphy.

AN AMAZING RECOVERY

Geraldines win game of two phases

Geraldines - - - 5-1; Tourin - - - 1-7

AN amazing recovery by a side that appeared to be completely out of touch in the opening half an hour was the feature part of Geraldines dramatic advance to the second round of the senior hurling championship, a distinction they achieved at the expense of a gallant Tourin side at the Sportsfield, Cappoquin, on Sunday afternoon.

When Tourin turned over with a commanding nine points—1-6 to 0-0 advantage, the result appeared a foregone conclusion to all save the most ardent Aglish followers.

Admittedly, the losers had enjoyed and utilised a strong breeze in the opening half but that apart, the general standard of their hurling was vastly superior to the inept and indifferent endeavours of a very subdued Geraldines.

So many of the winning team were at loggerheads with their hurleys in the opening half that the wonder is that Tourin were not further ahead at the interval.

Both sides availed of the occasion to 'blood' some newcomers. The winners, who played the more methodical game, had the better of matters generally. At the end of a hard-fought encounter they held a commanding if somewhat flattering advantage.

The interval when most sides would have thrown in the towel and accepted the apparently inevitable, they struck back at adversity as if it were a symptom of inspiration.

The Aglish men spared nothing as they proceeded to crush the resistance of the fading losers on the change of ends. They shot five goals and one point, all efforts of commendable merit, too, and at the end of a game they seemed certain to lose at one stage they held an advantage that fairly represented the superiority they exercised once they commenced to move with anything like their customary efficiency.

Defeat was a bitter pill for Tourin to swallow. The circumstances of their defeat were almost identical with their collapse at the hands of Abbeyside in last year's championship. Again they saw a big interval advantage whittled away only on this occasion the rot set in much earlier in the hour.

Although supporters, in the light of subsequent recovery, will be apt to overlook the shortcomings which marked Geraldines' disappointing first-half performance, one must not readily disregard such deficiencies when endeavouring to assess the overall worth of the side.

In the opening half, Tourin called the tune; and on the other foot. The losers first half superiority was every bit as pronounced as Geraldines' mastery on the change of ends but where as the Tourin attack rarely troubled a defence that was as sound as bell metal, their rearguard was almost beside itself with anxiety once the winners commenced to hit it off in the last thirty minutes.

The hurling was never great at times there were quite astonishing masses and far too much pelting by men on both sides—but for all that it was a right enjoyable encounter.

And Geraldines contributed largely to that state of affairs as they pulled out all the stops in a second half effort that decisively wiped out the intimidating Tourin lead.

The exchanges were tough and rugged but by and large it was all taken in right good part. Referee Con Crowley, who did a grand job of work, experienced little difficulty in handling his first big hurling game.

The reshuffled Geraldines' defence again claimed a major share of the game's honours. Goalman Lee had one of his best games and outside him the Halls and Mick Keating were doing every situation. Style Riordan put in his usual excellent making further progress.

Although both local games bear a cut and dried appearance, spectators should be rewarded in both instances with highly instructive fare.

Ballynacorney, though recent form would indicate that they have fallen from the lofty place they enjoyed some years ago, should still be too experienced a bunch for a Faha side that will be making its first appearance of the year.

Little is known about the mid-Waterford men. It seems logical to assume that Ballynacorney, with Morrissey, Burke, Whelan, O'Connor and Power in the team will advance a stage further.

Stradbally, the current champions, should experience little difficulty in overcoming what will be largely an experimental Brickey side in an evening encounter.

The Red believe this year's year—a logical assumption of form over the past several of years—and unless the Brickey fifteen is exceptionally talented it is hard to visualise the reigning Western title-holders, once masters of every situation, losing any great difficulty in making further progress.

Local competitions continue to produce a satisfactory standard of football, yet our men have achieved little of note in the inter-county field over the past couple of years. Toward the close of the league tourney, however, they appeared to be again running into form.

On the basis of their away performance against Tipperary, Kerry will have to hope that the final attack looks largely experimental.

Ring Enhance Prospects

Ring, 3-6; Ballynacorney, 1-4

Ring Junior footballers consolidated their position as strong championship contenders with a well-merited victory over Ballynacorney in a challenge test at Fraher Field, Dungarvan on Sunday last.

Both sides availed of the occasion to 'blood' some newcomers. The winners, who played the more methodical game, had the better of matters generally. At the end of a hard-fought encounter they held a commanding if somewhat flattering advantage.

WATERFORD LADIES FAIL AGAINST CORK

Cork 7-5; Waterford 2-1

THAT zeal and endeavour are poor substitutes for craft and hurling finesse was demonstrated in no uncertain manner at the Cork Athletic Grounds on Sunday evening when a powerful Cork combination overcame Waterford but inexperienced Waterford side in the opening round of the Munster Camogie Championship.

In the opening half the visitors shaped up well enough, but they failed to maintain the effort and the better armed Cork twelve gradually forged ahead. Trailing 5-2 to 2-1 at the break, Waterford did well to keep the final tally down to a further two goals and three points.

This was Waterford's first outing together, whereas the winners had the benefit of a previous limb-loosener with a Combined Universities selection. In the circumstances the Decies ladies gave a very creditable performance.

Individually, Waterford, with a couple of surprise selections, were well served by Misses McNamara, Power, McCarthy and Kieley, but they lacked the teamwork and experience of the seasoned Corkians.

Scorers for Cork were A. Crotty (3-0), N. Duggan (2-5), N. Deane and M. Joyce (1-0) each and for Waterford, A. Browne and T. O'Meara (1-0) each and N. McGrath (0-1).

Cork—Misses E. O'Donovan, B. Lacey, B. Walsh, J. Clancy, N. Murphy, P. J. O'Grady, M. Hayes, L. Coughlan (captain), A. Crotty, N. Duggan, M. Joyce, N. Deane.

Waterford—Misses M. Mooney, J. McNamara, R. Lonergan, N. McGrath (capt), N. Kieley, G. Power, N. McGrath, M. Nugent, M. Byrne, T. O'Meara, N. McCarthy, E. Browne.

Referee, Miss T. Griffin (Tipperary).

tenacity of purpose and matched the more seasoned winners in everything but teamwork and experience.
