An Example of Idealism Gone Wrong

"FACING THE TRUTH"

THE IRISH REPUBLICAN MOVEMENT IS A CANALISATION OF THE URGE TOWARDS NATIONAL SELF-EXPRESSION. IT IS A DYNAMIC FOR THE DISAPPOINTED MEN WHO WANT TO DO SOMETHING. THE MOVEMENT BELIEVE THEY HAVE THE TRUTH. IT DOES NOT MATTER TO THEM WHETHER THEY REPRESENT THE WILL OF THE MAJORITY OF THE IRISH PEOPLE, THOUGH FOR OBVIOUS REASONS THEY WILL TRY TO GET AS MUCH POPULAR SUPPORT AS POSSIBLE.

This was stated by Mr. Ivor Kenny, M.A. at last week's Social Study Conference held at Mount Mellery, when he delivered a lecture on "Traditions, Ideals and the Language".

Mr. Kenny stated: "A man's death does not make the movement's principles more holy. But it does cloud judgment on the issues involved. These people are only too willing to listen to the pleas of the demagogue. The Irish Republican Movement is not wrong because it has been condemned by the Bishops. The Bishops condemned it because it is wrong. Many people invoke what can only be called private judgment when the Church pronounces on a political issue. 'The Church has no right to meddle in politics,' they say. The Republican movement was an example of idealism gone wrong.

When the Church sees fit to condemn it and when some of us see fit to criticise the Church for doing so, it is time we examined our consciences. It is not the Church's right in the political sphere. Too many of us are too ready to indulge in emotional ethics. The Church has indirect or 'oblique' power over temporal affairs because she has direct control over our consciences. She has indirect power over earthly states because of the effects of her commands and her counsel to her children.

are situated. The pietas must begin with the parish.

"Facing the Truth"
If we realised that we are the heirs to a great tradition, we would stop play-acting and start being ourselves, sinn fein in a real sense. Our Tostal was an example of our willingness to be anything but ourselves. We call it Ireland At Home and then present the world with international theatre and cinema festivals. With tremendous trumpets we hold a pageant of Cuchulainn in Croke Park in English. But Padraig Pearse did exactly the same thing in Irish. That was not merely play-acting, it was retrospection. They spent money on lanterns and bows of light while their holy places were choked with nettles and used as cow byres. They stuck cardboard coats of arms on lamp-posts while Clonmacnoise lies in a state of ruinous neglect. Could they not try to be national before they went all international? If the Tostal was to be a festival of the arts, then let it be Irish.

"We Deserve no Better"
"There is amid this confusion, at least, a vague consciousness in the country of the Gaelic ideal," stated Mr. Kenny. "At least we can say now that the Ascendancy have gone and that because they are physically not there we no longer have them to look to for our lead. Though we have replaced them with nothing yet, most people believe that an Irish Ireland might be a good thing. They even pay some lip service to the Irish language. That consciousness is the first step. But it is a small enough thing to have achieved after 30 years of handling our own affairs. If our doing some thing wrong, or because of our tradition goes no further than a fundamental consciousness, then we can say that 600 years of alien misrule have succeeded admirably. We deserve no better than to be a nation of serfs throwing up the odd genius who will emigrate eventually, turn sour and pour vilification on the head of old Ireland."

"The revival," he said, "must begin in the schools. There was not a school in the country five miles from the very stones that cry out of tradition. Simple lessons could be taught on the spiritual, artistic and architectural traditions of the very townland in which the schools are."

In conclusion, Mr. Kenny stated: "Every citizen is not a Catholic but every Catholic is a citizen. Our obligations as citizens are magnified a hundred-fold even through our religion. They have particular point when the nation is dying. The word 'crisis' will regain its meaning for us only when we look the truth in the face. That truth is not pleasant. But if I see few immediate signs of recovery, I cannot believe that God has condemned us to die as a nation."

"Partition Not the Blame"

It seems to be part of the Republican Movement's platform that our national ills and particularly, the spiritual malice of our country are caused by Partition because we are conscious that the British have given us as much freedom as they chose and that they retain a beach-head on our territory. There is a germ of truth in this. But the abolition of the border would be no cure to our ills. The revival of the Irish language would require a tremendous effort. Much harm had been done particularly in the schools trying to minimise this effort and by drawing analogies with other countries who have preserved their language. Harm has been done too by teaching a slanted super-patriotic isolationist history which leads us to believe that the battle ended in 1922 and that all we have to do is to beat the Six Counties and all will be right with the world."

"The Gombeen"

Mr. Kenny continued: "The national morale is very low. We have almost lost our self respect as a nation. We have almost lost our self confidence. We have almost lost our ability to do anything about the condition of the country. We are in the grip of apathy. We are discouraged from moving by the eternal chant of the gombeen man 'Where will that get you?' or more pointedly, 'I'm all right.'"

"Some people," stated Mr. Kenny, "imagined they have a corner on our traditions; for the zealot who partly understands the whole truth and turns his back on the crowd, down to the Republican Movement who understand part of the truth and have developed a criminal lunacy. Many people, of course, did not care. The suburban bourgeois has indefinable regrets about having gone to U.C.D. instead of to Trinity. The emigrant joins a Connolly Club after his first dance at the Hammersmith Palais. And all these were influenced whether they willed it or not, by the twilight world of the newspapers, the world of near misses at the truth, where everything has a slant, where everything is filtered through so many minds that what reaches us eventually has a nightmare quality. This slant was on the outside only. To add the Comhaltas Ceoltóirí Eirí to the confusion there were the eann in Dungarvan recently on

Colr. Moloney Speaks Again

Editor, "Dungarvan Observer" Sir,
Your headlines on the 3rd inst amaze me. It's a sorry state of affairs when we behold our Waterford Committee of Agriculture discussing the Fethard-on-Sea dispute at this stage. The President, the Taoiseach, and Bishops of both denominations have already done their best to end this dispute. It's pathetic to see the Committee of Agriculture wasting ratepayers' money in discussing such matters, which are entirely outside their sphere.—Yours truly,
M. DONAL MOLONEY,
U.D.C.

POTATO BLIGHT

The Minister for Agriculture again desires to draw the attention of growers to the necessity for having potato crops sprayed against blight at least twice. The open foliage and replaces spray fortnightly intervals is recommended to prevent its spread which is favoured by a period of rain over weather. Repeated spraying protects newly developing foliage and replaces spray washed off by rain and other causes. Many potato crops have made soft vigorous growth and are very liable to suffer unless blight is kept in check by adequate spraying.

Kilmacthomas, Kilrossanty and Stradbally Notes

Weighty Catch—While rodfishing from the beach at Ballydoran Cove (between Bonmahon and Stradbally) on Thursday of last week, Mr. Colm Jones, a Birmingham holidaymaker, landed a bass weighing 9 lbs. less 3 ozs.

Obituary—Widespread sorrow has been occasioned by the death of Mrs. Margaret Walsh (relict of Mr. Edward Walsh), Hotel, Kilmacthomas, which sad event occurred at her residence on Thursday week, 8th inst, following a comparatively short illness and in the fullness of her years, and is acutely regretted by an exceptionally expansive circle of firm friends, for her earnestness and sincerity had secured for her a special place in the affection of those with whom she came in contact. She was, indeed, a model citizen, a hospitable and charitable neighbour, and a most exemplary and devoted member of the Mother Church; but the son (Mr. Joseph Walsh), daughters (Misses Annie and Rita Walsh), and relatives and friends who mourn her departure hence are consoled at the knowledge that she died as she lived, patient and resigned to the Will of her Creator.

Sprung from a grand old Deise family stock—the Murphys of Dunhill Castle estate, Anestown, Tramore — Mrs. Walsh was sister of the late Very Rev. John Murphy, P.P., Stradbally and Ballylansan, who died in 1936, a worthy well-beloved and revered pastor of honoured memory. She was aunt of the Murphy family, Dunhill, and the McGrath family, Mountrivers, Cappoquin (including the late Dr. John McGrath, State Pathologist, Dublin).

A cortege of imposing dimensions and most representative accompanied the removal of the remains to the Convent Chapel, Kilmacthomas, where the coffin was placed on a catafalque before the high altar. Immediately after the celebration of Requiem Mass in the sacred edifice at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning, the funeral took place to Newtown Cemetery and was one of the finest public tributes of respect to the memory of departed worth ever seen locally. Very Rev. H. Synnot, B.A., P.P., officiated at the graveside, assisted by the Rev. M. Wall, C.C. Kilmacthomas, and the Rev. L. Walsh, C.C., Kill.

A number of beautiful floral wreaths were placed on the grave and sheaves of spiritual bouquets and messages of condolence were received. Peace to the gentle soul departed.

Kilmacthomas Fair—Held on Friday last, the monthly fair in Kilmac was appreciably stocked in all sectors, and with ample buyers in attendance, a complete clearance was effected. Prices—yearling bullocks and heifers, £21 to £22 each; 2-year-old Hereford bullocks, £38 to £56 each; 2-year-old Short-horn bullocks, £35 to £46 each; 1½ year-old heifers, £32 to £38 each; 3-year-old bullocks, £55 to £67 each; bulls, £5 per cwt.; live weight; canning cows, £22 to £38 each; Continental cows, £40 to £48 each; milch cows, £45 to £60 each; fat wethers, £6 to £7; fat lambs, £5 to £5-10-0; fat ewes £5 10s. to £6.

Evidence of the spell of Curraghmore for tourists was not lacking on Sunday last, when Curraghmore House, pleasure grounds, shell house, etc., were open to the public by gracious permission of the Marquis of Waterford. Tourists from all over Munster and Leinster, with not a few from Cross-Channel centres availed of the opportunity of viewing this noted re-splendent Deise demesne.

Revisiting his native Kilmacthomas district since last week is Very Rev. Michael Foley, C.F., Sandhurst Military College, who is the guest of his well and popularly known sister and brother (Miss Joan Foley and Mr. Ned Foley) at Shanakill House. His reverence, who is in radiant health and spirits, said the early Mass in St. Anne's Church, Ballylansan, last Sunday.

Well to the Fore at the Royal Dublin Society's Horse Show at Ballsbridge, last week, were two of Munster's front-rank breeders and exhibitors of hunters and huntresses in the persons of Messrs. Nick Conners, Park, Stradbally and Larry O'Byrne, Stonebrook Lodge — two clubbable sportsmen through and through.

"The Sunday Press" Crossword No. 397—Two competitors who submitted entries agreed at all points with what the Adjudication Committee deemed the most appropriate and ingenious answers to above competition (subject to any recheck) share the big prize of £500, each to receive £250. One of the successful pair is Mr. John Whelan opposite Post Office, Kilmacthomas, a ready, willing and obliging van salesman in the employment of Messrs. Patrick Kiersey and Son, Ltd., hardware and general provision merchants, Main Street, do., and he is to be congratulated on his skill and good luck.

Local Young Lady's Appointment.—Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ryan (business manager and farmer), The Gables, Kilmacthomas, is Miss Elizabeth Anne Ryan, a candidate who emerged successfully from the examination (open) held recently in Dublin for the filling of a limited number of Provincial Bank of Ireland clerkships vacancies, has been appointed to the Clonmel branch thereof and took up duty last Monday morning. Here's wishing this talented young lady of rare charm of manner continuing increasing success in pursuit of the honoured profession of her choice. Incidentally she is niece of Very Rev. Fr. M. Foley, C.F., Sandhurst Military College, and of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. McDermott, Dalguise, Dublin.

PLANTING AND MANAGEMENT OF FARM HEDGES

The importance of good hedges on agricultural land of any kind is so obvious to owners and occupiers that it is unnecessary to give reasons for advocating that proper attention be paid to them. At the outset the cost of planting and raising a thorn hedge is comparatively heavy, but in excess of that incurred in erecting a post and wire fence. But when once established, a thorn hedge, if properly managed, is practically impervious, while its value for shelter to live stock against wind is well-known. It may be true that many hedges fail to serve as fences, are of little or no value as shelter, and are rather an eyesore than an improvement on a farm. When, however, this state of things has been brought about by a long course of neglect, or of bad management, such examples do not provide a sufficient reason for condemning hedges generally, or for regarding them as useless features on agricultural land.

POSITION OF HEDGES

To obtain the greatest benefits from the planting of hedges it is necessary to bear several points in mind. First, the site for a hedge should be only on a boundary line, road side, or main divisional line of a farm, or wherever a permanent fence is required. The trouble and expense of raising a hedge make it imperative that its function should be performed over a long period, otherwise no adequate return can be made for the original outlay. Hedges, therefore, are not adapted for the sub-division of fields, or for enclosing small areas of land, unless in the cases of orchards or gardens, as they take up much more ground than a dead fence and are wasteful when in excess. In the second place, a hedge should always be planted on fairly good ground, otherwise it will not retain its vigour for any length of time. Strong loams or clayey soils, or those of a fairly deep and porous nature, will usually grow good hedges at an moderate elevation, but on poor gravels and shales, or thin soils, sheltered situations are necessary to produce satisfactory hedges. Other points of importance are the careful choice of a species of hedge plant to suit the soil and situation, and the proper preparation of the soil before planting. Upon the latter operation will depend the speedy development of the plants into a stout hedge, and several years in a regular curve, according to the direction in which the hedge is to be run. This trench should be about 9 inches deep and 12 inches wide and the soil taken out of it should be placed on one side so that it can be thrown up easily on the opposite row.

SPECIES OF HEDGES

Species suitable for forming hedges intended to keep back live stock are comparatively few in number, unless the hedge is placed on a bank. On level ground a hedge must be formed of stiff growing plants, such as whitethorn or blackthorn, otherwise heavy cattle break through them sooner or later. With a low bank, however, many other species may be found which answer the purpose fairly well according to the nature of the soil. On good strong soils of any kind the whitethorn is undoubtedly the best for all-round purposes. Blackthorn and hornbeam do well on very stiff clay, with proper drainage. On light, dry soils, beech and myrobalan plum are probably the best, the latter making a very rapid growth. On bog land, probably birch, mountain pine, or white spruce are the most satisfactory hedges if properly managed, while several species of willow or alder can also be used in such places. Where shelter is wanted, a certain proportion of beech or hornbeam may be used with any of the deciduous species, as the former retain their leaves through the winter and most effectively break the wind. Strong, well-rooted plants, from 1 1/2 to 2 feet high, are usually the best size for use when planting hedges; larger plants are slower in becoming established.

METHOD OF PLANTING

When hedges are planted on the flat, the ground should be trenched to a depth of 2 feet and to a width of about 3 feet. If the soil is of a poor nature, planted hedges should be planted on a raised bank, also protected against rabbits. To avoid the necessity for this fencing, the custom prevails in many parts of Ireland of building up a high turf bank and planting the hedges on its face. This form a ready-made fence at once, and as the hedge develops it prevents the bank from being pulled down after the turves have decayed, while the turf and the hedge must be held together also assist in holding it together. So long as the bank remains intact this form of hedge answers the purpose fairly well, but it often gets into an unsatisfactory state in the long run and is difficult to repair. Where stones have been freely used in its construction it is, however, of a more durable character.

MANAGEMENT

For three or four years after planting, hedges require little beyond keeping clean from weeds at the bottom. At the end of that time they should have become thoroughly established, and their branches should fill up all gaps between the plants. For the purpose of forming a thick, close bottom, however, it is usual to cut off the thorns, plums, etc., close to the ground, so that each plant may throw out a number of strong, straight shoots, which form the backbone of the hedge later on. This cutting should be done with a sharp knife, but should not be applied to beech or hornbeam, as these should not be touched until they have reached the height desired. The mistake is often made of cutting hedge plants at the time they are planted, or the year following. The plants are not then in a position to throw out strong shoots, and when cutting is done at that time the hedge often remains weak for several years. At least three years should elapse between the planting of the hedges and cutting it over, and the resulting growth will then form a stiff erect hedge which will serve as a fence in the second season and can then be cut at once into shape.

The efficiency of hedges depends a great deal upon the shape to which they are kept trimmed. The only satisfactory form in which a hedge can be maintained is that of a wedge or triangle, the base of which rests on the ground, and comes to a point about four feet up. Given such a shape, all parts of the hedge receive an equal share of light, and the parts near the ground is kept thick and close. When kept round or square at the top the bottom invariably becomes weak and thin, and gaps are easily made in it.

The cutting or trimming of hedges should be done with a sharp hedge-knife and the cut should always be made in an upward direction, so as not to tear or bruise the shoots of the hedge. For ordinary farm hedges, cutting once in two or three years is often enough, provided the hedges are cut hard and not allowed to get larger and wider at each cutting, thus and weak places should be attended to at each cutting and strengthened by putting in a post and rail, or by heading the plants on either side into the gap. Dead thorns or rubbers of any kind should never be left to fill up a gap, or the latter will probably become permanent by the weakening and death of the plants on which the rubbers stand.

YOUGHAL NEWS

VANDALISM AGAIN

During the week-end when it was estimated that over 2000 people arrived in town, the morning papers of several towns in the Sligo District were cut. It was fortunate that there was no strong breeze blowing at the time otherwise the boats, many of them valuable, might have been blown to sea or stranded against the quayside. The matter is being investigated by the local Garda. Boatowners have sufficient trouble at times to protect their craft in boats of bad weather without having to guard against the damage by such irresponsible. Due to lack of information the authorities are hampered in their investigations and persons who have the slightest clue should not hesitate in passing it on so that the parties responsible are brought to justice.

YOUGHAL RACES

The Youghal Races were run at Youghal on Monday last in ideal conditions and large crowds patronised the event. Although the entries were not large, the biggest field being five horses, still the racing left nothing to be desired and the organisation was perfect.

Second Race—The Greenishyke Plate, Value £35-1.

Mr. M. D. Buckley (Donoughmore), Curragh Lad; 2. Mr. M. D. Buckley's (Don), Black Bird; 3. Mr. J. Burns (Banter), Clockwork.

Third Race—The Blackwater Plate, Value £25-1.

Mr. James O'Brien's (Luch), Snow Motion; 2. Mr. John O'Brien's (Don), Brown Bess; 3. Mr. M. Moore's (Old Parish), Moon Light Valley.

Fourth Race—The Youghal Derby (C40)-1.

Mr. Thomas Maher's Silver Rock; 2. Mr. M. D. Buckley's (Donoughmore), Donoughmore Boy; 3. Mr. M. Moore's (Old Parish), Moon Light Valley.

Fifth Race—Strand Place (C25)-1.

Mr. M. Moore's Moon Light Valley; 2. Mr. Don Sullivan's (New Hill), 3. Mr. Con O'Brien's (No Surprises).

Sixth Race—Consolation Race (C10)-1.

Mr. M. D. Buckley's Blackbird; 2. Mr. B. Power's (Park), Tallow Hill.

LIFEBOAT CALLED OUT

Between 6 and 6.30 on Thursday evening an emergency call was phoned to Youghal Lifeboat station saying that a swimmer was in difficulties some distance offshore from the centre of the strand promenade. At the time the tide was full and a heavy sea was running.

The lifeboat, under Coxswain Hickey, was launched but the swimmer, a man, could not be seen as by this time he had arrived safely ashore. The boat however searched the area for an hour, not knowing that the swimmer was safe.

Leaflet on Fruit Pests

How the various insects and other pests which attack fruit crops may be identified and dealt with is concisely shown by the Department of Agriculture leaflet "Some Injurious Orchard Insects and Mites". The leaflet which is number 85 may be obtained free of charge and post free on application to the Secretary, Department of Agriculture, Dublin. Envelopes should be marked "Publications".

Tourin footballers stop Siabh gCua

Tourin footballers, though by no stretch of the imagination a great side, proved immeasurably superior to Siabh gCua in a rather disappointing group semi-final at Cappoquin on last Sunday.

Although they played into a fairly strong breeze, Tourin forged a first-half advantage that as good as won them a ticket forward to meet Cappoquin in the next round. A point ahead at the interval, the winners faltered for a time on the resumption but recovered again and were in a commanding position long before the end.

Siabh gCua occasionally displayed some nice touches—their outfield combination was often first rate—but they showed a patent lack of thrust in front of goal.

The winners, who could yet develop into a fairly formidable combination, were ably served by Tom Fives, Dick Dooney, Roger Ryan, Tom Barry and Sean Rourke.

Sean Whelan, the Kieleys, Hickey, and Keatinge were the most notable performers on the Tourin side.

Tourin's total was shared by Sean Rourke (1-1), R. Ryan (0-3), J. J. O'Donnell (1-0).

Brickies defend camogie crown

The Fraher Field is sure to house a huge crowd on Tuesday next when Brickie Rangers, the reigning titleholders, and Ballinamult do battle for the county camogie championship. Both sides have cut an impressive dash to the final hurdle and the indications are that their impatiently awaited clash will provide the treat of the camogie year.

Ballinamult will probably start slight favourites. Their stock has soared since the semi-final triumph over neighbouring Kilmorien, last year's finalists, and confidence abounded in the Tourin camp that they will do a dethroning act.

But the Brickies are great championship battlers. They won well from Dungarvan in the opening round and last time out had too much in hand for Fourmilewater. Certain it is that they will not relinquish the crown without a mighty battle.

One way or the other, spectators are assured of hectic entertainment.

BALLINAMULT OBJECT

Ballinamult hurlers, defeated in the area semi-final which was decided at Lismore on last Sunday week, have objected to the constitution of the winning Tallow team. The objection alleges that the Brickies included an unregistered player.

UNEXPECTED TOURNAMENT REVERSE

Waterford Hurlers Fall At Bruff

WATERFORD senior hurlers tasted the bitterness of defeat for the first time in several months when they fell before the spirited stickwork of a rampant Limerick side in the final of the Gold Watches tournament at Bruff on Sunday last. The Decies county men were strangely listless and Limerick's victory, as decisive as it was unexpected, was a fair indication of the trend of the play.

Waterford played twelve of the side which deservedly whipped the Shannonsiders in the opening round of the Munster championship. Substitute Ned Power took the place of Dick Roche between the posts. Tom Cunningham continued in his now established post at right full-back. Seamus Power was again mid-field and Donal Whelan operated in the berth vacated by the Mount Sion man in attack.

In point of fact, Power for Roche, was the only alteration from the fifteen which accounted for Galway in the All-Ireland semi-final. Johnny O'Connor, who is still troubled by a thumb injury sustained during the course of the Munster Final, did not make his expected re-appearance.

The homesters contained thirteen of the unsuccessful championship side, but there were several positional changes. Tom McGarry and Dermot Kelly, who hitherto operated in attack, flanked Seamus Ryan; the Quaine twins were to the right and left of new full-back Willie Keane, and Liam Ryan and Mick O'Shea were drafted into the vanguard.

Few anticipated such a capable showing from what was largely an experimental Limerick fifteen. But the Shannonsiders rose to the occasion to take the confident Waterford men by obvious surprise. The opening exchanges were of an even nature. At the short whistle Limerick led by 1-5 to 0-2, a far from decisive advantage but in vain they took the confident Waterford men by obvious surprise.

Old Parish mastered Dungarvan on fifth attempt

That it's a long road that has no turning was demonstrated at the Fraher Field on Friday night when Dungarvan footballers came a cropper and Old Parish, at the fifth attempt deservedly gained a ticket to the final of the Ballinacourty Medal Tournament (1955).

Old Parish, currently a strong championship fancy, had to fight hard to finally assert their supremacy. That they did to the extent of a four points margin, though they scarcely enhanced their championship prospects in the process.

The Shocks, however, are capable of better things in the premier competition. As it was they were probably well satisfied to get over the tenacious Blues at last.

The Geraldines-Cappoquin second round senior hurling contest which was originally billed for the Fraher Field on Sunday next, has been postponed to a later date. The County Board had decided to take this precaution in view of the fact that the Cornerstone side contains three of the selection currently training for the All-Ireland final. It is believed that the game will now take place on Sunday, Sept. 8th.

Kilrossanty beat Dunhill

Kilrossanty made light of the best efforts of Dunhill and harr out convincing winners in a senior football challenge at Leamurien on Monday evening.

The Comeragh men, though short the services of half-a-dozen regulars, gave one of the best displays in a long time. On top, throughout, they played grand football to run up a big total despite the rugged defence of the visitors.

Dunhill were a trifle disappointed and must certainly step up to a considerable extent if they are to overcome Kill in the championship replay on Sunday.

Gaelic Commentary

Defeated but not dismayed

Any inclination to treat the final hurdle of our bid for the hurling championship as a matter of form has been rudely shattered as a result of last Sunday's totally unexpected eclipse at the hands of Limerick in the final of the Bruff tournament.

Let's be frank about it, no Waterford man was prepared for such a reverse at this stage. Cork hurlers though they are, few outside their most ardent supporters could have envisaged a Garroven fifteen, without an outing since we stopped them in the championship two months ago, winning where Cork and Galway had already fallen. But who they did in a manner that was clear cut and warranted on the day's play.

Maybe it was that they underestimated the strength of the opposition, or the tendency to avoid jeopardising their prospects of fielding a full strength side on final day—the more obvious assumption—but whatever the cause, Waterford's performance lacked the characteristics that have stamped their march to a Croke Park appearance on September Sunday.

The consequences are obvious. Beyond the Decies County, Kilkenny, who have fairly recently since their humiliation of Wexford, are installed firm favourites to wrest the McCarthy Cup and in the Ossey camp itself there reigns a buoyant confidence in their ability to vindicate public opinion.

But conscious of Portlairge's traditional flair and influenced by recollections of our men in the role of "giant-killers," I am inwardly happy at this latest turn of events. Were it not the underdogs in '48, when we swept in sensational fashion to our lone success in the competition and again when winning from Limerick and Cork in the current year's Munster tests.

Victory, 'tis true, would have given our final preparations an auspicious send off. But knowing the spirit of the present wearers of the white and blue I have no doubt that defeat will only make them all the more earnest and determined in their tuning up for final day.

The big, hard-hitting men of Tourin posed too many problems for Siabh gCua in the preceding junior football encounter. Tourin by no means looked a great side but they are big, strong and wholehearted enough to trouble anything left in the competition. Their clash with neighbouring Cappoquin in the group final could provide one of the highlights of the championship.

The County Board has opened a fund to help defray the colossal expense involved in preparing the senior hurlers for the All-Ireland final. Remittances, which will be acknowledged on official receipt forms, may be sent to the Chairman, Secretary or Treasurer of the Board.

The Dublin-based sons of the Decies—Sean Feeney, P. J. Rheinisch, Ned Daly and their colleagues—have ambitious plans to fete the county senior hurlers on the evening of the final. The pleasant function will be held in the Grand Hotel, Malahide. A limited number of tickets will be on sale to the general public at 2/- each. Applications for same should be forwarded to the organisers on or before August 29th.

Wexford's fall from grace has prompted the organisers of the annual Oireachtas tournament to revise their fixture list. Waterford will now meet the champions at New Ross on Sept. 13th—not Kilkenny as originally billed—and the Ossey county men will oppose Galway in the other semi-final. The final will as usual take place in Croke Park.

The appearance of Kilkenny in senior and minee finals against Waterford and Tipperary must constitute the first occasion on record that such close neighbours have qualified to contest both deciders.

Drawn game

There were thrills aplenty at Cappoquin on Sunday last when Shamrocks and Lismore fought out an exciting draw in the quarter final of the divisional junior hurling championship.

The standard of performance was top class, eight goals and twelve points were shared and fortunes generally fluctuated in a manner that had rival followers almost beside themselves with anxiety. The result might quite easily have gone either way. Though Shamrocks certainly encountered what ill-luck was going. Yet any side which led to the final minute, as Lismore did, scarcely deserved to lose. The end was dramatic as Shamrocks goalied for the lead almost on the call of time and Lismore battled back for an equalising point. Perhaps a draw was the most fitting outcome in all the circumstances.

The Dublin-based sons of the Decies—Sean Feeney, P. J. Rheinisch, Ned Daly and their colleagues—have ambitious plans to fete the county senior hurlers on the evening of the final. The pleasant function will be held in the Grand Hotel, Malahide. A limited number of tickets will be on sale to the general public at 2/- each. Applications for same should be forwarded to the organisers on or before August 29th.

Wexford's fall from grace has prompted the organisers of the annual Oireachtas tournament to revise their fixture list. Waterford will now meet the champions at New Ross on Sept. 13th—not Kilkenny as originally billed—and the Ossey county men will oppose Galway in the other semi-final. The final will as usual take place in Croke Park.

The appearance of Kilkenny in senior and minee finals against Waterford and Tipperary must constitute the first occasion on record that such close neighbours have qualified to contest both deciders.

Points from play

Waterford drew first blood with a Whelan point in the second minute. Cobb equalised and the visitors led again when Cheasty pointed after six minutes. At the end of the first quarter Prendergast again levelled up and Limerick swept into an interval lead with a goal per Tynan and three flashing points from the stick of Liam Ryan.

Half-time — Limerick 1-5; Waterford, 0-2. Immediately on the resumption, Ryan and Grimes exchanged points. Substitute O'Malley raised another white flag for the homesters and there was a further exchange of minors between Seamus Power and Ryan. In the final quarter of an hour Limerick had points from L. Moloney, L. Ryan and M. O'Shea (0-2), and T. McGarry and L. Kelly. Frank Walsh shot Waterford's goal on the stroke of time.

SCOREBOARD

Tourin, 2-4; Siabh gCua, 0-2. Shamrocks, 4-6; Lismore 4-6

Willie Ryan, Tom Lincen, Jim Crowley and Kip Tobin were the big men of the side further afield.

Tom Lincen (0-2) and Bob Lincen (0-1) had early Lismore scores. Murphy opened Shamrocks account with a minor and Billy Ryan negatived in a Lismore assault. Jim Crowley shot a simple goal for Lismore, Murphy was again on the mark with a Shamrocks' point, and Crowley added a similar score for the wearers of the black and amber. Sharkey, McGrath goalied; Tobin retaliated with a Lismore point and McGrath shot a further goal before the short whistle.

Vaughan goalied on the resumption, Tommy Geary replied with a point but Lismore came again for a brace of goals per Crowley and O'Donnell. Morrisson pointed for Shamrocks, Murphy repeated the effort and the latter and McGrath shared a brace of goals in a tremendous finish. Then came Crowley's balancing point.

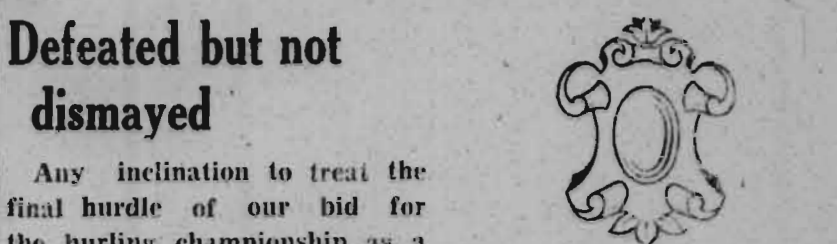

Cork confound

Cork confounded the critics when deservedly dethroning Galway, last year's All-Ireland champions in the football semi-final at Croke Park on Sunday last. The Leasiders turned in a most accomplished performance in spite of the wretched conditions and displayed all the fighting qualities for which the county has ever been renowned. Four points down at the end of the first quarter, Cork battled back to notch a brace Cappoquin, Dunhill, Ballyduff and Erin's Own have yet to make an appearance in the competition. How different from Kilkenny, where the local championships are in the process of completion, Sunday next sees the first of the Ossey semi-finals between that was ours also.

Best hurler on view was Shamrocks Tommy Geary who simply lorded the mid-field exchanges. He was well supported by Callaghan, Roberts, Allen and M. Geary in defence while John Joe Murphy, "Sharkey" McGrath and Morrisson took the chief honours in an attack that finished the hour on a high note.

The veteran Peter Keavins, who kept a great goal, was Lismore's man of the match. Ron Donnell was the mainspring of a Western attack failed to register a single major, a distinction that was ours also.

We reckoned not with the fighting spirit of the enthusiastic Shamrocks. Centre-forward Morrisson heralded the recovery

RÚARÍ Ó RÍADA

Slieveve and Glenmore quarter final tie between the Lockes and Graigue. All four of the county players Paddy Buggy, Mick Walsh, Dick Rockett and Mick Walsh were involved. And Kilkenny, with thirteen All-Ireland's under their belt, should have a fair idea of the final method of preparation for a championship fifteen.

In the past we have had similar instances. Did not Kerry play a county final the week before an All-Ireland in which they were engaged some years back.

Personally, I thought the Board had considered all the circumstances before the fixtures were ratified at the last meeting. What prompted the change of heart at the eleventh hour?

Waterford mentors have done a grand job to date. They have "nursed" their charges to within a stone throw of the championship and the county at large have acclaimed their work. But is this latest course of action really necessary? Time will probably vindicate or reject their judgment.
