"I WANT to say emphatically that I will not be leaving you here in County Waterford. I will stay amongst you and nobody will embarrass me with their troubles. I will continue to do all I can to help them . . . and in staying here, I will do all I can for all those who have done so much for me."

This was stated by Mr. Sean Ormonde, T.D., Minister for Posts and Telegraphs in his reply to the many tributes paid him by officers and members of the Dungarvan Comhairle ceannair of Fianna Fail at a really memorable reception dinner given by friends and supporters in West Waterford to mark his appointment as Minister of State.

Held in the Devonshire Arms Hotel, which was specially decorated with the National Colours for the occasion, the large number of guests representing 11 clubs were treated to an exceptionally fine dinner and a night's entertainment that brought a happy Christmas spirit among the gathering.

In proposing the Toast of "The Minister", Declan Goode recalled the simple story of over a quarter of a century ago when as a young lad keen on the game of stick and ball, he went to a County Convention of the G.A.A. in the Courthouse. Standing in the background he listened to a grey-haired old man from Lismore as he spoke in support of the motion he was moving for his club.

LONDON CLUB CONGRATULATES NEW MINISTER

AT a recent meeting of the Co. Waterford Social Club (London) Mr. J. Ormonde, T.D., Waterford, was congratulated on his recent appointment as Minister for Posts and Telegraphs.

A vote of sympathy was passed to the relatives of the late Mr. Todd Flynn.

Several members present paid tributes to Mr. Flynn, who was described as a fine type of Irish man whose death has left a void hard to fill.

Mr. Goode referred to the new Minister's recent statements when he was approached by representatives of the Press. The Minister placed the importance of the G.A.A. above everything else and none was more entitled to do so. He had stood by his principles like his father before him and he had played his games in accordance with its rules.

Mr. Goode went on to pay high tribute to the Minister's part in the administration of local and national affairs since the day he succeeded the late Michael Morrissey, T.D., of Dungarvan. The fact that he had now been appointed Minister was but a small tribute to his exceptional credentials.

"In congratulating him I do so not as Minister for Posts and Telegraphs but as Jackie Ormonde from the town of Lismore in the Deise County . . . a man we should look up to at all times as Minister for State. We should never rise to embarrass him in any way. He is a man of the people and always has been. We would like him to hold that title and we are prepared to stand behind him for all time."

TAKE UP THE BANNER

Mr. Goode stated that it should well become them to take up to Partition. Mr. de Valera was against the use of force and they should stand behind him in this.

Ald. Kennelly said he believed the economic position of the nation would settle itself within a short time. They had been told that in order to tackle the great emigration problem that was a serious worry to them all, they would need at least 20,000 new jobs to be created every year. It was the hope of the Minister for Industry and Commerce, Mr. Lemass, to bring about this situation and they should lend their full support to his plan in any way they could.

Ald. Kennelly stated: "It is hardly necessary at a gathering such as this to make mention of the part played by our organisation in the development of the modern Irish nation.

Yet we, who are daily and actively in touch with the Party, are becoming more and more inclined to take its existence very much for granted and as time goes by and our Government and leaders continue their noble efforts to improve the lot of their people, we show an ever increasing tendency to overlook the far-reaching revolutionary changes which have taken place in every sphere of National activity since Fianna Fail first came into existence and set about its task of rebuilding an Irish State."

Continuing, Ald. Kennelly stated: "This, while a natural development, is something we should try to guard against. We should be very proud of the wonderful progress already made made by our party along the road towards the realisation of the goals set out in the first Party constitution. We should look back with pride on these achievements. We should recall to mind the circumstances under which very many of them were enacted and, in so remembering, we should come to an even greater resolve to do all in our power—each and everyone of us—to strengthen and build and organise this party so that it can continue its work for Ireland and so that, if in the future it comes up against stern or unreasonable opposition, it will have the reserves of strength necessary to justly overcome them and then continue its advance towards the realisation of its objective . . . a 32-county, unified, independent Irish Republic, able to take its place "among the Nations of the earth" and to compare favourably with the greatest of them."

Concluding, Ald. Kennelly stated: "To-day, when we celebrate the elevation of one of our own to the highest rank in Government we should remember the party which has recognised his ability and we should renew our resolve that as Fianna Fail has stood by Waterford in the person of Sean Ormonde, Waterford will, in the future, as in the past, stand by Fianna Fail."

MINISTER'S REPLY

In his reply, Mr. Ormonde, speaking in Irish and English, stated that he was overwhelmed by the extraordinary welcome he had received from his friends. He appreciated everything that had been said and particularly the references to his late father which were made by Mr. Goode. He believed that their adherence to the principles of the G.A.A. to the cause of Ireland and to their love of their native language among his family were entirely attributable to the good upbringing they got from a good father and mother. "The principles of freedom and nationalism were instilled in us from our very young days," he said, "and if I am to thank anybody for my place in Ireland to-day, I have to go back to those young days of mine when the seeds of those principles were sown in my mind by my parents."

"I am very glad to see such a fine sprinkling of Old I.R.A. members with us on this occasion. They were the men who set our nation free, they stood for Dev, they put him in office and kept him there and helped to make our Fianna Fail Government the strongest our nation has known. I am also very glad to see so many young men here too. It will be up to them to carry on the principles of Fianna Fail and see that they will not die out in the years ahead."

"OWED IT TO WATERFORD"

It was at this stage that the Minister made the statement quoted at the outset stating that he would not be leaving Co. Waterford. He went on to say it was Ald. Wm. Kennelly, T.D., his very good friend who was really responsible for his acceptance of the appointment. "When I was offered it, I was very reluctant to accept mainly because I felt at the time that I might not adequately fill that post. I told this to The Chief and he gave me a few days to consider it. I put my problem to Willie Kennelly and opened up my heart to him. He told me in no uncertain way that I was the man for the job and that I dare not refuse it. He made it clear to me that I owed it to the people of Waterford and I could not refuse the honour now being offered me and Waterford as well."

In conclusion the Minister expressed his appreciation of the exceptional reception he had received and paid special tribute to the members of the Dungarvan Comhairle Ceannair for their part in it. He also paid tribute to the management of the Devonshire Arms Hotel stating he had attended many such functions in the past and especially in recent times and he was happy to say that the dinner he had received in Dungarvan was the best he had received.

Mr. Patrick Ormonde (Dungarvan) who presided and who proposed the toast of "Eire" at the outset, recalled the fact that when King Edward VII visited Ireland and passed through Lismore to the castle where he was feted, the Minister's father, the late John Ormonde hung a black flag out . . . as his protest. They should be thankful to God said Mr. Ormonde, that they had men of his kind in their Government to-day.

Mr. J. Dunphy (Dungarvan) paid tribute to Mrs. Ormonde, wife of the Minister, stating he was sure the Minister would be first to admit that he would never have reached the success he did without her beside him.

Mr. J. Power (Ballinroad) stated that he had one special request to make on their new Minister . . . that he would never forget that Ireland had yet to become a 32 county Republic.

The function was brought to a close with a bright social to most of the attendance contributed.

NFA NEWS

FARM APPRENTICESHIP SCHEMES

This week, approximately 160 persons, representing the NFA, Macra na Feirme and Tuairim gathered in Killiney Castle. This week-end conference was organised by Tuairim—an urban organisation with a cultural bias.

The purpose of the week-end was to study the Joint NFA Macra na Feirme Farm Apprenticeship Scheme. The Draft serves as that basis for discussion of the old problem that has bedevilled rural Ireland for many generations, i.e., how to provide a young man with a farm at an early age.

The fact that the majority of our farmers are over fifty years of age and that we have the lowest marriage rate in Europe, is probably at the root of most of the social and economic problems of rural Ireland.

The scheme aims at providing qualified young men with farms at an early age, i.e., between 21 and 26 years. It does not in any way cross with the present functions of the Land Commission. Amongst those who spoke on various aspects of the problem during the week-end were: Rev. Dr. D. Duffy, Co. Monaghan Co. Representative on the Macra na Feirme National Council, and Chairman of Macra na Feirme; Dr. Duffy has also been a long time in Nova Scotia studying the now famous Antigonish movement; Dr. Robert O'Connor, C.E.O. Co. Monaghan and noted for his excellent work in the recent farm survey; Lieut. Gen. Costello; Mr. Morgan Sheehy, Department of Vocational Education; Mr. E. Childers, Minister for Lands; Dr. L. F. Smith, Economic Adviser to the N.F.A.; Prof. Quinlan and Mr. J. Callaghan, Vice-President of the NFA; Mr. C. O'Donoghue, N.F.A. Co. Representative for Kildare and Chairman of the Committee that drafted the Scheme, served at the end of the conference.

We would like to emphasize that this is a draft scheme and certain revisions will be made before the final scheme is brought forward. In the meantime, public interest in the matter will be advantageous.

LAND PROJECT SCHEME

We learn that farmers in some counties are having difficulty in having work done under Section B of the Land Project Scheme. The NFA have been in contact with the Department of Agriculture in this matter and have been given an undertaking that every effort will be made to speed up the consideration of applications under this Section.

It has been pointed out, however, that in most counties, land reclamation is carried out under Section A of the Scheme and as most farmers prefer to undertake the work themselves.

It is worth remembering that the reclamation on small areas under Section A of the Scheme is carried out by the State and the major portion is intended to be undertaken under Section B. The Dept. recommends that if any farmer feels that this application is being unduly delayed, he should communicate directly with the Department of Agriculture.

FEDERALLY PRICES

Occasionally the NFA has been criticised regarding feedstuffs prices. It is worth remembering that the NFA is not a price fixing body. It is the duty of the NFA to ensure that the interests of growers to the maximum extent possible are protected. It is the duty of the NFA to ensure that the interests of growers to the maximum extent possible are protected. It is the duty of the NFA to ensure that the interests of growers to the maximum extent possible are protected.

THE FUTURE OF BARLEY PRODUCTION

The future of barley production will depend on a pro-sperous and stable pig industry. It is the interests of growers to the maximum extent possible are protected. It is the duty of the NFA to ensure that the interests of growers to the maximum extent possible are protected. It is the duty of the NFA to ensure that the interests of growers to the maximum extent possible are protected.

LET US NEVER FORGET

Let us never forget that it was the NFA that was instrumental in the production of the first 100,000 cwt. of piglets in 1957. We have checked back only as far as 1921, i.e., for the past 36 years and we find that this year we will have the highest production in those 36 years. In 1927, we produced 651,327 cwt.

CATHOLIC SCOUT NOTES

TROOP MEETING

It may be because the meeting last Saturday night began punctually at 8 p.m. that it seemed shorter. A. SM P. Burke and P. Strain had business under way when the S.M. came and started a sort of 'stand and deliver' stunt. However it was not fat waltzes such as A. SM and Senior Scouts carry that he called on us to produce but Nail Files pocket handkerchiefs, pen or pencil, comb, needle, mirror. He got all these things but strange enough when he asked for a packet of woodbines there was no response. Next came a three team relay race and after two runs two teams got a sweet example of a boy lying unconscious in a smoke filled room. He was taken all right but after that he was left altogether on his own. Next Saturday's meeting will be the last before Christmas.

Tuesday — This morning was a glorious one and Revellie was a little earlier than usual. As Hugo had a sore lip Squad took over the Bugle and made a good show. Breakfast was served soon after day-down but in spite of the heat a number of scouts came for breakfast without washing first. The S/S however got down to the job of washing soon after breakfast. Phil Duggan was bed-ridden — yesterday's outing probably was the cause of the heavy cold he has.

When Burke had finished his rounds at inspections the S.M. took the Melvin Patrol (Wolves) and did some semaphore practice with them. Brownie expanded Liam Kelly, P. Condon, W. Spratt and some others in tracking and they got through all right. Seeing that the weather permitted nearly every scout in the camp-site to go swimming. Even Hank took a plunge. Brian Morrissey gave an exhibition of diving and some of our first year campers were reported to have been like ducks in the water.

MUTTON AND PEAS

— were an interesting match to the delight of Nicky, Nicko Regan and Co. A great crowd headed up the wood after dinner while a few went to town also. By four o'clock the heat was killing Phil Duggan so he arose from his slumbers and went to town. Tea was almost over when a crowd of us arrived back together. Dinah had been late so tea was late also and by the time the tea was over it was time for the Senior to get ready to go to the flicks. A few other scouts went down the wood to get goal-posts and they arrived back and 'yipped them up. Squad got a match (football) going and that lasted till flag-down. After the Rosary we had cocoa and lights out was blown by Squad at 11 o'clock. The S/S arrived back at 11.30 p.m. It happened to be an extra long picture —

WEDNESDAY

— Revellie was as usual holiday hour 8.30. After breakfast everyone (except the S.S.) got ready for inspection. Burke made his rounds when the S/S had been ready to go to the flicks. A few other scouts went down the wood to get goal-posts and they arrived back and 'yipped them up. Squad got a match (football) going and that lasted till flag-down. WEEK END QUIZ

Answer to last week's question: Liam Whelan (goal) Maurice Tierney, John McManus, F. Daly, Ed Foley, Tom Whelan, Joe Organ, Seamus O'Brien, and Mick Murphy, Ger Cashman, Seamus O'Brien, J. Flynn, P. Foley, Christy Power and Mickey Clancy. The match resulted in a draw, 2-2. Strabally.

THIS WEEK'S QUIZ

What year was the Melvin Trophy Competition decided? Who was it that teams entered and name the team which represented the troop.

GENERAL

The band was hard at it on Thursday night last. Although we had only Joe down (Tony was away in Westport) we had a very good practice. The drummers (not pads) and pipers (on practice chanters) got on very well. At about 10.30 Mick Hayes arrived from work, and made great difference. He certainly is an example to the young chaps (unfortunately none) who have plenty time. He was working from 7.30 p.m. until 10 p.m. Next Thursday will be the last practice before Christmas with

Dungarvan welcomed Sean Ormonde

Dungarvan welcomed Sean Ormonde, T.D. our new Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, at a special reception held on Saturday night.

He described a hearty welcome indeed for he is one of the most likeable personalities in public life... and certainly one of the finest public representatives this county has known.

Some years ago I saw Sean Ormonde attend his first meeting of Waterford County Council. He made a success of his efforts right away and from his first day, colleagues on all sides of the house looked to him for his opinion and his advice.

How often have I watched the Deputy from Kilmacthomas, whose roots are in the old world town of Ulgarne, as he sat in the Courtroom during some important debate on a matter of importance to every ratepayer.

It was a good Co. Councillor and will be missed in this capacity. He will be missed in many other capacities also for he was truly a man of the people who did more than his share to help all who sought his help.

A MAN OF THE PEOPLE His elevation to the Cabinet of the State as Minister for Posts and Telegraphs was welcomed in his native Waterford.

It was his constant care and everywhere people expressed their delight. And it was easy to see that everyone was happy at Sean Ormonde's success.

Minister of State at County Finals It was good to see our new Minister for Posts and Telegraphs at the Gaelic Field Dungarvan for the county senior final between Abbeyside and Mount Sion.

Turf Briquettes Following my article on the above, published in our issue of December 7th, the following has been received from Mr. F. Murphy, Munster representative of Bord na Mona:

"In the first paragraph of the article it is alleged that Machine Turf is 'not available'.

"This presumably means that Machine Turf is not freely available in Dungarvan but, if so, the fault lies with Dungarvan Fuel Merchants, for as you know, there is no difficulty in obtaining supplies from Littleton bog which is the nearest source of supply in the Dungarvan.

"As regards Turf Briquettes, it should be understood that our Factory production is strictly limited and the demand from merchants throughout the country represent from three to four times the annual output of the Factory.

"It seems that they should take a realistic view and for those of them who have not joined in, they should resolve for the new year to support their organised fellow farmers in their efforts to provide for all, a better standard of living.

KILMAC' NOTES

In these Paris, where the fire of Gaelic culture still burns bright, good-natured neighbours meet you with a friendly smile and a cheery word, and send you on your way with a blessing.

DEATH OF MRS B. MCCARTHY It is with deep and sincere regret that we record the death of Mrs. Bridget McCarthy (nee Walsh) which sad event occurred last week in England.

"Christmas Candles" Salute a charmingly-mannered and refined regular reader in the person of Miss Anne B. O'Dwyer for the subjoined soulful stanzas under the above caption:

"This said, on Christmas Eve The Virgin mild Rooms throughout the earth as when, with her unborn child She sought a shelter in the days of old.

"The Members of the Ballylancean Cumann, Fianna Fail, will hold their usual monthly meeting at Mr. and Mrs. Mason's residence in Seelfield at 8 o'clock p.m. on Saturday, 28th inst.

A Young Man who was driving cattle from Dungarvan December fair on the evening of 18th inst. was hit by a passing lorry at Leamybrien and had it learned, both of his legs fractured.

Pupils of the Protestant School in Strabally gave therein on the evening of their Christmas vacation break, a capital presentation of the dramatised version of the well-known story titled "The Babes in the Wood."

Looking Very Fit and Well is Very Rev. Fr. Michael Foley, C.F., Sandhurst Military College England, who is at present breathing his native air at this side of the Channel.

The furnishing of these buildings will also be done by local suppliers.

The construction of the roads has begun already and will keep pace with the other work.

You may ask what advantage all this is to the Irish economy. Up to date orders for equipment for more than a quarter of a million pounds have been placed in Ireland, and the material for the Marine Terminal will be purchased locally.

It will also be of interest to note that the tallest process tower will rise 265 feet above sea level; that the consumption of electricity will be approximately 30 million K.W.H. and that the design of the refinery is unique in as much as for the first time an air cooling system in stead of a water cooling system will be installed.

New Refinery Makes Progress

Since the Board of the Company held a Press Conference last July you may be interested in learning of the progress which the Company has made since then.

LISMORE NOTES

First of all an office was opened at 7 South, Mall, Cork, where the nucleus staff of the new company was recruited and housed.

On the 26th August, work started on the site at Whitegate and office and canteen accommodation had to be provided for the engineering staff, their assistants and workers.

As apart from Corkbeg Island, some 157,000 cubic yards of material had to be moved on the site for levelling purposes, the work has kept the contractors busy up to now and when it is completed by the end of the year, the actual work of construction can then begin.

This will consist of five main phases: (a) The tankage; (b) The Marine Terminal or Jetty; (c) The refining units themselves; (d) The office and other buildings; (e) The roads and other amenities.

A brief word of explanation on each may be helpful. The tankage will consist of five, end-on, tanks, each of 25,000 tons capacity; in addition various sizes for intermediate products of a total capacity of 60,000 tons; 19 tanks for finished products of a total capacity of 140,000 tons approximately, and 4 spheres for Liquid Petroleum Gases.

The Marine Terminal or Jetty will be a concrete structure built on concrete piles. A shop for making the piles and concrete is now under construction at Corkbeg Island.

When the railway had the monopoly of transport, there was an esprit de corps in all railway staffs from the lowest graded porter up to the highest graded official. It was the passenger who counted; it was the traffic and the goods that were the important things.

I will say this much in favour of the staffs. The centralisation of authority in the railway is definitely cramping the style of the officials down the country who might try to show initiative. There should be relaxations and a delegation of power to what I would call the superintendents of areas. They should be able to stand on their own feet in their own areas and direct traffic with which they are more competent than anybody else to deal.

When I speak of transport, I mean not only the monsters that CIE have on the road... but the monsters other people have on the road. I saw the coming of the one-ton truck, the three-ton truck, ten-ton and 15-ton lorry. Now there are 20, 25 and 40 ton lorries. Where is it going to stop? I think there should be a restriction of the carrying capacity or the size of vehicles that have appeared on the roads.

At the same time the Minister should see to it that CIE do not have themselves priced out of the market; they should encourage heavy traffic back to the railway. We see monsters bringing petrol from Dublin to depots in Cork, Waterford and elsewhere, and they go around the small villages parceling it out. Other deputies know, as well as I do, that there are oil depots belonging to these oil companies situated alongside railway lines at various stations. All that traffic should be diverted to the railways. It would not create unemployment by putting back the small tanker which would do the local delivery.

I have heard it said by what is called an Irish merchant, a member of a chamber of commerce, an industrialist, or director of a company, that CIE should be done away with just like that. That is all nonsense and the Minister knows it. A very important thing to con-

IN THE DAIL DEPUTY LYNCH

Deputy T. Lynch, speaking in the Dail on the Supplementary Estimate for the Transport and Marine Services, said, when the Dail rose last July, I like every other deputy, returned to my constituency and one of the things I brought with me was the report on Transport.

That is the way we must look into it. If all this slicing away of branch lines, all this actual paying-off of men and the creation of unemployment really takes place, will that be worth the money to the country? The Minister should consider that, that we are losing £400,000 in operating costs on the railways £240,000 a year. I do not think the House would have to take very long to make up its mind about what it was going to do.

We have now come to a matter about railway policy recently that I and a great many people do not like, with the figure of unemployment at right in front of us, I am referring to the ruthless and brutal letter of Mr. Reynolds to the Dundalk Urban Council. I have some examples of ruthless and brutal things done by this House. There is nothing to smile about, nothing to laugh about in this. People's lives, hopes, futures, livelihoods and homes are being thrown into the balance. Legislation was brought in here which resulted in people's livelihoods being taken away in my constituency without any compensation. That legislation was welcomed here. As long as I am here I shall always hold it against the Government Party. They are going to do the same in Dundalk and the compensation is nearly the same.

Most of the people working in the railway yards at Dundalk have been there for generations. They are fine people and a hatched man was sent up to prepare the ground to destroy their livelihood. By contrast we can see how this was dealt with when another Minister of State in Dundalk. He proved himself to be a better diplomat there than he did at U.N.O. He had the best swerve, and sold the finest dummy ever sold in this country, in the statement made to the deputation.

The Minister has selected my constituency several times because we are evidently a simple people. He came to Waterford when Fianna Fail would reduce railway employment and that there was no truth in it. He said if he were Minister, and they were at the wheel, they would not reduce railway employment. They were simple people. The majority of the railway men voted for the Minister's candidates. It is a fearful state of affairs to see that people can laugh in this house at things like that.

I say to the Minister that he should approach this matter in Dundalk as bravely as his predecessor did. When it looked likely as if the G.N.R. were going to produce the axe, the strong action taken by his predecessor promptly had it put away. Fourteen thousand people are getting their livelihood on the railway. The operational losses are £400,000 per annum. Before any hatched man is let loose on the people of Dundalk, Waterford or Cork, let the Minister come bravely to this house with proposals. Let him get his vote here to-day and let him come into the house with his proposals early next year and keep the promise he made on thousands of posters: "Let us get cracking."

Deputy Lynch—and it looks as if they intend to follow suit in this regard. The Minister said in his statement that the railway undertaking of CIE continues to lose traffic. They have been doing that since the 1944 Traffic Act. One of the principal reasons why the railway undertaking is losing traffic is that road transport went into competition, and into unfair competition with them. When that business got cracking in 1944, they sent 30 wagons to a 200 wagon fair and filled the place with livestock. They did that until they had most of the live-stock traffic on the roads and they continued sending the wagons to the fairs. Now we must ask ourselves the question: have CIE priced themselves out of the traffic?

There has been a good deal of criticism of CIE and much of it is aimed at the top. We might as well be realistic and aim what we are criticising we have at the top and bring it down to what ever level the criticism can be aimed at. One great change has taken place in CIE since 1944 and has done great damage.

When the railway had the monopoly of transport, there was an esprit de corps in all railway staffs from the lowest graded porter up to the highest graded official. It was the passenger who counted; it was the traffic and the goods that were the important things. That has all gone extraordinary things done. I have seen thousands of people transported from my constituency up to see the All-Ireland Final which we did not win, and they had to gallop from Croke Park to Kingsbridge to get home.

I will say this much in favour of the staffs. The centralisation of authority in the railway is definitely cramping the style of the officials down the country who might try to show initiative. There should be relaxations and a delegation of power to what I would call the superintendents of areas. They should be able to stand on their own feet in their own areas and direct traffic with which they are more competent than anybody else to deal.

When I speak of transport, I mean not only the monsters that CIE have on the road... but the monsters other people have on the road. Kilrossanty's Tingling Triumph

DYNAMIC COMERAGH MEN TOPPLE CHAMPIONS

CHAMPIONS FOR THE 8th TIME

GREATER football finals there probably have been, but for sheer red-blooded endeavour and tingling excitement I venture to say that posterity will accord Kilrossanty's well-merited victory over gallant Mount Sion at the City Sports-field on Sunday a niche without compare in the hall of big ball memories. This, believe me, was just about the most exciting "war" ever staged in the name of the championship. It was all so pulsating that over-wrought spectators were almost as exhausted as the principals when the tempest finally subsided.

Throughout an hour of swaying fortunes the atmosphere was crackling and the individual clashes fierce as man matched man in thrilling combat. And when it was all over, Kilrossanty deservedly emerged in possession of the proud title they last held back in 1952.

Kilrossanty, the early pace-makers, were never headed. At the break they led 1-3 to 0-2 and when salling points stretched the margin on the turnover, the champions, it appeared were on the threshold of a heavy reverse. Then, in traditional fashion, Mount Sion struck back. Eleven minutes from time they slashed the arrears with a dramatic goal. But this was Kilrossanty's game and the last word was theirs with a Kirwan point.

This it was that the championship found its way back to football's home for the eight occasion on record.

The football may not have been in a classical mould. But my goodness, how exhilarating it all was. In fact, I cannot bring to mind a more pulsating encounter under comparable conditions.

Hard and unrelenting though the exchanges were, the contest was in the main hampered by a fine spirit of give and take, a factor that was in no small measure due to the good job of work done by referee CroTTY, who was well with the play and in control throughout.

Treacherous Sod

The sod was fairly treacherous after the heavy rain which fell continuously throughout the morning, yet both sides, with admirable tenacity of purpose, continued to play, and to get the most out of the leaden ball.

Great-hearted Kilrossanty, their basic football superiority apart, won because of their ability to take everything the desperate old champions could throw their way.

But the impeccable manner in which they mastered the leaden ball and the purposeful play of every man from centre-back Ormonde on also contributed generously to the eighth championship victory of the green and gold.

Yet, Mount Sion, as is their wont, continued to battle with such tremendous spirit and determination that one felt the winners were never really out of the wood.

When the Monastery side goalied in the nineteenth minute of the second half the tension which reigned throughout raged to a crescendo. For a fleeting moment rampant Mount Sion had the champions groggy, but a placed point, consequent on a needless foul by an over-impetuous Monastery defender, almost immediately helped to restore the new champions' composure.

Although Kilrossanty very deservedly returned to the heart of Waterford football, Mount Sion emerged from the gruelling test with their reputation as battlers as high as ever.

Mid-Field Pull

The winners, right capably served in defence and attack, virtually owned mid-field—the most vital testing ground of all—for three-quarters of the hour thanks to a magnificent display by Jimmy Whyte. No man made a bigger contribution to the victory effort than dynamic Whyte, who was at full stretch from trap to line. It mattered not how the leather came, this great-hearted player was the master of every situation and a variety of opponents.

One, too, must immediately laud Billy Kirwan, whose every move caused havoc in the champions' defence. Operating out on top-of-the-left, from which he claimed a grand total of 12, Kirwan's display must rank with the best in his great career.

Kilrossanty's goal, a great Whyte-Kirwan movement, was on the whole their typical breakthrough. It was a typical breakthrough from twenty-five yards and placed Kirwan, whose presence from twenty-five yards had 'killed' the Monastery goal-beaten at the wax.

The effort was almost repeated minutes later when Billy well his last game in the green and gold, he used his great experience to telling effect and in the vital second half had complete mastery over Richards and Flannelly in turn.

The winners too, owe much to Jim Timmons, who worked like a beaver at mid-field. Tom Dolan turned in an amount of useful work, particularly when switched to centre-back on Mick Pender's retreat, while the high-flying Colum Cunningham and the Kirwans, Noel and Michael, were largely responsible for the unhappy existence of the Sion defenders.

Newcomer Moloney played his heart out at full-forward, as did Mick Prendergast up to his enforced retreat. Ben Pender, a late arrival owing to transport difficulties, and Tom Walsh, a son of the famed Pat.

Great Save

Behind Loneragan stood Sean Ormonde, who turned in a display of net-minding that was right out of the top drawer. Calm and courageous, his first half save from a Frank Walsh grounder will be spoken of as long as Kilrossanty folk continue to "replay" the game.

Pete Gough proved a sterling corner back, while Jim Maher and Denis Begley made up a tenacious right flank.

Skipper Jimmy Power was at his best when the effort was most needed. Playing what may Con Crowley played a captain's part on a Mount Sion team that was also ably served by Billy Mulcahy, Fred O'Brien, Pat O'Hara, the former Mayo player, Frank Walsh and Seamus Power.

Prendergast's injury and retreat after ten minutes, was a body blow from which a great side could have recovered.

Scorers for the winners were led 1-3 to 0-2 at half-time were W. Kirwan (1-3), M. Kirwan (0-1), C. Cunningham (0-1), and J. Timmons (0-1); while C.

EXTRA SPECIAL

The family budget is the housewife's worry and with the cost of living what it is she has to look twice at every shilling she spends. Heating, for instance, is an expensive item but it can be done economically if Machine Turf is used because Machine Turf is so much cheaper than other fuels. It's better too because of its consistent quality and the cheerful comfort it radiates.
