County Council's Unemployment Crisis CHAIRMAN MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS

CATTLE KILLED IN CRASH

Three cattle were killed and five injured when they were struck by a lorry and trailer on the Waterford road about two miles from Dungarvan.

The lorry crashed into a wall after striking the cattle, but the driver escaped injury. The cattle are the property of Mr. William Connors, Clonscraigne, Dungarvan.

Cappoquin Priest to Head Missionary Group

His Eminence Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, has named Very Rev. Patrick Ahearne, former parish priest of Killea, to head the Irish priests serving the Missionary Society of St. James in Latin America, in succession to the late Venerable Archdeacon Duggan of Cork.

The Waterford priest was one of eight missionaries honoured in Boston at a departure ceremony at which Cardinal Cushing presided in Holy Cross Cathedral.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

The engagement between Michael, youngest son of the late Patrick and Mrs. Coffey, Scar, Ballinamult, and Maureen, only daughter of Cornelius and Mrs. Murphy, Kilibrien, Ballinamult, has recently been announced.

OUR report of the Annual Estimates meeting of Waterford County Council and the references made regarding employment in last week's issue appear to have caught on. Throughout the County

ON Monday next the County Council will meet again in Dungarvan and no doubt the position will be discussed thoroughly.

The Chairman of the County Council, Mr. Charles Curran, has written to Mr. S. J. Moynihan, Co. Manager, stating that the decision to reduce the Roads Estimate was an effort to deal with a crisis situation

CHILD'S TRAGIC DEATH

A verdict that death was due to drowning was returned at an inquest on Angela Teresa Murphy, 18 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Murphy, Tay Lodge, Leamybrien, Kilmacthomas.

The Coroner for East Waterford, Dr. J. C. Walsh, Clonmel, was told that the child accompanied her mother to the back of the house to hang up clothes. While Mrs. Murphy was putting the clothes on the line, she missed the child, returned to the kitchen to see if she were there.

The mother found no trace of Angela, but after a search lasting some minutes, she found her lying face downwards in a pond with a foot and a half of water at the back of the house. The child had fallen into the pond which was only about 20 yards from the clothesline.

The family had lived at Calaghane up to last St. Patrick's Day when they went to reside at Tay Lodge.

there is great speculation and unrest concerning the position of certain road-workers, who, owing to the cut in the Road Scheme estimate will, it appears, become unemployed.

due to threatened steep increases in rates. In his letter, Mr. Curran also asked the Manager to direct the County Engineer to replan the Roads Programme so as ensure that only works with highest employment content are proceeded with and that no workers be laid off without first submitting the matter to the Council.

Mr. Curran also asked that economies be effected under the following headings: (1) Machinery; (2) Materials; (3) Administration; (4) Supervision. He suggested that far too much heavy and expensive machinery was at present being employed on road-works and that some of it should be disposed of and proceeds be donated to giving employment on necessary works on bye-roads.

Mr. Curran himself, has informed us that the dismissal notices issued to road-workers have been withdrawn. This, of course, is a welcome reprieve but unfortunately it appears to be only a temporary one.

New Machinery Co's Official Opening

"If we are to survive in the European Economic Community we must concentrate on greater efficiency in our agricultural industry" said Mr. John Dowley, Chairman, Carrick-on-Suir U.D.C. when he officially opened the Suirway Farm Machinery Co. Ltd. at Carrick-on-Suir on Tuesday.

The new company, a subsidiary firm of Messrs. E. Dowley and Sons Ltd., Millers, Carrick-on-Suir, are main dealers on behalf of Massey-Ferguson (Eire) Ltd. in the Co. Waterford, Carrick-on-Suir and South East Tipperary area.

Before the opening the premises were blessed by Very Rev. M. Canon O'Byrne, P.P.

Among those present were: Mr. G. Muscraft, regional general manager, Massey-Ferguson Coventry; Mr. J. Williams, general manager, Massey-Ferguson (Eire) Ltd.; Mr. John Neill-Watson, area manager, Massey-Ferguson (Eire) Ltd.; Mr. W. Morrissey, director and general manager, Suirway Farm Machinery Co., Mr. J. Conlon, Field Manager, Massey-Ferguson (Eire) Ltd.; Messrs. J. I. Dowley and E. G. Dowley, of Messrs. E. Dowley and Sons, Ltd.; Mr. W. O. Morrissey, architect; Mr. J. Fahy, building contractor.

Successful Auction

Mr. Tom Crotty, the well-known Lismore auctioneer, has sold the farm of the late Laurence O'Donnell, at Graigue, Motello, for £3,825, to Mr. E. P. King, Suir, Dungarvan, acting in Trust. The auction took place on the farm on February 21st last.

Improved Lighting Highlighted Excellent Show

The St. Laurence's Hall drama group gave an excellent performance on Sunday night when they presented "The Big Hearted Man" a three-act comedy for their first show of the season on the home ground at Ballinroad Hall. The improved lighting system contributed much to the enjoyment of a fine performance which was much appreciated by a rapturous audience. They played to a capacity house.

ways, but at times rather irresponsible. A natural aptitude for arithmetical calculation led to his being promoted from farm-hand to resident clerk. It also involved him in most of Rafferty's private business.

THE OLD MATCHMAKERS

This play deals with the situation that develops when the two old men go matchmaking for Rafferty's daughter, Mary—without her knowledge or consent. Naturally some material gain for themselves is the incentive rather than a satisfactory love affair for the girl.

Unfortunately for themselves what starts out to be a simple affair becomes involved with

FOR BONMAHON

The St. Laurence's Ballinroad Players will stage their play at Bonmahon on Sunday night next.

(The rest of the cast will appear next week).

Bovine T.B. Talks Took Place

Discussions on measures to accelerate the eradication of Bovine Tuberculosis in the Six Southern Dairying Counties took place to-day at the offices of the Department of Agriculture between officers of the Department and representatives of the NFA, the Irish Creamery Milk Suppliers Association and of each of the Committees of Agriculture for the counties concerned.

Further discussions on this matter with other interests involved are due to be held at an early date. When these have concluded and the recommendations made at the different meetings considered, a public announcement will be made on the programme for the Southern Area as finally approved. The foregoing has been issued by the Government Information Bureau on behalf of the Minister for Agriculture.

short notice, rendered an excellent account in her difficult part as an old fortune-telling with-craft woman.

The producer was Tommy Morrissey who is an old-stager and one of the fine troupers of the past generations. The players had benefitted considerably from his experience and stage counsel.

APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE

Fr. Walsh thanked the dancers Ann Tyrell, Betty Morrissey, Marcella Walsh, the musicians Bernie Power, John Walsh and John Fitzgerald and the singers Vera and Sean O'Brien as well as all those back-stage workers whose untiring efforts had contributed to the success of the performance. Jim Morrissey and his committee members had, as usual, everything ready in good time.

To further complicate matters they find themselves up against a local witch whose "experiments" never appear to finish with the desired result. Then, when ultimately their matrimonial target, young Desmond O'Toole, undergoes a strange mental metamorphosis, it leaves the two of them floundering hopelessly out of their depth.

THE PLAYERS

At the conclusion, Rev. Fr. Michael Walsh, C.C., Abbey-side, who is President of the Ballinroad Parish Hall Committee, complimented the cast on their excellent performance. Tommy Keating and Sean O'Brien had been with the group from its inception and they improved with each performance. Chris Dunford and Jim Sheehan were new to their second season with the Ballinroad players and acquitted themselves very well. Bernie Power was new to the

Presentation of Farm Kitchen Furniture

At the presentation of Farm Kitchen furniture at An Griannan, Termontekin, Co. Louth, on Tuesday last, Mr. T. Murray, Chairman, E.S.B. said:

We of the ESB are happy to have been associated with the presentation of these furnishings to the Irish Countrywomen's Association, because we feel—and here we may admit to being a little biased perhaps—that the widespread availability of electricity in rural homes has introduced a new basic factor into rural home-making and has enabled the country housewife to have some new thoughts on kitchen planning.

Few Irish women would think of introducing time and motion study into their kitchens; most of them are far too busy. But when you remember that the average housewife walks about ten miles a day in the course of her work—and the country housewife walks a bit more—it becomes evident that good layout in the kitchen can play a big part in making the woman's job a lot easier.

It was about five years ago we in the ESB felt that there was a real need for a new approach for rural kitchen planning. With the help of the I.C.A. and the Royal Institute of Architect's of Ireland, we built the mobile demonstration kitchens which, I hope, many of you have visited.

These kitchens toured the country for four years, and we estimate that more than 50,000 people came to see them. In any places the I.C.A. guilds actually held special meetings in them and whilst the kitchens were generally praised.

Dungarvan Group's Enthusiastic Reception

The Dungarvan Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. M. A. Henneby, Park Terrace, had a terrific reception from a capacity audience on Sunday night when they made their first appearance in Youghal, where they performed at a special concert and variety programme arranged by the Youghal Development Association in aid of the strand and beach development at the popular County Cork seaside resort.

Opening their programme with a rousing selection of marches, the Orchestra continued with Ancliff's lilting waltz "Nights of Gladness" and concluded the first part of their programme with a delightful medley entitled "Fifty

MR. M. A. HENNEBY

Years of Song." The beautiful collection of Irish airs under the title "The Shamrock" which the orchestra rendered in the second half was loudly applauded.

Mr. Tim McCarthy, Abbey-side, sang a number of songs in his pleasing bass voice. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Mary O'Gorman-Nagle, L.L.C.M., O'Connell St., Dungarvan.

So well did the programme presented by the Dungarvan Orchestra group go over that at the conclusion of the performance the members were approached by the committee members of the Youghal Development Association with a request for a repeat performance at a later date.

Plans are in hand at the moment, it is understood, for a full-scale concert with Choir and Orchestra from Dungarvan, to be staged in Youghal later this year.

Kosangas Reduced Further in Price

It will be welcome news to Irish housewives and to the farming community that Kosangas is again being reduced in price. From April 1st, the cost of Kosangas comes down by 6d., to only 17/6 per 25 lb. refill cylinder.

This further reduction is yet another stage in the Kosangas 'success story.' More and more housewives, both in town and country districts, are using more and more Kosangas—for cooking, water heating and other domestic chores. More and more farming families are using Kosangas, both in the farmhouse and on the farm. More and more enthusiastic Kosangas users are recommending Kosangas to their friends, and persuading them to make use of its many advantages.

Because of this increased consumption, Kosangas have been able to effect economies in production and distribution costs. As is the usual Kosangas policy, these savings have been passed directly to the consumer. So in effect, Kosangas users have themselves reduced the price of Kosangas, to the benefit of their own pockets. They have helped to bring down living costs in homes and farms throughout Ireland.

This new reduction places Kosangas within the reach of even the smallest home so that more people than ever before can now enjoy the economy and efficiency of Kosangas Cooking and Water Heating. Everyone can now take advantage of this new low price, to install Kosangas the finest gas installation.

Late Mrs. A. Carroll

57 QUEEN ST., CLONMEL
It was with very deep regret that her many friends and relatives, learned of the death, after a long illness, patiently borne, of Mrs. Anastasia Carroll, 57 Queen Street, Clonmel, which occurred at Our Lady's House of Visitation, Clonmel, on Thursday, March 22.

Deceased was wife of Mr. John Carroll, Manager of the Clonmel branch of Messrs. Edward Dowley & Sons Ltd., 43 Dillon Street. She was a native of Grawn, Kilmacthomas, and was daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Casey. A nurse by profession, she spent the greater portion of her nursing career in England before her marriage.

The late Mrs. Carroll was a very popular lady and her warm and friendly disposition endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. Her death at a comparatively early age came as a shock to her many friends and acquaintances in Clonmel and Kilmacthomas areas. To her husband, her only son, Philip, and her brothers and sister we offer our sincere sympathy. The remains were removed to St. Peter's and Paul's Church, Clonmel, and following Requiem Office and High Mass the funeral took place to Powerstown Cemetery. There was a large and representative attendance on both occasions.

The chief mourners were: Mr. J. Carroll, (husband); Philip (son); Messrs. Nicholas Casey, Square, Dungarvan; Rd. Casey, Kilmacthomas; David Casey, Grawn; Thomas Casey, Knockeylan (brothers); and Mrs. N. O'Meara, Dungarvan (sister).

TALLOW NEWS

ARCH BALLROOM

It will be a case of all roads leading to Tallow next Sunday when Ireland's ever-green Jimmy O'Dea will be there in person (for one night only) in "Festival of Fun." This is Jimmy O'Dea at his best. He is one of the stage very much all through the three hours of fun and frolicsome frivolity, and he never fails to hold his delighted audience captivated. "Mrs. Mulligan, the pride of the Coomb" is as welcome a sight as ever she was, and when she celebrates her 25th wedding "anniversary" the hooley waxes fast and furious, with Danny Cummins, T.V.'s most popular comedian, ranging from the long suffering Mr. Mulligan, down to the modern pop singer.

Other stars in Ireland's funniest show are: Roddy McNeill, Scotland's teenage singing star, Martin Crosby, Ireland's own tenor, Ursula Doyle, Vera Halden, Derry O'Donovan, Eddie Ward-Mills, Gret Sweeney, Brenda Doyle, and the Four Gaety Girls. Another scoop for the Arch will be on Easter Sunday, when "The Big Four" (who are at present on a record-breaking U.S.-Canadian tour) will make the Arch their first Irish appearance after this tour. See today's advertisement for details of an added attraction on that night.

SUCCESSFUL SALE OF LAND

Mr. Edmond Spratt & Son, M.I.A.A., Auctioneers and Valuers, Dungarvan and Youghal, conducted a very successful sale of land at the Hotel, Tallow, on Friday, 30th March, when they sold a 661-acre farm situate at Parkdolia, Tallow and a 33-acre farm at Ballinaha, Tallow for Mrs. Margaret Murphy, Chaple St., for the sum of £5,050 and fees. Messrs. I. R. Hodnett and Son, Solicitors, Youghal, had carriage of sale.

THE FAIR

Tallow monthly fair, held on Friday, 30th March, was well stocked, almost a complete clearance was effected. Cattle prices showed a slight increase in price from previous fairs.

DEATH OF MR. P. IVERS RIGNEY, B.A.

We regret to record the death of Mr. P. Ivers Rigney, B.A., Hon. Dip. in Ed., ex-N.T., Dungarvan, which occurred last week. The late Mr. Rigney was principal at the local National School up to his retirement some years ago. He was also a well known contributor of short stories and poems to magazines and periodicals for a number of years. He had reached an advanced age. The remains were removed to Dungourney Church accompanied by a huge cortege, and the interment took place in the local cemetery. To his bereaved relatives much sympathy is extended.

This Will Interest the 14-year-olds

At a special committee meeting of Fleadh Ceoil na nDeise held in Dungarvan at the week-end attention was drawn to the fact that at previous musical festivals there had been no provision made for competitions for children in the fourteen years of age group. Many requests had been received for a special provision to cater for these youngsters in the 1962 Fleadh.

It was decided that a special competition which will be confined to County Waterford and will cater for miscellaneous instruments be incorporated in the programme of events for this year's festival, for children of fourteen years. Prizes of silver medals and certificates of merit will be awarded to the winners in this section. Last year's festival attracted some two hundred entries from the Fleadh area which embraces South Tipperary and Westford as well as Waterford and the indications at the moment are that last year's record will be surpassed as the entries pour in for this year's festival to be held on Easter Sunday and Monday in the Town Hall, Friary Hall and two other halls in Dungarvan.

The M. Peake Family (so, of Belfast, well-known through Ireland on radio, television and concert platforms, will play at the grand Concert to be held at the conclusion of the Fleadh, while the renowned Kinvara Celli Band from Dublin will provide the music for dancing at the céilí mor in the Town Hall on Easter Sunday night.

hill, Tallow, and now domiciled across channel are on a visit home. The visit is occasioned by the serious illness of their father, Mr. L. McGrath.

TALLOW HURLING TOURNAMENT

Tallow hurling club will run a junior hurling tournament in the near future. Now that the club have a field once more, we expect to see the lads of the Brideside town once more to the forefront in our national pastime.

WON SHARE IN SWEEP DRAW

We wish to congratulate Miss Mary Sheehan, Convent Street, on holding a share in a ticket that drew a horse in the Grand National. The horse was a non-runner. Miss Sheehan is employed at the Bridevalley Stores Ltd.

SEMMOCKS TO MEET NEWCASTLE

LATE MR. DENIS WALSH

ST. GARVAN'S TEE, DUNGARVAN

The death occurred at the District Hospital, Dungarvan, on Friday, 30th March, followed by the Rites of Holy Church, of Denis Walsh, 13 St. Garvan's Tee, after a short illness. The late Mr. Walsh was a well-known tailor and carried on business with his brother at Friary Street for a number of years. He spent fourteen years with Pickering Bros., Ladies and Gents Tailors Coalville, Leicester. A large cortege followed the remains from the hospital to the Parish Church on Saturday evening. On Sunday, after last Mass, the remains were laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery when there was again a very large number of relatives and friends in attendance. Fr. Murphy, C.C., officiated at the graveside. The chief mourners were: Nora (wife); Teresa (daughter); Edmond Connolly (son-in-law); Mary and Noreen (sisters); Mary Clayton, Redcar and Pauline Harding, Birmingham (nieces); Mary Walsh, Friary St., Mary Curran, Abbeyside, Margaret Walsh, Redcar (sisters-in-law); William Murray, Abbeyside (brother-in-law). Sheaves of Mass cards and messages of condolence were received by the bereaved family. (Funeral arrangements by J. Phelan, Undertakers, Square, Dungarvan.)

WEST WATERFORD NEWS

The wedding will take place on June 2nd of Michael J. Daly and Mary B. Mahony, in Detroit Michigan. The bride-elect is only daughter of Mr. Michael Mahony and the late Mrs. Ellen Mahony, Monatree, Kinsalebeg. Her fiancée is the son of Mrs. Kate Daly and the late Mr. James Daly, Ardglushin, Co. Cavan.

O.A.P. MEETING

A meeting of Youghal No. 2 (Rural) O.A.P. Committee was held at Clashmore. Four claims were dealt with and two were passed, one adjourned and one refused.

F.C.A. OFFICER RETIRES

Command. W. Egan, O/C Malow Battalion F.C.A., who recently retired from the Defence Forces, is well known in the Clashmore area, where he served for a period as creamery manager and played with the local G.A.A. club. Later he became a prominent rugby player. Two of his sons are in the army, one a Lieut., and the other a cadet.

MOTOR CYCLE ACCIDENT

When a motor cycle skidded and crashed near Clashmore on Saturday night last the rider and pillion rider were thrown rather heavily but escaped with slight superficial injuries. They were, however, taken to hospital for attention.

DROMANA BRIDGE

This bridge is again in the news. The people of the area are making an all out effort to have it repaired and re-opened. When the Dept. acquired Dromana Estate some years ago they promptly closed the bridge, and this caused great hardships to the local residents.

THE E.S.B. CANVASS

It is not yet known if the canvass of the Drom area has succeeded in getting the required number of acceptors. Hopes are high, however, that a sufficient number of householders have accepted to justify development. Work may commence in the course of a few weeks.

INTERESTING RADIO PROGRAMME

The migratory labourer of olden times, the "Spailpin Fanach" of traditional song and story, was the subject of a most interesting and informative radio programme presented by Padraig Tyers, on Tuesday night of last week.

In the years between "Black 47" and the outbreak of World War I it was customary for many men to travel far beyond the bounds of their native counties to do seasonal work, such as mowing, reaping and digging potatoes. Those men were for the most part uneducated in the accepted sense of the word; they were poor in worldly possessions; they were miserably paid and badly fed; but in spite of all that they cherished the Faith, the language and the culture of the Gael, and they left succeeding generations a noble heritage.

That the lives of those poor men had and primitive though they must have been, were not completely devoid of humour was aptly illustrated by Michael Tyrrean, in recollections of his own experience and by Donal O'Grada in some amusing anecdotes collected from the late Famon Croistoir who was acknowledged by scholars as one of the finest speakers of Gaelic in Sliaoh gCua.

"May God grant sweet rest from life's long labours, To the soul of the Spailpin Fanach."

Brilliant Success for Members of Ballymac' Family.

The Sheehan family of Killeeney, Ballymacarrry, are certainly in the news these days thanks to brilliant successes of two of its members. Miss Teresa Sheehan was recently successful in her nursing examination at Selly Oak Hospital, Birmingham, while her brother Patrick, who is a member of the Gardai, has been recently promoted to the rank of Sergeant. He is stationed in Dublin for a number of years and is presently attached to College Street, Gard a Station.

We extend congratulations to both on their successes in their respective walks of life and wish them further success in future years.

Kilmacthomas Notes

Deep Regret is felt on both sides of the Mahon at the unexpected and sudden death of Mr. Michael Moore, of Sean Walsh Pl., Kilmacthomas, which occurred on Friday of last week, the while he was at his work at Kinagrang Corn Mills, where he was a valued employee of Messrs. Flahavan & Sons, Ltd. Aged 58 years, he was a loving and devoted husband and father, and genuine friend. Gifted with a very beautiful singing voice (tenor), he was attached to the choir of the local Convent Chapel for quite a long period. Very deep sympathy has gone forth to his grief-stricken wife (nee O'Brien), daughter (Jacqueline), sons (Val and Michael) and brother and sisters in the affliction.

All sections of the community were represented in the attendance at the removal of the remains to the Parish Church of All Saints, Newtown, where the coffin was received and blessed by Very Rev. Fr. Raphael Power, P.P. do.

Burial took place in the adjoining cemetery immediately after the 10 o'clock Mass on Sunday, and the respected pastor again officiated at the graveside in the presence of another immense concourse of mourners and sympathisers.

Many Mass cards and messages of condolence were received.

Belonging By Birth to Dungarvan and a notable agricultural expert who has appeared on several occasions on the Radio Eireann programme titled "Farmers' Forum" is Mr. Maurice Tierney, B.Agr.Sc., Rocklands, Ferrybank, Waterford, farm manager and livestock adviser to Clover Meats, Ltd., and he has been appointed temporary agricultural instructor in the Kilmacthomas area.

Salmon Fishing has been remarkably poor on the Mahon since the opening of the season and very few catches have been reported to date.

The Sporting Reader will not forget to remember that Waterford Hunt Point-to-Point Races is coming off at Curraghmore on this day (Saturday) week, 14th inst., and the first race is timed for 2.30 p.m.

Sincere Regret has been occasioned in the parish of Stradbally, Faha and Ballylaneen, by the death of Mr. Matthew (Matty) Power, which took place at the home of his adoption in Wales last week, following a period of poor health and at the Scriptural span. A model spouse and parent, he was imbued with a kind and charitable disposition; had a keen sense of humour, and was a warm favourite with all who knew him. In the Land of the Leek for the greater part of his honourable career, he got on well over there and used to visit his relatives and friends at this side periodically. Whole-hearted sympathy will be extended to the bereaved family and other proximate ties in the loss they have sustained.

Deceased was brother of Miss Catherine (Katie) Power, Ballynabogue, Kilmacthomas, and uncle of Mr. Richard Roche, Ballinahila, do.; Mr. David Cummins, Ballydwan, Bonmahon; Messrs. John, William and Patrick O'Meara, Ballinahila, do.; and Mr. Nicholas Roche, Waterford.

At both the 8.30 and 11

LATE MR. WM. NOONAN

BALLINAGOU, RING

The death took place at his residence Ballinagou on Friday, March 30th, of William Noonan at an advanced age, but after a rather short duration of illness. He was a most popular and noted fisherman for over sixty years and had fished from almost every port on the south coast of Ireland. He was a well liked person and a friend to everybody who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

The remains were removed on Saturday evening followed by a very large cortege to Ring Church and were blessed and received by Rev. Fr. V. de Paor, C.C.

Requiem Masses were offered for the happy and eternal repose of his gentle soul on Sunday morning, after which the interment took place in the adjoining cemetery amidst manifestation of great sorrow from the very large concourse of relatives, friends and the general public who were present to pay their respects. Very Rev. Fr. J. O'Donnell, P.P., officiated at the graveside. Large sheaves of Mass cards were received by his relatives.

The chief mourners were: John Paul, Ballinagou (nephew); Mrs. Eileen Whelan, Helvieck, Mrs. Sheila Walsh, Helvieck Road, Ring, Mrs. Hannah Walsh, Ballinagou and Mrs. Katherine Charles, Long Island New York (nieces).

DEPUTY ORMOND IN THE DAIL

In the Dail recently, Deputy Ormonde asked the Minister for Agriculture if he had seen a report to the effect that Irish butter sold in parts of Britain was compared with car grease and margarine; if so whether there is any truth in these allegations and what steps he proposed to take to ensure that nothing but top-quality Irish dairy products reach the English market.

The Minister replied — There is, of course, no truth whatever in the highly irresponsible statement reported to have been made at a meeting of the Waterford County Committee of Agriculture. Those who make such statements do not appear to realise the injury they may do to our trade. The fact is that Irish butter is of a uniformly high standard and with one exception, commands a price at least as high as that of any other butter offered on the British market.

CAPPOQUIN NOTES

MACRA NA FEIRME

A general meeting of the club will be held at the Technical School, on tonight (Thursday) at 8.30 p.m. (sharp). This meeting is in conjunction with the National Sheep Shearing championships, which will be held here on May 31st.

DEATH OF MRS. M. LANDERS

As briefly announced in our last issue the death took place on Sunday, 25th March, at her home, of Mrs. Mary Landers, Campfire. She had reached her 85th year and was relict of Mr. Thomas Landers, who predeceased her by some years.

Nee O'Riordan, she was a native of the district. A lady of charitable disposition and fine neighbourly qualities, she was held in much regard and her passing has removed a well-loved figure. The remains, accompanied by a very large number of mourners, were removed on Monday evening to St. Mary's Church, where they were received by Very Rev. J. Kenneally, P.P., and Rev. M. O'Meara, C.C. Following Requiem Masses the interment took place on Tuesday in St. Declan's Cemetery. There was again a very large attendance which included many from outside the district. Fathers Kenneally and O'Meara officiated at the graveside.

The immediate relatives include: Patrick, Middlesex, Thomas, Campfire, Maurice, do., Joseph, do., Michael, Cappoquin, David, Tacoma, U.S.A. (sons); Mrs. Mary E. Townson, Bristol (daughter); Mrs. P. Landers, Mrs. M. Landers, Mrs. Mce. Landers, Mrs. D. Landers (daughters-in-law); Mr. John Townson (son-in-law) and grandchildren.

There was a large number of Mass cards and wreaths: "With deepest regret for an old and valued friend," from Lady Dobbs and Susan, and "With very deepest sympathy" from the Russell family.

(Undertaking by A. Walsh and Sons, Cappoquin)

CARDINAL'S PROPOSED VISIT

An announcement from the pulpit at Sunday's Masses, that, in July when he comes to Ireland, His Eminence Cardinal Brown will pay a visit to Cappoquin was learned with great pleasure. To arrange a fitting reception for the great Churchman, whose father was born here, a meeting of the parishioners will be held after last Mass on next Sunday.

ROWING CLUB CENTENARY

An interesting feature dealing with the Centenary of the Rowing Club was included in the "Provincial News Round-Up" broadcast from Radio Eireann on last Sunday. Interviews with Mr. M. J. Sargent, Vice President, Mr. J. Brady, Captain, and Mr. J. Wall, Treasurer of the Club, were recorded by Radio Eireann's representative. The feature was much appreciated by listeners here.

We learn that considerable progress is being made in the preparation for publication of the Centenary Magazine and it is anticipated that the production will have a ready sale.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

The engagement between Mr. John F. Murphy, second son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Murphy, of Clontymon, Boreenamana Road, Cork, and Miss Marie Bernadette Skuse, eldest daughter of Mrs. M. Skuse and late Lieut. Commander P. Skuse, D.S.C., R.N., Woodview Villa, Union Hall, Co. Cork, has been announced. Mr. Murphy is Managing Director of the Cappoquin Bacon Factory Company.

BADMINTON SUCCESSES

Following "home and away" successes against the Lismore club the local players also recorded a win away to Fermoy. Their next engagement will be against Middleton, at home.

GAELOIRI REVIEW SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Mr. Michael O'Murchu, O.S., Principal Modeligo National School, was unanimously re-elected Chairman at the annual general meeting of Cumann Gaelach Iar-Dheise held at Lawlor's Hotel, Dungarvan.

Re-elected secretary to the group which is working energetically for the encouragement of the use of the Irish language in everyday affairs was Tomas O'Ceileachair, O.S. of Ring College, Seosamh O'Fathalain, Abbeyside, was re-elected treasurer.

What was described as a very successful year was reviewed in the annual report before the meeting which outlined the many lectures, concerts and other Gaelic functions organised by the group during the past twelve months.

Appreciation of the help given to the Cumann during the year was expressed with all those who had assisted in any way in the groups various activities since its formation.

For the group's next Gaelic lecture it was arranged that it would be given by Professor O'Ceileachair, former lecturer in music at University College, Cork, and now a member of the teaching staff of Rockwell College, Cashel.

To afford greater representation to the youth, it was unanimously agreed to elect Miss Helene De Barun, Abbeyside, on the committee.

Dungarvan Tennis Club

When Dungarvan Lawn Tennis players dig out their racquets and gear for the opening of the 1962 tennis season they will find a great difference in the set-up of their tennis organisation. For, the past winter and spring has been the most active behind-the-scenes period in the history of tennis in the town.

When racquets were put away into dark corners last October, Dungarvan had two clubs, each of moderate playing strength, each with inadequate playing facilities, and each without a suitable pavilion for the members. When the new committees were elected at the winter annual general meetings, with Seamus O'Braonain and Eamon Kelly as chairmen of the Strand and Burgery clubs respectively, they set about the business of amalgamating the two clubs. A great deal of help was forthcoming on both sides and the whole tennis playing of the town, and surrounding district now belongs to one club—the newly-formed and named Dungarvan Lawn Tennis Club.

As a result when players present themselves for play after the club's official opening of the season they will find that they have facilities at their disposal second to none. They will have the choice of two club premises—at the Youghal Road and at the Burgery. They can choose from seven tennis courts—one hard and six grass. They will also have the use of the fine new Pavilion which has now been completed at the Youghal Road grounds, where table tennis will also be available.

This season will obviously be one of the busiest and best in the history of the lawn tennis game in Dungarvan and interest is re-awakening even among veterans who had thought of retiring from active competition. Add to all these attractions the fact that membership fees for the new season remain at a gentlemanly 20/-; ladies, 25/-; juniors, 20/-; and the fact that the new pavilion members 3/- and you get some idea of the numbers likely to be applying for membership. It will be a case of first come first served, particularly where junior members are concerned, as it will, in all probability, be necessary to impose a limit on the numbers which can be accepted. Therefore, intending members should apply immediately, submitting with their application the appropriate fee to:

Bernard Walsh (Hon. Treas.) The Square, Dungarvan, or Miss G. Mullins (Asst. do.), Connolly Row, Dungarvan, or Joseph Riordan, Hon. Sec., Gliddane, Dungarvan.

The officers and committee of the Dungarvan Lawn Tennis Club for the season 1962 are:

Chairman, Seamus O'Braonain; Vice-do., Eamon Kelly; Hon. Sec., Joseph Riordan; Asst. do., Miss Margo Loran (former sec. of Burgery group); Hon. Treas., Bernard Walsh; Asst. do., Miss Gabrielle Mullins; Asst. do., Mrs. E. Brennan, Miss A. Cunningham, Eamon Loneragan, Michael Lawlor (former sec. Strand group); James O'Neill, Alfred Nicholson, Noel Reid, Thomas Kehoe.

N.F.A. CALLS FOR RESEARCH INTO MILK

The urgent need for research into milk products was stressed at a meeting of representatives of the N.F.A. Dairy Committee with An Foras Taluntais last week. The basis of the Irish economy is the dairy industry and in view of this and our possible entry into the Common Market, it was felt that immediate steps should be taken by the Agricultural Institute to ensure that the milk producer could mean a few less of the thousands of Irish farms.

ais would ensure complete integration of actively with other agencies involved. A number of important points in connection with the dairy industry were put forward by the N.F.A. delegate and the Director pointed out that he would place these before the Council of An Foras Taluntais. One cannot repeat too often the remarks made by the delegate in the Dail early last month. Speaking of the effect of the increase in wages, and the effect on the economy, he said that it was however, the effect upon agriculture of the increase in wages, and the effect upon the prices of commodities in agriculture, which was the Government's major concern. The fact that farmers were facing the prospect of higher costs from higher industrial wages, and were facing the obligation to pay higher wages to their own workers at a time when farm prices generally are tending downwards, could have a most discouraging effect.

The Government have decided, however, that some thing must be done by increasing some farm prices on the home market and by increasing some farm production subsidies even though it means further reduction of the budget situation that we are facing and the possibility of further burdens on the tax revenue. I am certain that the workers who have received wage increases during the past few months will not begrudge paying something more for some farm products to enable farmers and farm workers to get some benefit also and that all our people will accept that the prosperity of Ireland can be built only on the welfare of our farmers, the security of our agricultural industry and that we must accept as a condition the obligation to do whatever is required in that regard.

PROBLEM WILL HAVE TO BE ANSWERED SOON
The Common Market and Agriculture, the present situation in rural Ireland, farmers' income and small farmers were all mentioned by Mr. Rickard Deasy, President of the NFA in a recent article. Speaking of the Common Market, he said "It is dishonouring to have to record that in a year when farmers all over Europe were busy gearing themselves up for the opportunities they see ahead, we in Ireland can record no worthwhile progress in this sector. Irrespective of the Common Market, we must have improvements in the breeding of our livestock, especially our pigs. We need a major reconstruction programme for our farm buildings, in which we may have to invest as much as £300 million over the next ten years. We need to rationalise the organisation of our processing industries, particularly our bacon curing and dairy product industries".

He continued by speaking of the Irish small farms "It has long been admitted that many of our smaller farms are non-viable holdings, and it is now more urgent than ever that we decide how to make them into viable holdings. If we cannot ind methods of making these holdings viable, then we should see up to the reality and find some other economic answer. All these problems have been with us for a long time and it is to be hoped that 1962 could have seen us getting down to work to solve them. It is precisely because we are a country have not faced up to these and many other problems that the fundamental structure of Irish farming is more and more rapidly changing. In the early 1960s, the Irish farmer will look to the Government to implement the assurance recently given by the Taoiseach that "the Government accept the principle that the farmers, as well as other sections of the community should share equally in increases in the National Income."

How this assurance is to be implemented in the light of rising costs, falling agricultural prices, and the progressive reduction since the New Year of Government subsidies to farming - for example the withdrawal of the beef subsidy and the reduction of the pig premium to the Dairy Industry - is now the major problem in agricultural policy. It will have to be answered soon.

MARCHING FEET AND MINES
Town and city streets in every county in Ireland have resounded to the marching feet of farmers within the last few months. In some quarters they have brought forth all the old headbore prejudices and vicious arguments against the rural community, though one can gladly record that they were no, as loud or malicious as they would have been, say in years ago. This shows an awakening of the public conscience to a national problem, the problem being, the lowish return that farmers receive for their work and the capital invested in their farms. By the very nature of their work, farmers are individualists. They are, too, the most conservative and simple element in any society. When they come out in thousands, it is time for everyone to sit up and take notice. When, on a national scale, they become bidden with the "do it yourself" bug and spontaneously march in order to focus attention on their grievances, then common sense should indicate that these grievances must have substance and deserve minute examination.

These farmers claim that they have a clear-cut case. They ask for a factual appraisal of their industry. They claim that their most common slogan "We want justice not charity" is a statement of fact. They have said, almost without exception, that they appreciate the overall position of the Irish economy, that they don't want to disrupt anything, and that they are not seeking or expecting the impossible. All they want is, that all possible remedies should be applied now and in the coming years, to bolster up our primary industry so that its workers will be given the heart and the means to exploit their potentialities to the full.

But marching feet alone are not enough. Direction must come from the head. There must be a purposefulness about all this, a goal to be reached. Neither is it sufficient for farmers to reach this goal despite others, heedless of what other people think or say. No farmers must see it, by publicly in all its forms, that in their march for justice, they win others over to their side. It is necessary that in achieving their objectives, other sections of the community should be so cognisant of the facts and so sympathetic with the cause that even though their feet are not seen marching with the farmers, their minds and goodwill at least should be with them in seeking a long overdue settlement of their wants.

MEMBERS AND MONEY NOT ENOUGH
There has been a truly remarkable increase in membership in our organisation lately. Branches are springing up everywhere, like mushrooms, and like mushrooms they sometimes appear in the most unlikely places. This is as it should be BUT more branches, increased membership, bigger finances, are not enough of themselves. There is something more important, and that is the approach of the individual, whether in heart or in mind, to his organisation in general and his branch in particular. Every member, new or old, should look upon his branch meeting as a place where business is done in an orderly manner for his benefit and that of others. Information is readily available on how to conduct meetings and on the duties of voluntary officers such as Chairman, Treasurer and Secretary. All one needs is apply to the General Secretary, NFA House, 27 Earlsfort Terrace, Dublin 2, and the necessary information will be despatched immediately.

The local branch should be regarded as a training ground where one learns to give and take, where the rules of honest debate can be learned, where tolerance can be cultivated and understanding acquired concerning the other man's point of view. These things are really important and there is to one amongst us who could not improve himself in one of them.

The local branch, if functioning properly, should be looked upon as a reliable source of information on most agricultural subjects. Furthermore, it should become known as the local power-house for educated thought and action. It should be always to be found in a leading role in local endeavours - in its help and advice, in its co-operation in its criticism. Above all, it should provide encouragement to its members, to those who are picking some new technique or the less fortunate who, feeling it hard to make and meet, become frustrated and disheartened.

At branch meetings there should be evident, despite differences in creed, size of holding or education, a feeling of solidarity. This feeling is growing at the moment like a flame. It is a beautiful thing and every member should try to fan it. Only as a result of this solidarity can we expect to get an impartial approach to our many problems without which the future looks bleak indeed.

Simultaneously with this there should develop an esprit de corps, a sense of loyalty to one's fellow members and to one's organisation. Members would then stop shirking responsibilities. Instead, they would vie with one another in pulling their weight at local and national level.

The good branch member is usually a good family man. He is a good organisational man. He is a good citizen and a real patriot.

All these things and many more that one can think of would help bring into being one of the most important factors for success where Irish agriculture and the Common Market is concerned and that is a spirit of self-imposed discipline. This same discipline is going to become an even more important ingredient in a farmer's make-up, in the future production and marketing of his goods. There is no better place to begin to learn it than in the local NFA branch. Zapay qkown allceor.

A POTENTIAL DISASTER AVERTED
Full-scale mining of the lead and silver deposits at ynagh, County Galway, will begin next year, according to a statement last week by the President of Northgate Exploration Company, whose subsidiary company - Irish Base Metals Ltd., discovered the deposits. Other recent statements which have been made on behalf of the Company have also been very optimistic both as to the extent and grade of the deposits. It has in fact, been said that the preliminary speculations regarding the prospects of economically working the minerals have been more than vindicated by the results of trial drilling to date. Readers may well be tempted to ask what all this has to do with farmers and the answer is that the farmers' interests are directly affected by it. In the first place, the day when farmers were not interested in what happened beyond their farm boundaries is long since gone. Nowadays, farmers are very conscious of events affecting the economic welfare of the nation and the chances are that developments in Tyngah and elsewhere may constitute one such event.

EXPORT MARKET
We may take it that the development of the mining industry will be primarily, if not entirely, aimed at the export market. Thus, as well as providing much needed employment at home (both in the actual mining and to a certain extent in processing) there would be the added advantage of earning foreign currency to help pay for some of our imports even if only in a small way at first. Agriculture with its new producers 75% of total exports, would welcome a helping hand for other sectors of the economy.

But apart from these considerations, it must be remembered that the minerals are lying beneath the land - good arable land in most cases - and it is only natural that the owners of that land would ask themselves the question "Just how will this development affect my power, my day-to-day farm work and the whole economy of my farm?"

THE EFFECT?
Bearing in mind the Company's view that the open-pit mining system (i.e. removing the overlying layer of soil, subsoil and underlying strata over a large area) can be used to the answers to those questions could have been fleshing it out for the farmers of Tyngah had found it necessary to ask them a year ago.

At that stage, the term "open-pit mining" would have meant visions of huge excavations, machine-piling, topsoil, subsoil and overburden indiscriminately in such a way that the land could never be restored properly.

The same machinery would be thought of as leaving a trail of devastation in its wake in the form of flattened forests, blocked drains and churned up fields, before it even reached the actual working site.

NFA PLAN
The NFA proposals met with a sympathetic response from the Minister and Department of Industry and Commerce. The NFA Industrial Committee met the Minister himself and further meetings with Department officials will be held as required.

Briefly, the NFA plan envisages strict regulation and control of mining, plus compensation to farmers for loss of value of the land, loss of profits and disturbance of the farming pattern as a result of mining operations. There was, as already stated, a sympathetic response and all that now remains is to translate that sympathy into a more negotiable currency - hard cash. We are informed that legislation may be required to give effect to some of our proposals - let us hope that it will not be unduly delayed.

NFA policy on this whole question can be briefly summarised by saying that we favour development of the country's natural resources on sound economic lines and in the course of this development, farmers must be adequately compensated for any interference with their property, their rights or their interests.

On Eve of Entry to Common Market... Deputy Kyne Advocates Co-Operation

In the Dail last week Deputy Kyne said: "I do not intend to make a long speech, nor do I intend to be critical of the many problems facing the Government or of their efforts to solve them. I realise that it is the duty of an Opposition to consider these problems and the methods by which the Government endeavours to solve them; to offer criticism and that any criticism offered should be constructive. I merely desire to take advantage of this debate to ask a few simple questions in the hope that the Minister may give me the answers to some of the problems bothering me and perhaps other Deputies, before we are called upon to take certain decisions."

We all know that one of the big things on our horizon at the moment is the question of entering the Common Market. May I begin by saying I am in complete agreement with the Government's decision to apply for membership of EEC in the circumstances that Great Britain has decided to apply for membership? I say that quite clearly, without any reservations. The Government had no option and the House as a whole with the possible exception of one or two individuals agreed with that decision. I still agree but I would say to the Minister that the Government have a duty to give, and to continue for the future to give as much information as possible in regard to our applications and the applications of other countries for entry. I would appeal to the Minister to keep this House supplied with all the information possible so that each Deputy may conscientiously make up his mind when called upon to make a final decision about what we should do in given circumstances. I realise it is not easy to get that information but I believe a good deal more could be obtained. Other countries similar to ours have made applications and there is information available as to the nature of their applications and to prepare themselves for entry into the Common Market. A good deal of information could be secured in that way and it is most desirable that it should be made available to us.

Much has been said about the dangers confronting us. I must confess that I have read and heard so many different views about the good and the evil that will arise from our entry into the Common Market that I am so confused now that I am practically back where I started at the beginning of last year. Much as employers, industrialists and farmers may have to worry or may have to face business reversions for a temporary period—or indeed, in extreme cases may have to face loss of business, if they are unlucky competitors in a large competitive market—nevertheless they still will have the advantage of the accumulated capital secured during many years of protected trade behind tariff walls or under the quota system. In that way they will be able to provide for the rest of their time for themselves and their families.

But on whom will the full brunt of our effective entry into the Common Market fall? I suggest it will fall on the workers employed in these industries. Immediately an industry goes to the wall, the first effect is the dismissal of employees. Immediately an industry goes to the wall, the first effect is the dismissal of employees, then they have to face a period of struggle, first of all on unemployment benefit and later, if they exceed six months, on unemployment assistance, which is on the bare existence level as anyone in this house will add.

I should like to know from the Minister what steps are being taken, in the event of our acceptance into EEC, to establish training schools to be approved by the general EEC committee so that workers who can be retained in one industry can be retained as skilled operatives for a substitute industry, if such can be started. I understand there is a special fund available in the EEC for which countries can draw. I understand that already Western Germany has availed of that fund to a considerable extent and has retained numbers of workers for a particular industry. It is only where an approved scheme is in operation that the money can be advanced. I should like to know from the Minister if the Government have plans to carry out such a training scheme and if so, when we can expect to hear about it. It is of vital interest to those engaged in industry.

DEPUTY KYNE

The Irish Trade Union Congress realise the difficulties and in conjunction and in agreement with the Government and the Taoiseach, they have set up study groups to study the different industries in which their members are engaged. While the findings of any one of those are not available at present, I understand that a general outline can be deduced from what has been collected already and that at the best there will be some redundancy and at the worst severe redundancy; that in time some of these industries will improve and perhaps expand and employ more people than heretofore, but there will be a period when there will be a general slackening off. I hope the transition period will be very short but I feel that however short it may be, the Government have a obligation, as we all have, to co-operate to see that the blow will be softened by the retaining of men in any industries where it is possible.

I believe there is a future for this country, even in EEC. I believe that now is the time to attract industries from the United States of America and Canada. It is quite possible that United States firms and Canadian firms with a European trade may decide to move over to Europe in order to get behind the tariff walls. Ireland is suitable for these countries, first of all, from the point of view of the availability of labour. In Great Britain and in West Germany and in most other countries, except, perhaps Italy, there is no scarcity of labour at present. That cannot be said in Ireland. Even if all the available labour were absorbed, I am quite sure that if Canadian or American industries were established here, we would have no difficulty in withdrawing from Great Britain or other countries to which our emigrants were forced to go, a sufficiency of labour to provide men and women to man all the industries we are likely to get. As well as that, there is the question of language. We speak the same language in Canada or the United States. That, too, will be a pointer to the Americans and the Canadians where to base their industries.

I suggest to the Minister that the giving of special grants to places west of the Shannon should now cease. It is a question of giving everybody who is anxious to help and to seek a free hand. I know many development committees who have used time and money and given careful thought to the matter and who succeeded in attracting industry. What do they find? They found that if the factories were to be opened in the neighbourhood which secured them, they would have to sacrifice a considerable grant which was given elsewhere. It is time that differential in respect of areas west of the Shannon, the distressed areas, or the congested areas—call them what you will—stopped so that each group, whether it be in Leinster, Munster, Connacht or any other part of the country, can be satisfied that if it succeeds in attracting industry and capital, it will be on an equal footing with groups in any other part of the country. I certainly feel that unless this is done, much of the effort that has been put into development will be wasted. As a trade unionist and as an officer of a trade union, I realise that the trade union movement has a duty in regard to this problem. It is our duty to go amongst the workers and point out to them that on entry into the Common Market, the day when he works and his employer were natural enemies must end and there must be a combined effort to produce more at a cheaper rate. The problems ahead are grave and must be tackled in a spirit of co-operation and any trade unionist who does not understand that or does not realise that part of his duty as a citizen is to impress on his fellow workers and trade unionist that co-operation and that wish to co-operate is failing in his duty.

While admitting that and while all the time I am prepared to carry out my part, I feel that the Minister should impress upon employers and industrialists that if they seek that co-operation, any increased production which results from it must not be used for personal gain by the shareholders; rather must it be used to reduce the cost of the materials we manufacture so that we can compete in the market of the EEC countries.

Too often in the past have workers been induced by incentive bonuses and various other methods to give a little more or a good deal more in each day's work and too often in the past has that money been used for personal gain by those who were producing, arising from the fact that it was cheaper, the workers found that it led to a retrenchment in employment content and what the worker said to himself was "I succeeded in doing was to work myself out of a job." Surely it is the duty of the Government to impress on employers and to give a guarantee to workers and if they do co-operate and if they do work to make their produce competitive on world markets, then, in turn, they will be secure in the knowledge that the effort they make will not result in unemployment, nor an industrial expert, the answer seems to be embodied in Pope John's recent Encyclical. The day has come when those who participate in the manufacture of goods take some part and have some say in management and I feel some effort should be made to fit in that advice with the crisis that has now come upon us.

I do not want to continue along these lines but there are two points I should like to touch upon. The first is a matter of tourism. I believe that could be further developed, even though our receipts at the present time are something in the region of £50 million a year. That is a wonderful effort and I think that Bord Failte and the Irish Tourist Association have done a lot of excellent work to which I should like to pay tribute.

I have, however, a complaint to make on which I shall not go into detail. It is in reference to a small seaside resort which communicated recently with Bord Failte with a view to drawing attention to its amenities and in the hope that a brochure would be made available. They received a letter from Bord Failte saying that that organisation had no knowledge of their existence. I am aware that the development committee of that seaside resort had each year provided most up-to-date brochures.

An Leas-Chairn Comhairle: All this would seem to be a matter for the Estimate. Mr. Kyne: I agree, but I was referring more to the general principle than to details. I have not given the name of the town. I would, however, suggest to the Minister to urge Bord Failte not to confine their activities for mainly tourist resorts because I think the more rural parts of Ireland have many more attractions for tourists than such famous places as the Lakes of Killarney. He Minister should endeavour to get Bord Failte to include the smaller places in their tourist publications.

Daphy Cosgrave spoke about the Health Act. There is a select committee of the House considering that at the moment. I am quite happy to await their decisions but I should like to say one thing here in connection with the Act. There is a very small section of the community who receive no benefits whatever from the Act.

Mr. Kyne: I am not discussing administration. I was pointing out that there was a section outside the Act which should be included. The great small middle-class groups who contribute by way of rates and taxes but who get no benefits. Some effort should be made to bring them in. The last Fianna Fail Deputy who spoke said that there were many members of the House who wanted to get services but who were not prepared to pay for them. I have no patience with that type of person and if the Deputy who referred to that were talking about the opposition, he certainly would not include my party. I have no quarrel with the size of the Estimates this year. If I look for services I expect to be asked to pay for them, unlike many people who are going around the country crying out for services but who are not prepared to foot the bill.

Local Soccer Derby on Sunday

SUNDAY next is a big day in local soccer circles when Dungarvan Celtic and Abbeyside United meet at Clonea in a league match.

This local derby is arousing keen interest throughout the town and a big crowd is expected to witness what should be a very exciting game.

Erin's Own Fancied in Sargent Cup Final

The final of the Sargent Cup—a trophy that commemorates the memory of a great Cappoquin Gael, takes place at Cappoquin on Sunday next, when Erin's Own and Brickey Rangers do battle in this year's decider.

To many this may seem a soft thing for the City side, but one can never rule out the likelihood of a surprise, particularly when the Rangers provide the opposition.

Take last year's championship semi-final for example. These same sides again provided the opposition and Erin's Own with their array of county talent looked booked for a can rest assured they will contest the issue with their more excited opponents to the very last. They cannot call on any big names the equivalent of Condon and company, yet in

Ring's Second-half Goals Decisive BANG! GO WATERFORD'S LEAGUE HOPES

● Gaelic Jottings

● SUNDAY'S DEFEAT WAS SHATTERING

Once again Waterford have been forced to bow before Rebel Cork and Sunday's one-point defeat at Dungarvan is a shattering one in Deise eyes.

Full well we know that Waterford controlled almost 70% of the play and had chances a-plenty to have won the game twice over. But again that maxim of "it's only scores count" was forcibly and bitterly (for Waterford) driven home. Cork, with far less chances weren't altogether blameless in squandering opportunities but at least were far more adept at scoring than Waterford. Thus did they sneak their way to this one-point victory.

For Waterford who so desperately wanted to erase the memories of last year's championship defeat, this is an hour best forgotten. Cork, on Sunday, were far from world-beaters—in fact I would rarely subscribe to the view that they are. Cork standards they were a poor side. Yet Waterford, before their own partisan followers, failed to do the needful.

Without attempting to find excuses, however, little went right for the Waterford men. An abnormal number of the side were clearly at loggerheads with their hurleys, making the simplest of feints appear exceedingly difficult.

But if the team itself must shoulder the greatest share of the blame, where can we leave the blame? The boys without making charges that were so desperately necessary? Yes, I know it's all very well to be wisest of the event but it didn't need a shrewd brain to see that all wasn't going well in certain sectors. Yet we may as well have waited till the cows in me home as waiting for someone to do their job.

Cork followers will again pinpoint this result as a personal triumph for their 12-year old wonder Christy Ring. His second goal to victory was a sizeable 2-2 but that second goal was for my money scored after the referee's whistle. But before Stephen Gleeson waved aside all protests by the Waterford defenders and allowed the score to stand.

What are the lessons Waterford must learn from this defeat? No longer as invincible as some might seem to think they are, they must face the championship with caution. As matters stand the attack is the immediate concern of the selectors but with the return of Tom Chossy and Larry Guinness, mentors may solve some of the present worries.

Summing up, it was a game that produced its quota of excitement and a tensely fought out finish, but the standard of play was well below what so many expected it to be.

● ALL-IRELAND CHAMPIONS CRASH AT KILKENNY

While Cork were springing a surprise at the Old Boro' their chief rivals Tipperary were relinquishing their National League title to Kilkenny at Nowlan Park.

This 2-3 to 2-5 defeat was the All-Ireland champions first reversal in major competitions for 19 months and only adds to the firm conviction of many that the present Tipperary have "had their day".

Kilkenny were full value for their win—of that there can be no mistaking. They always moved with more precision and purpose than the holders who seemed to rely too much on individual effort.

The writing was on the wall for Tipperary at half-time when they only led by 2-3 to 1-1 after having had the assistance of a strong breeze. And so it turned out. Within a minute of the restart, Kilkenny had a goal and thereafter they dominated completely.

The fall of champions, particularly when they were worthy ones, is never an occasion for elation, but right now it would appear that Tipperary are on the decline.

● GALWAY ALMOST DID IT

Galway came within an ace of causing a "grand slam" of hurling surprises on Sunday last, when they held fancied Dublin to a draw—2-6 to 1-9 at Croke Park.

The Tribesmen playing better than for quite some time, knocked the stylish metropolitans out of their stride with a rugged but very effective brand of hurling.

In fact, sixty seconds from time Tim Sweeney narrowly sent wide from a 30-yard free and thus prevented what would have been the biggest upset of the year.

The replay takes place on Sunday next at Croke Park.

● SUNDAYS ARRANGEMENTS WERE PERFECT

Fullest credit is due to those responsible for carrying out the arrangements so perfectly at Dungarvan on Sunday last. The stewards—numerically greater than at many bigger games did their work splendidly and dealt capably with the huge attendance. The pitch itself has seldom looked in better trim and was a credit to Pax Whelan and his energetic workers.

● BLACK MARK

One black mark however? Why was the Dungarvan Pipe Band refused admission to the sidelines? They like the Dungarvan Brass and Reed Band paraded (and played) to the pitch, but whereas the Brass and Reed were allowed into the sideline, Dungarvan Pipers had to be content with a view from the embankment. I wonder if anyone could furnish us with a satisfactory explanation?

● FIGURES OF SUNDAY'S GAME

The official attendance at last Sunday's game was 11,654, and receipts were £1,068-19-9.

● WATERFORD TRAVEL TO NEWCASTLEWEST ON SUNDAY

For Waterford and Tipperary, Sunday last was a day that can only have bitter memories. Both counties abounding with confidence were engaged in vital league games and surprisingly went under to Cork and Kilkenny respectively.

Now with the National League "blues" still in the air these sides travel to Newcastlewest (Co. Limerick) on Sunday next to meet in a tournament sponsored by the home club.

Because of the Sargent Cup final in Cappoquin between Erin's Own and Brickey Rangers, Waterford will be forced to find replacements for Joe Condon, Jim Irish, John Meany and Mick Murphy. Otherwise, however, they expect to have all the remaining regulars on duty.

Tipperary's greatest problem these days is lack of scoring power in their full-forward line and it is no mere coincidence that they introduce seventeen-year-old "Babs" Keating at corner forward on Sunday.

Keating is one of the county's most promising minors and has been on the county under eighteen side since he was 14, and has also played on the intermediate team, Sunday will be his biggest test to date and Premier County mentors will have careful eyes on him.

Both counties are still smarting under Sunday's reversals that so unexpectedly ended their hopes of league honours, and will be anxious to return to the winning trail as quickly as possible. However, as both will be minus key players it is impossible to predict the probable outcome, but whatever the result, it should be a game far above the ordinary level of challenge.

CASEY SCORES AGAIN — The Winning PINT — Nick Casey, The Square, Dungarvan

CORK 3-4 WATERFORD 1-9

WATERFORD must agonisingly prolong for another twelve months their initial winning of the National Hurling League pennant. On Sunday last at Dungarvan before an attendance of 11,654 they failed by a one point margin to Cork in the most exasperating manner possible, thus leaving the Leesiders to march joyously on to the semi-final while they themselves sit brooding over the many 'might have beens' of a tensely fought hour.

For to describe this game as other than robbery on a Gaelic pitch would be nothing short of a falacy. Seldom if ever can Cork have found themselves so outplayed for so great a portion of any game and yet emerge with the honours of the day. This, however they achieved on Sunday and as they threw defiance at Waterford's dominance and made a complete mockery of their territorial advantage, one could only have the utmost admiration for their stand against the odds.

But truth to tell, a clear winning margin wouldn't have exaggerated Waterford, so much on top were they on the hour's play. And yet, pardon me if this sounds something of a contradiction, any team that could so ingratiously fail to utilise profitably, the many chances the Deise men got, hardly deserves anything better than defeat.

In this hour of numerous thrills and excitement, Waterford enjoyed an indisputed edge and at one stage looked likely to inflict a crushing defeat on their Rebel opponents. Things didn't turn out exactly as planned however, and for that the fault lies rightly with the Deise men themselves. Their was a clear-cut mastery for most of the game, but so little impression did their attack make on Cork's recast but sturdy defence that most of the good work of the outfield men went for nothing.

DISPUTED GOAL

Nor can the fact that Cork's second goal (scored by the Maestro himself) was clearly an illegitimate one be of recompense to Waterford. It did however, greatly effect the final outcome.

Coming as it did when scores were level early in the second-half, it acted as a strength-giving tonic for the pressed Cork men. Ring receiving from Ritchie Browne just outside the square blatantly scooped the ball to the net with his hand from the ground. But referee Stephen Gleeson who was inexorably "miles away" from the incident allowed the score to stand.

Yet, apart from the invaluable assist that score proved to Cork, Waterford should still have ended reasonably comfortable winners. In the first half when facing a very strong breeze they hurled Cork into the ground and looked like laying the foundations for a "cake-walk". On top in all sectors, they piled on the pressure in effortless fashion and only the goalkeeping brilliance of Cashman denied Mick Murphy goals in the 12th and 19th minutes. Yet at this stage they could only show a paltry two points for their efforts.

● SURE THING

Nevertheless when the sides turned over on level terms, 0-2 each, a Deise victory looked a foregone conclusion. In racing paces the looked a "sure thing" and I for one was prepared there and then to write Cork's obituary.

But when Ring revitalised a fading side with a goal from a close-in free four minutes after the re-start the game took on a new lease of life. Cork, although still fighting with their backs to the wall had something to really fight for. A minor Waterford scoring spree brought three rapid points before Ring restored Cork's lead with that second and controversial goal.

BATTLE WAGED

And so the battle waged to and fro as the fortunes of each fluctuated. Waterford continued to hold the upper hand but Cork though not endowed with any super-human hurling prowess fought tooth and nail to preserve their slender lead. But if their defence bore the brunt of continuous pressure in admirable fashion, perseverance eventually had its reward for the Deise side and entering the closing minutes they held a slender but

deserved one point advantage. NEVER WON UNTIL FINAL WHISTLE

In the past, however, no county has upheld the maxim of "a game is never won until the final whistle" as firmly as Cork. And in this latest test they again demonstrated this time to Waterford's cost that there's more than a grain of truth in the proverb. With only two minutes remaining Sean Kenefick broke up a dangerous Waterford attack and cleared to Johnny Bennett standing alone at midfield. The Blackrock man found Ring with a precision pass and with an elusive swerve "Ringley" swept past Austin Flynn and fired a great drive. Dickie Roche did well to save but his weak clearance only reached Ring again whose second attempt came crashing back off an upright and there awaiting the rebound was substitute Ritchie Browne with the simplest of tactics in tipping the ball to the empty net.

But into the final sixty seconds the game's most dramatic and tension-charged incident was reserved. Seamus Power was unceremoniously downed when attempting to break through and referee Gleeson promptly awarded a 21-yard free. To Phil Grimes the task of making a hat or a cap of it was entrusted out to everyone it was obvious only a goal would serve the necessary purpose. But unbelievably the 'Sion man coolly lofted the free over for a point that in the circumstances was utterly useless.

Why he elected to take his point was something I nor my Press colleagues could fathom. But in the game's aftermath it was learned that in a brief, confab prior to that vital free Jim Ware had told Grimes that there was only one point in it.

CONSOLATION

Disappointing as the final outcome was for the huge Waterford contingent many of the side gave flawless exhibitions which in itself was some consolation. The defence in particular was superb in containing the Cork attack so efficiently and did everything possible to avert defeat.

BYRNE'S GAME

Wherever the game will be recalled, it will always be remembered as Jimmy Byrne's game. This strapping Mount Sion youngster gave as fine an individual display as I have ever witnessed and Cork tried a succession of opponents on him without success. His striking was crisp and lengthy, his every move bore the hall-mark of real greatness and not once during the hour was he beaten to a ball, as time and time again he nipped threatening Cork attacks in the bud.

If Byrne stole the show at left-full, the display of Tom Cunningham in the other corner was also a high-quality one. After an uncertain start he quickly regained his poise and as the game progressed he became more and more prominent and had Mick Quane "in his pocket" long before the end. Much criticism has been directed at Austin Flynn for allowing Ring to elude him for vital scores, but with Ringey at his irrefutable best in the second half, few would have been as successful as the Abbeysider. And in the first half forced to switch Ring off him?

WEAK CLEARANCES

Dickie Roche made some fine saves in goal but must accept the blame for one of Cork's goals while his clearances were at all times dangerously short.

PLAYED WITH BREEZE

Cork won the toss and elected to play with the breeze in the opening half. But from the start it was Waterford who ahead after five minutes with a point by Phil Grimes from a free. Six minutes later Seamus Power increased their lead with a further point and within seconds only a fantastic save by Cashman from Murphy saved the Cork net from falling. In the 19th minute Cashman again brought down the house with yet another incredible save from Murphy before Patsy Harte opened Cork's account with a point. Just on the half-hour Quigley who had replaced Donal Sheehan early on put Cork on terms with a long distance point.
