Sewerage Scheme for Friars Walk Recommended

MADE LIFE
MEMBERS

TWO men who had been founders of the organization and who had tended its growth from its infant days to the present time, were honoured by the Dungarvan branch Macra na Feirme, this week.

They are Mr. Denis Cullinan, B.Agr.Sc., formerly C.E.O. of County Waterford Vocational Education Committee and currently in charge of vocational education for the County Limerick, and Mr. Matthew

In a report to the members of Dungarvan Urban Council at their monthly meeting on Friday last, Mr. Patrick Walsh, Urban Engineer, said that the cost of a proposed new sewer at Friar's Walk, Abbeyside, would amount to £4957 if 12-inch piping was used. The report added that if six inch pipes were used the cost would be £3,233. He would, however, recommend the large size pipes.

The Chairman (Deputy T. A. Kyne) said that Friar's Walk was likely to be developed in the near future. A local building contractor was going to build houses on the site and he was prepared to pay 50% of the cost of the sewer.

Mr. Walsh, B.E. said that six-inch pipes would be adequate to deal with flooding, but a larger pipe would be needed to cater for housing.

Colr. Tom Lannon said he did not agree with spending £3,000 on the sewer. The people of the town should not be subsidising a building contractor to help him make a profit.

Deputy Kyne said the contractor was of the opinion that he was entitled to the sewer as he was entitled to the sewer as the contractor also believed that the sewer would not cost anything like £4,000.

Mr. Walsh said if the contractor could have the work done for less than £4,000, everybody would be happy.

Colr. Lannon suggested that if the contractor would build his own sewer, public money he said, should not be spent to build a sewer for somebody.

Colr. R.D. Walsh said it was the Council's duty to provide the money for the sewer.

Colr. Lannon—There was no sewer laid down for a number of other houses in Dungarvan. Builders are building houses for profit and the public should not have to contribute to help someone make a profit.

Deputy Kyne said the Council had the responsibility of a sewer.

Mr. Walsh said that it would cost £9,450 to bring the sewer down to Skeeharine, Abbeyside and he felt that the Department would not sanction the scheme if it was not extended to include Skeeharine.

Deputy Kyne said the sewer could be carried out by instalments.

Finally, on the casting vote of the Chairman it was decided to submit to the Department, the scheme drawn up and recommended by the Urban Engineer. They also decided to request the Department to agree to the construction of the sewer by instalment.

SEA-ANGLERS WANT MAP

In a letter to the Council, the local Sea-Angling Club asked for permission to erect a map of Dungarvan on the Council's property beside the Courthouse.

One of the members said that it would be an attraction in the town during the tourist season.

Colr. Lannon said there was post being built but he thought it was private property.

The Council decided to investigate the matter before giving permission to the Sea-Angling Club to erect the map.

SYMPATHY

At the conclusion of the meeting votes of sympathy were passed with the family of the late Lieut. Comdr. Dunphy, and Mrs. Dunphy, Harbour View the relatives of the late Mr. William Croft, Congress Villas, the family of the late Mrs. Bridget McHugh, Abbeyside and Mrs. McGeath, Killush, on the death of her sister-in-law.

'Young Farmer of the Year' Title Challenger from Kilmac'

SEVENTEEN-YEAR OLD TOM GOUGH of Carrigra, Kilmacthomas, is Waterford's choice for the title of Young Farmer of the Year, in the forthcoming National contest for Junior Young Farmers. SEEKS NO 1 RATING

A member of the Dungarvan Branch of Macra na Tuaithe, he is busy at present putting the final touches to his farm records, account books and stock report in preparation for his challenge against very stiff opposition, to be rated as the No. 1 Junior Young Farmer of Ireland.

THE TRAINER
Youth Leader in charge of Dungarvan Macra na Tuaithe is Kildare-born Tomas Ua Meachair, B.Sc., H.Dip.Ed., Rura-Science Instructor and Acting Chief Executive Officer of Waterford County Vocational Education Committee.

THREE PRIZES
The Young Farmer of the Year Competition, sponsored by the Macra na Tuaithe Organisation for the David Brown Scholarship—an annual award which consists of an educational trip abroad, a cash bonus of £100, and a perpetual trophy—is now approaching the final stages. The individual branch winners have competed in their county finals and the provincial finals will take place shortly.

WON SCHOLARSHIP
Though kept busy on the farm after regular day-school hours, Tom Gough took time off to study the technical side of his trade, and attended the specialised lectures of a Winter Farm School held at Dungar-van Vocational School. His application to study earned him a scholarship from the Waterford County Agricultural Committee tenable at the Department of Agriculture's special training college in Monaghan.

ATTENDED COURSES
Keen to get ahead, Tom Gough attended two Macra na Tuaithe Leadership Training Courses—one in Tramore, sponsored by the County Executive Committee of Waterford's Macra na Feirme, and the other at the I.C.A. College, An Grianan, Temoneckin, Co. Louth.

He was a delegate to this year's Summer Gathering at Gormanstown and succeeded in collecting a few prizes in the inter-club competitions held there among the young women and men from practically every rural district in Ireland. Football, hurling and general athletics hold a strong appeal for this young man, who has been chairman of the Dungarvan Junior Young Farmers Club for the past two years.

BEEF AND SHEEP
Young Tom Gough has been as his project this year, and as he lives in an area where there is little beef grown, his effort serves as a headline for neighbouring farmers. Always painstaking and neat, Tom has carried out the cultivation and maintenance of the crop with great care.

CAREFUL RECORDS
He has his record books well written-up and preserves a carefully compiled scrap-book of news items dealing with farming, rural youth organisations, sport and general information. He has diligently entered detailed accounts in a special accounts book relating to his project's (last year's) one was sheep) and these items will be taken into account in the adjudication of the finalists in the Young Farmer of the Year Competition.
Following his qualifying for the final, hopes are high among the teenage boys and girls of the Dungarvan rural group that young Tom Gough will bring the honours this year to Dungarvan.

Leacht Dathangach ar Cheol na hEireann

At the Convent of Mercy on Wednesday next, 7th November, Michael O'Ceallachain M.A., B.Mus., will give an illustrated bilingual lecture on Irish Music. This is the second lecture on this subject which Mr. O'Callaghan is giving in Dungarvan to spread the knowledge and appreciation of our traditional music. His first was such a success that he was invited back to give further lectures. An appeal was also made to the committee in charge—Cumann Gaelach Iar-Dheise—to have half of the lecture in English so as those with no knowledge of Irish could be able to follow the speakers without difficulty. This request has been generously granted.

FAMOUS LECTURER
The lecture which starts at 8.15 p.m. is one of the most important events in the activities of Cumann Gaelach Iar-Dheise. The committee hope that both Gaelic and English speakers and all who are interested in any kind of music will not miss this chance of hearing one of Ireland's leading authorities speak on several points about Irish music and illustrate all his points by instrumental or vocal music or by the use of the blackboard.

Michael O'Callaghan, who up to recently was teaching in Rockwell College and produced the annual operas there is now attached to St. Colman's College, Fermoy, and Presentation College, Cork. He is well known as an authority on Irish music but as mentioned above, produces and directs operas, and he is conductor of the Cork Youth Orchestra who have made themselves famous all over Ireland within the last few years.

CAPPOQUIN BREACH REPAIRED

The breach in the river bank on the western boundary of the Gaelic field has now been repaired. Under the supervision of an expert, the most modern machinery was used and there is now no danger of a further break.

EARLY MOVES FOR NEXT YEAR'S MUNSTER FLEADH IN TOWN

The Munster Festival of Traditional Music, Fleadh Cheoil na Mumhan, is scheduled to take place in Dungarvan next August—and already preparations are well under way to ensure that it will be an outstanding success. It incorporates Fleadh Cheoil na Deise next year.

The previous Munster music festivals were held in Ennis and Cashel and attracted a large following.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS
While it is argued by some that Dungarvan is not a very good position as a venue for this type of event, being in the extreme south with its back to the sea, still the organisers are confident that the fleadh will draw a good collection of traditional musicians.

PROGRAMME OUT SOON
A meeting of the County Board Comhaitas Ceoltóirí Éireann was held in Kilmacthomas on Friday night last to finalise the programme of events for the 1963 festival and the official 'Clár of Fleadh Cheoil na Mumhan' will shortly be in the hands of the printers to be later distributed throughout the country.

BISHOP WILL BE PATRON
The 1963 Fleadh Cheoil will be under the patronage of His Lordship the Bishop of the Diocese Most Rev. Dr. D. Colan. The president will be Ven. Archbishop D. Power, P.P., V.F. Dungarvan and Rev. Fr. J. Bracken, C.C., Ballymacarby will be vice-president.

FLEADH OFFICERS
Officers of the Fleadh Cheoil elected at a recent County Board Comhaitas Ceoltóirí meeting were: Chairman, Mr. Liam Comerford; vice-pres., M. Michael Walsh, Kilmacthomas;

MR. H. KELLEHER
Thos. Dooley, Cappoquin; M. Cullin, Ballinacorney; Jack Tobin, Dungarvan; Secretary, Mr. Eamonn Feehan, Abbeyside; Treasurer, Mr. James Foley, Abbeyside.

In Dungarvan these men will be assisted by Mr. James O'Keefe (Concerts and Cellists), Messrs. Humphrey Kelleher and Donal Whelan (competitions).

SUB-COMMITTEES
Other committees to deal with such important matters as finance, stewarding and the arrangements of accommodation for adjudicators and guest artists will be formed shortly.

ALL-OUT DRIVE FOR SUCCESS
Though the date for the holding of the Munster Fleadh in Dungarvan has to be confirmed by the National Executive of Comhaitas Ceoltóirí Éireann, yet it is certain that the music festival will take place in the town next August—and it is also certain that the competent and far-sighted action-committee, having moved in early in the matter, is leaving no opportunity to go amiss to make the 1963 Fleadh Cheoil na Mumhan a first class success.

D.L.C DISPUTE

Labour Court

Recommendations

Accepted

Happily we report that the dispute at the Dickens Leather Factory, Dungarvan, has been settled and that no strike will now take place.

At a meeting of the workers on Thursday night last, it was decided by an overwhelming majority to accept the recommendations regarding questions of seniority.

The Court recommended that discussions be held immediately between the Union and the Company with a view to deciding by agreement the question of whether the jobs held by junior men could be filled efficiently by more senior men at present employed or available elsewhere in the factory.

The Court would provide a Conciliation Officer to help in these discussions. If it were not possible to reach agreement in relation to all or any of the jobs in question the parties should seriously consider the advisability of settling the matter by arbitration.

EVERYTHING READY FOR GRAND OPENING

While the contractors are putting the finishing touches to the new Bridge across the river at Ardsallagh, in preparation for the opening in early December, the County Council workers are also busily engaged with the approach roads at both sides. At the east side the road has been newly rolled and sprayed and the footpath nearing completion. Near the bridge entrance there is an extensive sweep which necessitates the removal of thousands of tons of stones from nearby quarry. On the Ardsallagh side the road has been considerably widened and rolled.

Kilmacthomas News

Local Pastor's Will—Very Rev. Fr. Henry Synnott, P.P., Parochial House, Newtown, Kilmacthomas, who died on January 14th last, left estate in England and the Republic valued at £5,219 (du'y paid, £47) £3,097 being the gross value of the estate in the Republic. Among charitable bequests he left £300 to the Bishop of the Diocese of Waterford and Lismore, as to £200 for Cathedral Fund and £100 for such charitable purposes in Ireland as he may select; £300 to the parish of Newtown, Kilmacthomas, for the upkeep of the parish, "such bequest to be paid to my successor as parish priest of this parish"; £400 to the Maynooth Missions to China, Navan; £200 to the Waterford Diocese Sick Priests Benevolent Fund; £200 to Mercy Convent, Kilmacthomas; £100 each to Mercy Convent, Cappoquin, and Mercy Convent, Cahill; £75 for Masses; one-fourth of the residue each to the said Maynooth Missions to China and the Parish of Newtown, Kilmacthomas, for the repair fund, and one half of the residue equally between the Father Provincial of the African Missions Society, Cork, Medical Missionaries of Mary, Dagheda, Society of the African Missionaries, Blacklion, Co. Cavan, and the Society for Foreign Missionaries, Killybegs (all for charitable purposes in Ireland).

Mrs. Stacia Power, widow, Caheruan, Kill, Kilmacthomas, who passed away last week at a ripe old age, leaves a family of two sons and one daughter. Deceased was a very well known and esteemed Barony of Middle Third inhabitant, and the immense attendance, both at the removal of her remains to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Kill, and at the interment in the adjoining cemetery (after Requiem Mass, last week) provided a fine tribute of public respect for the memory of departed worth. Rev. L. Walsh, C.C. Killybegs, officiated at the graveside.

Have it that the first annual dance under the auspices of Clonea-Power Branch, Macra na Feirme, will be held in the Rainbow Hall, Kilmacthomas, to-morrow (Sunday) night, with Davitt Bros. Showband supplying the music.

A Rough and Wild Westerly Wind held sway throughout Sunday last, and the day was very much on the cold side. It was the Feast of Christ the King. Despite the severe weather, both the early and the late Masses in the churches of this area were assisted at by large congregations and record numbers of young and old parishioners approached the altar rails and received the Sacrament of the Last Supper in honour of Our Divine Saviour.

In the afternoon, enthusiasts from Kilmac, Newtown, Kill, Bonmahon, Ballylanean, Stradbally, Durrow, Leamybrien, Kilrossan y, Mahonbridge, Faha Fews, Clonea-Power, Mothel and Carrok's Cross travelled by train, bus, car, motor-cycle and scooter, to Walsh Park, Waterford, for the county senior hurling championship final.

The October Devotions, held in each sacred edifice of the area that night were well attended.

May Her Good Luck never desert worthily well-liked Miss Margaret (Maggie) McGrath, Carrigeady, Kilmacthomas, one of seventeen senders of an all-correct solution to a crossword competition conducted by an Irish Sunday paper, which entitled these to share the £500 prize on offer (each receiving £31-5-0).

Things He Likes.—A Bonmahon-born reader, who is domiciled in Bury, Lancashire, England, communicates:— "In summarising some of the things one likes it is no good saying, I like a ten-course dinner when I'm very hungry, or I like pretty girls, or spring weather, or warm fires in winter; there are general, not particular likings. In this matter one man's mutton chop is another man's indigestion: I may love things that you may loathe, while you may be crazy about something that would possibly excite in me sensations that a very seaisick gentleman might feel on being offered a Bonmahon biotator."

Nevertheless, I respect your likings because you are you, and your likings are an inevitable part of you. When I begin by saying that I like the truth, you may remark, 'How dull! And pray, what do you think is original in that?' And I'll reply, 'It's the only thing left in a world wallowing in sentimentalities and platitudes, where life is a very polite farce; convention makes us not only stiff and stupid, but self-righteous and cruel.' We flatter heavily-gilded hincumbops and the learned pate ducks to the golden 'fool'.

"There are women who would rather drink strychnine than tell the truth about their age. If some artful and consistently gulled people were to be told the truth about human nature, about society and about themselves they would drop down dead from shock."

"I am afraid Truth is very ill-bred, but I like the lady. We must all speak courteous falsehoods, but it's the very devil when we come to believe them true. 'Clear your mind of cant,' said Dr. Johnson. 'You may say to a man: Sir, I am your most humble servant. You are not his most humble servant... You may say: These are bad times. You don't mind the times. You tell a man: I am sorry you had such bad weather the last day of your journey and were so wet. You don't care sixpence whether he is wet or dry. You may talk in this manner; it is a mode of talking in society; but don't think foolishly.'

"I like to be 'up against it' and using any wits I have to make the grudging old world yield up its prizes. When I sit on the cushion of advantages I go to sleep in a crowd, and for the good of my soul to realise, as the Americans say, that I'm only one flea on the dog's back. But like the bored and world-shunning Garbo, I often want to be alone. I like to be alone because only then can one think out some of the fascinating conundrums and crossword puzzles of this mysterious universe. I like to be in 'love'; but I think, all things considered, I am a better and more efficient fellow when I'm not in love. I like to be criticised and blackguarded, for it is proof to me that my words have at least s'irred someone. Find your enemies and you know where you stand, but if you never make an enemy you might just as well never have been born. There is as much exhilaration, if not more, in making foes as in making friends. I like sailing in rough seas, I like having a hair cut and a shampoo. I like the morning and the evening rather than the afternoon. I like spring and autumn weather rather than high summer. I like the hot-polloi rather than the haute monde and a vagabond than a viscount. I like and prefer amiable and fluffy-minded folks to some a'rid scholars with three-storey intellects."

Late Miss Margaret E. Feehly

MARY ST., DUNGARVAN

The death took place on Tuesday, 23rd October, at the District Hospital, Dungarvan, of Miss Margaret E. Feehly, after a short illness, but in the fullness of years. Late Mrs. Bridget McGrath

MODELGO, GARRAGH

Widespread regret was occasioned at the announcement of the death of Miss Bridget McGrath, which occurred on Thursday night, 20th October, at St. Vincent's Hospital, Dungarvan, after a rather short duration of illness. She was a most popular lady in the Modeligo and Carrigeady districts for her charming manner and her most charitable disposition by which she was always ready to give a helping hand to those requiring her assistance. Much sympathy is extended to her brothers and sisters on their great loss.

Her remains were removed on Friday afternoon to Modeligo Church accompanied by a huge cortege consisting of all sections of the community who had come from far and near. Very Rev. Fr. Hally, P.P., assisted by Rev. Fr. Daly, C.C., blessed and received the coffin into the Church.

Requiem Office and High Mass was sung on Saturday morning in the adjoining family plot Rev. Fr. Daly imparted the final absolution and recited the prayers of requiem at the graveside, assisted by the full choir of priests. Another very large concourse were present.

Large sheaves of Mass cards, telegrams and letters of sympathy were received by her relatives.

LATE MR. F. X. CROWE

The news of the death of Mr. Francis X. Crowe, which occurred in Calvary Hospital, Rome, on Sunday, 21st October, was learned in his native Cappoquin with feelings of the deepest sorrow. His death at the early age of 43 ended a brilliant career in the service of the United Nations, which culminated in his appointment to the important post of Chief Accountant of the Food and Agricultural Organisation. As a certified accountant he joined at its foundation the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. His ability as an administrator and his flair for finance soon marked him out for promotion and he became Chief Mission Officer for U.N.R.R.A. Offices in Europe and Asia. To him was entrusted the difficult task of winding up the affairs of this vast organisation which operated in seventy-five different countries.

His appointment to the F.A.O. followed and he was mainly responsible for the foundation work directed from Washington. When it was decided to make Rome the administrative centre of this body he was appointed Chief Accountant.

A man of many fine qualities he was a popular figure in Rome where he enjoyed the friendship of many members of the Diplomatic Corps, and the personnel of the various embassies. His genial presence will be particularly missed by his friends of the Irish colony to whom his hospitable home was always open.

During his final illness he was attended by a relative, Mother M. Agnes of the Blue Sisters. The Requiem Mass, before the removal of the remains to the airport, was offered in the Chapel of the Sisters of Calvary by Rev. M. O'Leary, assisted by Rev. T. Mason, O.S.A. (brother of Cappoquin) and Rev. R. Fitzpatrick, O.S.A. (of Affane). The large congregation included the Irish Ambassador, Mr. Joseph Shields, members of the Diplomatic Corps, the Director General, and Staff of F.A.O., and representatives of the Irish colony. Mr. Fergus Fitzgerald, an Irish official of F.A.O., was usher.

The plane bearing the remains, which were accompanied by his wife, Mary and his brother-in-law, Dr. M. F. Carey, was met on Thursday morning at Dublin Airport by relatives and many friends from Cappoquin and other parts. The Dept. of Agriculture was represented by Mr. J. Nagle, Secretary, and the previous Secretary, Mr. J. Dempsey, was also present.

At various points en route to Cappoquin, the cortege was followed by many mourners and a line of cars a mile long followed the remains through Cappoquin, where hundreds were assembled. The remains were received at St. Mary's Church by Very Rev. J. Kenneally, P.P., Very Rev. P. Canon Dunphy, P.P., Lismore, Rev. D. O'Connor, D.D., Rev. M. O'Meara, C.C., Rev. P. Flavin and Rev. V. Power. The burial took place in St. Declan's Cemetery, Fr. Kenneally officiating.

The immediate relatives were: Mrs. M. Crowe (wife); Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Crowe (parents); Mrs. M. Casey (sister); Mrs. J. Spillane (aunt); Mrs. S. Gillilan (sister-in-law); Dr. M. F. Carey (brother-in-law). (Funeral arrangements by A. Walsh and Sons, Cappoquin.)

Agricultural Wages Board Decision

At a meeting on 25th October, the Agricultural Wages Board decided that, when the necessity arises for the making of a new Order affecting minimum rates of wages to replace the existing Order, the present Group B will be extended so as to include Carlow, Wexford, Kilkenny, Tipperary, Limerick and the Eastern part of Co. Cork in addition to the districts already included in that Group.

The effect of this decision is that whenever the next Order regarding minimum rates of wages of agricultural workers is made the same prescribed minimum rates will, thenceforth, apply in all the following districts:—

Counties Louth, Meath, Kildare, Wicklow (except the urban district of Bray and the Shillagh area), Carlow, Wexford, Kilkenny, Tipperary, Limerick, East Cork and certain districts surrounding the County Boroughs of Cork, Limerick and Waterford.

At the same meeting the Board granted the applications of 36 incapacitated agricultural workers for permits to enable them to accept employment at less than the prescribed minimum rate of wages. The Agricultural Wages Board which consists of 4 employers' members, 4 workers' members and three neutral members, in addition to the Chairman, are required by law to fix, from time to time as they think proper, minimum rates of wages for agricultural workers. For the purpose of fixing such rates the country is at present divided into 3 Groups of areas in which the minimum rates of wages are as indicated:—

Group A—The County Borough and County of Dublin, and the urban district of Bray, 135/-.

Group B—Counties Kildare, Louth, Meath and Wicklow (except the Shillagh area) and certain districts in and around the Boroughs of Cork, Limerick and Waterford, 127/-.

Group C—The remainder of the country—120/-.

Wage rates so fixed are not standard rates but statutory minimum rates which an employer must pay his agricultural workers.

One of the quality aeriels erected by the Company

An interior view of C.B.R.'s equipment room.

C.B.R. TELEVISION COMPANY STORY

WITH the world around us becoming more and more modernised every day, hardly a month passes without some scientific sensation zooming before the public spotlight. Not the least of these was the advent of Television,—now long established in such countries as England and the U.S.

But now our own little country has come astride the foreigners in this respect, and most of us have become very firmly T.V.-minded. Already, the Kippure transmitter is relaying Telefis Eireann throughout the country, and with the completion of booster stations in the various areas this station (T.E.) will give a perfect picture to viewers.

This, then is where Dungarvan's new television company—C.B.R. Ltd., enter this article.

It is a company formed late last year by three local men with foresight and enterprise. They have welded their knowledge of television—technically and otherwise, together, and, though as yet in its comparative infancy, the company has already securely established itself as a leading T.V. Company in Waterford.

The men responsible for its formation are: Sean Casey, Severin Bowman and Paddy Riordan—hence the name C.B.R. Each and every one of his trio is a vital cog in the wheel that is presently revolving with such success. They started as it were from scratch, worked tirelessly to achieve their aim, and are now reaping the benefits of their ceaseless endeavours.

They have already supplied television sets to people throughout the various parts of the county. They are confining themselves to three sets—Bush, Pam and Murphy, which they believe will give customers greatest value.

MANUFACTURE THEIR OWN AERIALS
Another progressive step about to be taken shortly is the manufacturing of their own aeriels. All present aeriels are imported, but C.B.R., not satisfied with the mass-produced product from across channel, have signed their own aerial, and after exhaustive tests are very pleased with the results.

They also propose to erect an 80 feet Master Aerial at the site of Baumann's premises in Mary Street that will supply the town with Telefis Eireann viewing without the viewer having to erect an aerial of his own.

The Company's equipment room on the Youghal road must surely be one of the most up-to-date in the country. Several hundreds of pounds worth of equipment is installed there, which in itself is a complete assurance of satisfaction for prospective buyers.

It is also worth mentioning that Sean Casey—whose job it is to repair the sets, is an associate member of the Institute of Practical Radio Engineers, in which there is only one other Irish member.

That then is a general line on C.B.R. These three Dungarvan men have left no stone unturned to ensure a maximum degree of success. They have set themselves an admirably high standard, but more important still from the public viewpoint, intend to maintain it.

Anyone is entitled to make enquiries to any of the founders, without an obligation to purchase. They will only gladly advise the individual—advice that will solely be in the interests of that person.

Yes, indeed, C.B.R. Television Co. has made what should be an ever-lasting mark in the Dese county.

AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE'S MEETING

It had come to the stage where salary increases were a bit of a racket, and he did not like the idea, said Mr. H. R. Dowd, at a recent Committee of Agriculture meeting in Dungarvan. The Committee were discussing the Provisional Estimates for the Agricultural Scheme for 1963/64, and they reduced the proposed estimate from £23,448 to £21,348—an increase of £1,455 over last year.

Mr. Dowd said a situation was arising, when a few people were getting more and more money. They should put a stop to that as he could not see why increases should be granted every year. There had not been a corresponding increase in wages for other people over the year, and the position was that when one county passed certain increases, it was used to level the other counties into paying them.

Mr. W. Foran said it was a disgrace that the Committee should be faced with an increase of £3,500 in the Estimate, most of which was for salary increases. "We are a poor county," said Mr. Foran, "and cannot afford these increases. But some members of the County Council have recklessly granted increases down through the years."

He asked Mr. L. Dempsey, Dept. Instructor, to convey his views to the Dept.

Mr. Dempsey said the total cost of the schemes, if passed, would be 23,448, which would have an impact of 10d. on the rates.

Mr. Dowd said that instead of giving increases to instructors they should appoint an extra one to cope with the large amount of work that had to be done in the county.

Mr. Dempsey said that if no new instructor was appointed, and if the salary increases were excluded from the estimate, there would be a reduction of £2,079.

A proposal by Mr. Foran, seconded by Mr. K. O'Ryan, that no provision be made in the estimate for an additional instructor in agriculture, was then put to the meeting and passed by six votes to four.

Referring to increases, the Chairman Mr. John Fahey said there was very little they could do in the matter, as it was a National problem.

Mr. Norman Walsh said that even if the Committee decided against granting further increases, the Minister could come along afterwards and grant them over their heads. Speaking on the Poultry Schemes, Mr. Charles Curran said they were on no economic advantage to the country. The people who had the Poultry Stations were really well off.

Finally, on the proposal of Mr. H. R. Dowd, seconded by Mr. Norman Walsh, a provisional estimate of £21,348 was adopted.

Between the Cullins and the Sheehys there was a long-standing feud. It went back so far that only the old and bed-ridden Na Sheehy, both of whom were nearing seventy, were still soured by it. Tightheaded Ber, who was as meagre in spirit as in body, had never ceased to blame the Sheehys for being the cause of the taunt of "Lard Grabber" which he had had to endure for many years. Nor could Nan Sheehy, despite her big heart (illogical as she realised her attitude) forgive Ber Cullen for the loss of the fine house and farm which Ber had bought when Nan's widowed brother weakened and desisted by the death of his young wife, had neglected the lake so abjectly that the bank had foreclosed and put it up for auction.

With what he salvaged from the sale of the farm which the Sheehys had owned for generations, Larry started a small shop in the village where he stocked everything from bottles to toffee bars. Here he settled in with his two young daughters, shy, gentle Anne of the fawn-like eyes and her golden-haired Molly who was three years older than her sister. Larry Sheehy proved to be as neat a shoe-leather as he had been a farmer. When he fell into bad health, Dr. Mahor put it down to some obscure, founding disease. He would have been nearer the mark if he had said that hatred of Ber Cullen had poisoned the man's system and that the loss of his wife had dealt him a death blow. When he followed his wife to the grave, Anne was barely fourteen years.

At that time Aunt Nan was working in the Dublin city service. She threw up her job and sacrificed her person to go after her niece. Ambitious and hard-headed Molly did not need anyone to care for her. Before Aunt Nan had been with them a year, Molly announced that she had no intention of spending her life mouldering in a God-forsaken village in the bog. "It's the bright lights for me," she said. "I'm selling my mother's engagement ring and I'm going to England where I'll have some chance of getting on in the world." Within a week she was on the boat. A couple of days later she had found herself a well-paid job as a shop-assistant. And in less than three years she wrote to say that she was marrying her employer. After that, her only communications were Christmas cards.

Shortly after Molly's wedding two momentous events occurred in the life of slender, sweet smiling Anne. Aunt Nan had to take to her bed with arthritis. And Anne fell in love with young Ned Cullen of Barnarea.

Ned, too, was an orphan. A couple of months before, old Ned had received a back-bordered letter from Birmingham.

"Dear Grandfather, the boy of twenty-two had written, 'I know you will be sorry to hear that my father died on Thursday, R.I.P. As you did not write when Mother went to Heaven, five years ago, I don't expect a reply, but I thought I should let you know.' Ned's father had emigrated because he found life impossible with the master of Barnarea. In Birmingham, he had worked at any every job, performing peace and poverty to Ber's perpetual grumbling and the prospect of an inheritance.

For a whole week, the old man pondered the letter. If the young lad had the build and make of a real Cullen, he should be able to do the work of two labouring men. And although Ber felt that, at a hale and hearty sixty-six, he could look forward to another score of years, still, Barnarea should go to a Cullen after he was gone — always provided, of course, that his grandson was not the galling kind who would fritter away the money which had been hoarded so carefully. Anyway, there would be no harm in giving him a trial.

Ned did not hesitate when he received his grandfather's letter. "Unless farming's too good for you, you'd be as well to come home and give me a hand to run this place," Ber wrote. It was not a hospitable invitation, but Ireland and the

"I love you, Ned," she admitted, meeting his eyes with honesty. "But I couldn't desert Aunt Nan. If I left her, she'd have to go into the County Home. We'll just have to wait." Anne said in a whisper that was a sigh. "Things will work themselves out some way." Being a woman and practical, she added, "But we mustn't let your grandfather know how things are between us — he'd throw you out lock, stock and barrel."

The lovers had to meet on the sly. Even so, there were few in the place who didn't know of their courtship. But all the world loves a lover. Even in a village given to gossip, neither Aunt Nan nor Ber Cullen were given a hint of the romance.

Six long years went by. Then, during that hard winter we had ten (or was it twelve) years ago, when Anne Sheehy took her early cup of tea to Aunt Nan, she found that the old lady had come peacefully to Heaven in her sleep. About six weeks later, pneumonia claimed Ber Cullen.

After a decent interval, Anne and Ned announced their engagement. Congratulations poured in from all the neighbours. The only thing that was so much as mentioned by Doria Heavey who had been housekeeper at Barnarea for donkey's years. When buying three-pence-worth of peach drops from Anne, she cooed, "Although Ned Cullen will make you a grand husband, Miss Sheehy, I pity you from the depths of my heart having to make your home in that old barn of a house. Only a Eskimo could stand the cold of it. And as for drawing buckets of water and trying to look on that ruin of a range, I deserve a martyr's crown in Heaven for all the persecution they've caused me."

Anne was not downcast. "Where we're love, there's warmth," she told me herself. And her mind leaped along to the happy days when the gloom of Barnarea would be banished by the laughter and shouting of children.

But during the weeks which followed, there was plenty of incidents which gave the girl reason to feel downcast and bewildered. Not one, but many times, Ned Cullen had been seen entering Barnarea with a smartly-dressed young woman who was a stranger to the place. Too proud to question her lover who had never kept a secret from her, Anne was sorely hurt. Are you going to spoil all those waiting years with jealousy? she berated herself. But she could not hide her feelings when Ned began to make excuses for breaking appointments. "You've been patient so long," he said lightly, "it should be easy for you to be patient for another month or so." But Anne was only human. It was with horror that she found herself speaking coolly to the man she loved so deeply. With every great horror, she saw that her coolness did not disturb him. It was when he went to Dublin on a three-day trip without telling her the why or the wherefore that she decided to give him back the ring which had been his first purchase when he had come into his inheritance. And when her customer's hand crossed the counter and started confidentially "about the going on at Barnarea" — she cut him short with such abruptness that her business dwindled.

Then, one Sunday, about four weeks before Christmas, a brand-new car drew up at her door. Peering from behind the lace curtains of the parlour window, her heart dropped like a stone when she saw Ned peep out of the car a pretty girl who answered to the description of the girl he had had been entertaining at Barnarea. On leaden feet, Anne went to answer the knock. As she went she took the diamond ring from her finger. Before Ned had a chance to speak, she handed him the ring. "I suppose this is what you came for." In spite of the proud lift of her chin, her voice was trembling and her eyes were misty.

Stunned, Ned stared for at her for a moment. Then, ignoring the strange girl who faced him, he pretended to examine Aunt Nan's old china, he put his arms around Anne. What's got into your lovely head he whispered. "Here... give me your hand. This ring goes back where it belongs."

He turned to the visitor. "Miss Hennessy, I want you to meet my future wife, Anne Sheehy. Anne, sweetheart, Miss Hennessy is a demonstrator. She had very kindly given up her Sunday afternoon to show you which to work the gadgets which, thanks to her advice, I've installed at Barnarea to make life pleasant and easy for you. Hurry and get your things on, and we'll have a tour of inspection of M.S. Ned Cullen's all-electric home."

Warmth welcomed them as they entered the house. The kitchen was equipped with all the electrical wonders which Anne had ever evinced in advertisements. What had been a gloomy scullery was now an up-to-date laundry complete with washing machine and spin drier. The whole house had been transformed. The old parlour where Ber Cullen had hoarded broken-legged chairs, musty newspaper, and mildewed clothes was unrecognisable with its gleaming tiles and bath and curtained shower. And from attic to kitchen, the comforting warmth of central heating dispelled the cold ghosts of old antagonisms and bitterness.

"I wanted to give you a pleasant surprise, Anne," Ned said. "Do you like it?" Her radiant face gave him his answer.

He glanced at his watch. "And now we'll call to see Fr. Mahon about our banns," he said happily.

"I'll be over to give you lessons in using the cooker, the washing-machine and all the other things," friendly Miss Hennessy said as they escorted her to her car.

"And you'll come and dance at our wedding?" Anne invited. "I'd love to." As she let in the clutch, Miss Hennessy said, "we'll initiate that coker by baking the wedding cake in it!"

The guests at the Cullens' wedding agreed that it was the best cake they had ever tasted. The only regrettable incident at this otherwise perfect party was that Jerry Murphy, the best man, overcame by a mixture of sherry, stout, brandy, whisky and champagne, tried to sober himself by taking a shower. The cure might have worked if only Jerry had first divested himself of his hired morning suit.

A Short Story by MAURA LAVERTY

The roadside called to the blood in Ned's veins. Within a month the old man was congratulating on having acquired a heir for whom to work was too heavy, no hours too long and no wages too low.

Of the many commandments Ned had never set foot in the Sheehys' shop. Then two women would cut the throat of a Cullen," Ber warned him. "Keep well away from them. It wouldn't surprise me in the least if the old one put a curse on the grand ewe that lost her lamb last week."

It was at a Muintir na Tire dance that Ned met the one girl whom he realised was born to be his wife. There was a flash in Anne Sheehy's eyes which made him want to shield her forever in his strong and capable arms. And there was a light in her brown eyes which told him that she recognised his arms as her life's shelter as surely as a homing bird recognises its nest.

All Irishmen are not laggards in love. Before the night was out, they were engaged. "Let my grandfather leave his farm to whom he likes!" Ned said with the rashness of the newly-wed. "We'll get married by force, Len." Much though I want to live in Ireland, I could be happy with you anywhere in the world. And you can trust me to make a living for you."

Gently Anne shook her head.

FEAST OF CHRIST THE KING

The Feast of the Kingship of Christ was observed in the Parish Church on Sunday last with Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament following the 12 o'clock Mass and continued up to the evening Devotions. The Mass was celebrated on the florally decorated altar by Rev. E. J. O'Dwyer, C.C., who also preached on the establishment of the Feast by Pope Pius XI. The Church was packed to capacity for the evening devotions, and large numbers had received Holy Communion at all three Masses that morning.

LATE MRS. M. O'CALLAGHAN

Profound sympathy was felt in town and surrounding district at the announcement of the death of Mrs. Maureen O'Callaghan of Market Square, Youghal, which took place in the Cottage Hospital, Youghal, after a prolonged period of illness. The deceased, in her thirties, was wife of Mr. David O'Callaghan, a local contractor and the mother of three young children. Her passing in the prime of life is indeed a tragedy and sincere sympathy is extended to the members of her family in their great loss.

The remains were removed to the local Parish Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, after which the funeral took place to Killeagh Cemetery. The very large and representative cortege bore testimony of the high regard in which the O'Callaghan family are held in the town of their adoption.

YOUGHAL MAN'S DEATH IN BRIGHTON

The death took place over the weekend in Brighton, England, of a member of an old Youghal family in the person of Mr. Patrick Hogan, formerly of Cork Hill, Youghal. The deceased, with his family, emigrated to England some 20 years ago when up to that time he spent his life-time in the employment of a local firm Messrs. M. J. Fleming & Co. Ltd. The remains are being flown home to Youghal for burial.

LATE REV. P. GERAN, C.C.

His many friends in Youghal have learned of the sad and unexpected death of Rev. Patrick Geran, C.C., Glantane, who, some years ago, acted as Chaplain to the Lo-etto and Presentation Convents in Youghal. Aged 56 years, he was a native of Lomardsdown. In addition to Youghal, he also served at Middleton and Mitchelstown. To his brothers and sisters sincere sympathy is extended from the people of the parish.

CO. CORK PRIEST FOR RHODESIA

Amongst the three Carmelite priests who sailed recently for their Mission in Southern Rhodesia was Rev. Fr. John L. Lynch of Aghavine, near Youghal. Fr. Lynch is second son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lynch his father being clerical officer in the local A.C.E.'s office. Fr. Lynch received his early education at Kilkedran N.S. and at the Christian Bros. Schools, Youghal. He obtained his B.A. degree and higher diploma in Education at the U.C.D. and his B.D. degree at Miltown Park. Since his ordination in 1960 he has been teaching in Terenure College.

COURSING CLUB'S 45 DRIVE

On Sunday night last, the Town Hall was packed to capacity for the Youghal Coursing Club's annual 45 drive, when approximately 1,000 cards were played for. This is the Club's fourth drive and was a great success. The top prize of £20 was won by Mrs. M. Lee, O'Rahilly Street, Youghal, and the three runners-up received £5 each. They were: Messrs. John Cooney, Youghal, Mr. F. Leahy, Youghal, and Mr. J. Curley, Tallow.

ACCIDENT

About six o'clock on Monday evening a young man named John Daly of Ballinvarrig, Youghal, riding on a motor cycle, received minor facial injuries when he was involved in a collision with a motor car at Tallow Street, on the north side of the Town. He was removed to the Cottage Hospital, where he received treatment and discharged.

N.F.A. Claim Nitrogen Factory will not benefit Farmers

The N.F.A. and indeed all taxpayers learned with alarm that a contract for the nitrogenous fertiliser factory has been awarded, despite the fact that insufficient information has been made available on points of fundamental importance to the basic economy of the project.

There are too many undisclosed facts in this venture and the Board of Directors of Nitrogen Eireann Teo. is being invited to meet the N.F.A. National Industrial Committee to produce (if possible) satisfactory evidence in support of the project.

After months of planning the National Lottery is about to "take off". Really splendid prizes have been secured and the proceeds are to be devoted to fostering and developing international contacts and relations.

It was pointed out that more and more customers abroad were going in for meat in tins. Great self-service centres were becoming more common. In 15 years' time 50% of meat consumed will be sold in supermarkets. Meat for these organisations will have to be produced on a graded system and Irish farmers will have to change production methods in order to supply what is actually required.

It is true to say that in a sense the world is getting smaller every day. Farmers, like industrialists in different countries, are coming together to solve their problems jointly, to develop their agriculture in harmony with one another and to plan together for the future. It is essential that the voice of Irish farmers should be heard in these councils. Others must know of our needs and capabilities. In order that Irish farmers can share in increasing European prosperity they must see to it that they take an active part in the overall planning.

The N.F.A. is determined to obtain the maximum possible for Irish agriculture, hence, its involvement to date in international affairs. To help it retain the position it has achieved and increase its prestige and value it needs more finance. Brussels may seem far away and relatively unimportant now, but within the next couple of years the decisions taken in Brussels are likely to affect us much more than decisions taken in Dublin. Irish farmers, through the N.F.A., have been the first in any sector of Irish life to see the implications of the Common Market in this respect. Their planning to date, has been ahead of that of every other sector. That is as it should be, because agriculture is a much higher employment figure than any other country. It is now up to individual farmers to assure that agriculture keeps the lead by supporting the Lottery.

Meat grading system will be necessary. We have the best grass in Europe but our calves are neglected. We are not getting the return possible from our land or our cows. These were some of the opinions expressed by speakers at a Symposium on 'Livestock and the Common Market', held in Longford last week, sponsored by the local N.F.A.

The panel consisted of Chairman, Rev. Dr. D. Duffy, N.F.A. Vice-President for Ulster, Speakers: Mr. Simon Carran, Agricultural Institute; Mr. Michael Carroll, Agricultural Meat Co. Ltd.; Mr. Sean Flynn, Parish Agent.

to implement the NFA proposal for revision of the Mining Legislation.
NORTH AND SOUTH
The elimination of the customs frontier between the two parts of Ireland, when Ireland and Britain are both within the European Community, is one of the attractions of membership from our view point, said Mr. Lemass, in an interview for the Glasgow Herald recently.

REVISION OF MINING LEGISLATION NEEDED
Since the beginning of the present activity in mineral development in Ireland, the NFA Industrial and Transport Committee has been pressing for fair and reasonable compensation for any farmers who are affected by it. The N.F.A. found that the provisions of the Mining Legislation in this country were practically all in favour of the Mining interests with very little mention of the farmer's point of view. The Association is still striving to rectify this position. Now is the time to put matters in order while the development is still at the exploration or prospecting stage.

MEAT GRADING SYSTEM WILL BE NECESSARY
We have the best grass in Europe but our calves are neglected. We are not getting the return possible from our land or our cows. These were some of the opinions expressed by speakers at a Symposium on 'Livestock and the Common Market', held in Longford last week, sponsored by the local N.F.A.

effect of the removal of the customs barriers would be to make this as obvious in the North as it now is in the South.
PRAISE FOR DEAD MEAT TRADE
The way Ireland has gone into the dead meat trade drew favourable comments from 'The Scotsman' published in Bimburgh recently. The writer, Mr. Urquhart said: 'From search a few years ago they now have a meat export trade with American Forces in Europe and several European countries, and boned meat to the U.S. all markets they just did not have in the middle fifties.'

A FITTING RESULT

Thrilling Draw to County Final

ERIN'S OWN - 3-6 MOUNT SION - 3-6

IN an unbeaten championship reign extending over practically a decade, only infrequently have Mount Sion gone anywhere near tasting defeat. But on Sunday last at Walsh Park, Waterford, their off-won crown, all but come tottering from its Monastery pedestal, when only a pointed free in the dying moments gave them a second chance after a thrilling senior hurling decider.

Gaelic Jottings

FOOTBALLERS CAN MASTER CLARE

Waterford face what can be their most vital game in the section on Sunday when they meet Clare in the National Football League at Dungarvan. Having already unexpectedly dripped two points to Kilkenny a further defeat would completely shatter their hopes of retaining sectional honours.

Since that defeat they have redeemed themselves somewhat by gaining a narrow victory over Tipperary, though as yet they have failed to reproduce their championship form. Clare come to the Old Bore venue with full points from their only game to date—against Limerick. Never on easy side to beat, the present one is very highly rated in the Banner County and are supremely confident of another win.

The have an outstanding goalkeeper in Cyril Jones, while P. J. Kennedy, Richie Pyne, Frank Kennedy and Tommy Mangan are also first-class experienced footballers.

Luckily Waterford are not forced to field without Freddie O'Brien and "Doc" Walsh, the Mount Sion pair who it was feared would be assisting their club in the county hurling final.

The rearguard is a strong one, revolving around goalkeeper Sean Ormonde, and defenders Eddie Mooney, Tommy Power and Mick Connolly who seems the likely choice to take over from Freddie O'Brien at centre-field.

The drafting of Martin Kennedy to midfield is a wise move and with clubmate Monty Guiry should master any pairing that Clare may pit against them. It was only in the closing stages against Tipp, that Waterford's attack really sparked but they will have to be functioning on all six cylinders if they hope to pierce Clare's rugged defence.

Knowing that victory is a must—as against Tipp, Waterford can be expected to make an all-out effort to obtain the points. Clare as always, will put up a stubborn resistance, but should the Deise attack click—and I think it will, then I confidently plump for a home victory.

JUVENILE COUNTY FINAL

Preceding the National League game at Dungarvan on Sunday is the county juvenile football final between Mount Sion and Abbeyside.

This game was due to be played a few weeks ago but was unavoidably postponed. Interest has waned somewhat in the game in the interim but yet I am prepared for an exciting final.

Few in the East can visualise Mount Sion being beaten, but if the Villagers key players strike to form then it should be an Abbeyside victory.

CORN NA MUMHAN

Local College St. Augustine's step out for the 17th successive year in the first round of the Munster Colleges senior football championship against De La Salle on Sunday next in Dungarvan.

On each occasion 'Salte' have proved far superior to the Friary boys and are bidding for their third successive Munster crown this year.

St. Augustine's have experienced a very lean period in the senior grade for the past half decade and although Sunday's line-out is back-boned by good footballers in Frank Coibert, Paddy Carleton, Denis Buckley, Dick Lenihan, Paddy O'Sullivan and Brendan O'Keefe, it is doubtful if they can de-throne the holders.

'Salte' can call on no less than seven of last year's side that only failed by two points to eventual All-Ireland winners, St. Mel's in the semi-final and took a far too experienced side for the locals.

DRAW WAS FAIR RESULT

All things considered a draw was a very fitting result to last Sunday's senior hurling final between Mount Sion and Erin's Own.

At one stage in the second-half the challengers led by 3-0 to 0-2, but caved in before the might of Mount Sion's belated rally.

Without producing the classic cal hurling expected, it was a closely fought and exciting decider. The strong breeze made it a game of halves and if the challengers were unfortunate to surrender so great a lead, they can thank their goalkeeper Percy Flynn for preventing their net from falling on half a dozen other occasions. Flynn was beyond all doubt the star of the game, drawing rounds of applause for a series of thrilling saves.

The replay which was fixed for Sunday next has been postponed at the request of the Erin's Own clubs who have four players on the injured list.

The game has now been fixed for November 25th.

CAPOQUIN FANCIED IN WESTERN FINAL

When Cappoquin and St. Mary's (Mount Mellera) step on to the Lismore pitch on Sunday next in the Western Junior Hurling final (grade B) the Cornerstone men will be the firmest of favourites bring this newly inaugurated title to the town for the first time.

In their path to the final, Cappoquin have with the exception of Dungarvan, swamped every opposition and by my reckoning are easily the strongest side in the championship.

Yet, despite being regarded as odds-on favourites, Cappoquin have trained assiduously for this game, under specially erected floodlights, and it will be the surprise of the year if the side, boasting such stars as Mick Lacey, Billy Conway, Roger O'Shea, ever-green Paddy English who bellies h's 55 years, Vinny O'Connor and Jimmy Meskill are beaten.

St. Mary's however, are undoubtedly a strong side, but yet I am prepared for an exciting final.

Few in the East can visualise Mount Sion being beaten, but if the Villagers key players strike to form then it should be an Abbeyside victory.

While there may have been far better finals from a hurling viewpoint in the past, the tension-charged atmosphere of that second-half of Sunday last would take a great deal of surpassing. Into those thirty minutes were crammed the highlights of the game, as the champions despairingly as well as courageously sought to retrieve a rapidly deteriorating position. Twelve points in arrears was the unenviable position that 'Sion found themselves in and to all sundry an Erin's Own victory looked inevitable.

Transformed beyond belief, the side that earlier had been subjected to near humiliation began to dictate the trend of the game completely. They engaged in the Erin's Own hall and assuredly cut that four-goal margin. Continuously, a superb Percy Flynn thwarted efforts that seemed destined for the net, until six minutes from time Mick Flannelly lashed home the golden equaliser.

But Erin's Own refused to concede further ground. Their defence lifted the siege and after their attack twice squandered chances, Joe Condon restored their lead with a point from a free.

Two minutes remained and again 'Sion frantically went in search of a game-saving score. James Phelan gained possession 70 yards out but was fouled and Philly Grimes who entrusted himself with the nerve-racking task, almost nonchalantly fired over the leveler.

As already stated, however, the result was a truly equitable one. Both sides in turn had match-winning opportunities yet neither deserved to suffer the heart-break of defeat.

While several individuals on both sides gave outstanding displays, this game whenever recalled, will be regarded as Percy Flynn's fine.

The Erin's Own goalkeeper gave an exhibition the likes of which is seldom seen. During the hour the 'Sion' attack reigned shots at him from all angles, and one could only look and marvel at his competence.

But if Flynn was the game's hero, he was greatly helped in his task by a defence that gave him wonderful coverage.

Full-backs Billy Kelly, Ted O'Donnell, and Joe Coady never allowed their opponents an inch of leeway, while the half-line of Willie Walsh, Tom Walsh and Jim Irish was equal to 'he greatest demands.

At midfield the challengers were on top for most of the hour. Joe Condon, without reproducing his Oireachtas form, nevertheless hurried well, while John Meaney has seldom performed so creditably in the club jersey.

But when post mortems are held in the camp over the failure to clinch the issue at the first attempt, the forwards must shoulder the greatest share of the blame.

In the first half when they were piled with a lavish supply of the ball they failed to turn their advantage into account. Chief culprits were the full-line, of which Charlie Ware was best, and much of the good work of Peter McGovern, Seanie Duggan and Leo Murphy in the half-line was wasted by the inability of the men inside to penetrate the 'Sion' defence.

Doublet the holders were satisfied to have settled for a draw. For long periods they were outthralled and only when trailing by twelve points were they seen at their brilliant best.

Their defence stood up to the continuous first-half pressure in splendid fashion and if all six defenders had their women's of prominence, Larry Guinan, Jimmy Byrne and MI. Gallagher must earn special mention.

Monastery men have never been known to bow ungraciously and surrender their title without a fight. They accepted this challenge for its true worth, threw caution to the wind and rallied in a manner that was awe-inspiring to friend and foe.

For to weigh up the pros and cons of the hour would be nothing other than unanimous agreement at the final result. Understandably Erin's Own must be feeling despondent at relinquishing a four goal lead, yet in the final analysis that lead, substantial though it may have looked, would have been ridiculously insufficient were it not for an inspired Percy Flynn in the challengers net.

During the white heat of battle, some of the participants went outside the bounds of sportsmanship and a few unnecessary flare-ups marred an otherwise exemplary game. One of these incidents led to an encroachment on the pitch by a spectator but fortunately nothing serious came of it, although it must be stated that a Mount Sion forward can consider himself very lucky not to have received marching orders as a result of an attack on the Erin's Own goalkeeper.

Throughout the opening half, at the end of which Erin's Own led 2-5 to 0-2, the champions were unmistakably playing second fiddle. Beaten on a razzle at middle where Joe Condon and John Meaney 'ued the roost, it was mostly one-way traffic towards the 'Sion goal. But glaring weaknesses were exposed in the Pe'berry attack and all their superiority could have one for 'nought' had not Percy Flynn brilliantly halted the few but dangerous advances of the champions.

In fact with the major portion of the half gone Erin's Own held but a solitary point lead — 0-3 to 0-2. Backed by the strong breeze they continued to outthral the champions and were rewarded when Maurice Walsh and Leo Murphy crashed home a brace of badly needed but thoroughly deserved goals. These scores acted as the tonic the challengers desired and at the break were well worthy of their nine-point lead.

In many ways it had been a disappointing half. The hurling was a totally unexpected complete failure of the champions to match the opposition was a totally unexpected draw-back.

But what that first-half lacked was more than compensated for by as thrilling a second moiety as the venue has ever witnessed.

When after only three minutes Charlie Ware blasted a grounder to the roof of the Mount Sion net, Walsh Park erupted. Now twelve points to the good, Erin's Own were looking and playing like title-holders. For 'Sion the end of a golden era was nigh . . . or so we thought.
