Foster Finance Open New Premises

A resolution to mark the opening of their Kilkenny Office at 1 The Parade Kilkenny, was held by Foster Finance Ltd. yesterday (Wednesday). The ceremony was attended by representatives of the Motor and Agricultural Machinery Trades together with commercial and banking interests in the southern area. Mr. J. A. Ryan, Chairman, in welcoming the guests, recalled that Foster Finance Ltd. was formed a little over two years ago and the demand for their services was such that in January, 1962, an office was opened in Cork to serve the needs of the Munster area. The expansion of the Company's activities now demands a local service in the south eastern area. This was being met by the opening of the Kilkenny Office.

Mr. Ryan referred to the popularity of hire purchase as a financing method and noted that the amount outstanding under hire purchase agreements in this country, has risen from five million in 1950 to an estimated thirty-two million in recent months. Mr. Ryan noted that many people are inclined to associate hire purchase solely with the marketing of cars, furniture and domestic appliances and were unaware of the important part played in

TALLOW NOTES

TALLOW FAIR

Tallow monthly fair held on Friday, 28th December, was, owing to its close proximity to Christmas, very small. Only 15 cattle were on offer and were sold at around recent rates.

HOME FROM ENGLAND

Amongst the fewer than usual who arrived from England to spend Christmas at home were the Henley brothers, New St.; Mr. J. Griffin, Kilmore; Mr. and Mrs. J. Aherne, Janeville, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Geary, Moorehill, Tallow.

YOUNG LAMBS

Twelve sheep on the farm of Mr. Hurley, Parkdota, Tallow, have given birth to twin lambs each. This is regarded as very early for young lambs in this area.

HE SERVED IN THE BOER WAR

Haie and hearty at almost 90 years of age is Mr. James McGrath, Killenagh, Tallow. He served in the Boer War—1899-1901—and was in the relief of Ladysmith and the Battle of Colesso. He also served right through the first world war and came through both wars without a scratch. On Christmas Eve he travelled from his house to Tallow, a distance of five miles. And his remark was that he would not mind joining up again if there was a war.

KILLEAGH LOSE DEBATING SEMI-FINAL

Fermoy beat Killeagh by a narrow margin in the semi-final of the Macra Debating Championship. However, they are to be complimented on their excellent performance.

LATE MRS. JULIA CASHMAN

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Julia Cashman, Parkmountain, which sad event occurred recently. She was relict of the late James Cashman and was a lady dearly loved by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. There was a large and representative cortege at the removal of the remains to the Youghal Parish Church, and at the interment in the North Abbey Cemetery, Youghal.

YOUNG LAMBS

Two couples of young lambs have been born on the farm of Mr. James Donoghue, Glogoura, Tallow. This is regarded as very early locally.

Kilmacthomas News

Graduations go to likeable Mr. Edward Power, Kill, Kilmacthomas, and estimable Miss Lena Casey, Boatstrand, do, on their engagement, which was announced last week.

At a Specially Convened Meeting of the surviving members of the old Rathgormack Gaelic Football Club, a vote of condolence was passed and directed to be forwarded to the relatives of the late Mr. Michael Curry, Windgap. It was recalled how, when this great Gael was at business in the Metropolis, he joined the Dublin Kickhams and had the distinction of winning two All-Ireland and three senior Leinster medals with that team, a striking tribute to his football ability and a feat few can hope to achieve in a lifetime.

The late Mr. Curry entered his name high in the annals of the G.A.A. before returning to his native county to help the Rathgormack F.C. to undisputed champions of the county from 1910 to 1911.

At home once more, he was his driving force and inspiration, that wedded Rathgormack into a first-class team that made possible their many victories.

It was decided to have a Novena of Masses offered for the repose of his soul.

As advertised on page 2 of this copy, Messrs. Quealy & Co., M.I.A.A., Auctioneers and Valuers, Dungarvan, are instructed by Mrs. A. McGrath, Parkeennaglogh, Newtown, Kilmacthomas, to sell by public auction of the lands on Friday of next week (January 11th) at 3 p.m. (sharp), her ideally situated holding of approximately 140 acres with well-kept residence and a range of 20 offices, including a 5-span Hay Shed thereon, all in capital condition.

The reader will please peruse the advertisement for the complete preliminary particulars of this distinctly attractive residential farm sale.

LISMORE NOTES

BE REAVEMENT

We regret to record the death of Mr. Claud Guest, which occurred at Greystones, County Wicklow. Mr. Guest was a retired official of the Munster & Leinster Bank and was a native of Lismore. To his wife, family and brothers we extend our deepest sympathy.

WIN IN POOLS

Congratulations to Mrs. Keating, Deerpark, on winning a prize in a local pool. This is Mrs. Keating's second win in the pools.

BEREAVEMENT

The death took place recently of Mrs. O'Connor, of Fernville. Possessing a kind and gentle nature, she was dearly loved by her family, friends and all who had contact with her. Mrs. O'Connor was well over eighty years of age and almost to the day of her death she was out and about. To her sorrowing family and friends we extend our sincere sympathy.

SNOW CANCELS SPORT

Many sporting fixtures for the weekend were cancelled due to what has been recorded as the heaviest fall of snow in fifteen years in the district. All roads in this district were completely impassable with drifts of snow over six feet deep in places.

DANCE

The Old Folks' dance, held by Lismore A.C. in the Hotel, Ballroom, was a great success. Music was provided by Pat O'Brien's Band.

YOUGHAL NOTES

LATE MRS. D. BROWNE

Sincere regret was felt at the death of Mrs. Dora Browne, of McCurtainstown, Youghal, which took place on Sunday last at the Youghal Cottage Hospital, after a protracted period of illness. The deceased lady, in her late forties, was well known in the town of her adoption since her marriage to Mr. Michael Browne, a member of the outdoor staff of C.I.E. to whom sincere sympathy is extended.

The remains were removed to the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes where solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated on Tuesday morning and the funeral, attended by a large and representative cortege, took place that afternoon at 3.30 to North Abbey Cemetery.

LATE MRS. H. YOUNG

The death took place on Monday last at the H.P.L. Military Hill, Cork, of Mrs. Helen Young, formerly of Church St., Youghal. Widow of the late Mr. John Young, of Youghal, the deceased was in indifferent health for some time past and her passing is regretted. The remains were removed to St. Mary's Collegiate Church, Youghal, and the funeral took place to the adjoining cemetery.

YOUGHAL MAN'S ESTATE

Captain Patrick Joseph Noonan of Ardath House, Youghal and formerly of 140 Grays Inn Road, London W.1, who died on May 20th last year, left estate in England and the Republic valued at £2,800 (£2,770 being the gross value of the estate in the Republic). Probate has been granted to his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth H. C. Noonan.

LATE WHITE CHRISTMAS

In keeping with the rest of the country, Youghal and district was covered in a blanket of snow on Sunday last. The blizzard was the worst experienced for a number of years, being accompanied by lightning flashes and gale force winds, from 5 a.m. and continuing to Monday.

All motor traffic was halted and many cars caught in the storm were abandoned. Snow was up to 12 inches deep on the main roads, which eventually became impassable. In

YOUGHAL HOUSEWIFE'S LUCK

Some parts of the town drifts were up to four feet. Electricity was out for short periods but the supply was quickly restored and the general public were at very little inconvenience thanks to the local staff, who were kept on their toes.

The midday Youghal to Cork bus was three hours behind schedule when it arrived at Purnell Place on Monday and Tuesday, people on the sea front took precautions against flooding from the tide, but the wind remained steady easterly and there was no flooding of any consequence.

YOUGHAL HOUSEWIFE'S LUCK

Hearty congratulations to Mrs. Sheila O'Leary, of 5 Cork Hill, Youghal, whose ticket was drawn by the Lord Mayor of Cork out of the drum when the draw of Messrs. Musgrave Bros. in connection with their tea sales, which took place at the Metropole Hotel, Cork, on Monday last. The prize was an air trip for four persons to the Costa Brava (stopping at Lourdes and Barcelona) together with £100 in cash, or a family holiday at Butlin's Holiday Camp with spending money, bringing the total to the value of £250. There were other prizes of 50 gift baskets, one of which was also won by Mrs. O'Leary. Mrs. O'Leary made her tea purchases at Messrs. Beecher's, North Main Street, Youghal.

YOUGHAL SHOPPING SCHEME

On Friday night last, the League Hall was packed to capacity for the fourth annual Christmas Draw, sponsored by the Youghal Traders' Association. Prior to the draw, the Christian Bros. flagbearer band of eighty strong, in colourful uniforms and conducted by Rev. Brother Cordial, gave a selection of seasonal airs which were much appreciated by the audience. During the shopping festival no less than 140,000 tickets were issued to shoppers and the total prize money amounted to £120, being one prize of £30; one prize of £15; five of £10 each, and five of £5 each. Mr. P. J. O'Grave, P.C., U.D.C. presided, and congratulated the Association on their great achievement.

LATE MICHAEL HEANEY

Ballyconny, Dungarvan

The death took place on Sunday morning, December 16, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Dungarvan, of Michael Heaney, an advanced age and after a duration of illness. Deceased was well-known in Kilmacthomas and Colligan areas and had a most cheerful manner and was a very witty conversationalist.

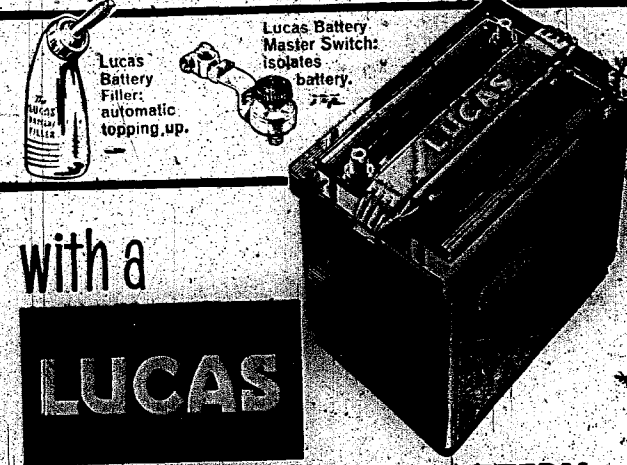

Much sympathy is extended to his nephews and nieces. His remains were removed to Colligan Church on Monday evening, 17th Dec., where the interment took place in the adjoining cemetery. A large concourse of mourners and sympathisers were present. Very Rev. Fr. D. McGrath, P.P., imparted the final absolution at the graveside.

J. Kiely and Sons, Undertakers, Dungarvan, had charge of arrangements.

MILESTONES
IN MEDICINE

ANCIENT EGYPT

The emphasis of Egyptian medicine was on prevention and their ideas of hygiene were very advanced. To the present day the scarab is considered a lucky symbol. This is nothing but a dung beetle, but it performs a useful service in disposing of a potential source of infection. Similarly, the cat was considered sacred by the ancient Egyptians. It was a killer of rats which were carriers of the bubonic plague. One name stands out in early Egyptian medicine—Imhotep. He was the architect of the pyramid at Sakkarah but little is known of his work as a doctor. He was, however, held in high esteem during his life as the father of medicine, and after his death, was worshipped as the God of Healing. He was, in fact, the only medical man who was ever deified. The XVIII dynasty stela, shown above, is evidence that, even at that time, the world was plagued with polo.

LATE HANORA
COFFEY
(nee Foley)

Skeheens, Ballymacarby

It is our sad duty to record the death of Mrs. Hanora Coffey, Skeheens, whose death took place at Ardkreen General Hospital after a short illness and at a comparatively early age on Wednesday, 19th Dec. She was a charming lady and was beloved by all in the Ballinamul district. She played a prominent part in the struggle for Independence.

Her remains were removed on Wednesday evening to Touraneena Church followed by a huge concourse and with the coffin draped in the tri-colour and were blessed and received by Very Rev. Fr. P. Walsh, P.P. Requiem Masses were offered on Thursday morning and the funeral took place later to Knockboy cemetery where the interment took place in the family plot. Rev. Fr. P. Walsh, C.S.S.P. (nephew), Kimmage, Dublin, officiated at the graveside, assisted by Rev. Fr. Mulcahy, C.C., and Rev. Fr. Doherty, C.S.S.P., Kimmage.

The chief mourners were—William Coffey, Skeheens (husband) John and Thomas Foley (brothers); Rev. P. Walsh, C.S.S.P., Kimmage (nephew) and Miss Nora Walsh, Shandon and Mrs. K. Cronin South Tee, Dungarvan (nieces) etc.

CAPPOQUIN NOTES

OBITUARY

MRS. B. MORRISSEY

Deep regret over a wide area was caused by the death of Mrs. B. Morrissey, Coolnacree, Cappoquin, which took place in a Clonmel hospital on Dec. 17th. She was a lady of many fine traits and held in much esteem and regard. The remains followed by a very large cortege were received at Affane Church by Very Rev. M. Hally, P.P., Very Rev. J. Kenneally, P.P., and Rev. C. Daly, C.C. The interment following Solemn Requiem High Mass took place on Thursday morning in the presence of a very big attendance. The immediate relatives include: David, Edmond and Maurice (sons); Sr. Mary Immaculata, Crossmolina; Mrs. W. Kenrick, Clonmel (daughters); Right Rev. Mons. E. Noonan, Clonmel, California (brother); Miss K. Noonan, Cappoquin (sister); MISS MARY O. HALLORAN. The death took place in St. Laurence's Hospital, Dublin, on 26th Dec. of Miss Mary Olive O'Halloran, Lauretum, Clashmore. She was only nine years old and her death followed a brief illness. There was a huge attendance at the removal of the remains to Clashmore Church and at the interment. To her parents, brother, sisters and other relatives sympathy is extended in their bereavement.

(Undertaking by A. Walsh and Sons, Cappoquin).

MRS. C. KIELY

The death took place on 20th Dec. at her residence of Mrs. Catherine Kiely, Derra, Cappagh. She was the wife of Mr. D. Kiely and had reached an advanced age. Well-known and much regarded, her passing caused deep regret. Very Rev. M. Hally, P.P., and Rev. C. Daly, C.C., received the remains at Molesigo Church on Friday evening and the interment took place in the adjoining cemetery on the following day. There was a very large attendance on both occasions. The chief mourners were: Richard and Thomas, Graigue-moore, Patrick, London (sons); Mrs. N. Nugent, Farnane, Mrs. A. Walsh, Drumslogh (daughters); M. Cullinane, Blandis, Thomas Cullinane, Mapstown (brothers).

(Funeral arrangements by A. Walsh and Sons, Cappoquin).

DEATH OF MR. T. STAPLETON

The news of the death of Mr. Thomas Stapleton, Affane, which took place in Ardkreen Hospital, on December 24th, was a learned with feelings of sorrow, not only in his native

LATE MRS. MARY MORRISSEY

Stradbally, Co. Waterford

The sad event of the death of Mrs. Mary Morrissey, took place at the early age of 54 years, on Thursday morning, 27th Dec., at St. Joseph's Hospital, Dungarvan, after an illness of rather short duration. Her passing has cast a gloom over her native parish where she was cherished and beloved by rich and poor alike. Much sympathy is extended to her daughter who resides in Dungarvan and also to her sons who are domiciled in England. Her remains were removed on Thursday evening to Stradbally Church followed by a cortege of very large proportions and were blessed and received by Rev. M. Fennell, C.C.

Requiem Masses were celebrated on Friday morning and the interment took place in the adjoining family plot. Very Rev. D. Power, P.P., imported the final absolution at the graveside. Another large gathering of friends and neighbours were present.

(J. Kiely and Sons, had charge of funeral arrangements)

LATE THOMAS CONDON

Knockmeal, Ballinamult

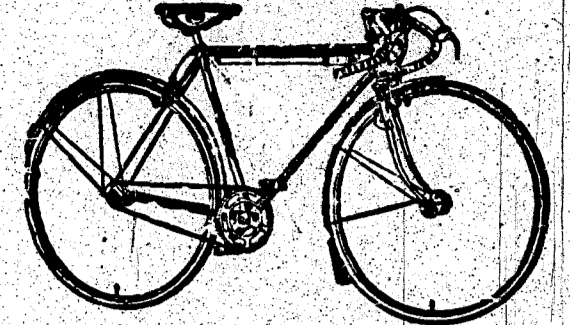

We wish to extend our deepest sympathy to the brothers, nephews and nieces of the late Thomas Condon, whose death occurred accidentally at his residence Knockmeal on Sunday night, 16th inst. Deceased was a highly respected gentleman and a member of a well-known Knockmeal family. His remains were removed on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 18, to Touraneena Church, followed by a huge cortege.

Requiem Office and High Mass was celebrated on Wednesday morning for the happy repose of his soul and the funeral left for Ardmore Cemetery where the interment took place. Very Rev. Fr. Cahill, C.C., officiated at the graveside and recited the prayers of requiem.

The chief mourners were: John Condon, Knockmeal; Edmond Condon, Nire; and Wm. Condon, Cappagh (brothers), and a large circle of nephews and nieces.

Mr. Bigheart Comes to Town

By—
MAURA LAVERTY

If all the blessings which the people of Carnalea heaped on Katie Mooney were turned to gold, that small head with its soft brown hair would have been encircled with a shining halo. Instead it was crowned with one of the becoming little hats made by her own clever fingers. Katie was as good a milliner as she was a dress-maker. At her neighbours' ten said, "Katie Mooney could have made a fortune with her needle if only she'd had the money to start a business in Dublin. Not one of them high-class designers up there could hold a candle to her."

But Katie had neither the wish nor the money to compete in City business. As it happened Carnalea had reason to be thankful that this was so. At forty, the gently-smiling spinster of the compassionate grey eyes and quiet, capable hands occupied the position of fairy godmother to the needy of her birthplace. We was as well acquainted with the awkward personal problems of some of her customers as she was with the equally awkward measurements of others. To cope with each, no trouble or sacrifice was too great for her. She was the first to be called on in times of sickness and trouble. "Katie Mooney will help us out with a confident prediction. When a girl in a straightened circumstance was getting married, Katie always succeeded in rooting out a couple of pieces of material for those extra garments which could turn a badly equipped bride into the proud possessor of a real trousseau. No child of poverty-stricken parents had to worry about the glory of a flounced and lace-trimmed dress for First Communion or Confirmation. "Sure, the bit of stuff was only cluttering up the place," Katie would say when grateful mothers tried to thank her. "And what better use could it be put to?"

As the years passed leaving Katie unwed, many people said, "Some man is missing, a good wife is not marrying that girl." "But maybe she's a born old maid," said the mothers of large families. "Some women are like that, they prefer to live on their own without having to bother about a husband or children." As she went her kindly and placid way, Katie gave no sign that such women were greatly mistaken. Not a soul in Carnalea ever guessed that there were times when Katie Mooney's heart flinched with envy of wives who complained bitterly about the trouble of managing a husband and rearing a family. Far from being a born old maid, Katie was a born mother. In inhering her neighbours she found a partial outlet for the love she could have given so lavishly to children of her own.

No women of Katie's sweet good looks reaches the age of forty without being sought in marriage. She had offers in plenty. But she was not a woman who could have married merely for the sake of a wedding ring. Katie wanted to give love and none of the men who had proposed to her had inspired that love. There were times when she had chided herself for what she called her "romantic notions" for cherishing the image of a man who would mean everything in the world to her. And by now she was reconciled to the belief that he would never cross her path.

In this Katie was mistaken. Who was teasing her forty-first birthday when Carnalea buzzed with the news that Peter Murray had returned from America after nearly 30 years and that he was staying in the Commercial Hotel. "I believe he's home for good," Mrs. Brennan told Katie. Lucy Brennan was a delicate widow with five children who tried to make ends meet by taking in washing. "You may be sure that many a well-off girl will be setting her cap at him. I've been doing his laundry. You never saw anything like the style of his shirts—fit for a king they are! When I remember Peter Murray as the half-starved ragged boy he used to be before his mother died, God rest her, and his uncle set him his passage to the States, I can well believe that the streets of America are paved with gold."

The stranger, the child in the white serge coat which was unbuttoned to show the gleam of white velvet hid shyly behind her mother.

The burly man in the American clothes lifted his hat. Having saluted Mrs. Brennan he said, "No need to ask if you're little Katie Mooney. Those eyes and that fluffy hair—why you haven't changed at all!" Except to grow into a lovely woman, his heart added.

"And there's no need to ask if you're Peter Murray," Katie said as they shook hands. "I'd have recognised you anywhere even though you were as thin as a rake the last time I saw you."

He laughed a deep pleasant laugh. "It wasn't your mother's fault, God rest her, that I was thin. She fed me like a fighting cock."

"Didn't she feed half the countryside?" Mrs. Brennan put in. "And Katie here takes after her."

To relieve Katie's embarrassment, Peter turned to the child. "And who is this little lady?" Proudly, Mrs. Brennan said, "She's my second girl, Breda. You must excuse her, she's a trifle shy to strangers. Here Breda, stand out and let the gentleman see you, lovely. First Communion clothes."

The reference to her grand-uncle dispelled Breda's shyness. She stood in the centre of the room and prouided like a born mannequin, her veil swirling about her in a snowy mist.

"Well, well, that sure is a swell outfit!" Peter Murray said admiringly. "This is a big day for Breda."

"If it wasn't for the kindness of Miss Katie she wouldn't be so well dressed," Mrs. Brennan said. "With her own two hands she made every stitch the child is wearing. And not one penny piece would she let me pay."

"Didn't I make them out of bits and scraps?" Katie said deprecatingly.

"And wasn't it like making clothes for a doll?"

"After Communion calls for presents," Peter Murray confirmed. From his wallet he took a crisp pound note which he passed into the child's hand.

"What will you buy with this Breda," he bantered.

"A doll?" or will you spend it on candy?"

"I'll give it to Mammy to buy turf," the child whispered. "Often she doesn't be able to get the washing dry for the want of a good fire."

"Isn't she the old-fashioned article?" Mrs. Brennan laughed. With genuine gratitude, she added, "This is too good of you altogether, Mr. Murray. I don't know how to thank you. It will see us over many a bad week during the wet weather that's threatening."

She turned to Katie. "All I can say is may God bless you both. Well, we'll be off now and I'll be calling on Monday for the washing as usual."

When the widow and her jubilant little girl had gone, Katie said compassionately, "That unfortunate creature has herself worked to skin and bone at the washing-board trying to rear her family."

"So I can see," Peter Murray agreed. "Life gives a dud deal to some people. That's why I've often wondered why I should have been dealt a royal straight."

Knowing nothing of poker, Katie did not understand this reference. But she had a perfect knowledge of the rules of hospitality. "Now that you're here, you're not going to leave without a cup of tea," she said. "I was just going to have one myself." Apologetically, she added, "I'm afraid there is nothing stronger in the house."

Peter waved aside the apology. "Believe it or not, I never touch liquor. Katie, when I was in the States I saw too many Irishmen drown their loneliness and themselves in whiskey. But I'd love that cup of tea."

"And were you never lonesome for Ireland yourself, Peter?" Katie asked over her shoulder as she led the way into the little living-room-cum-kitchen which adjoined her workroom.

"You'll get it heated at the fire." "Yes, I succeeded, thank God," Peter took off his coat and hung it on a hook behind the door. "I worked at every job that came my way. Each one was better than the last and I did pretty well in all of them. But I always kept a picture in mind of the place I'd own, one day in Ireland—a place where I'd farm and raise cattle as my people used to do before three generations of Murrays wasted our substance on horses and in saloons."

"There is no one more pleased than myself that you did so well," Katie told him. Never before had he heard such warmth in a woman's voice. With difficulty, he took his eyes from the heart-shaped kindly face. He looked around the room. "The wall-paper is new," he said. "And so are the chair covers. And if I remember rightly, there used to be a settle bed under the window where you have the cooker and sink."

"Fancy you remembering!" Katie rinsed the tea-pot with boiling water. "When poor mother became bed-ridden I got rid of the settle-bed and had the cooker and sink installed in its place. They saved me running down-stairs to prepare meals in the dark hole that used to be the kitchen. What else do you remember, Peter?"

Gratefully he said, "I remember that she made much of me by letting me drink from that china." Defiantly, Katie was laying the table with her mother's treasured violet-sprinkled cups and saucers. "Any other woman would have given the ragamuffin I was in those days a tin mug. But your mother was a lady, Katie."

Katie's eyes misted. "She was all that and more. She was an angel."

With an effort Peter restrained from saying, "That's why it comes natural to you to be what you are." Instead he said, "I remember, too, her sponge cake... as light as bog-cotton. And her raisin loaf—there was good eating on that loaf."

Katie laughed and her laughter was as merry as that of a girl of twenty. "Well, believe it or not Peter Murray, that's exactly what you're having for your tea this evening; jam sandwich and raisin bread. But as my mother would have said first we'll have to lay a foundation of brown bread and butter."

"It sounds mighty good. In the States, I often longed for a slice of your mother's brown loaf." Quickly he corrected himself. "I guess I have to get back into the way of saying 'bread' of 'cake' instead of loaf."

There are people who would consider it highly improbable that a bachelor nearing fifty and a spinster of forty should fall in love while sharing a simple meal. But the ways of love are unpredictable and no one has ever been able to set an awe limit to the vulnerability of her heart. That afternoon, Katie Mooney's stored-up emotion flowed across the table to Peter Murray. From the man whom his work-mates in America had so often jeered as being the typical marriage-shy Irishman, the emotion flowed back to Katie on the double. Before the china was washed and put away she knew that it was for Peter she had been saving herself all these years. And Peter realised that the farm for which he had worked so hard would not be worth having unless Katie were its mistress.

When love comes in this was there is no foolish dilly-dallying. By Shrove Tuesday, Peter and Katie had decided to marry on Monday of Easter week. Everything favoured them. Old Johnny Doyle, who was 90 if he was a day, went to his reward during Lent, leaving his rich acres to city cousins who wanted to truck with farming life, and Peter Murray became the owner of Burrowmore with its fine stone house.

"What day will we go to Dublin to buy the ring," Peter asked. "I want my darling to have the finest diamond ever worn by a woman in Carnalea."

Katie hesitated. "Your love is diamond enough for me, Peter," she said. "Would you be mad at me if I asked you to give me something else instead of a ring?"

"Mad at you?" "Why there is breath in my body I'll never feel anything but love for you. What is it you want?"

Gratefully the grey eyes smiled up at him. "Well, I've been thinking of poor Lucy Brennan, Peter. Life is so easy for me and so hard for her. Instead of buying me that ring, would you ever buy Lucy an electric washing machine and clothes dryer? It goes to my heart to think of the way she has to scrub and rinse and wring."

Peter gave her a gentle hug. "That's one of the many things I love about you—your thought for others. Lucy Brennan will get her washing machine and dryer. But you'll get your ring as well. Hey! wait a minute!" His voice took on an American brusqueness it had been losing since his homecoming. "How many people around here have washing machines?"

"Not many," Katie told him. "You know there's very little money in this place. The doctor's wife has one and they've one in the Convent. That's all."

"Are there many who'd pay a small sum for the use of a washing-machine and dryer each week?" Peter queried.

"Plenty," Kitty assured him. "There isn't a woman in the place who wouldn't be glad to get rid of what is the heaviest work of all."

"Good enough," Peter said. "We'll Lucy two washing machines and two dryers. She can use one for her customers. She can hire the other as kind of laundrette—they have them all over the States. When I'm having them installed, I'll get the electrician to figure out what she should charge."

Lucy Brennan never again saw a poor day. And since charity brings its reward, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Murray were the happiest couple in Ireland—particularly after their twins were born.

"It looks as if you'll have to buy a washing machine for our own use now," was Katie's remark to the proud father when he first laid glowing eyes on his fine healthy son and daughter.

CLASHMORE G.A.A. SOCIAL

Close on 100 guests attended the Clashmore G.A.A. Social and dinner held in Green Park Hotel, Youghal, recently. The function, which was very successful and enjoyable, was in the nature of a victory celebration following the success of the team in the Primary Football Championship. Tributes were paid to the team by Mr. Joseph O'Keefe (Chairman), Rev. F. M. J. Russell, C.C. (Vice-Chairman), and Mr. C. Curran, M.C.C. The speaker complimented the players on their fine performance and wished them success in the Junior football championships and other competitions.

ASSISTED IN WIN

The substitute team who won the primary football trophy were: Pat and Vin O'Rourke, John Sheehan, and John Tighe. Pat O'Neil, Pat Walsh, Francis Mansfield and Al played their part on the road to success and no doubt their names will be heard of these young footballers in the year ahead.

HUNTING

Kinsalebeg/Clashmore Hunters met at Pitttown on Sunday and enjoyed the best hunting of the season.

Davies boys were drawn first and soon the work was in full cry, pushing their prey across the Rath road and east again was secured through the field and on to the coast where hounds marked to earth.

Burnes gun was next drawn and a good fox was soon away with Monahan and on to Ferry Field. Hunted through the cover here, Reynard was pressed across the road and on through the convent grounds. Entering the gate here he was surrounded and heads were hunting on his brush as he tried to secure refuge. The pace, however, was too hot for him and he was killed in the convent avenue. A big field turned out and hounds were in charge of Mr. J. Fitzgerald, M.H.

WELL KNOWN CLASHMORE FAMILY BEREAVED

We regret to announce the death which occurred in St. Laurence's Hospital, Dublin, at the age of nine years, and following a short illness, of Mary Olive O'Halloran, Leutenant, Clashmore. Deceased was a most lovable child and her sad demise cast a gloom over the entire area, while deep and widespread sympathy is extended to her bereaved parents, brothers, sisters and relatives on their great loss.

The funeral of Clashmore Parish Church was one of the largest and most representative ever seen in the district, and was an indication of the sorrow occasioned by her passing.

Following Requiem Mass, the interment took place in the adjoining cemetery, when there was again a very large attendance of mourners and sympathisers. Very Rev. F. Fowley, P.P., Clashmore officiated, assisted by Rev. Fr. Griffin, C.C. Ardmore.

ARDMORE SEWERAGE EXTENSION

The Engineer in charge has informed Mr. C. Curran, M.C.C. that following representations by him it has been decided to extend Ardmore Sewerage Scheme to terrace of houses at Dufferrick. This decision will be welcomed by the people concerned.

ELECTRICITY FAILURES

During the recent snowstorm there were a number of electricity failures in this area. This resulted in much inconvenience.

LATE PATRICK KIELY

Knock, Clonca, Duncarvan. The death took place on Christmas Day at St. Joseph's Hospital, Duncarvan, of Patrick Kiely, late of Abbeysteele and Knock, Clonca. He had reached an advanced age but after a short illness. He was a most industrious farmer up to the time of his retirement. He was a general favourite, especially in the parishes of Garranbane and Stradbally where he was well-known.

The remains were removed on St. Stephen's Day to Garranbane Church followed by a service of very great dimensions and were blessed and received by Rev. Fr. Walsh, C.C. Requiem Mass was celebrated on Thursday after which the interment took place in the adjoining cemetery. Another age and most representative concourse was present to pay their final respects. Rev. Fr. Walsh, C.C., also officiated at the graveside. (J. Kiely and Sons, Underbakers, Duncarvan, had charge of arrangements).

N.F.A. NEWS Growing Solidarity Guarantees Success

Irish farmers are reasonably happy of the future as we enter 1963. Progress in their industry has surpassed that in other industries. This does not mean of course that we have reached the end of the road. Irish farmers know that. While the future are bright, the road ahead is not without its difficulties. They will also have to go to the end of the road. They will also have to go to the end of the road. They will also have to go to the end of the road.

and our most important one. It is often reduced to pure economic terms even by agriculturalists themselves. There is more to it than this, however. It is a great and equally important though often overlooked aspect of the social and economic implications in mind as we look forward to 1963 as being a year of promise. Irish farmers are rapidly appreciating the value of organization. They are making their own National Association and their growing solidarity and unanimity of purpose guarantees their success.

VITAL INTEREST TO DAIRY FARMERS
We do not hesitate to repeat notice contained in last week's Bulletin. It has to do with a meeting that is to be held in Limerick next week—a meeting of vital importance to dairy farmers throughout the country.
Beginning at 2.30 p.m. on Thursday, 19th January, in the 'Vela' Ballroom, Limerick, a conference will be opened on the price of Milk and its production by the Irish Farmer in the Common Market.
All farmers have been invited to attend and participate in the discussions which will be held during the course of the afternoon and evening. International and Irish experts will be on the platform. Our President, Mr. R. Deasy, will formally open the proceedings. Mr. T. J. Maher will occupy the chair during the talk to be given by Dr. J. B. Ritzema van Kempen, on "The Cow and the Common Market." This will be followed by a discussion. A tea break will be made at 5 p.m. At 7 p.m. the delegates will reassemble to hear the views of a panel of experts made up of Mr. T. Cahill, Hon. Secretary N.F.A. (Chairman); Dr. J. B. Ritzema van Kempen, Secretary of the Agricultural Institute; Mr. E. McCormack, Irish Creamery Managers' Association.

Grim Conditions at TE Transmitter Sites

For more than a week, snow frost and gales have made the task of maintaining the television service—especially from the newly inaugurated provincial transmitters—an extremely hazardous and exacting one for Telefis Eireann staff involved. Latest reports from the transmitter sites show that conditions are still very grim and unless the weather improves rapidly it may not be possible to have an uninterrupted service.
At Kippure the staff is snowed in. Similar conditions exist at Mullaghshish, where there are drifts of up to 20 feet on the transmitter road. Food is running very short in the station and the possibility of getting through by helicopter is being considered. However this may not be feasible because of the prevailing gale-force winds.
One member of the staff, Mr. W. Harney, Riggs-Drive, improvised skis from planks of wood and managed to get down to Ballyvourney, carrying another man on his back. A Land Rover, which had to be abandoned on the road to the transmitter, is completely covered by snow and there are no communications with the station.
At Mount Leinster, conditions are equally trying. The electric power supply has failed completely and the transmitter is being kept going on a diesel generator, supplies of fuel for which are now limited. Food is being cooked with a blow lamp and the staff are endeavouring to keep warm by burning wood in the garage.
Weather conditions at Trillick are considerably less severe, though the road is icy-bound.

RONNIE WALSH a former Abbey actor, is widely known in the theatre and in films. He is a frequent Radio Eireann Broadcaster and is now regular link-man on "Broadsheet," the nightly magazine programme seen on Telefis Eireann from Monday to Friday. His big interests are acting, racing and farming. He lives and farms at Ratoath, Co. Dublin.

Newsman KEVIN O'KELLY is a Dubliner with a background of journalism and broadcasting. Radio Eireann listeners already know his voice from "Provincial News Round Up." On Telefis Eireann he introduces a wide variety of stories behind the news in the regular feature, "Newsview," which follows the 9 p.m. News every night from Monday to Friday. He is married and has four children.

WESTERN CONVENTION ON SUNDAY WEEK
The annual Western Convention will be held in Cappoquin on Sunday week, January 13th. As yet, all motions have not been listed but an increase on last year's figure of seven is expected.

In a lengthy and as always, a well-phrased report, Secretary Seamus O'Brien reviews a successful year, and gives a synopsis of each championship. Incidentally, Seamus is again back in Dungarvan after a period in Ballina, and takes over from Michael Hogan (Ballinacorney) who so ably stepped into the breach in Seamus' absence.

Few changes are expected in the personnel of officers. Nicolas McGrath (Chairman), Seamus O'Brien (Secretary) and Tom Walsh (Treasurer), may all be re-elected unopposed. A close finish invariably accrues from the field of nominations for representatives to the Co. Board, and outgoing candidates John McKenna (Bikekeys), McNamee (Cullin), Barrymore and Johnny Coffey (Famillio-waker) can expect stern opposition.

In next week's issue (D.V.) I hope to have the list of nominations, motions and other items of interest and importance.

KILROSSANTY RING AND KILGOBNET HOLD A.G.M.'s
The months of December and January are availed of by all clubs to review the year's activities, and during the coming week Kilrossanty Ring and Kilgobnet will hold their annual general meetings.

Ring will hold theirs in the C.V.M.S. Hall, on the 8th and 9th of January, at 8 p.m. Secretary Tommy McGrath will report on a year of success which was fittingly climaxed by taking the junior football title back to the Gaelic town after a lapse of 28 years.

KILGOBNET MEET
Kilgobnet's annual general meeting will be held on Wednesday night next, 9th January in Coonacree National School at 7.45 p.m. All members and intending members are requested to attend.

The 1961 junior hurling (Grade B) championship medals will be presented. One or two changes are expected in the list of officers for the coming year.

The outgoing officers are: President—R. V. M. Farrell; C.C.—Chairman—James Cummins; Treasurer—Davy Flynn; Secretary—Simon Hanley.

In his report the Secretary states that the club is in a sound financial position.

LITTLE ACTIVITY
As always, these few weeks before and after Christmas are non-active ones, and as a result these columns are unavoidably curtailed. Games are at a complete standstill, and club secretaries are availing of the "lapse" to put together their reports and statement of accounts for their annual general meetings.

To all my readers then I wish a bright and prosperous new year. 1963 will, I hope, bring many many hours of TOMMY McGRATH... Ring Secretary. He will present a report on a year of success at the Club's A.G.M. on Saturday night.

Gaelic titles, which will be related in detail through the medium of these columns, (D.V.) Kilrossanty Club will hold their A.G.M. at Leamybrier Hall, on Monday night next, January 7th.

BALLINACORNEY A.G.M.
Ballinacorney H. and F. club will hold their annual general meeting at the Parish Hall, Ballinacorney on Wednesday night next, 9th January.

At the annual general meeting of the Geraldines Club recently, the following officers were elected: President—Rev. Fr. E. Tobin; Vice-President—Tom Walsh; Secretary—Tom Walsh; Treasurer—Tom Walsh; Captain—Tom Walsh; Committee—Tom Walsh.

LATE MR. THOS. CONNOLLY
TOUR, AGLISH

The death occurred during the early hours of Saturday morning, 15th December, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Dungarvan, of Thomas Connolly. He was a most charming man and favourite by all who had the pleasure of knowing him. He was the last survivor of a very old Tour family and his passing is mourned by one and all in his native parish.

His remains were removed on Saturday evening, followed by a large cortege, to Aglish Church and were blessed and received by Rev. Fr. E. Tobin, C.C.

Requiem Masses were offered on Sunday morning, December 16th for the eternal repose of his soul, and the interment took place in the adjoining family plot. Another large and representative cortege consisting of friends and neighbours were present. Rev. Fr. T. Nugent, C.C. officiated at the graveside.

(J. Kiely and Sons, Undertakers, Dungarvan, had charge of funeral arrangements).

Deceased: Peter Hallahan, P. Russell, Roger Hayes, J. Torrey.
