LOCAL HAPPY.

BALLINAMEELA I.C.A.

The March meeting of Ballinameela I.C.A. was held at the local hall recently. Mrs. Rebecca Keever, president, was in the chair. The guest speaker was Miss Patricia Mulcahy, Dungarvan, who gave a very impressive talk on the apparitions of Garabandal, illustrated with the most amazing slides.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, April 11, when Mrs. Bernie Twomey, Guild member, will demonstrate different ideas for summer salads. SC& p.e.f.r b.t. yonnf esd

DUNGARVAN BADMINTON CLUB

The Badminton season is now officially ended, but the club championships have still to be completed. On Monday night, April 10, the semi-finals of Group B: M. O'Riordan and A. Cahill v. S. O'Hanlon and T. Burke; Group A, V. O'Brien and L. Cliffe v. K. Gannon and N. Harney, and the men's doubles final: T. Bure and M. Cliffe v. J. Clancy and M. McHugh, will be played. The stage is then set for the final of Group A and Group B and these will be played on Wednesday night April 12.

Congratulations to M. Walsh and M. Lyons on their victory in the Ladies Doubles in the Waterford Open Championships. This is the second time that Mary and Marie have taken the Ladies Doubles and their performance this year was all the more creditable, as they were playing off a minus six handicap—the highest in the championships. In the final they were giving six aces to their opponents but still won in two straight games.

Congratulations also to Aileen Drummy and Tony Mountain, both members of the club, on their recent marriage

ON Friday, March 31st, 1972 the new Bank of Ireland was launched on the Irish banking scene. Created out of the unification of the old Bank of Ireland, National Bank of Ireland and the Hibernian Bank, the new bank is the result of a planned programme of reorganisation and modernisation that began in 1966 with the formation of the Bank of Ireland Group.

Bank of Ireland led the way towards creating a unit large enough to contend with the international giants when, in 1966, it acquired the Hibernian Bank. His step was followed by the acquisition in 1966 of the Irish interests of the National Bank. Thus the framework was created for the establishment of a great new structure, Bank of Ireland, with assets of £616 million and a 32-county network of 542 offices.

In addition, the bank has offices in the City of London, New York and Shepherd's Bush, London. Later this year new branches will be opened in Birmingham and Manchester.

The physical coming together of three banks with great traditions stretching back as far as 1783 (Bank of Ireland), 1824 (Hibernian Bank) and 1835 (National Bank) has been marked by two other developments.

These are the creation of a new decentralised executive and administrative structure over the past six years, and the development of a new corporate identity or image which brings together all the best features in the long histories of these banks and expresses them in a modern and progressive idiom.

The wider involvement in the community of the new Bank of Ireland requires that it should have a wide appeal to people in visual terms. With this aim in mind, the bank employed design consultants—Douglas Kelley Associates—to work out a name style and bank symbol that would serve instantly to identify Bank of Ireland at home and abroad.

By last Friday, some 60 branches of the bank had been equipped with new signs and the remaining 480 offices will rapidly get similar treatment.

While the various kinds of sign being applied to premises and travelling banks will have the most obvious visual impact on the public, the house style and Bank Mark will also appear in every medium through which the Bank of Ireland has contact with chequebooks and cheques, counter forms, brochures, letter headings and all documents will witness the new corporate design in the bank's new colours.

These colours—a rich strong blue signifying strength and stability and a distinctive ochre conveying a sense of warmth—were chosen with care, and the total effect represents the result of considerable research by the designers who were influenced by Celtic motifs in the form of the lettering they eventually evolved. Together, the house style (or logotype) and the symbol (or Bank Mark) represent a kind of personal signature of the new bank.

From a marketing viewpoint, the advantages of a simple corporate design are obvious. The various manifestations of the new design present the public with a feeling of continuity, consistency and basic stability combined with progressiveness and achievement in what has become a highly competitive environment.

With a staff of almost 5,000 people, Bank of Ireland is an employer of considerable size by Irish standards. These 5,000 people are now in a position to offer an unequalled range of financial services right through a customer's lifetime.

This theme—"The Bank of a Lifetime"—is employed in a large-scale advertising campaign that begins today in newspapers, on television and posters and in cinemas, magazines and periodicals throughout the Republic.

The current campaign introduces the new visual image of the bank and its lifetime range of services, which embraces all those offered by the Bank of Ireland family of companies. These companies include an international bank, Chase and Bank of Ireland (International), which is a joint venture with the Chase Manhattan Bank N.A., Investment Bank of Ireland, in which Bank of Ireland holds 60% with Morgan Grenfell and J. Henry Schroder Wagg, Foster Finance established in 1950 as a wholly-owned instalment credit company, Share and Loan Trust (55%), Property Loan and Investment Company, and Computed Services of Ireland (both wholly owned).

MISS EILEEN CAHILL, Old Parish, and MR. JAMES POWER, Congress Villas, Dungarvan, who were married at Old Parish Church recently.

Late Patrick McKenna

Mullinahorna, Ring
It is with deep feelings of regret we record the passing of Patrick McKenna, Mullinahorna, Ring, whose death took place on Thursday evening, March 23rd, at his residence. The deceased had reached an advanced age. He was one of nature's gentlemen and neighbour who was always ready to help those requiring his assistance. He was a general favourite in the Ring area and a member of the farming community and of a widely connected family. To his sorrowing wife, son, daughter, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, sister and grand-children we tender our deepest sympathy.

His remains were removed on Friday evening to Ring Church followed by a very large and most representative cortege and were blessed and received by Rev. M. Enright C.C., assisted by Very Rev. P. Flavin P.P. Requiem Mass was offered on arrival.

Requiem Masses were also offered on Saturday morning for the repose of his soul and the interment took place in the adjoining family plot when another large concourse was present. Rev. M. Enright C.C., assisted by Very Rev. P. Flavin, P.P. officiated at the graveside. Sheaves of Mass cards were received.

The chief mourners were: Mrs. Mary A. McKenna (wife); John McKenna (son); Kilmurray, Dungarvan; Mrs. Rita Barron (daughter) Mullinahorna; Mrs. Mary McKenna (daughter-in-law) Miss Mary McKenna, Boston (sister); Tom, Helen, Marie Barron, Helen McKenna (grand-children).

(J. Kiely & Sons had charge of funeral arrangements).

Augustinians In Dungarvan

1292 - 1972

(By REV. T. C. BUTLER, O.S.A.)

IN RETROSPECT: 1539-1869
Cynics may say that the friars did nothing except to survive throughout those years (of persecution). To survive, however, and, at the same time, to enable the faith to survive, was no mean achievement. Anything they did as Catholics and as priests, was forbidden by the laws of the State and so, for those friars especially, survival itself was forbidden for many years. Their lives were, for the most part, hidden; their achievements went unchronicled. One cannot help thinking of Horace's lines:—
"omnes illicrimabiles
unguentur ignotique longa
nocte, carent quia vate
scora." (1)

(All of these unmentioned and unknown, are shrouded in eternal obscurity because they had not a sacred poet—to record their doings).

We must not forget, however, that among them were many men of sanctity and learning, men who had been educated in the universities of Rome, Spain, Portugal and elsewhere. Many of them were distinguished graduates of such universities. Their knowledge of theology was usually flavoured with deep study of ancient classics and secular sciences. That knowledge was not acquired in vain. We have no doubt that, besides celebrating Mass, administering the sacraments and instructing children in the rudiments of their faith, they trained young men secretly for the priesthood and conducted classical schools when the opportunity presented itself. In the era of the hedge-schools they were often hedge-schoolmasters (2). Daniel Corkery in his book "The Hidden Ireland," says: "Friars, disguised as laymen, commonly acted as teachers in the big houses." They had also to counteract the insidious propaganda of Protestant clergymen who sought to proselytise their fellow-countrymen. In their pastoral work they were constantly attending to the sick and suffering, bringing comfort and healing power to mind and body. A number of friars, too, remained or a time as professors in continental universities and seminaries, especially where there were Irish students.

The fact that there were always young men to follow in their footsteps is in itself a proof of their zeal. Many a young man was encouraged by their advice and example to study for the priesthood, and the continuity of the Order in any particular place is sufficient proof of a constant intake of young recruits from that area. This was the case in Dungarvan and in the diocese generally. (3) Before being accepted into the Order aspirants to the priesthood were given a thorough grounding in Latin and Greek to such an extent that they, like so many of their contemporaries, could converse fluently in Latin. Laymen, too would have availed of this opportunity, as we can infer from a letter written by Dr. Thomas Sheridan (grandfather of Richard Brinsley Sheridan), who taught classics in a school in Dungarvan around 1726: "I assure you, the Roman tongue is not an alien in this town (Dungarvan); I was passing through a street the other day, and I saw the following lines in a window where they sold eggs: "Si sumas ovum, melle sit atque novum (if you take an egg let it be soft and fresh.)" (4)

I have space only for a brief sketch of four Augustinians of the 17th century, all natives of Waterford City. I shall conclude this article with an account of two other friars, who, through only a short time in Dungarvan, seemed to have made a lasting impression.

1. Patrick Comerford (1586-1652): Bishop
The life of Dr. Comerford has been dealt with at length in Canon Power's History and also by Dr. Olden, Maynooth. He received a classical education in Peter White's Academy, Kilkenny, and went to Bordeaux, Lisbon and Coimbra to study for the priesthood. He graduated in theology in Florence and was ordained in 1610. On his return to Ireland he was appointed to Callan Priory, where he was eventually made Prior. He became Bishop of Waterford and Lismore in 1627. He took a very significant part in a memorable Synod convened in Waterford by the Apostolic Nuncio Binucini, during the Civil War period. In the Cromwellian persecution he was exiled to Nantes where he died in 1652.

2. Dermot McGrath (1586-1628): Administrator
Dr. McGrath also studied at Peter White's Academy, and then went to the Irish College in Lisbon and Salamanca. He was professed as an Augustinian in Salamanca in 1609, and ordained two years later. After receiving a Doctorate in Theology, he returned to Ireland in 1612, and though still quite a young man he was entrusted with the task of revitalising the Order in Ireland which he undertook a short time afterwards. Appointed Provincial in 1623 at a General Chapter in Rome, he set out for home with a quantity of ecclesiastical furnishings, vestments, etc. On the way his ship was attacked by pirates. Dr. McGrath lost everything he had, even the letters of testimony confirming his appointment. He had to request the Prior General to allow him to hold a Provisional Chapter to elect him again. Two years afterwards he was appointed Vicar-Apostolic of Elphin.

3. Richard Strange (1581-1639): Vicar-General of Order
Another Waterford man, he also studied in Salamanca and was professed there in 1610. He, too, graduated with a Doctorate in theology. Appointed Provincial for the first of three terms at a General Chapter in Rome in 1620, he had acted as a Vicar-General of the Order since 1617. During one of his terms as Provincial, a friary was opened at Waterford in 1629. This friary survived the Cromwellian Persecution and lasted until 1689.

4. Richard Wadding: University Professor
The fourth Waterford friar was Fr. Richard Wadding, born in 1672. A kinsman of the distinguished Franciscan, Fr. Luke Wadding, he studied in the Irish College in Lisbon, became a member of the Portuguese Province and eventually a Professor of Theology at Coimbra University. In 1626 he was proposed for the See of Armagh. A Portuguese Augustinian contemporary wrote of him: "He was a subtle doctor and a most eloquent preacher. Both from the pulpit and in the university he won not little glory and renown." From such a short glimpse into the lives of four 17th century friars, one can gather that a high standard was demanded by their Superiors and by the people at home. "A priest is of no repute among them unless he is learned and has spent some years abroad," quotes Dowling in his "Hedge Schools of Ireland."

Fr. Nicholas Cesaretti: Beloved Stranger

In a panel of the stained glass window over the High Altar the name of an Italian priest, together with that of Fr. Toomy, can be seen. People often ask who was this stranger from Italy, Fr. Nicholas Cesaretti. The story of how he came to Dungarvan is of interest. About the year 1866, Fr. Cesaretti, a member of an Italian Province of the Order, came from Rome to England with a group of his fellow-Augustinians to start a foundation there. This was the period of the "Second Spring" of English Catholicism, and in common with other Orders, the Augustinians were assisting in the work. They were being financed by their own brethren at home. After some time, however, it was found that because of anti-clerical laws in their native Italy, their brethren there became too poor to maintain the new foundation in England. The mission to the English was abandoned and all except Fr. Cesaretti returned to Italy. He crossed over to Ireland and took up residence at Dungarvan. It is something unusual to find this Italian priest not only enamoured of Dungarvan but to find one Dungarvan people becoming attached to him. He ended his days in Dungarvan and is buried within the church.

FR. JAMES ANDERSON: PATRIOT-PRIEST

No mention of Dungarvan in the '60's of the last century would be complete without recalling a man who made his name in quite an unusual sphere for an Augustinian, namely that of politics. Fr. James Anderson was deeply patriotic in an age which dealt cautiously with patriotic movements. He was fanatically nationalistic when it was treason to be so. When he came to Dungarvan in 1865 Ireland was in the throes of the Fenian movement. He was a friend of the Fenians and it was well known that many a hunted man found a safe refuge with him. He is quoted as saying: "To doubt that country will one day become an independent nation is to doubt the existence of God. I pray every day of my priesthood before the Blessed Sacrament to hasten the hour of Ireland's freedom."

The event which made his name a household word in Dungarvan was a political one. In 1868, an election to the British Parliament took place. The candidates were Charles R. Barry, Solicitor-General for Ireland, and Henry Matthews, Q.C. Barry was the man who, as counsel against the Fenian prisoners tried after the Rising, had them consigned to penal servitude, after slandering their personal characters and branding them as assassins. It seemed that his election from Dungarvan was a foregone conclusion in spite of this fact. He had all the influence of the Government at his back, as well as the support of many of the clergy and people. His opponent, Mr. Matthews, was a man of no consequence, although supported by Sir Nugent Humble, who at the time had much influence with his tenantry.

Fr. Anderson could not bear the thought of upholding Barry who had been so hostile to the Fenian prisoners. He roused the Nationalists of Dungarvan in support of Matthews, for whom, however, they cared little; but there was no choice. The Government of the day resorted to every means to secure the return of their Solicitor-General, the corrupt were bribed, the incorruptible were sought out to be intimidated. The most powerful clerical influence was invoked against Fr. Anderson but he remained firm as a granite rock. Dungarvan was practically placed under martial law. Hundreds of soldiers and armed police paraded the streets by night and stationed themselves outside the houses of the voters opposed to Barry, in the hope of working on the fears of the voters women to induce them to keep the men away from the polls. These tactics failed and then the Government emissaries attempted to secure the arrest of voters on various bogus charges in order to keep them on gaoil over the polling-day. As a result of Fr. Anderson's efforts, feeling began to waver in favour of Matthews.

Polling-day came and the atmosphere in Dungarvan was tense. Barry was defeated and from Kerry to Donegal bonfires were kindled on the mountains, flashing the joyous news around the country. It was like the uprising again of the old spirit of Nationalism and although Matthews was an Englishman, the cause was not so much that of electing him as of defeating the man who had persecuted Irish patriots. Matthews justified the trust placed in him when he presented to the House of Commons a petition calling for the release of the political prisoners. It was a triumph for Fr. Anderson who, after his term as Prior, was transferred to Cork in 1871. On a visit to Dungarvan some years later, he was presented with an illuminated address by the Urban Council.

In later years, when in Dublin, he threw himself into the national revival with as much ardour as he had done in the Dungarvan election. He made the schools under his management in John's Lane the admiration of Irish Ireland. The 500 pupils attending them were the first to learn through the medium of Irish. Many of these children could express themselves with greater ease in Irish than in English. Shortly after the founding of the Gaelic League Fr. Anderson became a member of the Central Executive.

Wherever he went, he was a most effective speaker. The last public act of his life was the unveiling of a memorial to his great friend, John Boyle O'Reilly in Howth Churchyard. At his funeral in 1903, Maud Gonne (McBride) wept over his coffin.

Youghal Notes

DISASTEROUS FIRE

The worst fire ever in Youghal took place in the early hours of Saturday last when the well-known Atlantic Hotel on the seafront was completely destroyed by fire. The alarm was raised at 3 a.m. and within a short period fire brigade units from Cork, Middleton, Youghal and Dungarvan were on the scene. By that stage the east end of the three-storey hotel was completely engulfed in flames and firemen could do little to save. Their efforts were concentrated in preventing the blaze from spreading to nearby premises and resident in the immediate area had to be evacuated. The owner, Mr. Todd, was away on business but his wife and teenage son escaped in their night attire and are now staying at the Hill Top hotel having lost everything. Firemen and Gardaí under Supt. McMahon of Middleton and a team of local voluntary helpers saved the TV set and some furniture from the lounge and bar on the West side. The blaze illuminated the sky and could be seen for several miles while traffic had to be diverted off

SALMON FISHERIES

Now with almost one third of the netting season gone by the reports are still anything but good all over the tidal area. However in the closing days of last week and opening days of this week there was a slight improvement in the catches by nets. Returns were so had that many boats gave up and the crews went to the Labour Exchange.

PROPERTY AS A LIBRARY

The Cork County Library Committee at its recent meeting authorised its Librarian (Mr. P. Madden) to proceed with negotiations towards acquisition of a property in Youghal (The Technical School) which would serve admirably as a library and reference library. Notes

PASSING OF GREAT ATHLETE

As briefly announced in last week's issue, the death of Mr. Pat Power, Lickoran, Ballinacorney, which occurred at the Touraneena Hospital, Dungarvan, severs another link with the great athletes of Slabh gCua who won world fame around the latter end of the last and the early part of the present century, some of whom successfully competed in England, America and some in the sunny skies of the far distant land of "the Southern Cross" and who in no small way put "Slabh gCua na Feirne" on the map.

The remains of the late Pat Power were removed to St. Mary's Church, Touraneena on Saturday evening, March 25, where they were received and blessed by Rev. S. Nugent, C.C., Touraneena, assisted by Rev. Canon T. Fitzgerald, St. John's College, V. Rev. D. McGrath, P.P., Ballinacorney and Rev. K. Mulcahy, C.C., Cloughan. After last Mass on Sunday interment was made in the adjoining cemetery. Rev. Sean Nugent, C.C., officiated at the graveside, assisted by Rev. B. Crowley, Bishop's Secretary, Fr. O'Flynn, Chaplain Ardkeen Hospital, Waterford, Fr. Edwards, O.C.S.O.

On Monday morning celebrated Mass was offered for the repose of his soul, the celebrants being: Rev. J. Boyle, C.C., Ballymoreen; V. Rev. J. P. Walsh, P.P., St. Paul's, Waterford; Rev. P. Quahly, C.C., Lismore; V. Rev. C. Lawn, P.P., Kilgobnet; Rev. T. Nugent, Diocesan Inspector; Rev. T. C. Butler, O.S.A.; Dungarvan; Rev. W. Carey, C.C., Dungarvan; Fr. Purcell, C.C., St. John's, Waterford; and Rev. Jim Kiely, O.S.A., Drogheda.

The immediate relatives: Mrs. Hanora Power (wife); John, Paschal and Dick (sons); Sr. Alice, Holy Rosary Order, Nigeria, Mrs. Eileen Conway, Mrs. Maura Aherne, and Patricia (daughters); Jim Power, Lickoran (brother); and grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

Will all members and intending members of Touraneena I.C.A. please note that the annual general meeting of the guild will be held at the Parish Hall on Tuesday, April 11.

A gala victory concert under the auspices of the Slabh gCua G.A.A. Club will be held at the Parish Hall, Touraneena on Sunday night next, April 9. Pride of place in the programme will of course go to the All Ireland champion set dancers. This will be the first opportunity the people of the locality will have of seeing our dancers in action since their great victory in Dublin.

Also taking part will be Mr. M. Galvin, champion ballad singer; step dancers from Ballymacarby and Newcastle. A social will follow with music by the Slabh gCua trio. See advert for full details.

MINOR HURLING CHAMPIONSHIP

The minor hurling championship commences on Sunday next when a total of six games are down for decision. At Ballymacarby, Cappoquin, J.F.L., Sliabh gCua v. Valley Rovers.

At present on the injured list is minor star Richie Hanrahan who received a leg injury in the recent county minor football trial game at Tramore which cost him his place on the county team and he will also miss the first round games of the minor and u-21 championships with his club. Last year Richie played a major role bringing u-16 county football title to the Abbeyside / Ballinacourty Club for the first time and it was his introduction as a substitute in the u-21 county football final which swung that game in their favour.

We all look forward to seeing this most popular young player back in action in the near future.

On Sunday next at Walsh Park, Waterford's senior hurlers face old rivals Kilkenny in the quarter-final of the National League and the big question of the moment is how will our hurlers fare against such top class opposition. 10 years ago a Waterford v. Kilkenny clash would guarantee a full house at Walsh Park as in the period between 1955 and 1963 Waterford and Kilkenny hurlers invariably served up a classical brand of hurling the likes of which we may never see again as those never-to-be-forgotten games produced all the verve, dash and skill that one associates with our great hurling game and who can forget the great warriors of that golden era of the game: Ollie ningham, Ned Power, Donal Whelan, Jackie Condon, John Barron, etc. If only we could turn the clock back, but alas "time nor tide waits for no man" and the cold facts in respect of next Sunday's game are that a Kilkenny team which will include players of the calibre of Pa Dillon, Fran Larkin, Jim Treacy, Martin Coogan, Pat Henderson, Frank Cummins, Eddie Keher, etc., must be rated as odds on favourites to come out on top and advance to the semi-final stages of the competition.

What of Waterford? Well, in my opinion one of the worst things which ever happened in this county was our inclusion in Div. 11 of the league, as I believe if we had been meeting the top class teams in the league as we always had in the past, that our players would have been gaining in experience all the time and also a game against a good team tends to bring out the best in a team. So I believe that the Waterford team will rise to the occasion on Sunday next and produce an effort in keeping with the occasion. John Kirwan, John Ryan, Martin Kirwan, Martin Hickey, Michael Ormonde, Vinny Connors, Sonny Walsh, Stephen Green and young John Galvin are all accomplished hurlers by any standards and provided that our team adopts the proper attitude on Sunday then they will be no push-over and if such an effort is forthcoming from our team then Sunday's game could very well be the turning point for Waterford hurling.

DOWN MEMORY LANE

Down the years the Abbey side Club produced some outstanding hurlers, particularly at a period when the Village had to rely on about twenty hurlers. The population at that time was only quarter of what it is today. But for sheer loyalty and tenacity it would have been difficult to find a finer bunch of hurlers who rarely missed a training session.

In those days we had the keenest rivalry with Dungarvan. Sunday after Sunday a team from town would come over to play Abbeyside. I recall a great match with team called the 'Black Hand Gang'. They came from around the Blackpool and Shandon area. Then I also recall team from the old hall.

The matches were usually played at the Loochmorrie, The Pond, Stokes field, the Park on Causeway and Gambon's field which used to be on the corner of Home Road Street. Yes, we had hurling thrills galore, not forgetting aee eae eae eae eae Wee Abbeyside's visits to play Ballinroad. Those were thrilling games. The Abbeyside team marched out usually on Sundays, led by the late Paddy Hurley playing his mouth-organ. The matches were played for a side stake of 5/-, but what games were witnessed! It was a thrill a minute.

The Dungarvan C.B.S. team was going well at that period but Abbeyside could hold their own with them. The Village had brilliant hurlers during the period mentioned, such as Paddy Moloney, Percy Brett, the Burke brothers, Jim, Paddy, Tom and John, Tom and Patsy Dowling, Jack Sullivan, Paddy Cooley, Tom Ryan, George Donovan, Archie Ryan, Joe Ryan, Dick Waters, Jim Mullins, Christy Coleman, Mick Mahoney, Ben Beatty, Paddy Needham, the Forde brothers, Lar Condon, Paddy Nagle, Gus Hally, Jack Veale, Johnny Murphy, Gus Young.

In later years Nick, Gus and La Noonan joined with that outstanding sports personality John "Lord" Duggan. Those boys from across the bridge gave wonderful service to Abbeyside on the hurling arenas of Waterford. Many of the above mentioned hurlers have crossed the Great Divide, but we remember them with pride.

Of course hurling held sway in Abbeyside long before the club affiliated 1927. Long before my time old Gaelic fans in the village spoke in glowing terms of the hurling loving priest, the late Father Nagle. Then again, Abbeyside could down the years claim to have great priests.

Around 1920 there were two teams in the village and great weekly games were played between them but they always combined when playing other teams. I always felt that it improved the team's hurling. There was great sporting rivalry between them. We received wonderful help in those days from that sterling Gael Park Whelan, who was Co. Board Secretary and residing in Abbeyside, he turned out with Dungarvan when they won the National Hurling League. This arose because Erin's Own had a difference with the Co. Board and refused to play a few days previous to this match. Erin's Own patched up their differences with the Co. Board, so instead of travelling to Nowlan Park to play Kilkenny, Abbeyside marched out to play Ballinroad for a side stake of 5/- in a game that proved to be a thriller.

1930 was a great year for Abbeyside when they won the B Grade hurling championship of Waterford. It will not be out of place to pay tribute to the late John Hayes. He played a big part in handling the team. Other great supporters were Tim Ryan, Paddy McGovern, Con Forde, Paddy Wolfe, Matty and Patsy Organ, Captain Tom O'Donoghue. What fine gesture it would be if the Abbeyside G.A.A. ground could be named after any of those great supporters. It's good to hear strong and that the Gaelic know that the club is still going standard still files over Abbeyside.

Minor Football Results

EASY FOR KILROSSANTY

Kilrossanty 6-8; Clashmore 1-4

In last week's issue I stated that the Kilrossanty Club were now adopting a progressive youth policy and this fact was well truly emphasised at the Abbeyside venue on Sunday last when their minor footballers showed some grand flashes of football when scoring a great first round victory over Clashmore. An interesting point here worth noting about this game is that both teams turned up at the Brickey venue and indeed when the Abbeyside v. Affane game ended referee Charlie McAllister was faced with the problem of having no less than four teams all togged out and ready to play, as Ring and Nire were also lined up and ready to commence and as this was the game which he had decided that this was the one which must go on. This left the Clashmore and Kilrossanty teams and officials with quite a problem and they requested the use of the Village club officials, who in the circumstances agreed. They also provided a referee in the person of Paddy Cashin. Kilrossanty will meet Dungarvan in the second round.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

DUNGARVAN'S LACK OF SOCIAL AMENITIES

I was very interested in "Townie's" letter in last week's issue. At the outset I would like to state that I am in general agreement with most of his (or is it her's?) remarks re lack of social amenities in Dungarvan.

Speaking as one, who for many years, has been trying to bring about an improvement in these matters, I can tell your correspondent that the main reason why we have not the amenities mentioned is apathy. For instance, during the past decade several efforts were made to form a Youth Club but without success. Finally, a few years ago I contacted all those who had been trying to get this project off the ground; we arranged and well publicised a public meeting to launch the Youth Club. Apart from the people who had been trying all the time, the response from the parents in the urban area was, to say the least, disappointing. However, we got the Youth Club under way, and handicapped as they are without a proper premises, they are doing wonderful work for the young people of the town. At its annual general meeting each year we can expect fewer than a dozen adults to attend! This in a town of over 5,000 people! No wonder we have a rising tide of juvenile delinquency!

However, to get back to your correspondent, the question I would like to ask, is he (or she) one of the few who are trying to do something about those problems, or is he (or she) one of that useless bunch known as "the hangers on the fence". Even if he has opted so far for the safety of the fence, he will have an excellent opportunity in the near future of lending a hand in a big effort to put Dungarvan on the map in a big way.

The U.D.C. recently purchased a good deal of land on the southern side of the town and have allotted at least nine acres for recreational purposes.

At a recent meeting the Council, on the proposition of Colr. A. Deasy, unanimously decided to launch a project for a Community Centre for the town! This is going to cost a lot of money and effort if it is going to measure up to what the sponsors have in mind—anything from £70,000 to £100,000. Here is a challenge to "Townie" and indeed to all of us, and it is my earnest hope that when the project gets under way that everyone, both old and young, will put their shoulders to the wheel, and make the "Old Boro" a town of which we can all be proud. Ni neart go chur le deile.

Yours faithfully,
Richard A. Walsh, U.D.C.

WALK OVER

Dungarvan minor footballers received a walk over from Colligan Emmets on Sunday, when the latter failed to muster a full team in time. This game was to have been played at the C.B.S. venue which the Dungarvan Club officials had in perfect order.

RING IMPRESS

Ring 5-8; Nire 0-0

In the second game at the Brickey venue, Ring minor footballers scored a clear cut victory over a gallant Nire team and Ring, who showed impressive form, could be a side to watch in this grade. Two years ago they reached the Western u-16 final which they lost narrowly in a thriller to Talow and with the assistance of some players from the Ardmore area they are quite a strong outfit.

STRADBALLY ADVANCE

Stradbally minor footballers showed up well in their game against Ballinacourty and the "Reds" are a useful young side and they should give a good account of themselves in this grade.

BALLYDUFF WIN

Ballyduff minor footballers, back in the championship after a lapse of a number of years, won their way through to a second round meeting with Ring at Lismore on Sunday last.

NARROW WIN FOR ABBEYSIDE

Abbeyside 2-3; Affane 2-1

Abbeyside minor footballers defeated Affane by two points in a most entertaining first round game played at the Brickey venue on Sunday. Conditions mitigated against the hurlers on the fence. Even had to contend with a strong breeze and drizzling rain.

Affane had first use of the breeze and they opened the scoring with a point from K. O'Connor. Then P. Moore worked his way through for a well taken goal. Eddie Cashin replied with a point from a free. Affane had their second goal when a long range effort from C. Brophy went all the ways to the Villagers net, and at half time Affane led by six points.

The second half was played amid a welter of excitement as Abbeyside launched attack after attack against a resolute Affane defence, well marshalled by Shamie Denn, S. Brackett and Peter Hackett. Elsewhere Michael Phelan, K. O'Connor, P. Moore and J. Cunningham were best for Affane.

Gerald Fitzgerald narrowed the gap with a point, then full forward Michael Cosgrave blasted the ball to the net and the same player put Abbeyside in front for the first time in the game with 12 minutes remaining when he shot a second goal and for good measure he completed the scoring with a well taken point.

This was a promising effort by Abbeyside in which the emphasis was on team work. No less than nine of the winners team were playing in their first minor game and the great experience of lads like Philip Cleary, Ivor Gordon, Donal O'Connor, Eddie Cashin and Mick Cosgrave—2 Miss M. A. Hartney and Mr. G. H. O'Doherty.

STRADBALLY ACQUIRES NEW FIELD

Stradbally Football Club has acquired a five-acre field within a stone-throw of the Village for a considerable amount of money which, of course, they intend to pay back. This collection will be made during the coming weeks when specially appointed will call to each household to explain their position.

These ground and clubrooms should prove a great asset to Stradbally, as being the centre of the County, it is the natural venue for games, meetings, conferences etc.

This go-ahead club are to be congratulated on their foresight and it deserves full parish support and far outside it.

CHAMPIONSHIP PREVIEW

In the second group in the senior football championship Geraldines will travel to Portlaoise to play Dunhill and the Eastern team, who must be rated as strong contenders for the title, will be strongly fancied to win this one, but one never knows with the Aglish men as it is when little is expected from them that they are at their best.

LEAGUE RESULTS

Townie hurlers got back on the winning trail at Ballygarvan on Sunday last when they ran out easy winners in their league game with Mellary Rovers. The second game scheduled for the venue, Ballygarvan v. Kilgobnet, did not take place.

BRILLIANT MITCHELS

Watch MITCHELS this year—these could very well be four words of sound advice for those trying to crystal gaze as to the likely winners of this year's senior football title.

Last Sunday the Fews men were in truly brilliant form when they dashed Kill's hopes in the Phelan Cup.

U-21 FOOTBALL TRIAL

Only 24 players turned up for last Sunday evening's u-21 football trial at the Abbeyside venue and while the turnout was most disappointing for the selectors, nevertheless a few new faces did come to light who could be well in the running for a place on the team to play Tipperary in the championship and in this respect it was a useful exercise.

WESTERN BOARD LEAGUES

The Western Board has three games down for decision on Sunday next. At the Colligan venue Kilgobnet hurlers open their league campaign when they take on Mellary Rovers and Paddy Cummins, Peter Power and company should collect the points here.

NICE CUP COMPETITION

One of the brightest items of G.A.A. news in recent times is that the Rice Cup hurling competition has been revived. This competition which is confined to C.B.S. schools, offers for the young boys and over the years it has been the training round for many fine hurlers.

FIXTURES

At Lismore—M.H.: Talow v. Dungarvan; Ballinacourty v. Ballyduff.

At Colligan—M.H.: Colligan v. Stradbally; J.H.L.: Kilgobnet v. Mellary.

At Abbeyside, M.H. — Abbeyside v. Lismore.

At Bushy Park—M.H., Ardmore v. Eire Oge; J.F.L.—Ardmore v. Lismore.

SYMPATHY

Through this column we extend sympathy to the members of the Hickey family, Ballinataylor, on the death of their brother Mick, who was an outstanding footballer with his club Brickey Rangers and Waterford. He was brother of well known Brickey personality Steven Hickey.

SARGENT CUP

Fourmilewater bowed out of the Sargent Cup competition at Portlaoise on Sunday last, when they lost to Butlerstown in a high scoring and thrilling encounter (6-5 to 5-7). The game ended in a controversial note when the Fourmilewater players claimed that the final Butlerstown goal was in fact a point. Nevertheless, the experienced goalkeepers in their three Sargent Cup outings will stand them in good stead for the coming intermediate championship campaign.
