ARMY ESTIMATES . Upon the motion of Lord Palmerston the House went into a Committee of Supply. Lord PALMARSTON then role in purlumee of hi notice, to move feveral refolutions, as to the Army T. Stimmten, to this Committee. He should wish to point out in the first instance that which might be noticed to looking over the estimates, that in gene. ral, although they were framed in the fame form and principle as those of last year, yet there were fiveral alterations in these before them, tending, as he conceived, to render more turcingible the details of the army, and particularly be to Ireland, the charge of which had been diffinguished in a separate column. There were also other mattere which ow oppeared as didined charges, which were for, meily put down as aggregate votes for the Army, without heing specified. Having premised thus much, he floor I now proveed to those different classes of clarges, and flate to the Committee their ficeeafe er, decrease as compared with those of last The first charge to which he would advert, a that of the land forces, upon which generally the Committee would perceive there was an increase of 472 men, and an increase of the charges amounting to 184,000l. This difference arose in the following manner:-The Committee would fee that this class of Estimates was feparated into leveral di visions : upon the first, namely, the household troops, there was an increase of 621, and he should not trouble the Committee by flating fuch a [mail increase, but as it offerded him an argument for what affected the whole military ettablifment. It had been a cultom for a long time back to make a deduction or floppage from the allowance to drummers and trumpeters, for the purpose of increasing that of the drummer and trummet meiore: but that was found not to be warranted by law; and upon the discontinuance of that mode of pay of the drum. majers and termpet majors, it was thought proper to purthern upon the pay of the forjeant, which eccasioned an expense of not more than 2 or 2,0001. a year, an expence which would not be thought too much to get rid of an objectionable practice. In the charge for the Diagoon-guards, there was an increase of 16,000l. There were in regard to these forme additions to their chablefinment; but the great increase arose by transferring the forage for Ireland to the Commifferiat department. He fluted latt year that, as to England, the charge for bread for the men and forage for the horses, was transferred There were also additions of different delectives, against this might be placed fairly, the laving string General STAWART conceived, that the inter- wounds had been inflicted on various parts of his box which upon the who'e made an increase upon this from the diminution of the number of days of trains course between the two countries, which would be dy. It appeared to your Committee, that the principal part of the diffrese which was complained of of the inhabi anta thereof, into two divisions, for the had arisen out of great and extensive speculations. purpoles of the first mentioned AA, and none other. which commenced upon the opening of the South to could of a certain number of Baronies, haif Ba-American markets in the Branils and allewhere to the ronies, and Parithes within the faid Counties readventures of British merchants. spectively, inflead of Baronies or half Baronies only's and every luch Division fo to be appointed. Mr. Garden, the Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers at Glafgow, faiddiffinguished by the name of some One Barony o that in Glafgow and the neighbourhood the difa trefa began among the manufacturing body of per-Now we, Charles Duke of Richmond, Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireple, and it has preffed more feverely upon them his therto than on any other class. That it began aland, in pursuance of the faid Acte, are hereby bout the month of October or beginning of Nov. pleafed, by and with the advice of the Privy Counlaft : the cause of it appeared to him to be this ; cil, to direct that the faid County of Rolcommon that a fet of merchants in London, Liverpool, and be divided into Two Divisions, to be colled the Di-Glafgow, conceiving that the markets of South vision of Athlone and the Division of Boyle; the America would confutne a vaft quantity of our me-Division of Athlone to be composed of the Barony nufactures, entered into a project of very extentive of Athlone, Half Barony of Ballymoe, Half Ba exports to those countries and to the West India. ony of Morcarnon, and the Parifhre of Temple. Iffands, chiefly intended for the Spunish colonies; netian, Roscommon, Kilteevan, Kilgiffin, and Balthefe expeditions not meeting a ready market, thole lyteague, part of the Barony of Ballintobber, and exporters have not been able to pay the manufacthe Towns of Athlone and Referenmen to be the tniers, when the bills became doe't thefe Bills were Towns nominated; and the Division of Boyle to be therefore returned upon the munufacturere, which composed of the Baronies of Boyle and Rolcommon created a great deal of diffrese-many of those and the remainder of the Barony of Ballintobber. houses that were the original causes of the evil, are and the Towns of Boyle, Castlerea, and Strokes. gone to hank-uptcy long ago; but they have of the faid recited Act of the Thirty-fixth year of created this evil upon the manufacturers of whom they purchased the goods'; that the manufacturers his Majesty, of which all persons are desired to take have their property locked up in bankrupts' effater. that part of it will be lost no doubt, but yet that in Given at the Council Chamber in Dublin, the the course of nine, twelve, or fifteen months, a confiderable part of the capital will return to the manu-Charles Coffel, Erne, Frankfort, W. That the manufacturers of goods who have capitals, fill feel great dif-WATERFORD MARKET PRICES-MARCH 16. trefs from this cause; and it is that class of people that it would be defirable to relieve, because a little aid from Government would enable them to go on with their bufinels, though on a limited feele ; but fliff they would be enabled to retain a certain proportion of their work people or labourers; whereas, if they got no kind of relief, they must be broken down also, and the labourers with their families must be left without means of fubliftence. That this diftrefs ttill preffes very heavily upon them, the export merchants not being able to pay the manufacturers for the goods they have taken. That in the course of trade great quantities of goods from Scotland were fold by agents in London; those agents gave a temporary accommodation to the manufacturer. but inthing more; when the merchante could not pay those Bills which they had given for goods, the bille went back apon the manufacturers.

"That there is this chain of connection between the manufacturing body and the upper classes of merchants, the Broke in Scotland having discount. ed or advanced money upon thole bills of the merchants for the manufact irers ; thufe bille baving gone back, the manufacturers are not able to take them up ; the capitals of the Banks are therefore taken up alfo, and they are not able to give the regular accommodation which they had been uled to do to their customers. In this fituation of things, too, a want of confidence erifes in the Banke themfelves, when they fee people breaking down around them, they become timid and afraid of transacting any bufinele; a want of confidence on the part of the Banks naturally creates diffrestes among the
